several amounts of interest due the State by the companies who had received the loan of bonds from the State. The bank acted in no other way towards such railroad companies than as the depositary of 11 such companies for credit of the Treasurer of the State in the manner before stated. As fiscal agent of the State the Bank of Tennessee paid, or caused to be paid by its correspondent in New York, all the coupons from the State bonds, for whatever purpose issued, and never charged the payment of a single coupon to any railroad whatever. The interest so paid was charged to the Treasurer of the State directly by the Bank of Tennessee.

And further saith not. 12

WM. MORROW, being first duly sworn, deposed as follows:

1 Q. State your name, age and place of residence? How long and during what period of time

5 were you the Treasurer of the State of Tennessee?
A witness in this case, John T. Terry of the firm of E. D. Morgan & Co., of New York City, in answer to interrogatory 29th on the 8th page of his printed deposition asking him: "When his firm of E. D.
Morgan & Co. and himself became the owners of Tennessee bonds, was he not aware that they were liens upon railroads in this State?" says: "We "were so informed by the Treasurer of the State
"of Tennessee in our office"; and in answer to the 6 39th cross-interrogatory on page 10, asking him,
"who was the Tennessee treasurer with whom you
"(he) had the conversation in his office, and when
"was it?" Answered: "My impression is his "name was Morrow, and he had some Tennessee
"bonds for sale; this was previous to 1873, to "the best of my recollection; it was since the war."
Now please state whether you had the conversation with John T. Terry he has related, or told him the State bonds issued to railroads were first mortgage 7 liens upon the railroads in this State? Did you have any Tennessee bonds for sale in 1873, or prior or subsequent to that date, or ever inform Terry so?
Were you ever in the office of E. D. Morgan & Co., of New York? if yea, at what date were you in their office? Were you ever in their office or have a conversation with any member of that firm before that date? Were you in New York City in 1873; at all?

A. Name, William Morrow; age, forty-one, residence,
8 Nashville, Tennessee; I was State Treasurer of Tennessee from June, 1st, 1870, up to February 5th, 1877; it was during the month of November or December 1874, in December I think that I first met Gov. E. D. Morgan of firm of Morgan & Co., and the place I think was in the Fourth National Bank of New York; I state that according to the best of my recollection; I never met Mr.

Terry, and was not at the banking house of E. D. 9
Morgan & Co.; that I never told him State bonds were a lien, but I state without doubt I never informed him I had Tennessee bonds for sale, for the reason I never bought or sold directly or indirectly any Tennessee bonds, save a few bought as my part of the purchase money of the Knoxville & Charleston Rail Road, and paid to the State of Tennessee; there must be some confusion of persons and dates in the mind of Mr. Terry; at the time above referred to, the comptroller and myself were in New York, 10 and the former was negotiating loan (which failed) to pay the January, 1875, interest on State debt; then it was I first met Governor Morgan and was in banking house of Drexel, Morgan & Co., but certainly no such statements were made by me to Mr. Terry or to anyone else as he imputes to me in his deposition; I might have been in New York in 1873, but my acquaintance with the banking firm of E. D. Morgan & Co. and Drexel, Morgan & Co. does not antedate November or December, 1874. 11

2 Q. Please state the reputation and character of Robert J. McKinney, Archibald Wright, and Francis B. Fogg, the commissioners appointed by the Legislature of Tennessee to conduct the proceedings on behalf of the State against delinquent and insolvent railroad companies, if you are acquainted with their characters for integrity and intelligence. State also their ages, circumstances, and independency of and want of connection with railroads.

A. I have known personally the three gentlemen 12 named in above interrogatory for years, and I am at a loss for words to express the high esteem in which they have been for years and still are deservedly held by the entire people of Tennessee, and of their entire fitness to conduct properly the work assigned them of protecting and disposing of the State's interest in railroads; they are or were all 13 beyond the age of sixty-five; ages not exactly known to me; of the highest integrity and intelligence; two had prior to the war occupied places on the Supreme Bench with distinguished credit, and the other for years the leading lawyer of Middle Tennessee; all in independent circumstances financially, and regarded this important trust committed to them as perhaps the closing public service of their lives; it was in my opinion discharged with singular fidelity and wisdom; and further saith not.

Deposition of Samuel Tate.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS
vs.
THE MEMPHIS AND CHARLESTON
RAILROAD COMPANY.

Deposition of Samuel Tate, taken at Knoxville, Tenn., Sept. 25th, 1879: 2

I reside in the City of Little Rock, Arkansas, and am sixty-two years old. I was born in Tennessee, and was a citizen of Tennessee for about sixty years. I have no connection with or interest in the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, or any other railroad in the State, nor in their bonds or securities, nor in the State bonds.

I was connected with the Memphis and Charleston Railroad from the year 1852, till the year 1868, 3 the first two and a half years as Secretary and Treaurer, and balance of the time as President; in all something over sixteen years. I was connected with the road from the time of its first active operations, in the collection of its stock and in the commencement of its grading and construction.

I was during the whole of my official connection with the Board almost the exclusive active financial and constructing agent for the Western Division of the road, that being the only portion which lies in 4 Tennessee.

The purpose, as I understood it at the time, of the railroad men of Tennessee, in shaping the

5 passage of the General Internal Improvement Act of 1851-2 was to get it in the most available shape, to iron and equip their road ; and the State's credit was much better than any outside company's ; even with the State's endorsement they preferred and so shaped the legislation as to get the straight State Bonds issued in order to get more money for it ; besides this they preferred making their liabilities and dealings with the State alone, in paying their interest and sinking funds, having their entire dealings 6 with the State of Tennessee ; and supposed they had accomplished this in the passage of the Act of 1851-2.

Experience had shown that the bonds of companies endorsed by the State never obtained as high a price in the market as straight State Bonds.

The first bonds received by the Memphis and Charleston Railroad, under the Act of 1851-2, were sold as straight Tennessee State Bonds, and brought 108 cents in the market.

7 A very large proportion of the bonds received by the road under said Act and amendment were received and sold by me as the Financial Agent of the company, and all of them during my connection with the road in full consultation with me.

In the negotiation of these bonds with capitalists
in the City of Charleston, New York and elsewhere, I had many consultations and conversations with them in relation to the character of these bonds, in all of which I represented them as straight State 8 Bonds, and that the law made the State alone liable for them to the holder, which position was accepted and acquiesced in by every man whom I ever sold a bond to.

In keeping my accounts with the State of Tennessee in relation to the bonds issued to the Company by the State, I credited the State with the amounts of the bonds without regard to preserving on the books the numbers of said bonds, as I re- 9 garded our liability as alone to the State for the amounts of the bonds, without regard to any specific bonds. When any amount was paid to the State on interest and sinking fund it was charged to the State as that much money, without regard to its being paid on any particular bond.

I did superintend the payment of the semi-annual interest to the State on the amount of bonds issued to said company. It was directed to be paid or paid so as to be applied to the coupons attached to 10
the identical bonds issued to our company, but it was simply directed to be paid, and was paid, as so much interest, due from our company to the State on the amount of bonds issued to us, believing and construing our obligation under the law to be to the State alone.

All the bonds issued to our company were payable to blank or bearer, and were passed to the purchasers of them without any endorsement or notation upon them to identify them as the bonds is- 11
sued to our company by the State, passing them to the purchaser as I would a bank note, believing that our company had no more liability upon them than it would have upon a bank note passed to such purchaser; the similarity between said bonds and a bank note consists in this, that they were both payable to blank or bearer, passed by delivery and were both numbered.

The system of numbering bonds and bank notes is adopted by the State or institution issuing them 12 for the purpose of identity, and for detecting spurious and over-issues.

The company ceased to pay interest due the State during most of the war, and for more than two years after the close of the war—during which time no coupon was ever presented to or payment demanded from the company by any holder of any 13 such past due coupon, but payment was demanded by the State of Tennessee for all the past interest due the State.

The Memphis and Charleston Railroad received under the act of 1852, and amendments, $1,100,000, and made an additional indebtedness to the State of about $400,000 for accrued interest during the war.

Under an act of 1875 or '6, an additional loan was made of about $300,000, making a total indebted-14 ness of about $1,800,000.

Every bond received by our company from the State that was negotiated were sold and the proceeds used in strict conformity with the law, during my official connection with the road.

As to the act of 10th of March, 1869, I know nothing, but looking as I did, with many other railroad men of Tennessee, to the very large indebtedness of the State, near forty-three millions of dollars, and its depreciated credit, then down to 41
15 cents, and the large indebtedness of the railroads to the State, and their dilapidated condition after the war, we were anxious to devise some plan to relieve the State and the railroad companies, to prevent the roads going into the hands of political receivers, and being run down and destroyed without benefit either to the companies or the State, under the large sinking fund soon to be collected, with their other pressing liabilities, we devised the plan contained in the law of 20th July, 1870, as the only one 16 to avoid bankruptcy of both railroads and State.

The wisdom of which law was proven by reducing the State's debt over $20,000,000, and to an amount capable of being easily handled.

The demand for State bonds produced by this law was such as to increase their value from 41 to over 65 cents within forty-five days from its passage, thereby adding over nine millions of dollars to the 17

value of State bonds then out.

As to the amount of capital furnished by the stockholders of this road for its construction and equipment, upon which the State's credit was based, the original stockholders paid in as stock at par about $2,500,000. They sold their own first mortgage bonds on their Alabama & Miss. Division, $1,600,000, at 87c., $1,392,000. They used in its construction and equipment of their net earnings during its construction for construction 18 and equipment purposes about $2,800,000, making a total of $6,692,000, upon which their orginal State loan was about $1,100,000. Loan to fund interest about $400,000. Additional loan after the war about $300,000, making a total Tennessee Loan of about $1,800,000.

After the war the road was found to be one of the worst injured roads in the South, having been at different times lost and won, and in the possession of both armies alternately, and each surrender of it 19 was preceded by its destruction by the retreating army as far as it was possible, and at the close of the war not a permanent bridge or trestle was left on it, and but few buildings, and for 136 miles the ties all burnt or destroyed, and most of the rails burned and twisted around trees and telegraph poles, so as to require almost a new construction and new equipment; for this purpose the company spent over two and a quarter millions of dollars of the stockholders' means and credit, putting the road 20
and its equipment in fine order, and purchaseing of the Government of the United States over $600,000 worth of equipments and material, for which they paid the Government the cash.

My impression is that all the bonds issued to our company before the war were sold promptly, for the reason that they brought a good price, but the bonds issued after the war were not sold promptly, but were retained by the company, and used as collaterals for loans, because it was thought that the company could better undertake to pay the interest on money borrowed than to stand the discount on the bonds, which would have been necessary in selling them, and they were so retained by the company as long as I was officially connected with the road, as I recollect.

In regard to any means used to procure legislation in Tennessee for the benefit of the railroads, I can say that I never made an improper proposal to any member of any legislative body whatever, nor do I know any one else doing so.

I know of no holder of any Tennessee State Bond issued under the General Internal Improvement Act of Tennessee, preserving any evidence of the particular road to which such bond was issued; but I do know the fact there was no difference in the price of said bonds in the open market in New York or elsewhere, whether they were issued to solvent or insolvent roads. And further this deponent sayeth not.

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS, on behalf of Holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee issued to the MEMPHIS, CLARKSVILLE AND LOUISVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY, 9

vs.

THE MEMPHIS, CLARKSVILLE AND LOUISVILLE RAILROAD COMPANY, AND THE LOUISVILLE, NASHVILLE AND GREAT SOUTHERN RAILROAD COMPANY. 10

It is stipulated by and between the parties to the aboved-named suits, in order to avoid the trouble, expense and delay of formal proof, that the following are facts proven in these causes: 11

First.—In reference to the bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to the railroad companies involved in these causes and their predecessors in interest under the Internal Improvement Laws of the State of Tennessee, as a general proposition, subject probably to some exceptions, the purchasers of said bonds did not know when they purchased the same originally to what 12 companies they had been issued. The information contained in receipts taken by the Secretary of State from the companies as to the bonds loaned before the late war was never made known except as it may be claimed to have been made known by said receipts and by the report of a joint select Committee of the Legislature of Tennessee, appointed by the General Assembly of 1857-8 to investigate the offices

13 of Comptroller and Secretary of State and other purposes, made August 11, 1858, and by a report made by John C. Burch, Comptroller, in 1875. The information relative to the bonds loaned after the war was not made public except as it may be claimed to have been made public by the receipts themselves until a report was made by G. W. Blackburn, Comptroller of Tennessee, in October, 1869.

The bonds were principally negotiated or transferred either in Tennessee or New York. They were either 14 payable to bearer, using those words, or to blank or order, leaving the blank unfilled, or, if filled, it was done with some name other than the companies to whom they were loaned.

Answer No. 2,462, pp. 3 and 4.

Second.—The name of the Railroad Company to which the bonds of the State of Tennessee were loaned under said law does not in any way appear either in or 15 upon the bond.

Ans. No. 2,462, p. 4.

Nor the name of the Railroad Company to which the bonds of the State of Tennessee were issued under other laws passed by the Legislature at the session of 1852, including those issued under the Act of January 15, 1852, does not appear in any way either in or upon the bond.

16 Third.—That up to the passage of the Internal Improvement Law of February 11, 1852, the State of Tennessee had never defaulted upon the interest of her public debt, and the straight six per cent. bonds of the State were quoted on the New York Stock Exchange as follows:

Exchange, as published in the New York Journal of Commerce, during the year 1852 : 17

Fourth.—The report of J. G. M. Ramsay, Agent of the State of Tennessee for the sale of bonds issued to the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad, made to the Governor of the State, dated September 20, 1851, may be read by complainant on his behalf without objection to its competency. Respondents reserve the right to introduce any proofs they may obtain in rebuttal of the facts stated in that report.

Fifth.—The Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company received from the State three hundred bonds in July and September, 1854. The English merchants who sold them their iron failed to deliver it according to contract, and the company refused to pay them, but they reserved one hundred and forty-three of the bonds until the dispute could be settled, and they continued in the company's possession until after August, 1855. On the 30th of June, 1859, said company had on hand 389 State bonds, 301 of which were issued as early as June 4th, 1858. On June 30th, 1860, said company had on hand 303 State bonds, 201 of which had been issued as early as June 4th, 1858. Many other instances of a similar kind could be given where the various railroad companies preferred to use their other means in ironing and equipping the first part of their roads, reserving their State bonds for ironing and equipping other parts of their roads. The companies cut the coupons from these bonds, and with them paid the interest on 19 20

21 these bonds into the Bank of Tennessee, as they did
the interest on those bonds that had been negotiated.

Ans. No. 2,462, pp 8 and 9.

In 1852 the taxable property of Tennessee was $177,- 420,305. The debt of the State then amounted to only $3,992,856.66, and the rate of State tax was only 11½ cents on the hundred dollars. After the loan of bonds to railroads there was no difference in the money market between prices of the bonds loaned to railroads and those 22 issued by the State to raise the capital of the Bank of Tennessee, or to build her State house; nor was there any difference in price between the bonds loaned to the most valuable railroads and those loaned to the most worthless, except that in both of the above cases a difference of from two to five per cent. on limited transactions has arisen within the last two years, in the open market in New York, but no difference has ever existed on the Stock Exchange of New York, owing to the way in which Tennessee bonds are called at said Ex-23 change.

Respondents have caused thorough investigation to be made in each of their offices, and have been unable to find any evidence that there was any record made and kept by them of the numbers, dates, or series of the bonds issued to them, and have no knowledge, information, remembrance or belief in regard thereto (p. 12). The proceeds of these bonds were applied as directed by the laws under which they were loaned to railroads (p. 13).

24 The Comptroller's reports show that the Sinking Fund Commissioners credited each railroad company with the annual amounts paid in, but in their investment thereof selected any bonds of the State that were offered for sale. Thus, from the Comptroller's report of 1859 (page 59), it seems that the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company paid to the Treasurer $6,400, which was invested in one bond endorsed by the State for the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad

Company, four State 5½ per cent. bonds, and three 25
State five per cent. bonds. Not one of the bonds purchased with the money paid in by that company had ever been issued to it. The idea of the State at that time was to pay the interest on all the bonds that were paid into the Railroad Sinking Fund, and that the accumulation would be so rapid as to certainly raise a fund that would pay the bonds by their maturity.

In the Comptroller's report of 1859 (p. 16), he states that $82,840.95 paid in by the railroad therein named, invested with accrued interest, had purchased bonds 26
amounting to $109,750, which paid an annual interest of $6,417.50, or 7¾ per cent. on the investment.

The State had loaned her own bonds to some of her Internal Improvement Companies; she had endorsed the bonds of some of the other companies, and has issued her own bonds to pay for her State House, and for other purposes. The result was that she had several different series of bonds issued under different laws and maturing at different times. Series A were five per cent. bonds issued under Act of 1838, maturing in 27
thirty years. They were issued principally to pay for stock subscribed by the State in various turnpikes and railroads, and aggregated $1,893,000. Series B were known as "White bonds, six per cent., issued under the Act of February 11th, 1852." Numbers 1 to 7,908 of this series mature in 1892, while numbers 7,909 to 11,806 do not mature until 1898. This series aggregated $11,806,000. Series C were also known as "White bonds, six per cent., issued under the Act of February 11th, 1852," and due in 28 1898. This series aggregated $1,878,000. Series B and C represented the State Bonds loaned to the various railroads under the said Act of February 11th, 1852, before the war. Under the Act of March 20th, 1860, to illustrate, the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad Company paid in fifteen of their own endorsed bonds, and two regular State bonds; the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company paid in sixteen State bonds, and

29 $2,960 in cash ; the Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company paid in six State bonds ; and so have the McMinnville & Manchester Railroad, and the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad.

Though the various Acts of the Legislature and the reports of the Comptroller and of the Sinking Fund Commissioners, referred to in the answers, were all public, no bondholder was ever heard to protest against the authority assumed by the State, or against the cancellation and destruction of the securities which the 30 companies had paid into the Sinking Fund. An opinion, however, of Judges Davis and Davies was obtained, addressed to J. J. Donaldson, Chairman of Committee of bondholders, dated May 2, 1870, which is made Exhibit X to this stipulation. No bondholders ever presented a State coupon to any railroad company for payment. No Tennessee railroad company had any banker or other correspondent in New York to pay the coupons on the State bonds loaned to it. No company ever retained in its possession the coupons that had 31 been paid on the bonds loaned to it.

As long as the Bank of Tennessee was in operation it was regarded as the fiscal agent of the State. All of its directors were appointed by the State. They were required to report to the State, and were constantly kept under its control. The State Treasurer kept none of the State funds in his own hands, but deposited all the revenues of the State in the Bank of Tennessee, and could only check for the same on checks countersigned
by the Comptroller. The Bank of Tennessee 32 paid the interest on all the State bonds, without reference to the purpose for which they were issued. This is shown by the report of the Comptroller to the Session of 1851-2, when the general Internal Improvement Law was passed. (See his report, page 65.) The Merchants' Bank of New York and the Bank of North America of Philadelphia, were the correspondents through whom the Bank of Tennessee paid the interest on the State debt. These correspondents would return 33

the coupons to the Bank of Tennessee, by whom they were returned to the State. There was one account on the books of the Bank of Tennessee headed "Treasurer of Tennessee," which was credited by the revenues of the State deposited by the Treasurer, and by the dividends derived from the State's stock in the bank, and the various internal improvement companies in which the State was a stockholder, and was debited by the interest on the entire State debt paid by the Bank of Tennessee, and by such other sums as were 34 drawn by the Treasurer under appropriations made by law. There was also an account on the books of the Bank of Tennessee headed "Interest paid on State Bonds," the object of which was to show the exact amount paid on that account, but it shows nothing as to whom, or for what purpose the bonds were issued upon which such interest was paid. There was also an account headed "Railroad Companies, for Interest," showing the amounts and dates of all payments into the bank by the different companies, but it does not 35 show that the payments were to be appropriated to the interests upon any particular bonds of the State; nor did the bank, in fact, know what bonds had been issued to any named railroad.

The funds paid in by all the railroads were transferred either to the Treasurer's general account or to the account headed "Interest on State Bonds."

The Bank of Tennessee kept entries in its books showing the amount which each railroad company paid in for account of its interest. It is stipulated that ex- 36 tracts from the books of the bank may be read by either party. The moneys paid in by the railroads were sent by the Bank of Tennessee, with other funds to New York and Philadelphia, where they were paid out by the correspondents aforesaid upon coupons of the State, making no distinction between the different bonds of the State.

These correspondents kept no accounts with the rail-

37 road companies, and did not know to whom the bonds were issued, the coupons of which they were paying.

The Merchants' Bank of New York City was the correspondent in New York, through whom the Bank of Tennessee paid nearly all the interest-coupons payable at New York on the bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued for all purposes, and this agency continued from 1852, through the years 1853, 1854, 1855, 1856, 1857, 1858, 1859, 1860, and to April, 1861.

The ledgers of the Merchants' Bank of New York
38 and the books in which they took the receipts of coupon-holders and the detailed statements of paid coupons forwarded regularly every six months by the Merchants' Bank to the Bank of Tennessee, show that as to all the bonds issued under the Act of 1851–2, Chap. 151, or Acts amendatory thereof, the Merchants' Bank did not keep, nor attempt to keep, an account showing the Railroad Company to whom the bonds were issued, the coupons on which were paid, nor did they attempt to classify or identify the coupons, when paid, as being

The only accounts shown on the books of the Merchants' Bank for said years with the Bank of Tennessee were two: first, the general reciprocal account, on one side of which appeared the gross sums of money to the credit of the Bank of Tennessee, and on the other its checks and drafts; secondly, an interest or coupon account, showing the amount of coupons paid, and this account was credited with and balanced by checks 40 drawn by the Bank of Tennessee upon its regular account and balance in the Merchants' Bank at the time, without any discrimination as to the coupons to which the payments were applied.

This admission is made alone to save the expense and trouble of making copies of the entries from said books of the Merchants' Bank, and states truly the facts as they actually appear on said books.

When the State of Tennessee was in default in the payment of interest on any of its bonds it was in default 41 on all of them then matured, except such as were held by the East Tennessee University and the Commissioners of the Common School Fund, which were provided for by special legislation.

Each coupon could be identified when detached from its bond as having been separated from their respective bonds, which identification existed by means of the color, letter and number of the instruments.

In the Treasurer's books an account was headed "Bank of Tennessee," the reverse of the account kept 42
under his name at the said bank. There is also an account headed "Interest on Capitol Bonds," in which is shown the interest paid on the bonds issued to pay for the State House.

There is also an account headed "Interest on Internal Improvement Bonds." It shows the gross amount paid out on such bonds, but it does not show by whom the money was furnished, nor does it show the uumber or character of the bonds on which the interest was paid.
There are no separate accounts with the different rail- 43 roads to be found on the Treasurer's books. With the exception of the distinction between Capitol and Internal Improvement bonds, the Treasurer made no difference between the various bonds of the State, but treated all as equally the obligations of the State.

The interest on the bonds loaned to respondents was not paid after July 1, 1861, except as hereinafter stated. And though the United States Circuit Court was open in Nashville, after its capture by the United States army in February, 1862, no bondholder ever claimed 44
the right to a receiver for non-payment of interest.

The copies of the resolution and report attached as Exhibits A and B, to the answer of the L. & N. R. R. Co. No. 2,462 are admitted to be correct copies. They were published in the acts and journals of that session.

The bonds and coupons were paid by the L. & N. R. R. Co. as therein stated. The bonds cost 68 4-10 cents

45 per dollar, which includes per cent. of overdue coupons. The bonds paid to the State by the Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company cost 63 9-10 cents on the dollar.
The bonds with which the Memphis, Clarksville & Louisville Railroad was bought, cost 63 7-10 cents on the dollar. The above prices include per cent. of overdue coupons which price includes the overdue coupons. And no one ever controverted the right of the State to make a settlement until this bill was filed, except so far as the opinion addressed by Judges 46 Davies and Davis to J. J. Donaldson as Chairman of the Committee of Tennessee bondholders circulated in pamphlet in New York City and some in Europe in 1870, may be so considered.

The Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company on April 8th, 1868, executed a mortgage or trust deed duly registered, upon its main stem and branches, to James Punnett and Junius B. Alexander, citizens of the State of New York, to secure an issue of eight millions of dollars of bonds of which $7,070,000 were sold in Europe 47 and are now outstanding in the hands of European holders for value, who had not received any notice of the existence of any claim to a statutory lien on the roads, except such as may be implied from the Tennessee laws of 1851-2, and their amendments, and the fact that the said opinion of Judges Davies and Davis addressed to J. J. Donaldson as Chairman of the Committee of bondholders was circulated as aforesaid.

The said Punnett has since died, and John B. Smith,
a citizen of Louisville, Kentucky, has been substituted 48 as trustee. On November 1st, 1873, said company executed another mortgage or trust deed, duly registered, conveying the same property and also the Memphis &
Ohio and the Memphis, Clarksville & Louisville Railroads to Henry F. Vail, a citizen of the State of New York, and John B. Smith, a citizen of Louisville, of Kentucky, to secure an issue of four million dollars of bonds, of which two million are now outstanding in the hands of holders for value, who had not received any notice of the existence of any claim to a statutory lien 49 on the roads, except such as may be implied from the Tennessee laws of 1851-2, and their amendments, and the fact that the said opinions of Judges Davies and Davis addressed to J.J. Donaldson, as Chairman of the Committee of bondholder was circulated as aforesaid.

In March, 1865, the bonds of the State of Tennessee were of the market value of fifty cents, but in December, 1865, they were at 92 cents in the dollar, as stated
by the Financial Review of New York. The Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company, created by the consolida- 50
tion of the Tennessee & Alabama Railroad Company and the Central Southern Railroad Company, in March, 1871, paid to the State of Tennessee $2,368,176 in bonds and coupons of the State. Said company had raised the money to buy the bonds and coupons paid in by them, by mortgaging the road for $2,100,000, in 1870, and selling the company's bonds in the New York market. None of the State bondholders attempted by any legal proceedings to assert any rights in opposition to the course which that company was pursuing except 51
so far as obtaining the opinion of counsel above referred to. And the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company leased said Nashville & Decatur Railroad in May, 1871, agreeing to pay $2,450,000, of the debts of said company,
and an annual six per cent. dividend upon its capital stock of $1.512,184.11, and in addition to all this, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company have spent $ over and above their receipts
in the repair and operation of said road.

On May 25th, 1871, the Memphis & Ohio Railroad 52 Company paid the State of Tennessee $2,468,376.50 in bonds and coupons of the State. On the first of June, 1871, said Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company mortgaged its road for $3,500,000 of bonds, which were originally sold and are still held in Europe by holders, who had not received any notice of the existence of any claim to a statutory lien on the roads except such as may be implied from the laws of Tennessee of 1851-2, and their 53 amendments,and the said opinion of Judges Davies and Davis addressed to J. J. Donaldson as chairman of the Committee of Bondholders, circulated as aforesaid. No State bondholder having made any complaint to Court or addressed to them, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company consolidated with said Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company, endorsed said $3,500,000 of bonds, and have since expended $ over and above their receipts in the repair and operation of said road.

54 In January, 1871, the State of Tennessee filed its bills in the Chancery Court at Nashville, Tennessee, against the Memphis, Clarksville & Louisville Railroad Company, to whom State bonds had been loaned, upon which such proceedings were had as will appear by a certified transcript of the record to be filed in these cases. The State bondholders have never sought to review or to reverse said decree.

On August 1st, 1872, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company placed a mortgage on said last-named 55 road for $2,465,000 of bonds which the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company endorsed, and which were originally sold in Europe in 1872.and are still held there by holders for value, who had not received any notice of the existence of any claim to a statutory lien on the roads, except such as may be implied from the Tennessee laws of 1851-2, and their amendments, and the said opinions of Judges Davies and Davis addressed to J. J.
Donaldson as Chairman of the Committee of Bondholders, circulated as aforesaid. Said Louisville and 56 Nashville Railroad Company have also expended $ over and above their receipts in the repair and construction of said road.

With the exception of some interest paid in 1867-8, and some paid in 1874-5, the State of Tennessee has paid no interest since the commencement of the late war, and the remainder of the interest has all been funded into new bonds of the State, except that which matured since January 1st, 1876, and it has neither been funded nor paid. The Act of 23d November, 57 1865 (see Public Acts, 1865–6, pp. 11 and 12) was carried into execution as to all the railroads in this litigation.

All, or nearly all, of the past due coupons referred to in said Act were funded by the present bondholders or those under whom they claim. The coupons were delivered to the State, pasted in books kept in the comptroller's office, and new bonds received from the State for the old coupons. A new bond might have been for coupons on bonds loaned to several different railroad companies or on bonds not loaned to any railroad com- 58
pany, and so of the practice under the funding Act of 1873.

The Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company and the original companies forming the consolidation had received State bonds, which, with interest and sinking fund, amounted to $2,368,176. They met ther interest in January, 1869, but fell behind $15,955.26 on their interest for July, 1869.

This authorized the State to appoint a receiver ; and experience on other roads had taught that in every in- 59 stance these State receivers had run the roads down, without ever reducing the indebtedness.

In October, 1869, the debt of Tennessee was $37,590,027.08, of which about $30,000,000 were for bonds loaned to railroad companies, with funded interest thereon. The State's bonds ranged in New York in 1869 from 70 cents in January to 40½ cents on the dollar in December, there being no distinction between bonds loaned to railroads and any other bonds.

On July 1, 1870, the Nashville and Decatur Railroad 60
Company excuted a mortgage or trust deed upon their railroad property, rights and franchises, conveying the same to Philo C. Calhoun, Richard T. Wilson, and Adrian Iselin, all citizens of the State of New York, to secure first mortgage bonds to the amount of $2,100,000 issued and negotiated to raise the money to buy the State bonds to pay the debt due from said company. Said mortgage was duly executed and registered. The 61 bonds are now outstanding in the hands of persons who for most part are citizens of states or countries other than Tennessee, holders for value, who had not received any notice of the existence of any claim to a statutory lien on the roads, except such as may be implied from the Tennessee laws of 1851–2, and their amendments, and the said opinion of Judges Davies and Davis addressed to J. J. Donaldson as chairman of the Committee of Bondholders, circulated as aforesaid.

The State Comptroller in his report in 1869, page 50, suggested to the Legislature the propriety of selling a sufficient number of the railroads for bonds of the State, to lessen the State's liabilities eight or ten mil-72 lions of dollars, he believing with such reduction the State's liabilities could be regularly and certainly met. His report in 1867 (page 67) shows that the railroads then owed $800,000 for interest due July 1st, 1867, which the State had paid on the bonds loaned them.

The Comptroller in his report for 1867 states that the records of his office show that from the railroads then in the hands of Receivers scarcely a dollar had been received during the past fiscal year (page 13). If the State had forced a sale of all the delinquent railroads 73

so large an amount of such property thrown upon the market, in the depressed financial condition of the country, would have sacrificed alike the interest of the companies and the State, but by allowing the companies to pay their debts in any of the bonds of the State, and giving them a reasonable time in which to get the bonds, they were enabled to procure them at reasonable rates, and by reducing the aggregate debt of the State, they increased the ability of the State to pay, and the bonds of the State which were quoted as 74 low as 40½ in December, 1869, were quoted as high as 91¼ cents on the dollar in March, 1874, at the New York Stock Exchange.

An elaborate opinion was written at the instance of the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company, by Colonel Pryor, which was concurred in by the Hon. E.
H. East, of Nashville, who was then and is now one of the most eminent lawyers of Tennessee. The object of asking the opinion was not to satisfy said company, but to place the question fairly before the money 75 markets of the world, where said company was trying to raise the means to buy the bonds to deliver to the State as they claimed in payment of their debt to the State. The respondents knew nothing of any opinion of New York counsel to the same effect that was published at or about that time. It is true that the transaction in all its entirety was fully understood by the N. & D. R. R. Co., and they supposed it was also understood by the purchasers of their new bonds, as the legislation under which they were issued was referred 76
to in the mortgage, and the opinion of Colonel Pryor was published to give information on the subject.
Said company acted upon the advice of counsel, and in confidence that said advice was correct.

It is stipulated that the amount of bonds received from the State of Tennessee, the dates of default stated in the pleadings, are true.

It is admitted that there had been issued to the Mem-77 phis and Ohio Railroad Company State Bonds which, with interest and sinking fund, amounted in year to $2,396,110. They met their interest in January, 1867, but failed to pay their interest for July, 1867. The Governor, however, felt bound to comply with the law and appointed a Receiver to take charge of the road; said Company were also heavily indebted for labor, materials and supplies. The earnings were insufficient to pay operating expenses, and additional means were needed to put the road in a safe condition.

78 The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company being greatly interested in the efficient operation of said road as a part of the Louisville and Memphis line, had already advanced to said Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company $125,000, and then agreed to lease their road, to pay the interest on the State Bonds to the State of Tennessee, and to pay the debts of said Company incurred since the war in the reconstruction and operation of the road. They were to reimburse themselves, if possible, from the earnings of the road, but if there 79 should be a surplus of earnings, it was to be paid over to the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company (p. 33).

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company paid
the interest upon the bonds loaned to said last-named road. Said payments were made regularly each six months from July, 1867, to July, 1871. Each semi-annual payment amounted to $71,883.30, and they were made mostly in cash, though some were made in past-due bonds and coupons of the State. During most of this time the State was in default upon the interest due 80 on the bonds loaned to the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company, and was using for other purposes the money which the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company were paying to enable her to meet interest on said bonds.

On the 25th of May, 1871, the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company paid the State of Tennessee $2,468,376.60, in bonds and coupons of the State, as the Company claimed in full of all claims and demands of said State against said Company, and in full 81 discharge and satisfaction of all liens upon the property, rights, franchises and privileges of said Company originating in, or created by, the loan or issuance and delivery to said Company of the bonds of said State under or by virtue of the Act of the Legislature of said State, passed the 11th day of February, 1852, entitled, "An Act to create a system of internal improvements in this State," and under the Acts amending the same, or any other Acts of said Legislature.

82 The Comptroller of said State executed and delivered to said Company a receipt evidencing said payment, and a copy of said receipt is hereto filed, marked Exhibit C., to the Mem. & O Answer.

On June 1, 1871, said Memphis & Ohio Railroad Company executed a mortgage or trust deed upon their railroad property, rights and franchises conveying the same to Junius B. Alexander, a citizen of New York, and John B. Smith, a citizen of Kentucky, to secure $3,500,000 of claiming or purporting to be first mortgage bonds, 83 Said mortgage was duly executed and registered, and the bonds originally negotiated in Europe in 1871, are now outstanding in the hands of holders there for value, who had not received any notice of the existence of any claim to a statutory lien on the roads, except such as may be implied from the Tennessee laws of 1851-2, and their amendments, and the circulation as aforesaid of the said opinion of Judges Davies and Davis, and addressed to J. J. Donaldson, as Chairman of Committee of bondholders.

84 After the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company had delivered the bonds to the State as aforesaid, and had mortgaged their road, the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company endorsed $3,500,000 of bonds secured by said mortgage, and on October 9, 1872, entered into formal articles consolidating the two companies as stated above, the consolidation becoming bound for all the debts of the Memphis & Ohio Railroad. The articles of consolidation were duly registered in Octo-

85 ber, 1872, in all the counties in Tennessee through which the Memphis & Ohio Railroad ran.

On November 1, 1873, the Louisville & Nashville R.
R. Co. executed a mortgage on their main stem and branches, including the Memphis & Ohio Railroad, conveying the same to Henry F. Vail, a citizen of New York, and John B. Smith, a citizen of Kentucky, to secure $4,000,000 of bonds, $2,000,000 of which are now outstanding in the hands of bona fide holders for value, who had not received any notice of the existence of any 86 claim to a statutory lien on the road, except such as may be implied from the Tennessee laws of 1851-2, and their amendments, and the circulation as aforesaid of the said opinion of Judges Davies and Davis addressed to J. J. Donaldson, as Chairman of the Committee of bondholders. Said mortgage was duly registered (p.
37.)

With reference to the answer in the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville R. R. Co., The M. C. & L.
R. R. Co. having defaulted on its interest, the Governor 87 placed it in the hands of a Receiver as early as July 1st, 1865, and though it was continued under State Receivers until it was sold "it never paid one cent into the treasury on any account whatever."

The easterly span of the Cumberland river bridge, and the whole of the bridge over the Tennessee River had been destroyed during the war, some of the trest-ling had been swept away, some of it had been thrown out of position, and all of it that was standing needed extensive repairs. One of the most frightful railway 88 accidents of modern times occurred on this road in consequence of a passenger train running through the Budds creek trestle. The dirt embankments had been badly washed, and the cuts filled up with mud, in some instances ten feet deep. Many parts of the road were overgrown with grass, weeds and briars. The farmers along the road, being in need of iron during the war, had taken rods, bolts, spikes and chairs for blacksmithing purposes, and had even cut the bridges and trestles to get the iron. Switch circles, targets 89 and connecting rods were taken off and used for the same purpose.

This railroad is about eighty-two miles long. The termini are both small villages of no commercial importance, and the country traversed is poor and sparsely settled. The road crosses three large rivers, and numerous small streams requiring many bridges and trestles. The cost of construction and maintenance of way is enormous, while the local business of the road is almost nothing. To have kept such a road in opera- 90 tion through a receiver until the State bonds loaned to it matured would have cost the State millions of dollars. To have allowed it to remain unused would have been equivalent to abandoning it to waste and destruction, and as to the company keeping it up, they were utterly insolvent, and as early as March 28, 1867, initial proceedings to go into voluntary bankruptcy, for which purpose they afterwards filed a petition in the United States District Court at Nashville.

It is agreed that the bill of the Memphis, Clarksville 91
and Louisville Railroads against the Commissioners for the sale of delinquent railroads and the action thereon may be read.

After their purchase of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville R. R. Co., the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company executed a mortgage upon said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, conveying it to Junius B. Alexander, a citizen of New York, and John B. Smith, a citizen of Kentucky, to secure $2,465,200 of bonds, which were endorsed by the 92
Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company and negotiated in Europe in 1872, where they are now outstanding in the hands of purchasers for value. Said mortgage was executed August 1, 1872, and shortly thereafter was duly registered in all the counties through which said road runs. The purchasers of said bonds had not received any notice of the existence of any claim to a statutory lien on the roads except such as

93 may be implied from the Tennessee laws of 1851--2,and
their amendments, and the circulation as aforesaid of the said opinions of Judges Davies and Davis, and addressed to J. J. Donaldson as Chairman of the Committee of Bondholders

Afterwards, on November 1, 1873, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company executed a mortgage on their main stem and branches, including said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad to secure $4,000,000 of bonds, $2,000,000 of which are now outstanding in 94 the hands of purchasers for value who have not received any notice of the existence of any claim to a statutory lien on the roads except such as may be implied from the Tennessee laws of 1851--2, and their amendments,and the circulation as aforesaid of the said opinion of Judges Davies and Davis addressed to J. J.
Donaldson as Chairman of the Committee of Bondholders.
Said mortgage conveyed said property in trust to Henry F. Vail, a citizen of New York, and John B. Smith, a citizen of Kentucky,and was, shortly 95 after its execution, duly registered in all the counties through which said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad runs. Said road lies entirely within the State of Tennessee.

It is admitted that the complainant received several years ago from his father, who had been an owner of Tennessee bonds for many years, an amount between one and two hundred thousand dollars of said Tennessee bonds ; he also became an owner of such bonds by individual purchases made on his own account 96 about eight years ago. The aforesaid bonds cost his father and himself more than eighty cents on the dollar; and that in addition thereto for sometime prior to the filing of these bills, he was engaged in the New York market in selecting Tennessee State bonds loaned to the Central Southern and the other companies involved in these suits, and has been buying Tennessee bonds on the market at heavy rates of discount, at less than fifty per cent. of their par value ; that he has been exchanging Tennessee bonds which had not been loaned to railroads for bonds issued 97 to respondents, paying one or two per cent. for the exchange.

That at the time he was making these transactions he knew that the defendant railroad companies claimed that they had paid their entire debts on account of Tennesssee bonds, and denied all liability either to the State or to the bondholders for bonds, but complainant relied upon what he thought were the rights conferred upon holders of such bonds by the Internal Improvement Act of February 11, 1852, and its amendments, 98 and did not believe that it was in the power of the State and the railroad companies to discharge the lien which he believed was created by those acts except by actual payments to the holders.

Some of the bonds sued on in these suits were received from complainant's (Stevens) father; some were purchased about eight years ago by him, some were recently acquired by him by purchase or exchange, as stated above. That James L. Gaines has been Comptroller of the State of Tennessee since January, 1875. 99

It is further stipulated that all statutes, public documents and records of the State of Tennessee may be read as evidence by either party on the hearing of the causes, subject to exception for irrelevancy. They may be so read, as may also the public statutes of New York, from the usual official publications without any more formal proof, except that either party may introduce certified copies of the original documents where any difference appears between the published volumes and such originals. Other facts not embraced in this stipu- 100 lation and deemed material by either party may be subject of proof in the usual mode.

It is further agreed that all five of the above cases may be heard at the same time and place before the same Court.

IN EQUITY.

Agreed Statement of Facts.

It is hereby stipulated and agreed by and between the parties hereto, being parties to the above-entitled suits, in order to avoid the trouble, expense, and delay of formal proof, that the following may be taken and held to be proven as facts in each of said causes, as far as applicable thereto, but subject to all proper objections for incompetency or irrelevancy.

1. The stipulation dated August 14, 1879, signed by E. L. Andrews, solicitor for complainants, and Ed. Baxter, solicitor for respondents, is to be taken as part of this agreement, as fully as if recited and again set forth herein.

2. Either party shall be at liberty to use any or all of the depositions taken in any or all of the cases now pending in the Circuit Courts of the United States for the Eastern, Middle and Western Districts of Tennessee, brought by the said complainant, or by him and others, to enforce the lien reserved by the internal improvement laws of said State against divers railroad companies, so far as the testimony therein contained may be competent and relevant herein. A list or statement of such depositions shall be furnished by the party using the same to the other at the hearing, and printed copies of such depositions shall be filed in any case in which the same may be used.

3. Either party shall be at liberty to file in any of these causes a copy of the whole or any part of their printed compilation of laws, records, and documents, and either party may read as evidence, without further proof, such parts thereof as they may see fit, subject to all proper objections, on the ground of incompetency or irrelevancy.

4. It is further agreed that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company is a body corporate and politic, chartered by the acts of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. The right of way to construct its railroad from the line between the States of Kentucky and Tennessee to Nashville was granted it by the acts of the General Assembly of Tennessee, but it has never been incorporated by said State, and, therefore, is not a citizen thereof, but of the State of Kentucky; that the object and purpose of the creation of said corporation by the said charter and laws, was the construction, completion, and thereafter the operation and management, among others, of a line of railway for the transportation of passengers and freight, from the City of Louisville, in the State of Kentucky, to the City of Nashville, in the State of Tennessee. For this purpose such powers were granted to said corporations as are declared in the several charters and acts of incorporation of Kentucky, and acts giving it a right of way and to transact business in the State of Tennessee. The said corporation was authorized to borrow money for the purposes of the enterprise. It was likewise authorized to impose liens and execute mortgages upon its property to provide for and insure the payment of its liabilities.

That all bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to railroad companies under the act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, passed February 11, 1852, and the acts amendatory and supplementary thereto, including those loaned to the

Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, were sold in the market as straight Tennessee State bonds, as distinguished from bonds of railroad companies, indorsed or guaranteed by the State; that what were known in the market by the public as straight Tennessee bonds the said, bonds including those loaned to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, sold before the war, at the following prices:

While bonds of other descriptions, on which the railroad companies were bound as principals, and the State of Tennessee as surety, were sold at the following prices:

That the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company received from the State of Tennessee her six per cent. coupon bonds, at the times and in the amounts following, and none others, and at no other dates, namely:

Rec'd	April	30,	1858,	50	bonds	amounting	to	$50,000
"	"	"	"	150	"	"	"	150,000
"	"	"	"	100	"	"	"	100,000
"	July	15,	1859,	150	"	"	"	150,000
"	April	20,	1861,	5	"	"	"	5,000

Said bonds, to the amount of five hundred and sixty thousand five hundred dollars, were received by or on behalf of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, through properly appointed officers, and were by said company negotiated and sold, in pursuance of law, to bona fide holders, but none were received prior to April 30, 1858. The proceeds of these bonds were applied as directed by the laws under which they were loaned to said railroad company; that the State of Tennessee has failed to pay to the holders of its bonds the coupons thereon, representing interest accruing thereon, which became due on the first day of July, 1876, and all falling due since that date, and is in default therefor; that, on May 5, 1865, the General Assembly of the State, by joint resolution, appointed the comptroller, secretary of state, attorney-general, and commissioner of public works a board to make a settlement with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, and if a satisfactory settlement could not be obtained, the governor was authorized to have instituted such legal proceedings as might be necessary to protect the interests of the State. On the 18th of November, 1865, said commissioners reported to the legislature that they had effected a settlement; that the bonds loaned said company by the State amounted to $560,500, and the overdue interest thereon to $147,131.25; that the company had proposed to pay the entire principal in straight six per cent. coupon bonds of the State and the interest in coupon bonds of the State then due. The commissioners say: "Believing it to be manifestly for the interest of the State to call in this large installment of its indebtedness, and believing, moreover, that the company had a right under the law regulating the sinking fund to pay off its entire indebtedness in the bonds of the State, your commissioners accepted the proposal, and executed to the company a receipt dated November 17, 1865, for $707,631.25 in bonds and coupons of the State, being the total indebtedness of said company to the State of Tennessee on account of the bonds of the State received in aid of the construction of said road and the bridge across the Cumberland river." True copies of said resolution and report are annexed to the answer filed by John B. Smith in the first of said cases; that the said railroad company actually delivered said bonds and coupons as in said receipt is recited; that at the time this settlement was made in 1865, the State was in default for non-payment of the interest on its bonds from July, 1861; that the bonds and coupons paid by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee in the said settlement, were not the identical bonds and coupons originally advanced and loaned to said company and by it negotiated and sold, but that the same, in part at least, were other bonds and coupons of the State of Tennessee; that, at the time said settlement was made, the war had but recently prior thereto definitely closed. During the period of actual military operations, the railroads had been the prize of contending armies, as instruments of offense and defense. In the course of the struggle, they had been stripped of their equipment, and parts of them destroyed and repaired, and, in some cases built and extended, by the United States government, to fit them for military use, but so that when they were finally restored, on or about August, 1865, to their owners, they were destitute of rolling stock, cars, machinery, shops, and tools, and almost every thing needed for an equipment, nearly every thing of that description then in actual use upon the roads being the property of the United States, furnished and employed for its military uses. This they were permitted to purchase and did so in pursuance of executive orders issued by the President of the United States in September and October of that year, but being unable to pay cash, gave their obligations for the purchase-money payable in installments and bearing interest. The roads themselves, their road-beds, tracks, trestle-works, bridges, and permanent works of every description, were, to a greater or less extent, out of repair, in need of restoration, in some instances in a state of actual dilapidation. Business of every kind had been largely suspended by the war, except military transportation, and now that employment ceased with the cessation of hostilities, but the fruits of peace, in the revival of industry and trade, could only come with the lapse of time, and the gradual accommodation of the community to the new order of things. The general result was that the railroads required large sums of money to put them in a condition to earn an income, and, after that, would have to wait the slow operation of general causes upon the social condition of the people, before any revival of trade would renew their sources of revenue. In the meantime, a large arrearage of debt, for unpaid interest, had accumulated by reason of the default, during the whole period from July, 1861, both of the State and railroad companies, in consequence of which the State scurities had become discredited in the markets of the world.

It is, however, admitted that the said facts of depreciation of property and [credit are true to a less extent of the main line of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad between Louisville and Nashville, than of the other railroads in Tennessee; that about the time said settlement was made with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, to wit, on November 8, 1865, the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, by joint resolution, appointed a joint committee to examine into the condition of the sinking fund; that every holder of bonds of the State of Tennessee, originally issued under the internal improvement laws, including the complainant, so far as he then owned said bonds, and his predecessors in ownership of the bond since acquired by him, accepted the provisions of the Act of November 23, 1865, delivering to the State the overdue and unpaid coupons of said bonds, which had matured from July 1, 1861, to January 1, 1866, and receiving in exchange therefor the said State bonds, authorized thereby; that, after the proceedings and legislation of the State of Tennessee, hereinbefore and in the pleadings set out, including said settlement with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company of November 17, 1865, and the passage of said Act of November 23, 1865, the market price of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, in the City of New York, rose from about fifty cents on the dollar in the month of March in that year to ninety-two cents on the dollar in the month of December in the same year; that many of the railroad companies were unable to provide the means to meet the interest falling due on the 1st of July, 1867, which by law they were bound to provide, and failed to do so to the extent of nearly $800,000, but that the State nevertheless paid the whole amount of interest falling due on that date on its bonds to the holders thereof; that all the holders of the bonds of the State, including the then owners of the bonds now sued on, accepted the provisions of these acts, and funded their overdue coupons, and received payment of current accruing interest after January 1, 1874, to January 1, 1876, in accordance with the terms of the Act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, passed March 17, 1873, and particularly that they registered their bonds, in compliance with the provisions of the ninth section of said act; that in the meantime, on the tenth day of November, 1868, the Governor of the State had informed the General Assembly that six railroads in the hands of receivers were at that time indebted to the State, on interest account due July 1, 1868, one million one hundred and twenty thousand nine hundred and ninety-six dollars and eighty-six cents, and stated that he would have seized two other roads for failure to pay the July interest of that year, and placed them in the hands of receivers, but that he had learned by experience that to do so would only entail increased burdens upon the State treasury, and expressed the opinion that the interest of these roads, as well as that of the State, required that they should be sold, and the proceeds thereof applied to the reduction of the State debt. In the same message, he said :

"Leading gentlemen, connected with important railroads largely indebted to the State, are asking for authority to issue second mortgage bonds, with a view of exchanging them for State bonds. Thus purchasing State bonds by the avails of these second mortgage bonds, the debt now due by the State would in like amount be transferred to these railroad companies, and so the State would be relieved of a burden of several millions of dollars of debt now resting upon it. I regard this proposition with approval, and advise its adoption by the Assembly. The payment of large debts now due from the roads alluded to, and the sale of the roads already in the hands of receivers, would reduce the State liabilities at least one-third."

That at the session of the General Assembly in 1871, the Governor, in his message to that body, stated that under said Act of February 25, 1869, as amended by the Act of January 20, 1870, ch. 44, over eight million of dollars in the bonds of the State had been retired and canceled; that other roads had purchased and were then purchasing bonds with which to cancel their liabilities to the State under the said acts ; and in order to prevent further delay on the part of solvent roads that had not retired their indebtedness to the State under said act, recommended that the act be either repealed, to take effect at some future time not remote, or that its provisions be so amended as that the roads be required to pay all accrued interest as well as the sinking fund not theretofore paid in. In the same document, the Governor also stated that but three of the delinquent railroads remained unsold, and added: "It will be a gratifying result when the State is entirely divorced from the railroad system.

And, although the sales will not realize all that was desired, and leave a large debt to be provided for, yet the internal improvement system of Tennessee has added millions to her wealth and diffused such energy and enterprise into every class of society, that no intelligent man can regret the policy which inaugurated the system, notwithstanding a large amount of appropriations made since the war have been improperly expended."

That the several railroad companies to whom loans of internal improvement bonds had been made and the State of Tennessee dealt together under the said acts of February 25, 1869, and of January 20, 1870, according to the terms thereof (except as to settlements made prior to the passage of said acts) the various railroad companies who were able to do so, and who were on that account called insolvent, purchasing in the open market, at the market price, bonds of the State of Tennessee, without discrimination as to their description, or on what account, or to whom issued, and in order to raise the means so to do, the said railroad companies issued their own bonds, secured by mortgages on their railroad property as a first lien thereon, or in accordance with the said acts of 1869 and 1870, and the same were sold in the markets of this country and of Europe, to purchasers for value, to the amount of many millions of dollars, now notwithstanding; and that those railroads known as delinquent railroads, the corporations owning which were not able thus to liquidate their indebtedness to the State, were sold by the authority of the State, by virtue of judicial decree, rendered in a proceeding instituted and prosecuted by the State under and according to the provisions of the act of December 20, 1870, a printed copy of the record of which either party is at liberty to file in said causes, and to use as evidence so far as relevant and competent;

and the purchasers thereof paid for the same, as by said act and decree they were authorized to do, in any bonds of the State.

That by virtue of said dealings and transactions, and in consequence thereof, the result, in regard to the reduction of the public debt reached, was as follows: The total bonded debt of the State, including $13,782,000 of funding bonds issued under the acts of 1866, 1868 and 1873, amounting to $49,173,316.66. Of this, $29,251,250.00 represented the amounts of internal improvement bonds loaned to railroad companies, but not including the unpaid interest thereon, embraced in any series of funding bonds. The amount of $28,163,016.66 have, under the various acts aforesaid been surrendered and canceled; and of them $16,265,000 were internal improvement bonds loaned to railroad companies, and $4,326,000 were funding bonds under the acts of 1866 and 1868. The account between the State and the two descriptions of railroads, is as follows:

First. Defaulting railroads sold:

Bond issued	$14,628,000.00
Int. funded, 1866	1,122,306.00
Int. unpaid July, 1870	3,331,163.12
U. S. claims assumed	511,560.00
Total	$19,593,029.12
Amount realized by sale	6,698,000.00
Loss to State	$12,895,029.12

Second. Roads which have settled their indebtedness:

Bonds issued	$12,742,000.00
Int. funded January, 1866	1,850,768.00
Sinking fund paid	493,306.00
Unaccounted for	1,255,700.00

the particulars of which are truly stated in Exhibit No. 5 to the answer of John B. Smith, in the fourth of said cases ; that the whole of these transactions, from and including the settlement between the State and the Louisville and Nsshville Railroad Company, beginning in May, 1865, and the whole progress of this legislation, and of the liquidation, arrangements, and settlements authorized and required by it, and of the dealings between the railroad companies and the State, and of the railroad companies in borrowing money on the security of mortgages on their property, on the faith that all prior liens on account of the loans by the State of internal improvement bonds had been thereby removed and discharged, were public and notorious and the holders of Tennessee State bonds, in the year 1870, formed a voluntary organization, represented by a committee, for consultation and co-operation in matters of common interest, and kept themselves well advised of each step in the history of the business ; and on or about May 1, 1870, said bond holders, through their committee, of which J. J. Donaldson, Esq., was chairman, obtained a legal opinion from Hon. Henry E. Davies and Noah Davis, eminent counsel of the City of New York, affirming that they were owners of a lien under the act of 1852, upon each railroad, for the specific payment of the identical bonds issued to that railroad company, by virtue of a contract, protected by the Constitution of the United States ; which opinion was printed in pamphlet form, and not otherwise, and circulated among holders of Tennessee State bonds and others. That said bondholders took no action upon said opinion, and their committees ceased to exist in 1873. That in 1877 a similar organization was formed of Tennessee State bondholders, and has been kept up ever since, and that the present suit, and other similar suits now pending, are prosecuted in the name of the complainants, by a committee of such organization.

That at no time did the said holders of Tennessee State bonds, or any one of them, including the complainant or those associated and acting with him in the prosecution of this and similar suits, ever make any demand upon any railroad company for the payment of any interest on the said bonds, or receive from any railroad company payment of any coupon, or make any objection to any of the acts of the State of Tennessee, inconsistent therewith, or object to the passage thereof, or oppose any payment, settlement, and liquidation, by any railroad company, of its indebtedness to the State, until in May, 1877, at Memphis, in the Circuit Court of the United States, and in April, 1878, at Washington City, in the Supreme Court, it was contended by pleadings and argument, in the case of Duncan et al. v. Merian et al., involving the foreclosure of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, and the marshaling of liens thereon, on behalf of said committee, that the holders of said State bonds were and are entitled to a prior lien, in accordance with the said opinion of said Judges Davies and Davis ; that on the 16th day of January, 1878, there was held, in the City of New York, a meeting of holders of Tennessee State bonds, the call for which was signed by the complainant, and others with whom he was then acting, and with whom he is still associated, and who, jointly with him, are prosecuting this and similar suits—namely, Eugene Kelly, Peter Geddes, John T. Terry, and others—and at which they were present and participating, and at which the following preamble and resolutions were adopted, viz :

" Whereas, On the 8th March, 1877, at a meeting between a committee of five members of the Tennessee Legislature (of which Col. John H. Savage was chairman) and a committee of arbitration (of which George S. Coe was chairman), to whom had been referred the question of a fair and equitable adjustment between the Southern States in default and their bondholders, the debt of the State of Tennessee was fully discussed, with a view of ascertaining and determining what a fair and equitable adjustment of it would be; and,

"Whereas, At the conclusion of the conference between the committee of the Tennessee Legislature and the committee of arbiters, the committee made an award that the debt of the State of Tennessee ought to be readjusted by the issue of new bonds, at the rate of sixty per cent. of the total amount of the debt and interest, the new bonds to bear interest at six per cent., payable semi-annually, and the coupons for interest to be made receivable for all taxes and dues to the State; and,

"Whereas, The session of the Legislature expired by constitutional limitation a few days after the award of the arbiters was rendered, and there was no time to enact a law to give it effect; and,

"Whereas, It was very generally understood that an extra session of the Legislature would be convened to accept a proposition from the bondholders to compromise the State debt, on the terms of the award of the committee of arbitration, and to enact a law to fully carry it out, the holders of a very large amount of bonds of Tennessee did make and send to the governor propositions of compromise on the terms of said award, and the governor did thereafter convene the Legislature in extra session, to consider said proposition; and,

"Whereas, During the sitting of the Legislature, the intervention of other parties, proposing and advocating before it other and different terms of settlement than those considered by the committees of the Legislature and the committee of arbitration, and awarded by the latter committee, and agreed to by the bondholders, was prejudicial to the interests of the State of Tennessee, and to her creditors, in so far as it has delayed a settlement; and,

"Whereas, The bondholders of Tennessee had neither an agent nor other person to represent them before the Legislature, but confided in the Legislature, and fully expected that the senators and representatives of the people of Tennessee would ratify and confirm the award of the distinguished and disinterested gentlemen who had acted as a committee of arbitration, and accept the proposition of the bondholders made in accordance therewith, unhesitatingly; therefore,

"Resolved, That efforts made by any person who purported to represent the bondholders of Tennessee were entirely unauthorized, and that the declaration alleged to have been made at Nashville, that a settlement could be effected with the bondholders upon a lower basis than that proposed by the committee of arbitrators, of which Mr. George S. Coe is chairman, has no foundation in fact, so far as it relates to the great body of bondholders.

"Resolved, That while we deplore the attitude assumed by the Legislature, while assembled at Nashville, in December, toward the bondholders, we believe that it resulted from the influence and unwarrantable interference of other parties than real bondholders, or their representatives.

"Resolved, That we have an abiding belief that the people of the great State of Tennessee will not, by the rejection of honest claims which they are abundantly able to pay, suffer a stigma long to rest upon them, the effect of which will be to paralyze the prosperity of the State, subvert its best interests, and engender that demoralization which must ultimately result in losses to its citizens, even far greater than to its creditors.

"Resolved, That the people of Tennessee be urged to adopt such legislation as will uphold the honor of the State, and evince proper regard for the high integrity which has hitherto characterized her citizens.

"Resolved, That a committee of five be appointed, consisting of Eugene Kelly, John T. Terry (of E. D. Morgan & Co.), J. G. K. Duer (of James G. King & Son), Peter Geddes (of Geddes & Smith), and Dr. R. S. Moran—Eugene Kelly to be chairman—to take such action as, in their judgment, may be for the interest of the bondholders; but with the understanding that no settlement less favorable than the award of the committee of arbitration be accepted.

And this respondent says that on the 11th day of December, 1877, the complainant, C. Amory Stevens, had addressed, by telegraph, from New York, to the governor of Tennessee, a communication, which was laid before the General Assembly, then in session, as follows:

"NEW YORK, Dec. 11, 1877.

"GOVERNOR JAMES D. PORTER:

"I am a large holder of Tennessee bonds, which have been held for years strictly for investment account. I was a signer of the former petition, sent you through the committee of arbitration; and while I would prefer to have that proposition accepted, yet, if it would require a revenue bill that is deemed by the legislature to be higher than the State can afford to pay without seriously retarding the prosperity of the people, I prefer to change the original offer, and hereby do change it. I propose to take fifty cents on the dollar. I think this dispatch represents the sentiments of most of the investment holders. They recognize the embarrassed condition of the State, growing out of the war, and are willing to meet the situation in a spirit of liberality, and now ask the legislature, through your excellency, to reciprocate this feeling, and make a settlement without further delay.

"Please submit this to the legislature for its action.

"THE ESTATE OF CALVIN STEVENS,
"C. AMORY STEVENS, Trustee."

That the public debt of the State of Tennessee, which was the subject of these communications and propositions, amounted at that time, as reported to the General Assembly by the Governor, in the same message which transmitted the proposition made through the committee of arbitration, to twenty-three millions two hundred and twelve thousand six hundred and six dollars, on the first day of January, 1878, and which consisted partly of bonds issued under the internal improvement acts of 1851, 1852, and the amendments thereto, and those issued for past due interest, and known as funding bonds, and partly of bonds of the State issued for turnpike, capital, and agricultural bureau purposes, and the purchase of the Hermitage.

That on the 21st day of February, 1868, the legislature of the State of Kentucky passed an act entitled "an act to amend the charter of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company," approved March 5, 1850, a true copy of which act is annexed to the answer of John B. Smith in the first named of said causes.

That on or about the 1st day of April, 1868, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, in pursuance of the authority conferred by said act, which had been duly accepted by it, executed and delivered by its certain indenture of mortgage of that date, made by and between said company, a duly organized corporation of the State of Kentucky, party of the first part, and James Punnett and Junius B. Alexander, trustees, party of the second part, a true copy of which, except the signatures and acknowledgment, is annexed to the answer of John B. Smith, in the first of said causes, as Exhibit No. 4, thereof; that since the execution and delivery thereof, as aforesaid, the said James Punnett, named therein as one of the grantees, has deceased, and this respondent, a citizen of the State of Kentucky, has been duly appointed in his stead, and has accepted said trust, and has been, so far as necessary, acting in execution thereof; that of said eight million loan, authorized and secured by said mortgage, there have been issued and are now outstanding, bonds of said Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company to the amount of seven million and fifty-nine thousand dollars, and, of that amount, two million four hundred and thirty-three thousand dollars were used in the purchase of Tennessee State bonds, for the purpose of paying the State of Tennessee in part the indebtedness claimed to be due from the Memphis and Ohio and the purchase-money of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and which were so used, in pursuance of the terms and plan, according to which said companies, under the authority of the laws of Kentucky and Tennessee, have become consolidated with or owned by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company; that said consolidation and purchase were contemplated, as part of its purposes, by said act of the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky, of February 21, 1868, but the same was not consummated until after the passage of said acts of the General Assembly of Tennessee, of 1869-70, heretofore referred to, and that the bonds of said Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, of said eight million loan, secured by said mortgage,, the proceeds of which were used in the purchase of Tennessee State bonds for the purposes aforesaid, were issued and negotiated in the city of New York during the year 1870, and the Tennessee State bonds, purchased therewith, were bought in New York, in open market, at market prices then current, during the period from January 1, 1870, to May 31, 1871; that said deed of trust and mortgage was executed and has been duly registered in accordance with the laws of Kentucky and Tennessee.

That on or about the 1st day of November, 1873, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, a corporation authorized thereto by the laws of Kentucky and Tennessee, executed and delivered its indenture of mortgage of that date to Henry F. Vail, a citizen of the State of New York, and to said John B. Smith, a true copy of which, except the signatures and acknowledgement, is attached to the answer of John B. Smith in the first of said causes as Exhibit No. 5, which mortgage was duly registered in the proper offices in the city of Louis ville, and in the counties in which said railroad lies; that soon after the execution and delivery of this deed of trust or mortgage, the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company negotiated, issued, and sold, of the bonds thereby secured, two million of dollars, for full value, but less than par, to purchasers thereof; that the said Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, having purchased and acquired the title to the railroad and other property of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and the same having become by said purchase a part of its line and property on the 15th day of July, 1872, by a certain indenture of that date made between the said Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, a corporation created, organized, and existing by and under the laws of the State of Kentucky, and likewise existing and recognized and possessing chartered rights and privileges by and under the laws of the State of Tennessee, party of the first part, and this respondent, of Louisville, in the State of Kentucky, and Junius B. Alexander, of the city of New York, parties of the second part, a true copy of which, except the signatures and acknowledgement thereof, is attached to the answer of John B. Smith, in the fourth case above named, as Exhibit No. one thereof; that said mortgage or deed of trust was duly executed by the parties thereto, in conformity with the law of the States of Tennessee and Kentucky in that behalf, and was duly registered and recorded as required thereby; that all said twenty-five hundred bonds of two hundred pounds sterling, with coupons attached, as described in said mortgage, were negotiated and sold, and the proceeds thereof received by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, in the city of London, in England, for full value, but less than par, to purchasers thereof.

That there was delivered to the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, on account of their railroad, various internal improvement bonds of the State of Tennessee; that said bonds, to the amount of one million five hundred and eighty-two thousand dollars, were received by or on behalf of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, either through its own officers, or by receivers in possession of its railroad, under appointment of the governor of the State, and were by said company, or by said receivers, negotiated and sold, in pursuance of law, to bona fide holders, but none prior to March 18, 1858, and the proceeds of said bonds were applied as directed by the laws under which they were issued; that of said sum of one million five hundred and eighty-two thousand dollars of State bonds issued as aforesaid, in aid of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad, the amount of one million and forty-two thousand dollars thereof was issued to said company, in various sums and at different times, between the 17th day of March, 1858, and the 21st day of February, 1861, and all were issued under the provisions of the act of February 11, 1852, and acts amendatory thereof; and that forty thousand dollars of said bonds were issued to said company on March 27, 1866, under the provisions of the act of February 8, 1854, amendatory of said act of February 11, 1852, and four hundred thousand dollars thereof were issued to G. T. Lewis, a receiver in possession of said railroad, by appointment of the governor of the State, between April 14, 1866, and June 13, 1866, as provided in the act of January 18, 1866, to amend said act of February 11, 1852, and one hundred thousand dollars thereof, as authorized by the act of May 24, 1866, to incorporate the Tennessee Pacific Railroad Company, and for other purposes, by the terms of which last mentioned act the governor was authorized to execute a bond for the purchase of railroad machinery, cars, and all other material purchased for the use and benefit of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad from the United States Military Railroad Department at Nashville, of the United States; that the State of Tennessee has failed to pay the interest accruing on its outstanding bonds since the 1st day of July, 1876, having failed to pay the coupons falling due on that day; that the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company did not pay interest accruing upon its said indebtedness but failed to do so, and to pay the amounts required by the said several laws on account of the sinking fund, and became and was in default by reason thereof, so that it was claimed by the State that on the 1st day of January, 1871, the said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company was indebted to the State, on account of said interest in arrear, in the sum of eight hundred and seventy-two thousand one hundred and twenty-five dollars and ninety-two cents, besides four hundred and ninety-nine thousand six hundred and sixty-nine dollars and ninety cents, on account of the purchase of machinery, cars and material from the United States, authorized as aforesaid by the act of May 24, 1866, making the aggregate of indebtedness, claimed by the State, of that date, for which said company was liable to it, of two million nine hundred and fifty-three thousand seven hundred and ninety-five dollars and ninety-two cents.

That the bonds authorized by the act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, passed February 1, 1860, and called second mortgage bonds, were issued by said company, and negotiated; that they are the same referred to in the mortgage of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, to the said John B. Smith, and the said Junius B. Alexander, of the 15th day of July, 1872, as having been purchased by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, and by it conveyed to them.

That on the 1st day of June, 1871, the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company, party of the first part, executed and delivered its certain deed of indenture of that date, to and with John B. Smith, of Louisville, in the State of Kentucky, and James W. Alexander, of the City and State of New York, parties of the second part, a true copy of which is attached to the answer of John B. Smith in the case of the complainant suing upon bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued in aid of the construction of the Memphis and Ohio Railroad, which deed, it is admitted, was duly registered according to the laws of the State of Tennessee; that said thirty-five hundred bonds, described in and secured by said deed and mortgage, were duly issued by said railroad company, negotiated and sold to bona fide purchasers, for full value, but at less than par, and that the proceeds of the sale of the said bonds, which were indorsed before negotiation by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, were used to replace advances made by the said company for the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company, and for the purchase of bonds of the State of Tennessee, which the State of Tennessee received in discharge of the indebtedness claimed to be due from said railroad company to it; and, afterward, the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company was consolidated with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, and the said mortgaged property became vested in the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, and that payments of interest accruing on the indebtedness of the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company claimed to be due to the State of Tennessee, were regularly made by said Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, then in possession of the Memphis and Ohio Railroad, as lessee thereof, to the State of Tennessee every six months from July, 1867, to July, 1871, each of which semi-annual payments amounted to $71,883.30, and were made partly in cash, and partly in past due bonds and coupons of the State of Tennessee.

That, on the 1st day of July, 1870, the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company entered into an indenture with Philo C. Calhoun, Richard T. Wilson and Adrian Iselin, then and now citizens of the State of New York, parties of the second part, a true copy of which is filed as "Exhibit No. 2" to the answer of Charles Diggelman and others, in the case of the complainant suing upon bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued in aid of the construction of the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad, which indenture was duly registered in pursuance of the laws of the State of Tennessee; that the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company is a corporation of the States of Tennessee and Alabama, formed by the consolidation of the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, the Central Southern Railroad Company, and the Tennessee and Alabama Central Railroad Company; that the bonds of the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company, secured by the said mortgage to said Calhoun, Wilson and Iselin, were issued for the purposes therein authorized, and were negotiated and sold in the City of New York, to bona fide purchasers, for full value, but at less than par, and the proceeds thereof used for the purchase of bonds and coupons of the State of Tennessee, bought in open public market in said city, at the prevailing market rates, and which were afterward delivered to and accepted by the State of Tennessee, at par, through its Comptroller, in payment of and satisfaction for the debt claimed to be due the State from the said companies, on account of said internal improvement bonds originally loaned to them; that the respondents, Charles Diggelman, Marius A. Sorchan and Sophie Milius von Willer, purchased and held the amount of bonds stated in their answer, respectively, in good faith and for full value, but at less than par; and that the several respondents, whose names are in the list, marked "Exhibit No. 1," attached to the said answer, each purchased and still holds of said bonds the several amounts set opposite their respective names in said list, in good faith and for full value, but at less than par; a true copy of one of said bonds is set out in "Exhibit No. 2" to said answer. That the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company made a settlement with the State of Tennessee, through its Comptroller, of its debt claimed to be due to said State on account of the bonds of said State issued in aid of the construction of the Tennessee and Alabama and the Central Southern Railroad, and the interest thereon, as made up and adjusted to January 1, 1871, in the sum of $2,702,997.10, as is shown by "Exhibit No. 3" to said answer, which is a correct copy of the original, which was paid in bonds and coupons which had been purchased at less than par.

"Exhibit No. 4," attached to the answer, is a true copy of the lease of the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company.

GEORGE HOADLY,
On behalf of Complainants.
STANLEY MATTHEWS,
On behalf of John B. Smith, Charles Diggelman, and others, Defendants.

That the use of the words "bona fide" and in good faith, on pages 5, 21, 23 and 24, shall not preclude the complainant from establishing by proof that the holders of the substitution bonds had notice of the rights of the State bondholders, as now claimed by the complainant, when they respectively acquired their interests in the said substitution bonds.

CHAPTER 51.

AN ACT

To establish a system of Internal Improvements, in this State.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, that whenever the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, shall have procured bona-fide subscriptions for the capital stock, in said company, to an amount sufficient to grade, bridge and prepare for the iron rails, the whole extent of the main trunk line proposed to be constructed by said company, and it shall be shown by said company to the Governor of the State, that said subscriptions are good and solvent, and whenever said company shall have graded, bridged and shall have ready to put down the necessary timbers for the reception of rails, and fully prepared a section of thirty miles of said road at either terminus, in a good and substantial manner, with good materials, for putting on the iron rails and equipments, and the Governor shall be notified of these facts, and that said section or any part thereof, is not subject to any lien whatever, other than those created in favor of the State, by the acts of 1851-2, by the written affidavits of the chief-engineers and President, of said company, together with the written affidavits of a competent engineer, by him appointed, at the cost of the company, to examine said section, then said Governor shall issue to said company, coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, to an amount not exceeding eight thousand dollars per mile on said section, and on no other condition, which bonds shall be payable at such place in the United States, as the President of the company may designate, bearing an interest of six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and not having more than forty, nor less than thirty years to mature.

Sec. 2. Be it enacted, That the bonds before specified, shall not be used by said company for any other purpose, than for procuring the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments for said section of said road, and for putting down said iron rails, and the Governor shall not issue the same, unless upon the affidavit of said President, and a resolution of a majority of the board of directors for the time being, that said bonds shall not be used for any other purpose, than for procuring the said iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments, for said section, and for putting down said iron rails, and the Governor shall have power to appoint a commissioner, to act under oath, in conjunction with said President, in negotiating said bonds for the purposes aforesaid, and to act in any other matters pertaining to said company, where the interest of the State in the opinion of the Governor may require it.

Sec. 3. Be it enacted, That so soon as the bonds of the State shall have been issued for the first section of the road as aforesaid, they shall constitute a lien upon said section so prepared as aforesaid, including the road bed, right of way, grading, bridges and masonry, upon all the stock subscribed for in said company, and upon said iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments when purchased and delivered, and the State of Tennessee, upon the issuance of said bonds, and by virtue of the same, shall be invested with said lien or mortage, without a deed from the company, for the payment by said company of said bonds, with the interest thereon, as the same becomes due.

Sec. 4. Be it enacted, That when said company shall have prepared as aforesaid a second section, or any additional 9 number of sections of twenty miles each of said road, connecting with a section already completed, for the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments, as provided in the first section of this act, and the Governor shall be notified of the facts as before, provided, he shall in like manner issue to said company, like bonds of the State of Tennessee, to an equal amount with that before issued under the first section of this act, for each and every section of twenty miles of said road,

so prepared as aforesaid, but upon the terms and conditions 10
hereinbefore provided, and upon the issuance of the said bonds, the State of Tennessee shall be invested with a like mortgage or lien, without a deed from said company, upon said stock, and upon said first and additional section or sections of said road so prepared, upon the rails and equipments put or to be put upon the same, for the payment of said bonds and the accruing interest thereon.
Provided that if the last section of said road, shall be less than twenty miles, or if the railroad proposed to 11
be constructed by any company hereinafter specified, shall be less than thirty miles in extent, bonds of the State shall be issued for such section, or such railroad as may be less than thirty miles in extent, for an amount in proportion to the distance as provided in this act, but upon the same terms and conditions in all respects, as required in regard to the bonds to be issued for the other sections of said road: And when the whole of said road shall be completed, the State of Tennessee shall be invested with a lien, without a deed 12 from the company, upon the entire road, including the stock, right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by the company as incident to, or necessary for its business; and all depots and depot stations, for the payment of all of said bonds issued to the company as provided in this act,
and for the interest accruing on said bonds.

13 And after the Governor shall have issued bonds for the first section of the road, it shall not be lawful for said company to give, create or convey to any person or persons or body corporate whatever any lien or incumbrance or mortgage of any kind, which shall have priority over or come in conflict with the lien of the State herein secured, and any such lien, incumbrance, or mortgage shall be null and void as against said lien or mortgage of the State, and the said lien or mortgage of the State, 14 shall have priority over all other claims, existing or to exist against said company.

Sec. 5. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of said company to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee, at Nashville, at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due, from time to time, upon said bonds issued as aforesaid, an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commissions, or satisfactory evidence that said interest has been paid or 15 provided for, and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, or furnish the evidence aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller, to report that fact to the Governor, and the Governor shall immediately appoint some suitable person or persons, at the expense of the company, to take possession and control of said railroad, and all the assets thereof, and manage the same, and receive the rents, issues, profits and dividends thereof, whose duty it shall be to give bond and security to the State of Tennessee, in such penalty 16 as the Governor may require, for the faithful discharge of his or their duty, as receiver or receivers—to receive said rents, issues, profits and dividends, and pay over the same under the direction of the Governor towards the liquidation of such unpaid interest.

And if said company fail or refuse to deliver up said road to the person or persons so appointed by the Governor, the said persons so appointed, shall report that fact, to the Governor, who shall forthwith issue his warrant, directed to the Sheriffs of the Counties through which said Road shall run, commanding them, to take possession of said Road, fixtures and equipments, and every thing pertaining thereto, and place the said Receiver in full and complete possession of the same, and said receiver so appointed, shall continue in the possession of said road, fixtures and equipments, and run the same, and manage the entire road, until a sufficient sum shall be realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses incident to said proceedings, to pay off and discharge the interest as aforesaid due on said Bonds, which being done, the receiver shall surrender said Road, and fixtures, and equipments, to said company. The comptroller shall from time to time, settle the accounts with the receiver, and the balance shall be deposited in the Treasury of this State. The comptroller is authorized, and it is made his duty, upon his warrant to draw from the Treasury, any sum of money necessary to meet the interest on such bonds as may not be provided for by the company, as provided for in this act, and the comptroller shall report thereof to the General Assembly, from time to time.

Sec. 6. Be it enacted, That if said company shall fail or refuse to pay any of said Bonds, when they fall due, it shall be the duty of the Governor, to notify the Attorney General of the district in which is situated the place of business of said company, of the fact, and thereupon said Attorney General, shall forthwith file a bill against said company, in the name of the State of Tennessee, in the Chancery or Circuit Court of the county in which is situated said place of business, setting forth the facts, and thereupon said Court shall make all such orders and decrees, in said cause as may be deemed necessary by the Court, to secure the payment of said bonds, with the interest thereon, and to indemnify the State of Tennessee against any loss, on account of the issuance of said bonds, by ordering the said Railroad to be placed in the hands of a receiver, ordering the sale of said Road and all the property and assets attached thereto, or belonging to said company, or in such other manner as the Court may deem best for the interest of the State.

SEC. 7. Be it enacted, That at end of five years after completion of said Road, said company shall set apart one per centum per annum, upon the amount of Bonds issued to the company, and shall use the same in the purchase of bonds of the State of Tennessee, which bonds the company shall pay into the Treasury of the State, after assigning them to the Governor and for which the Governor shall give said company a receipt, and as between the State, and said company, the bonds so paid in, shall be a credit on the bonds issued to the company. And bonds so paid in, and the interest accruing thereon from time to time, shall be held and used by the State as a sinking fund, for the payment of the bonds issued to the company, and should said company repurchase any of the bonds issued to it, under the provisions of this act, they shall be a credit as aforesaid, and cancelled. And should said company fail to comply with the provisions of this section, it shall be proceeded against, as provided in the fifth section of this act.

SEC. 8. CHAPTER CLIII.

AN ACT to authorize the renewal of certain bonds of the State of Tennessee.

WHEREAS, most of the bonds heretofore issued by the State of Tennessee, were issued without having coupons attached thereto, which subjects the holders to 63 great inconvenience and the State to great expense in the payment of the interest thereon. For remedy whereof:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the Governor cause to be prepared a sufficient number of coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee of the denomination of $1,000 each, made payable to or order, of similar language, as nearly as practicable, and containing precisely the 64 same obligations of the bonds which have been heretofore issued without coupons, except that the renewed bonds shall be made to fall due on the first day of January next succeeding the maturity of the old bonds, for which they are substituted, and that the coupons shall fall due on the first of January and first of July of each year, and which said bonds shall contain at their head, and on their face, in conspicuous letters, the words, "Renewed Bond."

Sec. 2. Be it enacted, That on application of any 65 person, holding any bond or bonds heretofore issued by the State without coupons, and desiring to exchange said bond or bonds for a like amount in bonds prepared under the provisions of the first section of this act, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to sign the number of the renewed bonds applied for, and cause them to be counter-signed by the Secretary of State, and the great seal of the State to be thereto affixed, and the coupons thereto to be filled up and signed by the Comptroller, and upon the surrender of the bond or 66
bonds, so desired to be exchanged, the Governor shall issue and deliver to the person so applying an equal amount in the renewed bonds, prepared as aforesaid.

Sec. 3. Be it enacted, That the Governor shall cause each of the old bonds thus surrendered to be cancelled and to be filed away by the Secretary of State in his office.

Sec. 4. Be it enacted, That the Secretary of State 67 shall take and preserve a receipt from the person receiving a renewed bond, which shall contain the number, date and time of the maturity of said bond, and also the number of the old bond in lieu of which it issued, and on each renewed bond he shall cause to be entered the number of the old bond in lieu of which it was issued.

Sec. 5. Be it enacted, That upon the presentation of any old bond in exchange for a renewed bond, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to compute the interest 68
due upon said old bond up to the first of January or first of July, as the case may be, immediately preceding the falling due of the first coupon on the renewed bond given in exchange for said old bond, and to issue his warrant to the Treasurer for the payment of said interest, and that for all the services performed by the Secretary of State, under the provisions of this act, he be allowed one dollar for each renewed bond so issued,

69 and that the same sum be allowed the Comptroller for his services, to be paid by the person applying for said bonds.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That the person receiving said renewed bonds, shall also pay the expense of engraving the same.

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That the different internal improvement companies to whom the bonds of the State may be lent under the different acts of the 70 present legislature, shall pay the expense of engraving and preparing the same.

SEC. 8. Be it enacted, That the Governor of the State shall cause to be engraved or printed, the bonds which may be issued under the acts of the present General Assembly as a loan to internal improvement companies, and the said bonds shall bear date on the first day of January, prior to their issuance, and the coupons thereto shall be payable on the first days of January and 71 July, of each year.

SEC. 9. Be it enacted, That the coupons shall be signed and numbered by the Comptroller, and the bonds shall be countersigned, sealed and numbered by the Secretary of State, and upon delivering said bonds to the company authorized to receive the same, the Secretary of State shall take a receipt, reciting the number, date and amount of said bonds in a well bound book to be deposited in his office, and the Comptroller 72 and Secretary of State shall each be entitled to receive twenty-five cents for each bond so prepared, to be paid by the party receiving said bonds.

SEC. 10. Be it enacted, That when it is proved to the satisfaction of the Comptroller of the State, that coupons of interest, attached to State bonds, have been lost and an affidavit to that effect has been or shall be made by the holder of the bond, and a bond of indemnity is executed to the State, the Comptroller is, and shall be 73 authorized to issue his warrant for the payment of the amount of the interest due, and for which the coupons issued, which payment is to be made to the bona fide holder of the bond of the State.

77 five miles and no more, in the event the Blue Ridge Railroad Company of South Carolina shall adopt the charter of said South Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky Railroad Company, and obligate themselves in such manner as shall be satisfactory to the Governor, not to stop the construction of the said road at a junction with the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad, but to build said road to South-West Point; and said South Carolina, Tennessee and Kentucky Railroad Company, before it shall receive the aid herein provided, shall 78 bring itself within the general provisions in all respects, of the act which this is intended to amend. The provisions of this act shall extent to all railroad companies mentioned in the aforesaid act passed 11th February, 87 1852, whose charters, routes or names have been, or may hereafter be changed; and if any two or more of said companies shall be consolidated, they or the consolidated company shall still be entitled to the provisions of this act.

probable deficit, and of the amount which will be required of each company to be paid in order to meet the interest on the bonds of the State, and upon receiving such notice from the Governor, it shall be the duty of the president and directors of each and every company thus notified, forthwith to make a call upon the individual stockholders, for an amount equal to the sum claimed by the Governor, in his notice to said companies, which sum or sums of money shall be paid at the time, place, and manner required by the Governor, and upon failure thereof, by any of said companies, to meet the instalment thus required, it shall be deemed and taken to be a forfeiture of the interest of the individual stockholder or stockholders thus failing to pay the instalment called for by the Governor; and Provided further, that no State bonds shall be issued for the payment of State stock, in works of internal improvement, under the provisions of this act, until the Bank hereby established shall go into operation.

SEC. 21. Be it enacted, That the State of Tennessee shall become a subscriber for one-half of the capital stock in all railroads, McAdamized turnpikes, graded turnpikes and sanded turnpikes, for which acts of incorporation have heretofore been granted, or for which acts of incorporation may be hereafter granted, Provided, that the subscription on the part of the State shall not exceed an average of three thousand dollars per mile in any company for McAdamized turnpikes, nor shall it exceed one thousand dollars per mile on graded turnpikes, nor seven hundred and fifty dollars per mile on sanded turnpikes; Provided also, the subscription by the State to the Charleston and Cincinnati Railroad, and the Hiawassee Railroad, shall not exceed one million three hundred thousand dollars, to be equally divided between them, and to be expended within the State of Tennessee.

shall be notified in writing by the president and directors of any company, for the construction of railroads, McAdamized turnpikes, graded turnpikes, or sanded turnpikes, that one-half of the capital stock of said company has been subscribed for, thereupon the Governor shall appoint a number of directors, not to be stockholders, equal to the number elected by individual stockholders, and if in the opinion of two-thirds of said entire board, the payment is well secured by the individual stockholders, or that the individual 226 stockholders are good and solvent persons, and fully able to pay the amount of stock subscribed for by each of them, and that they have paid ten per cent.
upon the stock, the Governor of the State is hereby authorized and empowered, and required to subscribe on behalf of the State for the amount provided for in the foregoing section; and from the date of subscription
by the Governor, the State shall have a lien upon the property of each individual stockholder, to the amount of the stock owned by each, and upon the 227
failure of any stockholder to pay any subsequent instalment
after the first, such failure shall not operate as a forfeiture of the stock, unless the president and directors shall so agree, but payment shall be enforced by the president and directors, and no transfer or assignment of stock shall defeat the said lien; Provided, that said lien shall cease after the individual stockholders shall have paid in one-half their stock.

SEC. 23. Be it enacted, That whenever the individual 228 stockholders of any of the said companies in which the State has become a stockholder under this act shall have paid five per cent. in addition to the ten per cent. heretofore provided to be paid, making fifteen per cent. upon the amount of their stock, and the president and directors of such company shall notify the Governor of that fact, he is hereby authorized and required to issue the bonds of the State, signed officially by him and countersigned by 229 the Secretary of State, with the seal of the State, pay-at the office of the Treasurer of Tennessee, or such other places as the president and directors negotiating the same may designate, for an amount equal to fifteen per cent. the stock subscribed by the State in said company, and deliver said bonds to the president and directors of said company, in full payment of fifteen per cent. of the State subscription. And upon the 230 further payment of fifteen per cent. upon the stock of individual stockholders in any of said companies, the Governor shall issue the bonds of the State for fifteen per cent. more of the stock of the State, in the same manner, and under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as hereinbefore provided; and upon the further payment of five per cent. or more upon the stock of individual stockholders, the Governor is authorized and required to issue the bonds of the State for the like proportion of the stock due by the State, 231 under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as before. And in like manner the amounts paid by individuals and the State, at the several subsequent calls shall be equal, until the whole amount required to complete the work is paid in; and from time to time

he shall take the receipts of the president and directors for the several sums as paid. So soon as the president and directors of the Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Company, shall certify to the Governor of the State, that the stockholders of said company 232 have paid in five per cent. on their stocks, the Governor of the State shall subscribe on behalf of the State,
six hundred and fifty thousand dollars in stock in said company, and shall issue bonds of the State to said company for five per cent. on the State stock so subscribed, subject nevertheless to the conditions hereinafter provided. And as soon as the president and directors of the Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Company, or a board of directors appointed by said company, to construct that part of the road 233 lying within the limits of Tennessee, shall certify to the Governor that a sum has been paid in for the construction of said road within the limits of Tennessee, by individual stockholders upon their stock, equal in amount to fifteen per cent. upon the amount to be subscribed by the State, the Governor shall execute the bonds of the State to said company for the amount of fifteen per cent. of the six hundred and fifty thousand dollars of stock to be subscribed by the State. And whenever individual stockholders in said road shall 234 have paid in a further sum upon their stock, equal in amount to fifteen per cent. upon the stock subscribed by the State, the Governor shall issue the bonds of the State for fifteen per cent. of the remaining stock of the State; and upon the further payment by individual stockholders of an amount equal to five per cent. or more on stock subscribed by the State, the Governor shall issue bonds for five per cent. or more of the State stock, and so on in like proportion, until the whole amount is issued, all of which is to be laid out within the limits of 235

the State. And whenever the president and directors of the Hiwassee Railroad Company shall notify the Governor in writing, of the amount of stock subscribed by individuals in said company, the Governor shall subscribe for an equal amount of State stock; Provided, such amount does not exceed six hundred and fifty thousand dollars, subject to the same rules as to issuing the bonds of the State as is pointed out by this Act for the government of other railroads and Mc-Adamized turnpike companies; Provided, that if the 236
six hundred and fifty thousand dollars should not be subscribed by individuals for stock in said company, and a certificate of that fact made out to the Governor on or before the first day of October next, agreeably to the provisions of this Act, so as to authorize the Governor to subscribe for the full amount of the six hundred and fifty thousand dollars in said company, the Governor shall subscribe for an equal amount of stock in said

237 road, as is or shall be subscribed by individuals, and certified, as is directed by the 21st and 22d sections of this Act, and the remainder of the six hundred and fifty thousand dollars shall be subscribed by the Governor to any McAdamized sanded or graded turnpike company in East Tennessee that shall bring themselves within the provisions of this Act. And the Governor is hereby authorized from time to time, to constitute and appoint proxies to vote for directors in said Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Com-
238 pany, and such proxies shall give all other votes he may be authorized to do by virtue of such appointment agreeable to the provisions of said charter. And provided further, that if the Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Company, or the Hiwassee Railroad Company, or either of them, shall fail to obtain the subscription on the part of the State on or before the first day of January 1839, then and in that case, it shall be the duty of the Governor to subscribe for stock in such turnpike roads in East Tennessee as may bring 239 themselves within the general provisions of this Act.

Sec. 24. Be it enacted, That the State of Tennessee shall have a lien on the entire works of said companies respectively, for the amount so paid in by the State. And in all, the profits, rents, and tolls of said companies shall inure to the benefit of the State, until individual stockholders shall have paid in their entire stock in said companies respectively; Provided, the right and lien on the part of the State to the entire 240 profits, rents and tolls of the said several works, shall not inure until twelve months after the execution of the bonds of the State, for the last instalment on her stock as aforesaid, and then only to the extent of that portion of the individual stockholders who have not paid up the entire amount of their stock, and to remain no longer than said defaulting stockholders fail to pay the same.

Sec. 25. Be it enacted, That the stock to be taken 241
by the State in the several improvements, shall not exceed four millions of dollars, to wit: one million four hundred thousand dollars in East Tennessee, one million six hundred thousand dollars in Middle Tennessee, and one million of dollars in the Western District; Provided, that one hundred thousand dollars shall be raised upon the bonds of the State, and be expended as a portion of the fund allotted to East Tennessee upon the rivers in East Tennessee, as the General Assembly may hereafter 242 direct; and provided also, that one hundred thousand dollars of the fund allotted to the Western District of Tennessee, be expended upon the rivers in that part of the State, as the General Assembly may hereafter direct; and provided, that one hundred thousand dollars of the fund allotted to Middle Tennessee shall be appropriated to the rivers of Middle Tennessee.

Sec. 26. Be it enacted, That the profit arising upon 243 the stock owned by the State in the several works of internal improvement, shall constitute a fund to be applied to the redemption of the bonds of the State executed and to be executed for raising the Bank capital herein provided for, and the internal improvement bonds of the State.

ACT OF FEBRUARY 25TH, 1869.

An Act to Liquidate the State Debt, contracted in aid of Railroad Companies in the State of Tennessee.

456 Page 50, Laws of 1869–70.

Whereas, under the General Internal Improvement Laws of the State, passed from time to time, aid has been granted to various railroad companies by the loaning of six per cent. bonds of the State, to enable said companies to iron, equip, build, and bridge, and for other purposes, which is now secured to the State by a first mortgage or lien on the franchise, property and fixtures of respective railroad companies; and, Whereas, it is desirable for the general welfare of the State, that the State shall be reimbursed such amounts as have been advanced to the different railroad companies, as fast as may be practicable; therefore, 457

SECTION 1. Be it enacted, by the general assembly of the State of Tennessee, that the respective railroad companies, or either of them that have created indebtedness to the State, are hereby authorized to repay any amount of the principal of such indebtedness as they have respectively created in the bonds of the State, in 458 such amount, and at such times, as may be practicable; Provided, however, that nothing in this Act shall be so construed as to release said railroad companies from any lien which the State may have on the same for any unpaid interest now due on said bonds of the State authorized to be surrendered by this Act.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That any railroad company or companies repaying any indebtedness due the State under the provisions of this act, are autho- 459
rized to issue bonds of equal amount and denomination with the bonds of the State paid and delivered up for cancellation, as hereinafter provided, which said railroad bonds, so issued in lien of any amount of State bonds, shall be certified to by the comptroller, entered in a book to be kept for that purpose with date, number and amount, and shall be a lien, pro rata, in amount and of equal validity and effect with the unretired part of the State indebtedness upon such railroad, and all its property, franchises, fixtures and material. 460

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That in order to facilitate the railroad companies, that may wish to avail themselves of the provisions of this act in paying the indebtedness due to the State, respectively, they, or any of them, are hereby authorized to consolidate their property, in whole or in part, with other railroad companies, and issue

this act, and may adopt the corporate franchise of either of the roads as the stockholders may elect, and each railroad company paying its indebtedness, and such railroad companies as may consolidate under the provisions of this act, are hereby authorized to determine,
by a vote of the stockholders of said company or consolidated companies, the number of directors of such company, and elect the same under the new organization and that the said directors, so elected, shall, 462 according to the by-laws and rules of said corporation, elect one of their number president of said company.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That the comptroller of the State shall receive from the railroad companies, or any of them, bonds of the State in such amounts as may be presented, and cancel the same in the presence of the officer or agent of the railroad company paying them in, and execute to the said railroad company or companies duplicate receipts for the amount and number 463 of said bonds so paid in, and it shall further be the duty of the comptroller to certify on the bonds of any railroad company or companies repaying indebtedness due to the State, that the same has been paid, and that the so-certified (bonds) are secured by first mortgage.

Provided, That said railroad companies shall liquidate their indebtedness prior to the maturity of the bonds that have caused said indebtedness; and be it further provided, that said bonds, when executed by 464 the respective railroad companies or either of them, shall be deposited with the comptroller of the State, whose duty it shall be to deliver said bonds, or any number of them, to the president and directors of the company, on the deposit by said president and directors or authorized agent of an equal amount of the six per cent.
bonds of the State of Tennessee, with unpaid coupons attached, and the company's first mortgage bonds, authorized to be issued by this act shall have no validity or value except the comptroller's certificate is affixed on the face of each bond, that said bond is executed, and issued and by virtue of law taken the place of a bond of the State and is the first mortgage bond. 465

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That the comptroller shall be entitled to a fee of one dollar on each thousand dollars of the bonds certified as aforesaid; to be paid by the railroad company for which the same is done; and it shall be lawful for the comptroller to discharge the duties imposed by this act, by and through an agent in the city of New York; and all the provisions of this act shall attach to and become a part of the charter of any railroad company or companies acting under it. 466

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That by and with the consent of the board of directors of any railroad company in this State under the General Improvement Law, passed the 11th of February, 1852, and all the amendments thereto, that any person or corporation may, by paying the indebtedness of such railroad company to the State in the bonds of the State, as provided for by law, be, and they are hereby substituted and entitled to all the liens against said company for the payment of said debt that the State had or has by law, and the Governor and Secretary of State shall give such party or parties paying such indebtedness a certificate showing the facts, which shall be evidence against said company of such indebtedness to said individuals or corporations. 467

SEC. 7. Be it further enacted, That any person or persons may, with the consent and approbation of any railroad company which is indebted to, and for which the State of Tennessee holds a lien, pay the said debt, so far as the State is concerned, in the bonds of the State, or any coupons of bonds at par, and the person or persons so paying the debt of any railroad company with the consent of such railroad company, shall, upon

469 filing with the treasurer of this State the written assent of said railroad company, under the corporate seal of said railroad company, be entitled to have and hold all the lien or liens which the State of Tennessee had or has upon said railroad or its property, and shall have the same right to enforce the same which the State of Tennessee had, the object and intent being to place the person or persons so paying with the consent of said railroad company in the same position and with the same rights which the State of Tennessee had previous to 470 and before the said payment, and with full power to enforce the same.

SEC. 8. Be it further enacted, That any person or persons who may, with the consent and approbation of any railroad company, pay any part or portion of the indebtedness of such company, as provided in Sec.—,
shall have, hold, and be subrogated in all the rights, privileges, and lien or liens of the State, to the extent of, and in proportion to the amount of such indebted-471 ness, with the same rights and privileges the State now has, to the extent of such payment or payment; Provided, The passage of this act shall not decrease the lien of the State upon any railroad of the State until the entire claim of the State is fully liquidated OR AF-FECT THE INTEREST OF THE PRESENT BONDHOLDERS OF
THE STATE; Provided, That railroad companies which have issued second mortgage bonds, availing themselves of the provisions of this act, shall file with the comptroller bonds of the same series as those loaned to such 472 company, for which the State holds a first mortgage lien. Provided, The bonds to be issued by the company, under the provisions of this act, shall not have a longer time to run than the bonds of the State thus released and canceled.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

ACT OF JANUARY 2, 1870.

Page 61, Laws of 1870–71.

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee; that an act entitled "An Act to liquidate the State debt, contracted in aid of railroad companies in the State of Tennessee," passed February 25, 1869, be, and the same is hereby amended, so as to allow any railroad company which may be indebted to the State by reason of the bonds of the State loaned to said railroad company, to pay into the State, in liquidation of the principal of said indebtedness, any of the legally-issued six per cent. bonds of the State of Tennessee outstanding, without regard to series or number; and such payment shall, to the extent made, be a full and perfect discharge of the lien which the State holds upon the property of such railroad company, held by virtue of the bonds of the State issued to such railroad company, whether they be the same bonds or the same series of bonds issued to said company, under the act passed February 11, 1852, and acts amendatory thereof, or not.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That railroad companies issuing their own mortgage bonds under the provisions of the act which this is intended to amend, be allowed to fix the rate of interest which the said bonds of the railroad company are to bear, and all laws in conflict are hereby repealed. Provided, that when said railroad companies owe interest already due, coupons past due shall be taken by the comptroller or treasurer in discharge of such indebtedness for interest.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That when any company, under the provisions of this act, shall pay into the treasury of the State bonds which have been issued by the State to said company, the said bonds shall be

477 cancelled; but should any company, in discharge of its own debts, pay into the treasury any bonds that were issued to other companies that may still be indebted to the State, such bonds so paid in shall not be cancelled, but shall be held by the State as purchased bonds, retaining a lien for the State upon the road to which said bonds were originally issued until the debt of said road to the State shall be fully discharged, when the bonds so held shall be cancelled. Provided, That the provisions of this act shall not be 478 so construed as to allow the payment and satisfaction of debts created by bonds issued by the State, and upon which the State is secondarily liable, nor to the payment of the sinking fund, now required by law, of the railroad companies of this State.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, that this Act shall take effect from and after its passage.

COMPTROLLER'S REPORT

October, 1869.

"Taking this view of the subject, I would respectfully suggest to your Honorable Body the propriety of selling a sufficient number of our roads for the bonds of the State, to lessen our liabilities some eight or ten millions of dollars. With this reduction in our State debt, our liabilities could be regularly and unfailingly 480 met; and with assurances that the escutcheon of the State of Tennessee will never be soiled by the mildewing touch of repudiation, our good Commonwealth would soon appear "clothed and in her right mind," and sit contentedly, a queen among her sisters, a position to which she is entitled, a heritage that awaits her."

RAILROADS.

The records of this office however, do not show that Receivers are more successful than the regular officers of the Railroads, in collecting and paying, into the Treasury, indeed less so: for, from the roads now in the hands of Receivers, hardly a dollar has been received during the past fiscal year.

The failure of many of the Railroad Companies to pay their interest due on the 1st of July last, has been very embarassing to the Treasury—because entirely unexpected. From a tabular statement headed, "Railroads," in this report, it will be seen, that the large sum of nearly $800,000, was due by them on the 1st of July last, for interest, for which amount, the Treasury was compelled to provide.

CHAPTER LXXII. 497

An Act to authorize the Governor of the State to issue bonds of the State of Tennessee, to the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, to aid in the building of bridges.

Passed Jan. 15, 1852.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That for the purpose of aiding the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, 498 in the construction of bridges on their said railroad, the Governor of the State is hereby authorized and required to issue coupons of the State of Tennessee to said company to an amount not exceeding the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, bearing an interest of six per cent. per annum, payable semi-annally at such place as the President of said Company may designate, which bonds shall be payable in not less than thirty nor more than forty years after date, and at such place as said President may designate, but said bonds are to be is- 499 sued as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. Be it enacted, That whenever it shall be made known to the Governor to his satisfaction by the President and Directors of said Company that forty miles of said railroad have been put under contract, and that the work on the same is progressing to completion, and that said Company has sufficient bona fide subscriptions to grade and put the necessary culverts on said section of forty miles, ready for the iron rails, which subscription 500 shall be adjudged solvent and valid by the Board of Internal Improvements, or any Chief Engineer or other persons appointed to examine and report upon works of internal improvements, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue to said Company coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, of the description aforesaid, to an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, to be expended on the bridges necessary to be constructed on the said section of forty miles. And in like manner when a second section of forty miles shall have been put under contract, and the work thereon progressing, and said company has sufficient bona fide subscriptions to grade and put on the necessary culverts as aforesaid ready for the iron rails, which subscription shall be adjudged solvent and valid by the board of Internal Improvement, and all of which facts shall be made known to the Governor in the manner aforesaid to his satisfaction, then it shall be the duty of said Governor to issue to said company, coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, of the description aforesaid, for an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars to be expended on the bridges necessary, to be constructed on said section of forty miles, and a like provision with like restrictions and conditions in all respects, is hereby made for an additional section of forty miles of said railroad, the funds to be used in construction of the necessary bridges on said last-named section.

SEC. 3. Be it enacted, That so soon as the bonds shall be issued for the first section of forty miles, as provided in the first section of this act, the said bonds shall on the issuance thereof, constitute a lien upon all the stock of said company, upon the road bed, masonry, bridges, and other property of said company, and the State shall be invested with such lien on and by virtue of the issuance of said bonds, without a deed from the company for the payment of said bonds and interest accruing thereon; and whenever the bonds are issued for either or both of said sections of forty miles, as specified in the first section of this act, the State of Tennessee shall on and by virtue of the issuance of said bonds be invested with a like lien or mortgage on said sections for the payment of said bonds and the interest thereon, including road-bed, masonry and bridges, on all of the said sections provided for in this act, and on all of the stock of said company, without a deed from the company, and said 505 lien or mortgage shall have priority over all other claims against company, and all liens created by the company after the issuance of the bonds for the first forty miles of said railroad, shall be void as to the liens of the State of Tennessee, hereby created for the payment of the bonds issued under the provisions of this act, and the accruing interest thereon, and the said liens of the State shall extend to and embrace the entire railroad, its superstructure and equipments after completed, and so continue until said bonds and inter- 506 est thereon are paid off and discharged, and without a deed from the company.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That the Legislature of this State shall have the power to enact any law or laws that may hereafter be deemed necessary to protect the interest or credit of the State against loss or damage on account of the issuance of said bonds, and to provide for the more speedy and certain payment
by the company of said bonds and interest, not impair- 507
ing the vested rights of the stockholders, and that for that purpose and the purposes of notice of the existence of this act, the same is hereby declared to be a public law.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That before the Governor shall issue any bonds under the provisions of this act, he shall require the engineer of said company to examine the premises where such bridge or bridges are to be built, and to ascertain, as near as he may be able, 508
the cost of construction of said bridge or bridges, with good materials and in a good and substantial manner, and report the same under oath to the Governor; and it shall not be lawful for said Governor to issue bonds as aforesaid for a greater amount for the construction of such bridge or bridges than the sum specified in the report of said engineer, and the provisions of this act shall only extend to and include a bridge across the Watauga river, two bridges across the Holston river, and a bridge across Lick creek, on the line of said road, and no bonds shall issue under this act, unless upon the written affidavit of the President of said company and a resolution of a majority of the directors thereof; and that said bonds, when issued, shall not be used for any other purpose than procuring the means for the construction of said bridge or bridges, and it shall not be lawful for said bonds to be used for any other purpose; provided, the estimates of said engineer shall include the masonry on the line of said road; provided, that the bonds of the State shall not be issued to build the bridges herein provided for, until there is stock by good and solvent individuals, corporations, companies or counties, sufficient to grade the road and put the timbers on the same from Knoxville to the Virginia State line, which facts shall be certified to the Governor of the State, by the written affidavit, by the President and directors of said road; and provided further, that the three hundred thousand dollars of bonds, hereinbefore authorized to be issued to said company, may be included with the amount of stock subscribed by good and solvent individuals, corporations, companies or counties, and if the said sum of three hundred thousand dollars, together with the said subscription of stock in said road shall be sufficient to grade and build the bridges and masonry thereon, and otherwise prepare the said road for the iron rails, which facts shall be made to appear by the report of the Chief Engineer of said road, on oath to the Governor, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue to the said company, upon the application of the President and a majority of the directors of said company, the bonds of the State for three hundred thousand dollars, as provided in the first section of this act, and the proceeds of said bonds shall be applied to the construction of the bridges specified in the fifth section of this act, and the masonry on the line of the said road, and the surplus, if any, to any other bridges on the line of said road, or other purpose necessary to prepare the said road for the iron rails.

Sec. 6. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of said company to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee at Nashville, at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due, from time to time upon said bonds issued as aforesaid, an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commission or satisfactory evidence that said interest has been paid or provided for, and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, at the time aforesaid, or furnish the evidence aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to report that fact to the Governor, and the Governor shall immediately appoint some suitable person or persons, at the expense of the company, to take possession and control of said railroad, and all the assets thereof, and manage the same and receive the rents, issues, profits and dividends thereof, whose duty it shall be to give bond and security to the State of Tennessee, in such penalty as the Governor may require for the faithful discharge of his or their duty as Receiver or Receivers, to receive said rents, issues, profits and dividends and pay over the same under the direction of the Governor for the liquidation of such unpaid interest, and if such company fail or refuse to deliver up said road to the person or persons so appointed by the Governor, the said person so appointed shall report that fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith issue his warrant, directed to the Sheriffs of said counties, through which said road shall run, commanding them to take possession of said road, fixtures, equipments, and receive the same and manage the entire road until a sufficient sum shall be realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses, incident to the proceedings to pay off and discharge the interest as aforesaid, due on said bonds, which being done, the Receiver shall surrender said road and fixtures and equipments to said company. The Comptroller shall from time to time, settle the accounts with the Re-

517 ceiver, and the balances shall be deposited in the Treasury of this State. The Comptroller is authorized, and it is made his duty upon his warrant to draw from the Treasury any sum of money necessary to meet the interest on such bonds, as may not be provided for by the company as provided for in this act, and the Comptroller shall report thereof to the General Assembly from time to time.

SEC. 7. Be it enacted, That if said company shall 518 fail or refuse to pay any of said bonds when they fall due, it shall be the duty of the Governor to notify the Attorney-General of the District in which is situated the place of business of said company of the fact, and thereupon said Attorney-General shall forthwith file a bill against said company in the name of the State of Tennessee, in the Chancery or Circuit Court of the County in which is situated said place of business, setting forth the facts, and thereupon said Court shall make all such orders and terms in said cause, as may 519 be deemed necessary by the Court to receive the payment of said bonds with the interest thereon, and to indemnify the State of Tennessee against any loss on account of the issuance of said bonds, by or during the said railroad to be placed in the hands of a Receiver, ordering the sale of said road, and all the property and assets attached thereto or belonging to said company, or in such other manner as the Court may deem best for the interest of the State.

520 SEC. 8. Be it enacted, That at the end of five years after the completion of said road, said Company shall set apart one per centum per annum, upon the amount of bonds issued to the Company, and shall use the same in the purchase of bonds of the State of Tennessee, which bonds the Company shall pay into the Treasury of the State after assigning them to the Governor, and for which the Governor shall give said Company a receipt, and as between the State and said Company the bonds so paid in shall be a credit upon the bonds 521 issued to the Company, and said bonds so paid in, and the interest accruing thereon, from time to time shall be held and used by the State as a Sinking Fund for the payment of the bonds issued to the Company, and should the Company re-purchase any of the bonds issued to it, under the provisions of this act, they shall be credited as aforesaid and cancelled. And should said Company fail to comply with the provisions of this section, it shall be proceeded against, as provided in the sixth section of this act. 522

SEC. 9. Be it enacted, That in the event of any of said road, fixtures or property belonging to said road, shall be sold under the provisions of this act, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint an agent for the State, who shall attend said sale and protect the interest of the State, and shall if necessary to protect said interest, buy in said road or property in the name of the State, and in case said Agent shall purchase said road for the State, the Governor shall appoint a 523 Receiver, who shall take possession of said road and property and use the same as provided for in the sixth section of this act, and said Receiver shall settle with the Comptroller semi-annually, until the next meeting of the General Assembly.

CHAPTER CXCI.

AN ACT to incorporate the Nashville, Franklin and Columbia Railroad Company.

SEC. 30. Be it enacted, That none of the railroad companies mentioned in an Act passed at this General Assembly, entitled "an Act to establish a system of Internal Improvement in this State," and none of the railroad companies, incorporated at the present General Assembly, shall either directly or indirectly engage in any kind of banking whatever, and if any of said companies violate the provisions of this section of this act, it shall be deemed and held a forfeiture of their charter, and any such company or companies shall not be entitled to any of the benefits or privileges of the above-recited act.

SEC. 32. Be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful for the Governor to issue, or cause to be issued, bonds of the State, to any railroad company, except those mentioned in the aforesaid "Act to establish a system of Internal Improvement in this State."

JORDAN STOKES,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Passed February 28, 1852.

533 AN ACT to amend the Charter and several acts amendatory thereto, passed by the Legislatures of Tennessee and Kentucky, incorporating a company to construct a railroad from the city of Louisville to the city of Nashville.

SEC. 1. Be it enacted, by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the several acts of the General Assembly of the States of Tennessee and Kentucky, be, and are hereby amended by the additional 434 sections.

SEC. 2. That the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company is hereby authorized to issue, from time to time, income bonds, pledging the receipts of said road in amount not to exceed one million five hundred thousand dollars in the aggregate. Said bonds to be made payable at such time and place as the president and directors of said company may direct, and bear a rate of interest not exceeding eight per cent. per annum, 535 with interest coupons attached; they shall bear the signature of the president, and be countersigned by the secretary, the coupons to be signed by the secretary, the seal of the corporation to be affixed: Provided, however, said bonds nor any mortgage made to secure them, shall be enforced in the State of Tennessee, at a higer rate of interest than six per cent. per annum, unless at the time of enforcement the laws of Tennessee allow a higher rate; then for such rate as allowed by law, but may be enforced in Kentucky. The bonds 536 hereby authorized to contain on their face a pledge of the income of said company from the main road, after the payment of charges for running and the necessary repairs, they, or the proceeds of sales, shall be used in the purchase of iron, chairs, spikes, cross-ties, the laying of tracks and equipment for business, and for the purpose of construction as hereinafter prescribed on the main road and no other. It shall be deemed malfeasance in office in such members of the board as shall authorize any other use, and any stockholder 537

or bondholder shall have the right to arrest by petition or affidavit such improper application, the bonds hereby authorized shall not be held to be cumulative but as a part of the sum authorized under an act which passed the legislatures of Tennessee and Kentucky at their session of 1855.

SEC. 3. That the bonds hereby authorized to be issued shall be made payable to the bearer, and pass by delivery; and to secure the prompt payment of the 538 interest and principal, said company, by their president, may make and execute a mortgage to two trustees, to be named therein, for the benefit of the holders of said bonds, and provide for a succession of trustees in case of death, removal or refusal to act. It shall to all intents and purposes pass the property recited, and privileges and franchises to the trustees, for the use of the holders of bonds, herein provided to be issued, and such others as it purports to secure, together with the earnings of said road, after the payment of the 539 expenses of running and repairs. This act shall not be construed to affect, nor shall any mortgage executed by its provisions impair, or any way affect, change or weaken the lien of Tennessee on that part lying within that State, created by the Statutes of the State on the conferring and accepting State aid by said company. But it shall be the duty of the president and trustees to make a faithful application of the earnings of said road to pay the interest, as the same falls due, on the bonds of the State received by said company. 540

SEC. 4. That it shall be the duty of the president and directors of said company to cause to be set apart and held sacred as a sinking fund such per cent. of the earnings of said road, after paying charges for running, repairs, and incidental expenses in the operations of said road, a per cent. equal to the payment of interest on the bonds, and be sufficient to redeem each class of bonds as they respectively fall due; the setting apart of such fund shall, however, in no event have preference over the rights of the State, as given by former legislation in reference to the income of said road. When any of said bonds shall fall due, said company may make proclamation through one or more of the newspapers published in the cities of Louisville, Nashville and Bowling Green, of its readiness to pay on a day, and at the place of payment, and if the bonds so advertised and designated are not presented for payment, the interest shall cease from that time until presented and payment refused.

SEC. 5. If said company shall fail to make payment of the interest as the same shall fall due, the holders of said bonds may proceed by petition, filed on affidavit, in the Chancery Court, in the city of Louisville, Nashville or Bowling Green, after notice to the president; and on hearing, the Court shall make such order or decree in the premises as may be deemed necessary and sufficient to enforce and secure the performance of the trust, which order shall be for the benefit of the bondholders to whom said company may be in default. That the holders of bonds due and unpaid with accumulated interest in the aggregate amount of fifty thousand dollars, shall have the right to file their bill or petition, and ask a foreclosure and sale of the mortgaged property. Upon the filing of such proceeding, it shall be the duty of the president to cause a perfect list of all bonds secured by said mortgage, and place them on file in said suit, when it shall be the duty of the Court to make publication of the fact of the filing of said bill, in papers published in New York, Louisville and Nashville ninety days by successive weekly insertions, before rendering a decree, and on hearing such decree shall be rendered as will be equitable among all the holders of the bonds on sale or purchase, or order of lease, the person or persons, corporation or corporations, that may become the owners

or lessees under such decree or order, shall and are 545 hereby declared to be substituted to, and vested with, all the rights, privileges, franchises and immunities of said corporation, in the property sold or leased, as well that part in Tennessee as in Kentucky, but the right in Tennessee shall only attach and be continuous on the payment, at the proper time and place, the interest on the bonds of the State of Tennessee, received by said company, the sinking fund, and the bonds themselves as they fall due. That the holders of the bonds issued under this or any other act authorizing the 546 issuance of bonds, shall, at their option, have the right, at any time, to convert said bonds into the stock of the company at dollar for dollar. The company is vested with the power, by the consent of the holders of the bonds, to agree on terms by which the stock of the company may be issued to bondholders in payment thereof. That the issue of bonds herein authorized shall be conclusive evidence of the acceptance of the company of this as an amendment of their charter, and as evidence that all the requirements of the act 547
have been complied with.

Sec. 6. That, whereas, the funds necessary for ironing and equipping the line of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, in the State of Tennessee, are furnished by the State aid heretofore granted and accepted by said company; and, whereas, it is but just and right, that the line of the road in Tennessee shall receive its fair proportion of the proceeds of the income bonds raised by virtue of this act; the authority hereby con- 548 ferred is subject to this provision, that so much at least of the proceeds of said income bonds, shall be applied to the construction of the road-bed and cross-ties in the State of Tennessee, as will give the line of the road in fair proportion as above, if the same should be needed to prepare such for the iron.

Sec. 7. That to carry out the preceding section, 549 that the amount so appropriated to the line of the road in this State, shall be in proportion to the entire amount at any one time raised by said income bonds, as the length of the line of the road in Tennessee is to the length of the entire road. That it shall be deemed malfeasance in office, as provided in section second of this act, in such members of the board of directors of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, as shall authorize any use of the proceeds of such bonds inconsistent with the foregoing provisions.

Sec. 8. That the time for the construction of the bridge across the Cumberland river, as specified in the act of the general assembly, passed the 15th December, 1855, be extended to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company for twelve months, from and after the passage of this act; and that said company is hereby vested with the right to contract with the general government for the transportation of the mails, and is hereby declared capable in 551 law to receive and hold any grant or appropriation made by Congress as compensation for public service.

Sec. 9. That the power to acquire land for railway track and necessary side tracks, and the requisite quantity for depot, freight and passenger houses,
within the corporate limits of the city of Nashville, which by law are conferred on the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, be, and is hereby vested in the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Com-552 pany, and the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, and may be enforced by said companies, jointly or separately for their joint or several use.

Sec. 10. That nothing in this act shall be so construed as to give banking privileges to the company of any character whatever, or so as to increase the liability of the State to said company. That this act take effect from and after its passage.

Sec. 12. That so soon as the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company shall have graded their said road from the termination of the first thirty miles from Nashville to the Kentucky line, prepared to receive the iron rails, then the governor of the State shall issue the bonds of the State to said company, agreeably to the act of 1852, and acts amendatory thereto. 553

Sec. 14. That it shall be lawful for any sheriff, coroner, or constable to levy upon and sell, as other personal property, any share or shares in any railroad or turnpike company in this State, belonging to any execution debtor or corporation, against whom they hold an execution. 554

Sec. 15. That the officer making the levy, shall at the time of such levy, or as soon thereafter as practicable, notify the secretary or other officer entrusted with the books of the turnpike or railroad company of the fact of such levy; the notice to be given personally or in writing, left at the office of the secretary or other officer aforesaid. 555

Sec. 16. That upon the sale of such turnpike or railroad stocks in shares, by execution, the officer, on receiving from the purchaser the amount of his bid, shall execute and deliver to him a certificate of the shares sold, and his return of the sale, on the back of the execution, shall be notice to all the world of the fact of sale; and on presenting to the proper officer of the company said certificate, said officer shall transfer said shares on the proper books to the purchaser or his assigns. 556

ARTICLE III.

Of the State Aid to Railroads, under the Law of 1852, and Amendments.

1091. By the Act of 1852, ch. 151, and subsequent Acts amendatory thereof, a system of internal improvements, by means of railroads, is developed by the aid of the State, through the loan of its credit. 558

1092. Upon its being satisfactorily shown to the Governor that either of the railroad companies in these acts mentioned has procured bona fide and good and solvent subscriptions of capital stock to an amount sufficient to grade, bridge and prepare for the iron rails the whole extent of the main trunk line proposed to be constructed by such company, and has graded, bridged, and fully prepared thirty miles of the road at either terminus for the iron, the Governor is authorized to 559 issue to the company coupon bonds of the State to an amount not exceeding ten thousand dollars a mile on such section, and one hundred thousand dollars for bridges across certain rivers and streams, and so on each additional section of ten miles. Such bonds shall not have more than forty nor less than thirty years to mature; shall be payable at some point in the United States to be designated by the president of the company, and bear interest at the rate of six per cent., payable semi-annually. 560

1093. If the entire road is less than thirty miles, or the last section less than ten miles, the bonds shall be issued upon the completion of the grading of the whole road in the one case, and the last section in the other.

1094. No bonds are to be issued except upon the affidavit of the president of the company, and a resolution of the board of directors, that they are not to be used for any other purpose than for procuring the 561 iron rails, chairs, spikes, and equipments, and for putting down the rails; nor are such bonds in any case to be sold at less than their par value.

1095. The bonds are not to be used for any other purpose than for procuring the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments for the prepared section of such road,
and putting down the rails thereon, and the Governor
may appoint a commissioner to act under oath in connection with the President of the road in the negotia- 562 tions of the bonds, and to see that the proceeds are properly appropriated, and the interests of the State fully protected.

1096. It shall be felony for any officer, agent or servant of a railroad company to appropriate such bonds, or the money arising from the sale thereof, or any portion of either, to any other use than that prescribed by law.

563 1097. These bonds, when issued, constitute a lien upon the section of the road so prepared, including the road-bed, right of way, grading, bridges, and masonry upon all the stock subscribed to such road, and upon the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments when purchased; the State being vested with the lien, without any conveyance, as a security for the payment by such company of the interest on such bonds as it falls due, and of the principal of the bonds at their maturity.

564 1098. And upon the completion of the entire road, the State is invested with a lien without deed, for the purposes mentioned, on the whole road, superstructure, equipments and stock, and upon all the property owned by the company as incidental to or necessary for its business.

1099. Nor can such company, after the issuance of the bonds for the first section, create any lien, encum-

565 brance, or mortgage on any part of the road, or on any portion of their property, in conflict with, or having priority of the State lien.

1100. It is the duty of such company, at least fifteen days before each installment of interest on the bonds issued to it becomes due, to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee, at Nashville, a sum sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commissions; or furnish satisfactory evidence to the Comptroller that such interest has been paid or provided for. 566

1101. Upon failure to comply with the requirements of the preceding section, the Comptroller shall report the fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith appoint a suitable person, at the expense of the company, to take possession and control of the road, and all the property and effects of the company, manage the same and receive the rents, issues and profits.

1102. The Governor, if necessary, may issue his warrant 567 to the sheriffs of the different counties through which the road may run, commanding them to put the receiver appointed in possession of the road, its property and effects.

1103. The receiver shall, however, first give bond with satisfactory surety, in a penalty to be fixed by the Governor, payable to the State, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duty as receiver, and that he will receive the rents, issues, and profits, and pay the 568 same under the direction of the Governor, in liquidation of the unpaid interest,

1104. The receiver shall continue in possession and manage the road until a sufficient sum is realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses incident to the proceedings, to pay off the unpaid interest, after which he shall surrender the road to the company.

1105. The comptroller shall, from time to time, settle 569 with the receiver, who shall forthwith pay into the treasury any surplus funds in his hands.

1106. The comptroller shall, upon his warrant, draw from the treasury any sum necessary to meet the interest falling due upon the bonds of the State, and not provided for by the railroad companies.

1107. If the company fail to pay any of the bonds at maturity, the Governor shall notify the Attorney-General 570 of the district in which such company has its place of business, whs shall immediately file a bill in the Chancery Court, to enforce the lien of the State; which court shall appoint a receiver, order a sale of the road, and all the property and effects of the company, and otherwise decree as may best protect the interests of the State.

1108. At the end of five years after the issuance of each bond to which such road is entitled, such company 571 shall set apart two per centum per annum on the amount of bonds issued to the company, to be used in the purchase of the bonds of the State, which, when purchased, shall be assigned to the Governor, and held, with the accruing interest, as a sinking fund for the payment of the bonds issued to such company. And the Governor, Comptroller of the Treasury, and President of the Bank of Tennessee, are constituted a Board of Commissioners for the management of said fund, and shall reinvest the same in bonds of the 572
State.

1109. Should such company fail to comply with the provision of the preceding section, it shall be proceeded against in the same way as above provided upon its failure to meet any instalment of interest.

1110. The president of each of these companies shall make semi-annual reports under oath to the Governor

573 until the completion of the road, setting forth fully the condition of the road and the company; and, after its completion, he shall report to the Governor annually, giving a statement of the trade and travel upon the road, the receipts and expenditures, net earnings and dividends, what per cent. is paid on the stock of the stockholders, and the financial condition of the company generally.

1111. Such companies shall also, at least once in each 574 year, on the first of September, make to the railroad commissioner a report as required in the next chapter, which treats of that officer.

1112. In the event of any of these roads, or the property thereof, is sold under the foregoing provisions, the Governor shall appoint an agent to attend the sale, and bid in the property if necessary to protect the interests of the State, in which case the Governor shall appoint a receiver to take possession and manage such road as hereinbefore provided. 575

1113. The State of Tennessee expressly reserves the right to enact, by the Legislature, all such laws as may be deemed necessary to protect the interests of the State, and to secure the State from loss in consequence of the issuance of such bonds; but so as not to impair the vested rights of the stockholders of the companies.

1114. The State is entitled to two directors, to be ap- 576 painted by the Governor, in all railroad companies to which her bonds are issued.

Report on the Revised Statutes to the General Assembly.

"The power to revise includes those of alteration and amendment; but I have conceived myself authorized to exercise those powers only so far as to drop out of the Statutes all unnecessary words, and to reform the composition so as to attain all the perspicuity and clearness in my power, not venturing to change the ideas of the Legislature." 577 shall never be applied to any other purpose.

621 ## Message of Gov. James C. Jones.

October 19, 1841, p. 92.

In making this my first communication to the General Assembly it is a cause of no ordinary gratification to me to be permitted to present to your consideration my convictions of the policy proper to be pursued in disposing of moneys that may arise from the sale of public land and which Tennessee will be entitled to receive. Congress at the late extra session passed a law
622 providing for the distribution of the proceeds of the public land among the States according to their population. It is not necessary that I should trespass upon your attention by an argument to prove the justice or wisdom of this policy, both of which I know will be fully demonstrated by its effects. The question that more immediately demands your most serious consideration, is what disposition shall be made of the moneys that Tennessee will be entitled to receive under the provisions of this law. By the constitution
623 of our State, the funds accruing to the State from this source, have been set apart to specified purposes. It is provided that should a division of the public land or the moneys arising from the sales be made among the State, that portion coming to this State shall be devoted to purposes of education and Internal Improvement, and shall never be applied to any other purposes. The constitution is silent as to the mode of devoting this fund between the two objects specified, whether it shall be equal or unequal, but inasmuch as there is no speci-624 fic injunction, it is reasonable to suppose that they intended it to be equal. I cannot urge too strongly on your consideration the propriety of setting apart at least one half of the moneys that may be received from this source as a fund, that may be applied to the redemption of the Internal Improvement bonds of the State at their maturity. If this disposition be made, it would doubtless have a fine effect on the credit of our securities, and tend greatly to enhance their value. The liabilities of our State are less than any 625

State of the Union of her resources, and still her securities are at a ruinous discount. If a permanent provision can be made for the liquidation of her liabilities at their maturity, it would inspire capitalists with confidence in their solvency, and contribute greatly to increase them in value. If this policy should be adopted, the money should be deposited with the Bank of Tennessee to be loaned and accounted for as other funds of the State. This would add greatly to the means of this institution, and enable her to afford increased 626 facilities to our citizens.

MESSAGE OF GOV. JONES.—OCTOBER, 1845.

P. 5. Of the importance of a well regulated system of Internal Improvements I entertain no doubt that such system would afford great facilities to the enterprise and industry of the country, developing its resources and stimulating its energies is certainly true. No 627 one estimates its benefits more highly than I do, and no one would rejoice more highly than I would to see a gradual and permanent system engrafted in the policy of the State. Gladly would I contribute by all proper means to its establishment; that such works are greatly needed in many portions of the State no one will doubt.
In the Eastern division, from its insulated position, and the very imperfect and uncertain navigation of its streams, such facilities would be of great value and utility.
But much as these benefits are conceded to be, 628
their importance does not in my judgment justify a resort to that most destructive financial policy of raising means by the extension of the credit of the State, in issuance of its bonds. The bonds that have already been issued, have been sold at a discount from twenty to fifty per cent., and yet the State is bound to redeem them at their nominal or par value. This objection to a further issuance of the bonds of the State is a for-629 midable one, yet there are others of far greater magnitude. Any policy that contemplates an enlargement of the debts of the State at the present time, I should consider of dangerous tendency. In the name of justice and honor let us issue no more bonds; let us create no more debts, until we have either paid those we owe, or made some certain provision for them as they come to maturity.

MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR BROWNLOW.

Executive Session, 1868, Page 10, Acts of 1868.

GENTLEMEN OF THE SENATE and HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES:

I communicate herewith, to the Legislature, a Report from the President of the Evansville, Henderson and 631 Nashville Railroad Company, setting forth the manner of expenditure of two hundred thousand dollars of Tennessee Bonds, and other funds received for the construction of the Evansville, Henderson & Nashville Railroad, from the terminus of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad, at the State Line, northward in direction of the CoalMines, and exhibiting the condition and progress of this important line of road. It is a satisfactory exhibit, showing the completion of 25 miles of road from the terminus of the Edgefield & Kentucky
632 Railroad, and 32 miles constructed from the Ohio River at Henderson, southward, with 6½ miles nearly completed, with material and means to build it to Madisonville, 38 miles from the Ohio River, being 63 miles of road completed, and in operation by this date, leaving 35 miles to be built, to complete the road through the coal fields, from Nashville to the Ohio River, furnishing another and most important connection from Nashville with the Northern system of railroads.

This line of road is of the greatest importance to our 633 State and people as it will supply a competing line of transportation, exempting our people and their commerce from the unreasonable and exorbitant rates of an exacting monopoly, adding a new value to the Edgefield & Kentucky Railroad, redeeming the interest of the State in it, and furnishing an abundant supply of superior coal for manufacturing and domestic uses in Nashville, and a large part of Middle and West Tennessee. It appears to me, the report manifests a faithful and judicious management of the funds, and 634 the results accomplished show that economy and integrity characterized the management.

The report is submitted for your information and consideration. I also communicate for your consideration and information, a Report from the Superintendent of the Edgefield & Kentucky Railroad, setting forth the operation of the road from November 15th, 1867, to November 1st, 1868, together with a copy of the contract with the Evansville, Henderson & Nashville Railroad, under which the joint roads are being operated. 635

In this connection, I will suggest that a joint Special Committee of the General Assembly be appointed to make settlement with the present incumbent, and late Receiver of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad.

I do this, because the late Receiver has refused to settle with the present incumbent, and expressed a desire to settle with a Legislative Committee.

There is no law shown to me, making it the duty of the President of the Evansville, Henderson and Nashville Railroad Company, or other officer of that com- 636 pany, or of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad, to render reports to the Governor of the State; and I presume it is done in pursuance of their sense of duty, and through some channel, to give the information contained in their reports to the authorities of the State. There is a prevailing impression that the Governor has authority to make settlements with Receivers, and coerce settlements from them; and that it is his duty 637 to look after Receivers, and take care of this great interest of the State.

There is no law giving such authority, or imposing such duty. The Governor has the power of appointment and removal of Receivers. The law makes it the duty of the Comptroller, to settle with Receivers of Railroads. I call your attention to Section 1105 of the Code of Tennessee, which reads as follows: "The Comptroller shall, from time to time, settle with the Receiver, who shall, forthwith, pay into the Treasury 638 any surplus fund in his hands."

It would appear that the Comptroller has no power to compel Receivers to settle, unless it arises by implication, from the mere grant of authority to settle. Certainly the Governor has no power or authority to settle with Receivers, or give orders to enforce any settlement.

The Legislature must supply this deficiency in the law, and provide the remedy to coerce settlement.

It has been intimated that the bonds of the State, is-639 sued to railroads, have been misapplied, and directed to private use, and in my annual message of the 8th of October, 1867, I called the attention of the Legislature to the subject, in these words: "I advise the appointment of Commissioners, by your body, to sit during your session, and make new settlements with all the roads, that the books may be made to show all settlements satisfactory, both to the State and the Companies. The expense of such settlement will be more than compensated for by rescuing the accounts from ruinous 640 oblivion."

In view of doubts entertained as to the proper, legitimate application of the bonds of the State issued to railroads, I feel it a solemn duty to urge upon you, as in a former Message, the appointment of a Board of Commissioners with full and complete power, and authority to settle with all Receivers and others, who have received the bonds of the State, and compel them, by due course of law, to final and full settlement. In my

Annual Message before referred to, in discussing this 641
subject, I took occasion to say, "Meanwhile let us guard against any future increase of the State debt by issuance of Bonds to railroads, unless it be in cases where the interest of the State would suffer for the want of further aid."

And in my communication to you on occasion of your assembling in your present adjourned session, I expressed the same views. "The continued failure to make settlement with Receivers, and the detriment to the public interest arising from such failure, has led to 642
the opinion that the office of Receivers should be abolished, and probably caused the presenting of the Bill now pending in the Legislature, and which has passed our House, to restore the railroads to the companies.

Believing that this Bill, if it should become a law, will be fatally injurious to the credit of the State, I beg leave to offer my reasons for this conclusion.

The internal improvement policy of the State, established by the act of February 11th, 1852, has been deemed by our wisest men of all parties, since its 643 inauguration, as a prudent, practical, and wise system. By it, the State: (1.) Invited its citizens and encouraged them to use their surplus means to develop the State, (2.) She combined her means with those of the citizens, and issued her bonds to railroad companies to secure the construction of the roads. (3.) She indemnified herself by retaining a prior lien on the road so as to give credit to her bonds with the railroads as a basis without looking to taxation of her people. (4.) To render certain and available this security for her Bonds, she 644 reserved the right to take possession of the roads on their failure to pay the interest on Bonds issued to them, and operate them by her own agents. (5.) And she reserved the power to sell them on failure of payment of bonds; and to render herself more secure, she reserved the power, by Section 12, to enact all laws necessary to protect her rights and interest, and secure her from loss.

645 The leading features of this system of internal improvement and characterizing it, appears to me, to be: 1st. Generous and liberal aid from the State to railroads. 2d. Complete security to the State for that aid.

And this very security, by reservation of a prior and superior lien upon every railroad which received bonds in aid of it, is held forth by our Internal Improvement law as the basis of credit for the bonds.

The State pledged herself, in the issuing of the bonds by the law, to maintain this lien and enforce it by holding possession of the roads if they failed to pay the 646 interest, and to sell them to pay the bonds. The good faith of the State is pledged to this. The bondholders so understood it when they purchased the bonds. The people of the State so understood it, for they never believed they were to be taxed to pay the interest or principal of the bonds until the means arising from the sale of the roads had been exhausted.

The State, in point of honor and fact, holds this lien in a fiduciary capacity. She holds it in trust for the 647 benefit of the bondholders. She honorably has no right to abandon it or surrender it to the companies. She ought not to prove faithless in this trust, but maintain and execute it as the bondholders understood it and as the people of the State understood it. The bondholder is interested in this resource to pay the bonds he holds, and the people are interested in it, to see that they are not to be taxed to pay interest or principal of bonds for which the railroads are pledged by the terms of the law.

Does not, I respectfully submit, the "Act to abolish 648 the office of Receivers of Railroads, and for other purposes," now pending before the Legislature, ignore the honor of the State; disregard the plighted faith of the State to carry out the principles of the law of 1852, and maintain and enforce the lien on the railroads, in providing that the office of Receiver shall be abolished, and the roads turned over to the companies?

I respectfully invite the attention of the Legislature to Section 2 and to Section 3 of the bill. Section 2 requires the Receiver, within five days after the passage 649 of the Act, to turn over the railroad, rolling-stock, effects, etc., to the company.

Section 3 requires the treasurer of the company, forty days after coming into possession of the road, effects, etc., to enter into bond, etc., conditional that the net earnings of the road shall be paid monthly into the Treasury of the State.

Now, I submit to the Legislature whether this is not a surrender of great interests of the State and an abandonment of a sacred trust without guards or guarantees. 650 The Bonds of the State, any money arising from bonds, or other sources, as well as all other effects in the hands of any Receiver are turned over without any security or even an agreement to account for them, and the railroad company is to remain in possession of them forty days before any bond is given, and then only a bond to pay the net monthly earnings into the Treasury of the State.

What is to become of effects of the road in the hands of the Receiver? the Bonds of the State he may hold, or other funds or money in his hands? Is it given to 651 the company not to be accounted for? Why is forty days allowed to give the bond? Is time to be given to make way with, or dispose of, the "effects," State Bonds, money or other securities? Why is forty days fixed as the time for responsibility to begin? I submit to the Legislature whether the provisions of this Bill are not calculated to arouse the gravest suspicions.

Besides, the Bill ignores the fundamental principles of the Internal Improvement Law, security to the State, and protection of its interest; and thus abandons the 652 faithful execution of the trust by which the railroads, and all their property, shall be subjected to payment of interest and principal of the bonds.

If the law of 1852 is defective, supply its defects; enact laws for its enforcement, but preserve the important fundamental principle of the law; that is, hold the roads for the payment of the interest and principal.

653 I believe the Receivers should be required to perform the duty imposed by law, and with proper enactments can be made to do it.

I am not wedded to the system of Receivers, but I do regard it as all important to the honor and interest of the State to preserve and adhere to the great principles of the law of 1852, and to faithfully execute the trust arising under the law and implied by the action of the State.

I am persuaded, after consultation with some of the 654 best lawyers of the State, that the reservation of authority under the 12th Section of the law of 1852, gives ample power to the State to sell these railroads; and as indicated to you in my last Message, I believe the interest of the State will be promoted by a sale of them.

The views I have now expressed I have derived after consultation with eminent lawyers and wise, patriotic citizens. I feel no personal interest in this matter. In regard to the great railroad interest of the State, and in 655 regard to all other great interests touching the welfare of the people and honor of the State, I have acted from a sense of duty. I am desirous that the true interests of the State shall be subserved, and its good faith and honor remain untarnished.

In conclusion, I would join you in thanks to God for His blessings upon our State and her people through the year just closed, and in prayers to Him for divine guidance of all her servants, in all the duties to which they may be called, and for His richest 656 blessings upon you, and all the people of the State.

W. G. BROWNLOW.

Nashville, Tennessee, Jan. 4th, 1869.

Acts of 1868, Ex. Sess., p. 10.

REPORT OF THE AGENT OF TENNESSEE 657

ON THE AFFAIRS OF THE EAST TENNESSEE AND GEORGIA RAILROAD.

MECKLENBURG, near KNOXVILLE, TENN.,
September 20, 1851.

To His Excellency WILLIAM TROUSDALE, Esq.,
Governor of Tennessee.

SIR: I have already acknowledged the receipt of the commission you were so kind as to confer upon me, under the Act of January 30, 1851. It remains for me to report to you the results of my agency up to the present time. After I received my commission I entered at once upon the duties involved in the appointment. First, these were to convert into money the bonds of the State placed under my control; and second, to disburse their proceeds in payment of the iron and equipment of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad. 658

In the discharge of these duties, I instituted a correspondence with capitalists and brokers relating to the negotiation of the bonds, and also with manufacturers in this country and in Europe, in relation to the rails and machinery necessary to put the road in operation. The result of this correspondence was a conviction that so large an amount of Tennessee securities could not be satisfactorily negotiated without a personal inspection of the bond market in our Northern cities, and that the purchase of the different articles necessary for the road could be more advantageously and economically made by an examination of the workshops and a personal interview with manufacturers. Accordingly, in July last, I visited Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York and Boston. By inquiries there I ascertained that Tennessee bonds had heretofore generally been sold below, and had rarely reached par, while the bonds of other States having a larger indebtedness and smaller resources and population, have sometimes commanded a 659 660

661 premium. My surprise at this seeming paradox was greater when I learned that in all time past the interest on Tennessee bonds had been, in every instance, promptly met, even at periods when a pressure of money affairs had forced upon other States a temporary suspension of semi-annual payments of accruing interest. This is in part explained by the consideration that the indebtedness of Tennessee, though considerable,
is comparatively small, and that many of her bonds being in the hands of holders at home, her ability 662 and punctuality in meeting her engagements were known to few in the Northern markets, some of the brokers there having rarely seen Tennessee bonds, while those States less remote, and having a larger public debt of many years' standing, and being in the hands of every one, their promptness in meeting the interest being thus long and extensively known and tested, were rated at a higher value, just as a borrower and endorser in the immediate vicinity of a bank where he is known as an old, constant, punctual customer, has 663 more credit than a new and distant borrower of much greater ability to pay.

Restricted as I was by the provisions of law from selling below par, and desiring to increase the value of the bonds placed in my hands, I took the earliest opportunity during my visit to the North to exhibit to the brokers the very favorable condition of the finances of Tennessee as presented in the last report of the Comptroller of the State. From that exposé it was shown that the present liabilities of the treasurer 664 are comparatively small; that the public works for the construction of which these liabilities had been probably in part incurred, were, even in their unfinished condition yielding three per cent. to the revenues of the State, and that the inference might be legitimately drawn that when these works should be entirely completed, they would divide, at the lowest calculation, six per cent. upon the cost of their construction.

From these representations, and others of analogous character, I succeeded in raising the value of the bonds, 665 and was able to sell the amount needed previous to January of this year at a premium, the rate of sales made up within that time ranging from 103¼ to 104½. Early in this year, I went forward with an additional supply of bonds. In the meantime the condition of the money market had materially deteriorated.

The prices of the great American staple had suddenly gone down. Cotton has become the thermometer of the commercial world, and with its decline, probably, bonds and securities of all kinds were instantly de- 666
pressed, and with them the bonds under my control.
For some time no bid was offered which I could entertain, but needing funds for the purchase of iron, and unable to wait longer for an expected reaction in the stock market, I was forced to sell at a rate below my first sales, but still above par. In June I carried forward the remaining bonds. The depression since that time increases, and still continues, and affects the quotations of other issues of Tennessee bonds below par.
The stringency in the money market has, I hope, 667 reached its crisis, and I may be able to affect sales from remaining bonds so as to realize an advance, at least upon a portion of those unsold. This, however, is wholly dependent upon the fluctuations of the market.

In justice to the officers of the State under whose direction the bonds were prepared and executed, I should add, the engraving is beautiful, the paper excellent and the filling up of the bond and its coupons neatly and accurately done. The style of execution will compare favorably with that of any other State in the 668 Union.

CIRCULAR OF STATE AGENT.

The following communication to the New York Times, written by the undersigned, is published in pamphlet form at the request of several former citizens of Tennessee now residents of New York. 671 All the statistical facts given are derived from the official reports of the officers of the State.

S. WATSON.
Agent for the State of Tennessee.

Tennessee State Credit and Resources.

To the Editor of the New York Times:

* * * The injurious charge, or insinuation rather, is made by your correspondent, that the 672 State has been guilty of reckless extravagance in aiding worthless railroads. That, in an appropriation of several millions of dollars, some roads should get aid who are not deserving, would of course be expected. But a detailed examination of railroads of Tennessee will show that there are but few if any roads of this character aided.

The Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad runs from

Nashville to the Tennessee and Kentucky State line. 673
There it was expected to be united to the Henderson and Nashville Road, which runs from the point of junction through Hopkinsville and Madisonville to Henderson and Evansville on the Ohio River. The Kentucky Road not having been completed before the war, and the Edgefield and Kentucky Road consequently ending in the woods, its interest has never been paid. But the Henderson and Nashville is now in rapid progress. The road is graded from the State line north to Hopkinsville, a distance of about 25 miles, and the iron 674 rails probably laid by this time to that point. Much of the road is also graded from the Ohio River south, and a good deal of track laid.

The length of these two roads is 150 miles—fifty miles in Tennessee and one hundred in Kentucky. They run through the richest agricultural region in the West. Seventy-five miles from Nashville they strike an inexhaustable bed of rich bituminous coal. There are three strata of this coal, one of them a little over six feet in thickness, and the road runs just below the 675 lowest strata. At Evansville these roads are united to the whole system of railroads in the great Northwest, and will make almost an air line communication with Chicago, and it is but a few miles further to New York by this route than by the Louisville and Nashville Road.

The aid of $300,000 given to the Edgefield and Kentucky Road will secure the immediate completion of the Kentucky end of the road to the coal mines. Thus bringing these rich mines to Nashville, and the whole of Middle and West Tennessee; could there be a doubt 676 that the future coal trade alone over the Edgefield and Kentucky Road will enable it to pay the interest on its debt to the State?

The completion of the road referred to will also greatly benefit the Memphis and Ohio, and the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville road. These two roads together form a line of road running from Memphis through Clarksville in the direction of Bowling Green, Ky., and intersecting the Nashville and Henderson Road at the State line. One of them passes through the rich iron region lying between the Cumberland and Tennessee rivers. The supply of coal for Memphis, Clarksville, the iron works and all intermedate points, must go over these roads, thereby greatly advancing their future paying value. These roads have not heretofore, since the war, paid their interest. But so great is the confidence of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company in the future of these roads, that the company, one of the wealthiest and most ably managed railroad corporations in the United States, has leased the Memphis and Ohio Road for ten years, and is now paying its interest on its debt, and has proposed to buy the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Road, offering to pay its floating debt, the back interest due the State, amounting now to $220,272, the whole of its debt to the State, and also to pay the stockholders a portion of their stock. Can any stronger evidence be given of the future paying of these roads? The payment of their interest hereafter is certainly beyond doubt.

One of the roads aided by the last act of the Legislature is the Nashville and Northwestern. This runs from Nashville to the Mississippi river, and has its terminus on that river, in the edge of Kentucky. On the opposite side of the Mississippi it meets the Iron Mountain Railroad, which is being built from St Louis down the western bank of that river. An appropriation has also been made to enable the Northwestern road to build a short branch which will connect it with the roads leading to New Orleans and Memphis.

The Nashville and Northwestern Road has but very recently been completed to the Mississippi, and is unprovided with rolling stock, and, of course, could not be expected to pay its interest. The recent appropriations of the Legislature will fully equip it and build the branch referred to, and Nashville will then have, by this road, a very direct communication with St.

Louis, the shortest and most direct communication wih 681
New Orleans, and almost an air-line route to Memphis.

Ought not a road running part of the way through a rich iron region, running over the fertile soil of West Tennessee, and having such connections, be relied on to pay at least its interests on its debt to the State?

The Nashville and Decatur is one of the roads aided.
It crosses some very winding streams, and has an unusual number of bridges and a large amount of trestle-work, all of which needs rebuilding. It is —— miles long, and runs from Nashville to Decatur, Alabama. 682 Means have been provided for its extension to Montgomery, in Alabama. This, when completed, will give Nashville almost an air-line communication over this road to Mobile and Pensacola, on the Gulf of Mexico.
This road has always paid its interest out of its proceeds, and will be still more certain to do so in the future.

The Nashville and Chattanooga Road has always paid its interest and needs no aid. This road has two branches leading off from it—one called the McMinn- 683
ville and Manchester, starting about seventy-five miles from Nashville, and running northwardly to McMinnville, thirty-four miles in length—the other, called the Winchester and Alabama Road, starting about eighty-five miles from Nashville, running southwardly through to Fayettville, thirty-eight miles in length.

The rolling stock of these roads were run off, their depots and bridges destroyed, and all the iron rails on both roads removed elsewhere by the United States Military authorities. 684

The McMinnville and Manchester road has just been repaired, and the appropriation to the Winchester and Alabama road has been made to enable it to complete its repairs. Both roads were run by the Chattanooga road before the war. The Southwestern road is to be a continuation of McMinnville and Manchester road, north. The building of this road will be rendered unnecessary by the building of the Nashville and Pacific road.

685 The Memphis and Little Rock Railroad, although out of the State, is really a Tennessee road, being built principally by Tennessee capital. The road was almost entirely destroyed by the war, and has been wholly unable to pay its interest. But it is being rebuilt, and contracts have been entered into for its entire completion. Can any intelligent man doubt that a road, running from the capitol of the State of Arkansas to the principal commercial city of Tennessee, will pay its interest on its debt to the State when it is rebuilt.

686 The Memphis and Charleston road, although badly crippled by the war, has promptly paid its interest, and so has the Mobile and Ohio, the Mississippi Central and the Mississippi and Tennessee roads.

The East Tennessee and Georgia and the East Tennessee and Virginia roads have always paid their interest promptly, and need no aid.

687 The Knoxville and Kentucky road has paid its interest. It runs from Knoxville through the rich coal fields of East Tennessee, and it is intended to meet at the Kentucky State line the Lebanon branch of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. It is already completed thirty-two miles, has fifteen additional miles graded, and is supplied with rolling stock for its local traffic. The appropriation of $800,000 will certainly complete it to the State line. It has already penetrated the coal fields, and is supplying Knoxville with coal, 688 and over this road will be transported the coal to supply Macon and Augusta, and other immediate points in Georgia. It not only opens up the rich coal fields and iron mines of East Tennessee, but on its completion will give the fertile valleys of that section of the State access to the markets of the country, both North and South. Its coal traffic alone should pay the interest on its debt.

The Knoxville and Charleston road, "Philo" asserts, owe $615,000, and runs but one mile. This is wholly 689 untrue. This road is nearly completed sixteen miles, and when finished that distance and equipped will owe the State only $325,000 in all. This road is to meet a road being built from Charleston in a direct line to Knoxville.

The Cincinnati and Cumberland Gap Railroad is now running twenty-five miles, with its grading completed twenty miles further, at which point it meets at the North Carolina line a road now building from Asheville. These two latter roads when completed will give 690
Knoxville and East Tennessee direct connection with the seaboard in the Southern Atlantic States, and thus render her system of railroads complete, and open up to the world her rich mineral resources, and bring the products of her rich valleys to the nearest and best markets, both North and South.

The Nashville and Pacific Railroad is another road that is to receive the aid of the State. But it can receive no aid until its stockholders grade thirty miles of the road and have it ready for the iron. It then re- 691 ceives State aid to iron it, and upon every additional twenty miles being thus graded it is to receive the State aid to iron the twenty miles.

This road is destined to run from Nashville to Knoxville, and will at some day run directly to Bristol on the Virginia and Tennessee State line, there meeting the railroads of Virginia that lead directly to Norfolk. Its completion, and this is rendered certain, and the completion of the short branch of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad before referred to, will furnish 692 almost an air line of railroad from Norfolk in Virginia through Nashville and Memphis to Little Rock. No one can doubt that this in a few years will be extended to the Pacific, either to the Port Guayamas, on the the Gulf of California, or to some point in the State of California.

This route will run through the richest agricultural part of the United States, will be free from ice and snow, 693 and the shortest route from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

New York will yet see the day when her shortest and best highway to the Pacific Ocean will be through the State of Tennessee, and over her projected Nashville and Pacific road.

We have given the above detailed description of the railroads in Tennessee, with their connections, so that every one may be enabled to judge of the importance of each road, and the perfection of her entire system.
694 It must be obvious that there are very few of her roads, and those very short ones, that are not necessary to the development of her resources. When finished, Knoxville will be the centre of the system of the East, and her roads will connect her with all important points in the Union. Memphis has her system of roads leading to all parts of the Mississippi Valley.

Nashville, the capitol of the State, is the centre of the whole system, and her railroads, when completed, will give her close connection with all the cities of the 695 northwest, and make her the point through which the great highway from the Atlantic to the Pacific must pass.

Has not Tennessee shown her wisdom in pledging herself to the support of such a system of roads?

At the close of the war almost all the roads of Tennessee were nearly in ruins. The State immediately came to their aid, and set them upon their feet again; and finding that additional aid was necessary to fully repair her roads and fully complete her system, she has 696 by the recent act of her Legislature promised additional aid, that may reach the sum of about $4,000,000. But it must be years before this entire sum can be called for, a large portion of this aid being dependent upon the prior grading of the roads by the stockholders. The State has not acted hastily nor rashly in this legislation, but after full investigation of the claims of each road, and a careful consideration of the importance of her entire system. The most enlightened of her taxpayers believe her action to have been one of wise and judicious 697 liberality, and so we believe those will think who are interested in her securities.

Prior to the war every road in Tennessee, excepting the Edgefield and Kentucky, and perhaps the Winchester and Alabama roads, paid the interest on the bonds loaned them. The receipts of all the main lines of railroads, and it is believed of almost all the roads of Tennessee, are greater now than before the war.

The important question for the bondholders now is:
What security have I for the payment of the principal 698 and interest of my bond? The State debt proper is only about $4,000,000. The railroads and all their rolling stock are mortgaged to the State to secure the payment of bonds loaned. This mortgage, as bondholders must know, inures to their benefit. For the payment of $29,000,000 of bonds, which will be the entire amount of bonds issued to the roads, including those that may be issued under the recent act of the Legislature, the bondholders have as security roads, which, when completed, will be nearly 2,000 miles in length, 699
and which will have cost, and which will be worth, fully $70,000,000. In addition to that they have the whole resources of the State solemnly pledged to them.

MEMORIAL OF SHELBY COUNTY. 705

To the Legislature, Dec. 18, 1851.

(1) These improvements can be made without being burdensome to the people, as they will be diffused over the whole State, provided she will loan the different railroad companies her bonds for an amount sufficient to purchase the iron rail and equipments.

(2) The State can give this aid without a reasonable prospect of loss by reserving a lien on the roads for the 706
final payment of principal and interest to an amount not exceeding six thousand dollars per mile, which it is believed will be amply sufficient to purchase the iron and equipments.

TENNESSEE HOUSE JOURNAL, 1851-2, p. 62.

Tuesday, October 14.

Mr. Campbell of Washington introduced the following resolution No. 14.

Resolved, by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee that the Committee on Internal Improvements be instructed to report a bill embodying the following provisions, viz.: 708

1. That the State give aid to specific railroad companies which are or may hereafter be chartered as follows: To assist companies which are or may be hereafter formed to build a line of railroad from the Virginia line to a place called Madrid Bend on the Mississippi River within the limits of the State of Tennessee, said line of road to be constructed by the East Tennes-

709 see and Virginia Company from the Virginia line to Knoxville, from thence to Charleston by the Georgia and East Tennessee Company, from thence to Chattanooga by   Company, which shall be chartered from thence to Nashville by the Nashville and Chattanooga Company; thence, if practicable, to the Madrid Bend on the Mississippi River. Also to give like assistance to the Nashville and Louisville road to be extended from Nashville to the nearest point of intersection with the Memphis & Charleston 710 Railroad within the limits of Tennessee.

2. The amount of aid to be received by each Company from the State shall be sufficient to complete the road, and put the cars upon it, after the company has fixed the timbers down upon the road ; ~~[illegible]~~ the bonds of each company shall be so executed ~~included~~ that the company shall endorse for the State. Said bonds to be redeemed by the Company.

711 3. That the interest of the bonds of each company shall be paid by the company as it accrues before the State becomes liable for the bonds of ~~the~~ a Company. The State shall be made secure against the liability of loss by the company. Provision shall be made requiring each company before it receives aid from the State to agree to commence laying the rail~~road~~s at a terminus or in the line of some railroad or on the margin of some navigable river.

712 4. That provisions be made by law to give the State the privilege if she choses to become a permanent owner in any road which she may have aided in building to the amount of the assistance which the company received from the State. This discretionary privilege shall not vest in the State until after the expiration of thirty years from the completion of each road ; provided that in all cases the State shall pay to the company the amount of bonds it may have redeemed at the time with interest and its accruable value thereof.

olution No. 66.

Whereas, from many indications manifested by this General Assembly it is apparent that this General Assembly will engage in works of general improvement that must result directly or indirectly in involving the State in a debt of millions.

And Whereas the several propositions now before this General Assembly if carried out must result in in- 714 volving the faith and credit of the State without any results beneficial to the State other than developing its national resources.

And Whereas it comports better with true progress that the aid of the State should not involve her credit for millions without a reasonable remuneration for its aid in return.

Therefore resolved, that the Committee on Internal Improvements be instructed to inquire whether the best 715 interests of the State would be promoted by the construction of a railroad from her Eastern limits or boundary connecting with some line of railroad communication to the Atlantic running as nearly as practicable westward to the Mississippi River, and that such road should be constructed exclusively upon the credit and resources of the State and when completed to be the exclusive property of the State, giving to individual enterprise and capital the privilege of connection by all such lateral roads as may thus be constructed. 716

Resolved that the Committee on Internal Improvements be instructed to inquire whether the credit and resources of the State are such as to justify her in embarking in the construction of such a road; and if they deem the same expedient that they report the necessary bill or bills to consummate the object indicated in the foregoing resolution.

717 P. 305.— Friday morning, November 28, 1851.

Mr. Houston, Chairman of the Committee on Internal Improvements, reported on bill No. 107 to authorize the Governor of the State to endorse the bonds of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company. The committee introduced a bill in lieu and as amended, and recommended its passage as amended. On motion the House adopted the bill in lieu of the original and as amended, and the bill passed on its second reading.

718 Mr. Jackson introduced the following report, viz.:

The undersigned a minority of the Committee on Internal Improvements constrained by a sense of duty to their constituents and by a wholesome regard for the public weal, dissent from the report of the majority recommending the passage of the bill granting three hundred thousand dollars extra aid to the East Tennessee and Virginia railroad, ask leave most respectfully to present the following reasons for their dissent.

719 The State of Tennessee from a overweening regard for her credit has for years permitted her fear of debt to restrain the spirit of enterprise which has characterized many States of this Union. She has been too long torpid and indifferent to the objects of her true interest. But under the wholesome influence of the examples of her more spirited and enterprising sisters, by the arguments and persuasions of her most gifted sons, and by the sober second thought of her yeomanry, she is at length aroused, and through the messages of the late 720 and present Governor declares to us that she is now disposed through her Legislature, to advise and adopt liberal and judicious system of internal improvements, and that she is disposed, when individual means and enterprise have begun preparing the local work of important lines of railway passing through her territory, enhancing the value of her soil, swelling her revenue and contributing to the wealth and prosperity of her citizens, as a generous sovereign enjoying the eminent domain of this fruitful land, loan her credit to enable 721 such companies to iron, equip and set to immediate and profitable work the various important roads which may be deemed by legislative sagacity worthy of such aid, by their prospective profit and proposed mortgages will secure the State against liability to loss. Acting upon this as a governing principle, the undersigned, with a full appreciation of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad as one of our great projected thoroughfares eminently worthy to be included in the provisions of a general bill, has been unwilling to favor this or any 722

other application for extra aid outside of that contemplated for important lines which may be embraced in the general bill.

For it is the local work done by individual means and enterprises in the preparation of the roadbed for the reception of iron and equipments that constitutes the basis of security for the advancement of State aid, and if the means of the State are to be asked and obtained to assist in this preliminary work, the security is lessened, and for this reason the example should be avoided. 723

The majority of this Committee who recommend this measure to the House, with the exception of two members, are from that division of the State which feels naturally the deepest interest in this important work, and in the exercise of a very common and excusable partiality for home interests have urged this proposition with great zeal and assiduity before the Committee, and it may be anticipated that the representatives of other sectional interests encouraged by the success of this proceeding and indulging a like desire to gratify their 724 constituents, will apply for similar bounties. When these various applications for special aid are footed up with the liabilities contemplated in the general bill, the undersigned fear that the sum total will excite fearful apprehensions in the minds of ardent and sanguine friends of Internal Improvement and will furnish the opposition with a most potent and formidable weapon of attack.

725 The undersigned actuated by the kindest feelings for the East Tennesee works and with an eye steadily directed to the paramount importance of devising a judicious system which will be readily endorsed and sustained by the great mass of the State, we must earnestly and respectfully ask the members to ponder well before sanctioning this measure.

All of which is respectfully submitted by

ALEXANDER JACKSON,
726 G. C. HART,
J. D. C. ATKINS,
N. B. KING,

E. A. FERGUSON.

P. 785. March 1, 1852, Valedictory of the Speaker.

The period has now arrived for the termination of our labors here. They have been long and arduous and not without important results. Indeed, this session of the General Assembly will constitute an era in the history of Tennessee and her future historian will point to our legislation as the cause of many important results—The Internal Improvement Companies, the free banking system, the homestead exemption law—The 831 first always the most difficult step which has been taken in the work of internal improvement, to say nothing of the many laws second in importance only to these are monuments of legislation intended by this General Assembly to commemorate its devotion to the prosperity and glory of the State, and so may they prove.

832 GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.

Tennessee Senate Journal, 1853-4, p. 37.

The public debt, exclusive of current charges, and the evidence of which consists of bonds issued by the authority of the State and bonds endorsed by the State of certain companies, amounts to $5,746,856.66. These bonds were issued bearing various rates of interest; that is to say, 5¼ per cent. Internal Improvement bonds amounting to $213,416.66; 5 per cent. bonds issued 833 on same account, $1,838,440; 6 per cent. bonds issued to the Bank of Tennessee, $1,000,000; 5 per cent.

bonds issued to the Union Bank, $250,000, being $125,- 000 less than the statement, this last amount having been redeemed by payment since the last session of the Legislature; 6 per cent. bonds issued for the building of the capitol, $500,000; 6 per cent. issued under the Act of 1849-50, and under the Acts of the last Legislature and loaned to various rail and plank road companies, $1,095,000; 6 per cent. bonds of the Nashville 834 and Chattanooga Railroad Company endorsed by the State, $550,000. I refer you to the report of the comptroller for information as to the periods at which the above bonds respectively become due. It is proper to state, that of the above amount of bonds
there have been issued since the last session of the Legislature to the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, under the Act of February 11th, 1852, four hundred thousand dollars; to the railroad company from Dyersburg to the Mississippi river, 835
twenty-five thousand dollars; to the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, under the Act of 15th January, 1852, to aid in the construction of bridges on the road, three hundred thousand dollars; to the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad Company, under the Acts of 4th and 26th of February, 1852, to aid in the completion of the road, twenty thousand dollars; for building the State Capitol, $250,000, and that bonds of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, within the same period, have been endorsed under 836
the Act of 1847 and 1848 to the amount of $250,000, an equal amount having been endorsed by my predecessor under the same act. Bonds of the same company have been endorsed under the act of the last session of the Legislature, to the amount of $350,000. It is proper also to observe that, although for the payment of the interest on, and for the ultimate redemption of a considerable portion of the bonds as above stated, as con-

837 stituting the public debt, the State is only contingently liable, yet, that our public credit may in no possible event sustain a shock, it will be the part of wisdom to make ample provision against such a result.

(Signed)

WILLIAM B. CAMPBELL,
October 8th, 1853.

Comptroller's Report.

838

Nashville, October, 1853.

To the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee:

Since the report from this office two years ago, bonds of the State have been issued, on account of the State subscription for the stock in the East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Company, amounting to $25,000.

839 Page 71. Bonds loaned by the State to East Tennessee & Georgia Railroad Company, under the Act of 1849-50, $350,000; to the same company, under the Act of 1851-2, $20,000; to the Memphis & Charleston Railroad Company, $400,000; to the Mississippi & Diesburg Road, $25,000; to the East Tennessee & Virginia Railroad, $300,000. In addition to the above, the Governor has endorsed bonds of the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Company, amounting to $850,000.

WILLIAM R. CROZIER, Comptroller.

840

The Report of the Comptroller.

Assets and liabilities of the State, January 15, 1854.

Page 244. In addition to the foregoing, the State has loaned and endorsed bonds as follows:

[Same as above list.]

About eighty-two miles of the East Tennessee and 841
Georgia Railroad are completed, and the State has a lien on road, cars, depots, &c., to secure the payment of the interest on the bonds herewith matured. This distance of the road cost the company near $2,000,000.
A recent report of the president of the road says that the agricultural projects of that section of the State, and the rich minerals recently discovered have enabled the company to realize handsome profits
in transporting those articles, and it is hardly possible that the State will ever have any portion of the interest 842 or principal to pay. The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company have about 120 miles completed, and at a cost of two and a half million dollars. The State has a lien upon 120 miles of this road, and is equally secure as in the case of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad. The Memphis and Charleston Railroad have completed 53 miles at a cost of about $800,000. The State has a lien as in the other cases above named. This road penetrates the richest agricultural portions of the State. The branch from Moscow 843 to Somerville, distance 13 miles, has been very profitable, and would, I have no doubt, be worth the whole amount of bonds issued to the company for the entire road completed.

The East Tennessee and Virginia Road has not completed any section of the road. The last report of the president, secretary and treasurer shows that the work is rapidly progressing. The company have promptly paid interest on the bonds loaned by the State. The same lien on the road, cars, &c., exists to secure the State as 844 in the other cases above named. The amount of Stock taken by individuals on the line of the road, and the importance of this link in the great chain of railway, renders it absolutely certain that the State is safe in the amount of liability incurred to aid the Company.

Under the act authorizing the issue of bonds to the Mississippi & Dyersburg Railroad Company,

845 the Committee have surveyed that district, appointed a Committee to assess the value of real estate to the amount of $40,000, on which a lien or mortgage was taken. The State has also a lien on the road, tolls and fixtures, as security for the payment of the bonds received.

"These companies have at all times promptly met the interest when demanded. Owing to the holders of the coupons on these bonds presenting them in some instances to the agent of the State, in New York, in 846 place of the agent of the railroad company, a large amount has been paid by the State agent in the redemption of the coupons for the semi-annual interest.

After a careful examination of the interest account paid by the Bank, I discovered that the agent had paid interest on bonds which were issued as a loan to internal improvement companies. On notifying the company of the fact, the interest was promptly refunded, and the amount is shown in the Table of Receipts.

Second, the number of roads, and what roads, and their extent, or about their extent in the State of Tennessee, which have applied to the present Legislature for the aid of the State to assist in the building or construction of the same, and what would be the aggregate liability of the State if such aid should be so promised. 859

P. 130. Report of R. G. Payne, Road Commissioner:— 889

A few suggestions as to our Internal Improvement Laws, and I shall close. No certain provisions for the adequate preparation of a sinking fund for the redemption of the State bonds has as yet been made. Instead of requiring companies to set apart a portion of their earnings for this purpose five years from the completion of their road, as is now the case, it ought to commence within a certain specified period from the issuance of the bonds. 890

Our bonds are now placed in the hands of different officers of the company. In many instances they have no experience in the money markets of the United States and Europe. The effect cannot be otherwise than injurious to the interests of the State as well as the companies.

Several States have been forced to abandon this policy, and to appoint special agents at the great centers of capital to negotiate their bonds. The plan has worked well, and I submit that something of the same should be done in Tennessee. 891

MESSAGE OF GOV. ANDREW JOHNSON.

Senate Journal, 1857-1858, p. 12.

"In the first place, I would most respectfully call your attention to the actual indebtedness of the State up to this time, which is as follows:"*

---

09 Further on, the Governor says, "State liability for bonds endorsed for and loaned to railroads, turnpike companies and the State Agricultural Bureau," p. 14.†

†(Here follows an account of Internal Improvement Bonds under the Legislation invoked in these suits.)

The bonds of the State which have been already issued to the various Internal Improvement Companies have been and are now selling in the money markets
at ruinous rates of discount, in fact, at a lower rate 10 of discount than the bonds of some of our sister States whose resources and financial ability are not superior 9 if equal to those of Tennessee to meet their public engagements. Tennessee bonds are issued and thrown in the market without any definite information as to what amount of bonds can be or will be issued under existing laws, or as to whether future legislatures will extend the amount to be issued. The want of this information on the part of those who are willing to invest their capital in State securities as to the 11 amount of bonds that can and will be thrown in the market, deters and prevents many who would otherwise 9 make investments in Tennessee bonds. It is believed that if the Legislature will fix upon some definite and known limits to which the State credit is to be extended, and especially so if that limit is clearly within the financial ability of the State, it will have an immediate influence upon the price and sale of the bonds now in the market and those that are to be thrown upon it hereafter for sale, which will greatly relieve those Internal 12 Improvement Companies which now have their bonds hypothecated and which are entitled to the issuance 9 of bonds hereafter. I will therefore recommend that our prospective public debt be well defined, and that it be reduced to the lowest limit consistent with the interest and credit of the State. The credit of the State can be sustained by the aid of a little timely and judicious legislation in the manner already indicated.
It would also add to the confidence and credit of the State if the Constitution was so amended as to inhibit any future Legislature from creating any public debt beyond a limited amount without first submitting the proposition to the people for their approval or rejection, unless in some great emergency such as insurrection, rebellion or invasion. A proposition of this character at the present time to amend the Constitution of the State would be an earnest indication to capitalists that the public mind was healthy and sound in regard to State indebtedness, and its ultimate adoption would secure the people in future against improvident, logrolling legislation and the creation of heavy and excessive State indebtedness without at least first obtaining the peoples' consent. 913 914

Pages 16 to 24, the Governor recommends the winding up of the Bank of Tennessee.

Page 22, under the Act of 1851–52, by which the State credit was loaned to various railroad companies, provision was made that the interest accruing on bonds loaned should be paid into the Bank of Tennessee fifteen days before it became due in New York. Surely, any President of a railroad company having the money to pay the interest on bonds issued to his road, could in less than fifteen days by buying exchange from a bank or broker, or by shipping coin transfer the amount to New York or any other point in the Union. This is often done now, as many of the roads have issued bonds which are endorsed by the State. and the interest has been promptly met without any agency on the part of the Bank of Tennessee. Our merchants and manufacturers must necessarily have frequent payments to make in the Northern and Southern States. These payments are made by purchasing exchange from banks or brokers, and so long as capital is employed in any pursuit which requires the transmission of money from one point to another to pay for the articles purchased, there surely will be, even in the absence of all banks, exchange brokers or factors ready to supply any demand for exchange. 915 916

917 COMPTROLLER'S REPORT FOR 1857.

"In addition to the actual indebtedness of the State as shown in the preceding pages, bonds have been loaned and endorsed, as follows:

To the	East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad,	$1,020,000
"	Tennessee and Alabama Railroad,	500,000
"	Memphis and Ohio Railroad,	670,000
"	East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad,	1,559,000
"	Memphis and Charleston Railroad,	1,100,000
918 "	McMinnville and Manchester Railroad,	352,000
"	Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad,	672,000
"	Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad,	1,650,000
"	Mississippi and Blydensburg Plank Road,	25,000
"	Manskus Creek and Springfield Turnpike,	10,000
"	Mobile and Ohio Railroad,	706,000
"	Memphis and Little Rock Railroad,	350,000
919	Total amount,	$ 8,614,000.00
	To which add actual indebtedness,	4,142,856.66
	Makes the total liability of the State,	$12,756,856.66

From the foregoing table it will be seen that the whole amount of bonds, up to the present time, endorsed by the State and issued directly to the several roads, and for which it holds statutory liens on each security is $8,614,000. The whole State liability, actual 920 and contingent up to the present date is $12,756,856.66.
This will be gradually increased as the unfinished roads progress in construction. It will also be seen that the actual indebtedness of the State is $4,142,856.66 for the items, of which reference is had to page 20 of this report, and for which the State has no source to look to for payment, but must ultimately, as the debt matures, be paid out of the State treasury, unless in the meantime it is otherwise provided for. The liability incurred on part of the State by loaning its credit 921 to the several railroad companies, together with the actual State indebtedness, make up the sum $12,756,856.66, the whole actual and contingent liability of the State.

In regard to the bonds issued to the several railroad companies, the State takes no stock; it only loans its credit in the shape of bonds, on graded roads, so far as to purchase iron and equipments, and a lien is thereby executed to the State upon the whole road and fixtures.
It is hardly probable that any road in Tennessee, under 922
the provisions of her internal improvement Acts will ever be undertaken without a prestige of success; before State liability begins private means must be expended in grading and cross-ties procured, which could only be obtained upon secure projects. Several of the roads are now finished and doing a handsome business; others are advancing under prospects warranting the hope of a speedy completion, and by their construction the landed property of the State has been enhanced in value many millions. Not a single road has yet become 923
a defaulter, but all have uniformly paid their interest with great promptness; will, in my judgment, be able to continue to do so; also to pay a sinking fund as required by law, with which to meet the bonds upon maturity; the first installment due having been already paid into the treasury. It is not probable that any of the roads finished or in course of construction, will ever become chargeable to the State, and thereby affect its credit. If any one of the several roads should prove to be a failure, and become so, the iron 924 and equipments alone would very nearly meet the loan. So in any event, the State could not be seriously embarrassed. In such case the interest would be promptly paid by the State, through the Bank of Tennessee, which has ample means to do so. But, as I before stated, the State loans its credit only to a specific amount to each road, after it is graded and the cross-ties procured, which must be done with private means, 925 for the purchase of iron and equipments only, when a lien upon the whole road and fixtures, which has priority over all others, is executed to the State.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

REPORT OF COMMISSIONER OF ROADS, R. G. PAYNE. 931

APPENDIX, 1857–8.

Tabular statement of the condition of Tennessee railroads.

P. 39. It is proper here to state as a fact highly creditable to the Tennessee companies that they have uniformily met the interest on their State debt. This has to be done by the companies whose roads are in a precarious way, and when constantly recurring and heavy claims of contractors have also to be made. 932

P. 45. It is well known that our State securities have been selling at a heavy discount for two years past at such rates as were not justified by the resources of the State, nor its character for promptness in the discharge of its pecuniary obligations. Several causes have conspired to depreciate the value of the State bonds independent of any peculiar condition of the money market. In the first place, these bonds are often handed over to directors in payment of the company's indebtedness to them, the holders being anxious to realize cash, are disposed to press their sale in the first market they can find without much reference to what may or may not be obtained for their bonds. The railroad agent also, who is charged with the duty of negotiating the State bonds, is often unskilled in the business, contracts with shrewd operators, suffers ruinous loss in the way of brokerage, commission, charges for advancement, which such characters know so well how to put upon uninitiated holders. But the most potent cause of this decline in the value of State bonds may be found in the character of former legislation on the subject of State aid. A large number of roads were chartered with the pledge of State loans to the respective companies. On paper the present and prospective liability of the State may be run up to at least twenty-five million dollars. The capitalist is inclined to regard all these chartered roads, and to fear also for more extended liberality on the part of the legislative authorities. He therefore becomes alarmed for the safety of the State debt, and places his discount accordingly. If the roads not now placed under contract should be lopped of from the system, which certainly can be done without violence to any interest or section, and the policy rigidly adopted witholding State aid from any future enterprises it would do much to restore the depreciated credit of the State.

The present law requiring railroad officers to make biennial report to the road commissioner at least sixty days before the meeting of the Legislature, can possibly be made more efficient, then issue condensed statements from the reports of the several railroad companies in Tennessee.

REPORT OF THE JOINT SELECT COMMITTEE 937

APPOINTED BY THE

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF 1857-8,

To Investigate the Offices of Comptroller and Secretary of State.

The Committee beg leave to submit the following 938 report under that part of the resolution which requires them to "inquire and ascertain what amount of interest has been paid on the State coupon bonds, and what amount should have been paid, so as to ascertain whether any payments have been improperly made."

The Committee, upon this branch of their investigation, have had many difficulties to encounter. They referred to the Comptrollers' reports for the last six years for the information desired, but were soon convinced that they could not be relied upon, either as to 939
the exact amount of our indebtedness, or as to the rate of interest the bonds were bearing; nor did said reports furnish us with full information as to the bonds loaned to the various Internal Improvement Companies, or as to the bonds endorsed by the State. To report fully and accurately under the resolution, it became necessary to get at the actual amount of indebtedness, the date
when the bonds were issued, and when they fell due,
and the rate of interest they bear, which would give the amount of interest due on the bonds outstanding. 940
It likewise became necessary to arrive accurately at the amount of bonds loaned and endorsed by the State to the various companies, and to see the amount of interest they bore annually, and the amount actually paid; and whether said companies had always met the interest paid on the bonds loaned and endorsed. To arrive at the whole matter correctly, the Committee have carefully examined and compared the original

941 books and papers in the office of the Comptroller and Secretary of State, which have been very imperfectly kept, and from them, and other information, they have made out tables showing everything in regard to the issuance of bonds, and the interest they bear, when issued, and when they fall due. Each item of State indebtedness has been very carefully and critically examined from the original sources, and the Committee feel that they can submit the various tables, each one of which will be fully explained hereafter, with perfect 942 confidence in their accuracy. * * *

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The following tables marked "A," show the number and amount of bonds loaned to and endorsed for the various railroad companies, and the names of the companies. They likewise show the Nos. of the bonds, the rate of interest they bear, the time they fall due, and the time the first coupon falls due. These tables include all the bonds that have been issued to railroad 943 companies, or bonds which have been endorsed by the State to said companies, to July 1, 1858.

Table "B" is a recapitulation of the whole amount of bonds loaned to and endorsed for the various railroad companies, and the semi-annual and annual interests they bear.

The table "C" show the number of bonds, when the coupons are due and paid, likewise the semi-annual interest due on the bonds of each railroad company, and which amount with the exchange is required to 944 be paid into the Bank of Tennessee fifteen days before the 1st of January and July of each year.

The tables "D" show when the coupons are due and paid, and the amount of money paid by the companies to the Bank of Tennessee, and the number of coupons returned by them, showing in full how the interest has been paid by the various railroad companies on the bonds loaned to them. The Committee have carefully examined the whole matter from July 1, 1853, to July 1, 1858, and find it correct, and they are confident it is also correct before that time.

These tables will show all the transactions of the Bank of Tennessee, in paying off the interest (on) bonds loaned to the railroad companies. The Committee find that the accounts of the Bank of Tennessee with the railroad companies and the State have been kept with great care and accuracy, and are correct in every particular, and she has made a most satisfactory exhibit of these transactions with the railroads, also with the State Treasury and Comptroller.

The tables marked "E" exhibit lists of the renewed bonds, and the old outstanding bonds together with their numbers and the dates when the bonds issued to the various turnpike and railroad companies fall due. The notes under the different lists that speak of bonds renewed twice are correct from the renewed bond book; but the Committee are satisfied that these renewals occurred in mistake, arising from the difficulty in deciphering the numbers on the old bonds, mistaking one number for another. These are the only tables that show the exact date when these bonds mature.

The tables from page 41 to 49 exhibit the dates from the original receipts when these bonds fall due, but owing to the Act of 1852, authorizing the renewal of bonds, the dates of maturity were changed by renewal, and tables marked "E" show the exact maturity of the bonds.

The Bank of Tennessee had to loan to the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad about twelve thousand dollars, to enable it to pay the interest on the bonds of the State falling due in January last, which have been loaned to it.

The Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad did not pay the interest at maturity, but has since paid all the interest due 1st January last, except the sum of $253.66, which is yet due the Bank of Tennessee, having paid the interest in New York. The other companies paid their interest promptly. 959

965 REPORT OF ISHAM G. HARRIS,

March 2d, 1858.

But one of the most serious evils to be apprehended from the policy of issuing State bonds to increase her capital, is the depression of our State securities, which is a result that must follow inevitably as that supply and demand control the price of property. Why is it that Tennessee six per cent. bonds are now selling in New York from 88 to 90 cents, while Kentucky six per cent.
966 bonds are selling in the same market from 102 to 103 cents on the dollar? Has Kentucky been more punctual in payment of her liabilities than Tennessee? This will not be pretended, for no State has paid her liabilities more punctually than Tennessee. Are the resources of Kentucky more superior to those of Tennessee? The last census report show that they are not. Why this difference, then, in the market value of the securities of the two States? The answer is to be found in the fact that Kentucky has issued very few 967 State bonds, while we, with our system of legislation, have issued and authorized the issuance of nearly twenty millions, an amount so large that we have, to some extent, tasked the confidence of capitalists in our ability to meet our heavy and constantly increasing liabilities. Our State securities have, however, within the last few months, advanced from about 70 to 88 or 90 cents on the dollar. And this, too, during the period of the severest financial derangement and pecuniary pressure. It is apparent that the reason of this appre-
968 ciation is to be found in the fact of the distinct and unequivocal declarations of both political parties in the State prior to and about the commencement of your present session that the liabilities of the State should not be increased.

But let the Legislature require the issuance of $1,250,000 to be thrown upon the money market of the world, to raise capital to invest in uncertain and hazardous enterprise of banking, and all the confidence which our pledges and declarations have inspired is at 969 once destroyed. Although the amount is comparatively small, and not sufficient of itself to produce any great amount of evil, yet capitalists will regard it as a violation of our pledges against an increase of State liabilities, and just in proportion to the doubts that they may entertain as to when and where we will stop this increase of liabilities, just in that proportion will our State securities depreciate.

The bonds cannot be sold except at a ruinous discount,
and the fact of your having authorized their issuance 970 will depreciate the bonds now held by the various internal improvement companies, thus crippling and retarding their progress, if not defeating their enterprises.

As to the necessity of the Bank of Tennessee, as a fiscal agent, I have only to say that I do not consider it at all necessary to the successful management of the financial affairs of the State.

Under the present system, if the State has to make a payment within her own limits, the Treasurer makes a 971 payment by checking upon funds of the Treasury on deposit in the bank. Here the only agency the bank has in that payment is to pay the check of the Treasurer thus as she pays the check of every other depositor, and if the payment is to be made beyond the limits of the State it is made out of money of the Treasurer with the current rate of exchange, and in many instances one half per cent. commission to the correspondent of the bank in New York; so the only agency the Bank has in this case is simply to transmit the fund to the place of 972 payment. In making the payment within the State the Treasurer could count the money to the creditor and pay it to him as easily as he could count out his deposits to the Bank and then check for the amount due to the creditor, and in making a payment in New York or elsewhere beyond the limits of the State, he could purchase exchange and forward it himself.
It would only cost him the current rate of exchange,

973 and the State pays that under the present system,
or he could ship the coin if necessary.

The only agency the Bank has in the first case is to pay the check of one of her depositors, the Treasurer, in the second case to transmit the funds provided by the Treasurer to the place of payment, and this could certainly be done as well by the accountant officers of the Treasury as by the officers of the Bank. With regard to the payments which our several railroad companies have to make semi-annually in New York the compan-974 ies are bound to furnish to the Bank the money with the current rate of exchange fifteen days before the interest falls due in New York, and if they fail to do so, it is the duty of the Bank to report to the company in default. As none have been reported it is fair to presume that they have complied with the law in this respect. Now, if the railroad companies furnish the Bank with the money and the current rate of exchange with one half per cent. commission fifteen days before the interest falls due in New York, could they not 975 within that fifteen days just as easily purchase the exchange and transmit it themselves. It would cost them very little trouble to do so and not one cent more than it cost them to make the payment through the instru-mentality of the Bank.

981 THE LIABILITIES OF THE STATE.

On account of bonds loaned to Internal Improvement Companies, are as follows, to wit:

6 per cent. Bonds of the State, interest payable semi-annually loaned to Railroad Companies,	$10,384,000 00
6 per cent. Bonds of the State loaned to Turnpike Companies, 982	57,000 00
6 per cent. Bonds of the State loaned to Agricultural Bureau,	30,000 00
Total amount of Bonds loaned		$10,435,000 00
Bonds of Internal Improvement Companies, the payment of the principal and interest of which is guaranted by the State, are as follows to wit: 983
The Bonds of Railroad Companies	2,014,000 00
The Bonds of the City of Memphis for the benefit of Memphis and Little Rock Railroad Co.,	350,000 00
984 Total amount of endorsed Bonds		$2,364,000 00
Total present liabilities of the State exclusive of actual indebtedness,		12,799,000 00
And actual debt of the State		3,844,606 66
Which makes the total liabilities of the State of every character,		$16,643,606 66

As most of the Internal Improvements to which the aid of the State is pledged by existing laws, are completed, or far advanced towards completion, it is confidently believed that the prospective liabilities of the State in aid of those works will not far exceed three millions of dollars.

The indomitable energy and enterprise of our people, and the very liberal policy pursued by the State government, have secured to the State a splendid system of Railroads and Turnpikes, which give to every section of the Commonwealth easy access to the markets of the world.

It is gratifying that I am able to state to you, that up to this time our railroad companies have paid each installment of interest upon their State bonds promptly at maturity. The fact that they have been able to do so, through a period of commercial revulsion and general financial derangement throughout the whole country, while most of their roads were in progress of construction, with only short and only disconnectede lines in operation, necessairly earning very little compared with what their earnings must be when completed and important commercial connections are formed, and through trade established, encourage the confident belief that now, as the various roads are being completed, penetrating every commercial locality within the Atlantic States, greatly increasing their business and profits, that they will in future be able to pay, as they have done heretofore, all of their liabilities promptly as they fall due.

The Act of 1856, Chapter 120, requires all railroad companies which have received the aid of the State, either by the loan or endorsement of bonds at the expiration of five years from the date of issuance, and annually thereafter to pay into the treasury of the State a sinking fund of 2 per cent. upon the amount of said bonds, and makes the duty of the Governor, Comptroller and President of the Bank of Tennessee, as a Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners, to invest said

989 fund in 6 per cent. bonds of the State, and annually re-invest the accruing interest, &c.

The first installment of this fund fell due in 1858, since which time we have collected from the various companies $82,840.95, which we have invested, with the interest accruing on the same in the 6 per cent. bonds of the State, and those endorsed by the State, amounting in the aggregate to $109,750, having purchased said bonds at the current rate of discount; upon which we will hereafter collect an interest of $6,417.50 annually.

990 These bonds are deposited in the Bank of Tennessee, and the receipt of the President of the Bank for them is on file in the Comptroller's office. The Commissioners have deemed it proper to keep the account of each company separate, and invest the funds each for its own benefit. For a statement of their various accounts you are referred to the Comptroller's report.

The time fixed by the Act referred to for the payment of this fund is "at the expiration of five years from the date of issuance or endorsement." The 991 general internal improvement act requires all bonds to bear date the first of January of the year of which they are issued, under which all bonds issued within the year must bear the same date, though in point of fact portions of them are being issued and delivered to the companies every month in the year. To avoid the necessity of frequent settlements with the various companies and the collection of sums too small for investment in a bond, and inasmuch as the bonds all bear date the first day of January, I have fixed that as the 992 day upon which the annual installment is due and payable.

Some of the companies contend with plausibility, if not, indeed, correctly, that the first instalment of the sinking fund upon each separate lot of bonds received by them falls due five years from the date upon which the bonds were received. If this be the proper construction of the act, it imposes the necessity of a number of settlements with each company every year, necessarily resulting in the collection of a small portion of this fund, each settlement and balance too small for investment, thus produced, lying idle in the hands of the Commissioners, to the injury of the compnny. I, therefore, respectfully recommend the passage of a law fixing a day upon which the entire sinking fund of each year shall be paid. This will obviate the necessity of more than one settlement with each company annually, and secure the collection of sums sufficiently large for investment. If the companies continue to pay their sinking fund as they have done heretofore, of which I have no doubt, the present mode of investment will extinguish the entire railroad debt of the State before maturity. It is to be regretted, however, that notwithstanding the entire success of our internal improvement enterprises thus far, and the fact that interest upon our bonds, and the bonds themselves as they have matured, have been in every instance punctually paid, yet Tennessee bonds are selling in the market at a discount of near ten per cent., owing in a great measure, as I believe, to the large number of them thrown upon the market, which has a tendency to shock the confidence of capitalists who know the extent of our liabilities, and know very little of our immense resources; and the manner in which they are but too frequently sold by inexperienced holders who know little or nothing of the stock market, at just such prices as they will command upon forced sale, is well calculated to depreciate the credit of the State, and has unquestionably had that effect to some extent. In view of which facts I cannot too earnestly recommend that the liabilities of the State be not increased.

I, C. N. Gibbs, Secretary of State of the State of Tennessee, do certify that the foregoing is a copy of the message of Isham G. Harris, Governor of the State of Tennessee, delivered October 5th, 1859, to the General Assemby of the State, taken from the appendix to Comptroller's Report of 1859, page 4.—Amount of Sinking Fund for the Railroads, $83,096.60. 1002

State Debt.—Railroad Sinking Fund.

The entire indebtedness of the State, of every description, is $19,643,666.66. Of this, only $3,844,606.66 constitute the State debt proper, an amount which could be redeemed at any moment, if due, with the capital owned by the State in the Bank of Tennessee. All but $87,000 of the balance of the public debt ($12,799,000) was loaned to railroad companies in State bonds, or the companies' bonds were endorsed by the 1003
State. There is no reason why these bonds should not command a premium for investment, if certainty of payment and ability to pay are inducements to capitalists. The material prosperity of the State, her taxable property having increased more than $150,000,000, from $219,011,047 to $377,208,641 since the completion of first railroad of 1854—the statutory liens upon the roads and fixtures in favor of the State—the certainty of the payment of interest through the Bank of Tennessee and its compulsory payment to the bank by the 1004 roads, by removal of its officers and directors if not paid promptly, the wise provision of the Legislature creating a sinking fund for the ultimate redemption of the bonds, requiring two per centum per annum upon the amount loaned, with prompt process to collect; a sum so small as not to embarrass the operations of the roads, but large enough to redeem every bond issued before its maturity. The prosperity of the finished

1005 roads, their actual profit and comparatively small bonded debt are material and ostensible guarantees, without appealing to State pride, that these bonds will be paid. If the railroads were worthless the debt would still be paid. The annual interest upon this railroad debt is $763,720.00, the two per cent.
added for a sinking fund would make $1,018,700. To pay this the present State tax would be about double—a tax much lighter than many of the States now pay.
But the railroads themselves have thus far shown an 1006 ability to pay the interest and the sinking fund, which secures the ultimate redemption of the bonds, by their profits as well as dividends to the stockholders. It does not matter to the State or the bondholder, whether the roads make profit for the stockholders or not, so long as the interest and the sinking fund are certainly made. The stockholders might feel compensated for their entire loss of stock by the enhancement in the value of their lands through which the roads pass.
The State lends to the company $10,000 of its bonds 1007 for each mile of railroad, and additional for bridge and making about $11,000 for each mile. The cost of the finished roads, fixtures, and equipments, average about $27,000 or $28,000 per mile. The State and the bondholder, being interested in the profits only to the extent to recover the interest and sinking fund upon the $11,000, would always be safe as long as the road
made 8 per cent. on that amount, or about 3 per cent.
on the whole cost of the road. And this per cent. or any per cent. is much more easily made by a Tennessee 1008 Railroad than a Northern one—it costs about double as much to build a road there as here—of course the road there will have to make double as much as the road here to pay the same interest upon its cost. Besides,
I understand there is more capital paid here at the time of building the road than there—here the roads are mostly paid for at the time of building, with the exception of the (about) $11,000 per mile—there, most of the companies issue $30,000 or $40,000 or more

bonds of the companies for each mile, bearing too, 1009
seven or eight per cent., while ours is six per cent.,
thus creating a further necessity to make more than double as much as our roads to declare the same profits upon the cost. The northern roads are not therefore comparable to ours as security for investment in the stock even, and much less so in the bonds they issue, and the bonds issued here for railroad purposes, having the Company and the State both bound in Tennessee. To illustrate the safety to the bondholders, as well as to the State, it is but necessary 1010
to glance at the present condition and operations of the finished roads in the State—those not noticed having been finished less than a year or the facts concerning them not readily accessible. The Nashville and Chattanooga road, fixtures, and equipments cost about $28,000 per mile. The State endorsed her bonds for $1,650,000, the interest and sinking fund upon which amount to $132,000.00—the net profits of the road for 1859 are $320,000.00, leaving $188,000.00, after paying interest and sinking fund, to be distributed among the 1011 stockholders.

The Memphis and Charleston Railroad, fixtures and equipments cost about $28,000 per mile—the State loaned it $1,100,000; the road issued $2,000,000 of her bonds—interest upon the whole and sinking fund upon the part loand by the State are $208,000.00, the net profits of the road for 1859 were $600,000.00, leaving $392,000.00 to be divided as profits among stockholders.

The East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad, fixtures 1012 and equipments cost about $27,000 per mile—the State loaned and endorsed for it $1,312,000.00 of bonds, the interest and sinking fund upon that amount are $104,960.00—the net profits of the road for 1859 are $162,000.00—leaving $57,000 to be distributed among the stockholders."

1013 Register of Bonds and payment of Coupons, page
3 of the report.

"Sections 209 to 213 inclusive, are unreasonable, impracticable, and unnecessary, and throw an amount of labor upon this office impossible to be performed, without a heavy clerical force, and keep up with its current business. Section 209 requires the Comptroller to keep a book in which to register the number and date of every bond hereto-1014 fore or hereafter to be issued, to whom, and for what purpose. The Secretary of the State does this. His is the office from which bonds issue, and to whom receipts in a book are given. There is no necessity for the Comptroller to do it, and, after being done, it would be but a copy from the Secretary's books, and not receivable, except by special enactment, as evidence anywhere. It is an immense labor upon an officer already overburthened with legitimate business, without any practical or beneficial result being accomplished.
1015 Section 210 requires a continuation of unnecessary labor, by having all the coupons marked in columns opposite the bonds, the time when they fall due, and marked as paid. When a coupon is paid, every material fact is and always has been put upon a book in the Comptroller's office, at the time the warrant issues;
when it is paid by the Treasurer, the receipt is returned to the Comptroller, when he countersigns the check for it, and the same facts go upon another book. It would seem that putting down all the facts twice would be suf-1016 ficient, but this law requires the same facts in a third book, with no counterfacts or checks upon it, as the former are by the Treasurer's books. Besides it is a moral impossibility to do it. More than three-fourths of the bonds of the State have been issued to railroad companies, with the coupons payable in New York;
the Bank of Tennessee, as agent for the railroads, pays them there; they are never presented to the Comptroller, and he cannot know of their payment, except upon hearsay evidence, and his record of the facts would be 1017 worthless.

Section 211 requires the bond book of the Comptroller to show the final payment of the bond. His ordinary books do that if paid at the treasury, and it is therefore unnecessary to keep other and unusual book for the purpose. The Secretary of State (section 197, sub-section 18) is required as the more proper officer, and the one from which they issue, to keep a registry of the payment and cancellation of bonds.

Section 212 requires a repetition in a third book of 1018
what is always put in two books in the Comptroller's office with the additional labor of writing the number of the warrant upon the coupon, and saying who presented, not owned it. The books used for the payment of all other claims against the State show all the facts. I always cancel a coupon upon paying it, and paste it in a book. They are not debts of a more sacred character than others—not more likely to be paid twice—cannot be when cancelled—receipts are always taken as other claims—any malpractice in their 1019 repayment would be as discoverable as any other fraud upon the treasury.

Section 213 contains the penalty for a violation of these provisions—quite an inducement to a common informer. It is to be hoped these sections will be repealed, and the law substituted requiring the coupons to be cancelled and filed with the receipts, as other claims are. Then each case could be examined for itself.

While upon the subject of the Comptroller's duties, 1020
I would say that it is impossible for any one man to perform himself all the labors of this office, unless he have much higher qualifications for business than the present incumbent. Requiring the Comptroller to pay his own clerk hire, is equivalent to a reduction of his salary to that extent.

GOVERNOR HARRIS'S MESSAGE.

Executive Department,
January 16, 1861.

Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

The Sinking Fund of 1855-6 contemplates the invest- 1035
ment of the fund as paid in, in the Internal Improvement Bonds of the State at par, by which means the entire railroad debt of the State would have been extinguished before maturity. The act of 1859 and 1860, repealing the above recited act, was intended and will accomplish the same result; but the commissioners have invested the fund paid in under the act of 1855-6 in bonds, at a discount of from eight to 25 per cent., by which much more of the debt has already been extinguished than the act contemplated. In view of which 1036 fact, and the failure of crops, derangement and prostration of commerce and general financial distress in all departments of business, it is certainly a hardship upon the railroad companies of the State to be compelled to pay, in these times of universal pecuniary distress, any part of the principal of a debt which does not fall due for 30 years. I therefore respectfully recommend the passage of an act suspending the operations of the Sinking Fund Law for the term of one year 1037 from this date, by which time another crop will have been made, and it may be reasonably hoped these companies will be in a condition to pay their sinking fund without material inconvenience or injury; and if the law is rigidly enforced after this suspension, as it has been heretofore, it will extinguish the debt by maturity.

Having learned from a portion of the people of Nashville and one of the representatives of the County of Davidson that the passage of an act authorizing the 1038 corporation of the City of Nashville to endorse certain income bonds of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company is desired by them and important to said company, at their instance I submit the question to your discretion.

The General Internal Improvement Law makes it the duty of the Governor to appoint Receivers to take charge of the roads and effects of railroad companies in certain contingencies, but the law fixes no salary or compensation for such service. The fact that the 1039 duties and responsibilities of the Receiver are much greater on some roads than on others, requires that the compensation of Receiver in each case depend to a great extent upon the character of duties and amount of responsibility imposed upon him.

I therefore recommend that you pass an act fixing the salary of Receivers or conferring upon some officer of the government the power to fix the compensation in each case.

Regretting as I do the necessity of multiplying the 1040 subjects of legislation at an extra session I have carefully avoided opening the fruitful fields of Internal Improvements, and confine myself strictly to the Sinking Fund Law, the salary of Railroad Receivers and authorising the Corporation of Nashville to endorse the Income Bonds of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, if it should see proper to do so.

Which questions are respectfully submitted to your consideration.

ISHAM G. HARRIS.

Oct. 1861 of James T. Dunlap, (J. O. Griffith, Camp & Co., Printers to the State.)

Page 4: "There is but one Contingency now thought of that would demand an increased taxation upon the property of the State. If the railroads fail to meet the interest upon the bonds loaned to or endorsed for them, the State must pay. In ordinary times there is no difficulty in their meeting promptly their interest and sinking fund. With many of the larger and finished 1042 roads there is none now. The Nashville and Chattanooga, and some other roads, were reported to the Governor, not from inability to pay, but because, under the act of July 1, 1861, the interest was not allowed to be paid to citizens or corporations of the non-slaveholding States of the United States, and they felt they had a right to use their own money until it was needed for the payment of their own debts when presented. I mention this, not to justify the position they have assumed, but to show their ability to pay. It is probable 1843 the roads will pay the State as much interest upon their bonds as will be demanded during the existence of the war, and at its close, the resumption of their ordinary business may yield profits corresponding to their wants.

Same page.—BANK OF TENNESSEE,
NASHVILLE, TENN, Oct. 16, 1861,

Hon. Jas. T. Dunlap, Comptroller, etc.,

The Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Company have had on deposit in this bank an average of $75.- 1044 000.00 for the past four months, having at no time during that period less than $45.000 at their credit; and are now and were on the 15th of June last the owners of 137 of the 150 bonds issued by the State of Tennessee for their benefit, the July, 1861, coupons on which have never been taken off, as the bonds were in New York. The Company would, notwithstanding the bonds were in New York, have paid their interest but lost

1045 sight of the fact that the collection had to be made through the treasurer instead of the Bank of Tennessee as heretofore.

Respectfully, etc.,
JNO. A. FISHER,
Cashier.

The salary of these officers, under the present law, is paid out of the Treasury. It occurs to me it ought 1046 to be paid out of the profits of the road before they are paid into the treasury, as other officers and employees of the road are paid. Unless this be done, the State, and not the road, will, upon final settlements, pay the salary of the Receivers, while the road continued in the possession of the State. The law requires the road to refund the interest paid by the State, but is silent as to the salaries being refunded. This is comparatively a small matter now, but, if the present derangement in trade and commerce continues, it may 1047 be of some magnitude eventually.

Same page.—Interest on State Bonds:

Until the passage of the law of July 1, the railroads were required to pay the interest upon State bonds loaned to them into the Bank of Tennessee fifteen days before it was due. The bank was then required, through its agents in New York, to pay it out to the bondholders, charging exchange and commissions for so doing. Under the present law the roads pay the interest into 1048 the treasury, and the treasury pays it out. There was no adequate reason for this change, which has thrown an immense labor upon the Comptroller and Treasurer. The bank can pay a coupon like any other check, but every payment by the treasury requires a warrant from the Comptroller, which is entered upon one book when issued, and another when paid; and, if all the coupons were paid separately, there would be, semi-annually, about 30,000 entries in the Comptroller's office, and half as many in the Treasurer's, an amount of labor almost impracticable to perform, all of which may be avoided by restoring the original law. 1049

1053 GOVERNOR BROWNLOWS MESSAGE, 1865.

APRIL 6TH.

The State debt, as reported by the Comptroller, in October, 1861, is said to be $6,896,606.66, and this demands your attention. This includes $3,000,000 of eight per cent. bonds for the "defense of the State," which has recently been discarded by the people at the ballot-box.
This unauthorized and most unjust indebtedness, repudiated, leaves the indebtedness of the State properly 1054 $3,896,606.66 at an annual interest of $212,388 25. The interest is presumed to have been paid on the first of January, 1861. It is not known how much has since been paid, if any. The bonds will show, either by the endorsements or the absence of the coupons. Besides this debt, the State has loaned bonds for internal improvement purposes, and has endorsed the bonds of railroad companies to the amount of $16,211,000.00.
For these the State is ultimately liable upon the failure of the companies. These bonds it is believed the State 1055 will have to provide for, to preserve its credit, making an aggregate indebtedness of $20,005,606.66
and the annual interest $1,185,048.25. Of this debt proper $66,666.66 matured in 1861; $61,250 in 1862; $177,750 in 1863, and $58,500 in 1864—in all, $366,166.66, at once to be provided for. The Comptroller states that the bonds maturing in 1861 were "taken possession of and held by the State, subject to adjustment at the end of the war." Besides these, the State held bonds, mostly her own, as follows: The Spencer 1056 T. Hunt Fund, 6; the Railroad Sinking Fund, 161; deposited by the free banks, 341; deposited by foreign insurance companies, 80; and in all 588 bonds. These bonds, held in trust, were carried away, it is believed, with the valuables of the State Treasury, by the State officers, who ingloriously fled on the approach of the national flag. Double payment can probably be avoided. Evidence must be in existence by which they can be identified. The notorious condition of our State affairs has been sufficient to put dealers upon their guard. So that if any of the bonds have been fraudulently sold, payment to the present holders maybe justly stopped. Furthermore, it will be well to consider how far it is your duty as agents of the State not only not to pay the bonds by those who have been actively engaged in the rebellion to overthrow the Government; whether held by them or parties who may seek to conceal them for the benefit of the rebels, as they will likely do, I advise that you adopt measures to prevent their payment. The bonds can in no event compensate for the loss the disloyal holders have occasioned the State. The justice of holding them responsible in this way, it is believed, cannot be successfully controverted * * *

As you are aware, upon the approach of the national forces and their occupation of our country, the Government took possession of our railroads, in most of which the State is a large stockholder. The State is deeply interested in her internal improvements, as she has endorsed bonds at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile, for nearly all the railroads in Tennessee. And as most of these bonds are held by guardians, for the benefit in many instances of minors and widows, I think it nothing more than simple justice, to pay them the interest already due them.

The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad was taken possession of by the Federal authorities on the 7th of March, 1862, and has been held and used ever since, and, regarded as a military necessity, it was proper and right. Presuming the Government to have kept the account strictly, she is now about ready to make a settlement. My information is that certain officers of the company visited Washington on two different occasions for the purpose of obtaining a settlement with the Quartermaster General. They failed in their efforts though the President of the United States, who was present on both occasions, expressed his views verbally as favoring the payment of the company for the use of the road. You should now call upon the proper authori-

1061 ties at Washington for payment to this and other companies, requiring the money received to be applied to the payment of interest on their bonds. The amount endorsed by the State for the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company is $1,535,000, and the interest accrued thereon is now nearly $300,000. It is believed that upon a just settlement the Government will owe the company largely over that amount. This road cost the company $3,846,900, including its equipments and depots.

1062 The other roads in the State are similarly situated, and demand your attention. Those officers of roads, and stockholders who fled south, carrying with them the rolling stock and funds, should be held to a strict accountability, and their property and stock should be made, in part, to atone for these losses to the State and country. The case of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad and its faithless President, requires our special attention.

It is believed the time has now come for the compan-1063 ies again to use their roads for the Government, if need be, under even a Military Superintendent—thereby effecting a vast saving to the Government, asking only the same pay for freights and passengers they are now paying to the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company; as this war is for the benefit of the whole nation, it is not believed that the general Government intends that Tennessee shall pay more than her just proportion of the war debt.

Your attention is called to the fact that the Louis-1064 ville and Nashville Railroad Company is running a portion of that road in this State, say about sixty miles, with another branch from Bowling Green to Clarksville, and for all that portion of road in our State, the Government pays the Kentucky Company as if the road were in any other loyal State. The information I have is to the effect that the Kentucky Company treats with indifference the claims of Tennessee upon that road. It 1065 is your duty to let that company know, in decided, but respectful terms, what your rights are, and that you dare assert and maintain them.

1069 Report of Jos. S. Fowler, Comptroller, May, 1865.

(Title, Railroads, p. 8)

"Upon the occupation of the State, the railroads were all siezed and run by the General Government, except the Louisville and Nashville and Edgefield and Kentucky. The former was left in the hands of the company without any representative from Tennessee to take care of her interests. Upon being notified, Gov.
Johnson appointed a Receiver for the Edgefield and 1070 Kentucky who run the road but a short time. The constant raids of Confederate Cavalry in 1862 rendered it impossible to run the road successfully, and finally destroyed it for a period.

Early in 1862 I addressed the President of the Louisville and Nashville Road a letter asking whether the interest on the Tennessee bonds loaned the company had been paid. The president replied that it had not, and I inferred from the letter that it would not be, by the company, giving as a reason for such a course, the 1071 fact that the State of Tennessee had, by its troops, seized and held the road, destroyed its bridges and profits. This question is one worthy the attention of the State authorities, and it will be left for them to determine whether the State is responsible for the conduct of those who inaugurated the rebellion. On this subject we will only state, that neither the State nor the companies have received any proceeds from any of the roads, except the small sum from the Edgefield and Kentucky Road in uncurrent funds.

1072 Neither the State nor the companies have received any dividends or reports of transportation, rolling stock, or any of the effects of roads, except in the case of the President of the Chattanooga road, who has, I am told, obtained a statement of a certain amount of rolling stock of that road. That the Federal Government will pay the State, for the use of the roads, a sum adequate to meet the interest on the bonds, we cannot doubt. The roads virtually passed into the hands of the Governor of the State, when the companies ceased 1073 to pay the interest on the bonds loaned or endorsed by the State. They then became, for the purpose of paying this interest, the property of the loyal people of the State. It was then the duty of the Federal Government to confiscate the stock of Rebels, and pay the State, the representative of the loyal people, for the use of the road. Moreover, it was the duty of the Federal Government to protect the loyal men in the State. True faith is the duty of the citizen; protection and defence in the peaceful enjoyment of the citizens' 1074 rights, of the duties of the Government. From this source the State may reasonably expect assistance.

COMPTROLLER HATCHETT'S REPORT

To the Legislature in October, 1865.

RAILROADS AND TURNPIKES.

Page 6. The accompanying table will show the amount to which the State has loaned its credit to the various Internal Improvement Companies within its limits, either by the issue of State bonds for the benefit of the Companies, or by the endorsement of the bonds of said companies.

According to the laws of the State, the companies for whose benefit such bonds are issued, are required to pay the interest thereon as its accrues, and upon a failure to do so, the law requires the roads so defaulting 1076 to be taken possession of by the State, and placed in the hands of a Receiver, who shall run it for the benefit of the State, until the interest which has accrued on its bonds shall have been paid from the net earnings of the road. One of the consequences of the recent rebellion was that all the railroads in the State ceased to pay the accruing interest on their bonds, some of them having paid no interest since July, 1861, while a few only paid up to January 1862.

So far as I am able to determine from the books of the former Comptroller, the unpaid interest now due, or which will be due on the first day of January next, amounts $4,320,187. With a few exceptions, the companies are not believed to be at present in a condition promptly to pay this accumulated interest, and it is certain that the Treasury of the State is at this time in no condition to liquidate the debt. Under this state of affairs, it will devolve upon the wisdom of the Legislature to devise some practical means for preserving the faith and credit of the State, and at the same time protecting the rights and interests of the public creditors. Whether this shall be by funding the interest due, or by some other means, will be for you to determine. The law requiring the roads, upon the failure of the companies to pay the interest on their bonds, to be placed in the hands of a Receiver, was doubtless well calculated to protect the interest of the State in times of general prosperity when it might reasonably be supposed that failure to pay the interest would be the exception rather than the rule. Under the present state of affairs, however, when nearly all our roads are in a crippled condition, it is believed that the execution of this law would not only add greatly to the embarrassment of the State, but would materially injure the railroad interests of the State, which your legislation has hitherto been intended to foster and protect, and would in the end, defeat the object for which it was enacted, by depreciating the value of our railroads, thereby destroying in a measure the security which the State has by virtue of its lien for the ultimate payment of both principal and interest of these bonds. Such modification of the present laws, as will be best calculated to secure the State from ultimate loss, and also give roads an opportunity of availing themselves of the anticipated revival of business and prosperity is earnestly recommended. Two Railroads having failed to meet the interest due on the bonds issued for their benefit

prior to the rebellion, were taken possession of by the 1081
State and placed in the hands of Receivers, to wit: The Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad on the and the Winchester and Alabama Railroad on the

Since these railroads have been in possession of the military authorities, so far as I am informed, the Receivers have had no control over them. Neither does it appear from the books of this office that any settlement has been made with either of the said Receivers.
The Mobile and Ohio, the Nashville and Northwestern, 1082 the Louisville and Nashville Railroads have each drawn six per cent. bonds since the Legislature passed the Ordinance of Secession. The Mobile and Ohio on the 11th of June, 1861, received from the then Acting Governor, Isham G. Harris, one hundred and seventy-two bonds; the Nashville and Northwestern on the 23d of April, 1861, received one hundred and twenty bonds; the Louisville and Nashville on the 20th of April, 1861, received five State bonds. It is for you to say whether these bonds shall be recognized or whether they shall 1083 be rejected as illegal.

SINKING FUND.

Page 8. Act of 1855-6, Chapter 120, provides for the creation of a Sinking Fund for the redemption of the bonds issued for the benefit of railroad companies chartered by the State at their maturity. Said act provides that at the expiration of five years from the issuance or endorsement of their several bonds, they shall 1084 pay annually into the Treasury of the State, two per cent. upon all such bonds, so issued or endorsed for their benefit as a sinking fund for the redemption of those bonds. According to the report of a former Comptroller, a portion of the railroad companies of the State have complied with this requisition up to February 1st, 1861, at which time the operation of the law was suspended for one year by act of the Legislature.

1085 Since the suspension it is presumed that nothing has been done under the law.

"The Sinking Fund was deposited with the Bank of Tennessee, and a portion of the bonds belonging to said fund are known to be among the assets of the bank. From the condition in which the affairs of the bank remained, I am unable to present any satisfactory report as to the condition of this fund, but in view of the crippled condition of the majority of our railroad 1086 companies, I would suggest the further suspension of the operation of this law for such time as in the judgment of the Legislature the necessities of the companies may require and the interests of the State permit."

Report of the Comptroller in relation to Tennessee State bonds to the General Assembly at the Session of 1865-6.

GENTLEMEN: In accordance with joint resolution 1087 No. 49, of your last session, I have the honor to submit the following:

A special resolution made it the duty of the Comptroller to make publication in the public prints of the cities of Cincinnati, Nashville, Philadelphia, Boston and New York, requesting holders of the bonds of the State to transmit to the Comptroller at Nashville a statement of their names, residences, and the dates, numbers, amounts and character of the bonds in their possession. You will see from the following statement 1088 that not over four millions of bonds have been reported. The character of these bonds the owners in most instances failed to give. With a great deal of labor I have complied with your resolution as far as it was in my power to do.

S. W. HATCHETT,
Comptroller of Treasury.

Tennessee Senate Journal, 1st Session, 1865, p. 168. 1089

Mr. McKinney offered Senate Joint Resolution No. 75, to wit:

Resolved, by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the government be required to turn over the railroads in this State to the stockholders, and appoint an agent to settle with the companies for the use of the same. The amount received by the State first to be applied to pay the interest on State bonds for which the State is liable. 1090

The rules were suspended and the resolution taken up.

Mr. Hall moved to refer the resolution to the Committee on Internal Improvements; ayes, 13; nays, 8.

MESSAGE OF GOV. BROWNLOW.—OCTOBER 8, 1867.

Account between the State and the Railroads. 1092

The entire account of the State with the railroad companies, and especially that portion relating to the sinking fund, has been so badly kept during the war and before, that the books are very unsatisfactory. I advise the appointment of commissioners by your body to sit during your session and make new settlements with all the roads, so that the books may be made to show all settlements satisfactorily both to the State 1093 and the companies, and the expenses of such settlement will be more than compensated by rescuing the account from oblivion. In the discharge of my duties I have appointed receivers on as many as seven roads, and if the interest on their indebtedness to the State is not promptly met, I shall appoint guardians for the others. It is an outrage that nearly a million of dollars is due to the State from these defaulting companies.

1094 COMPTROLLER BLACKBURN'S REPORT, 1867.

RAILROADS.

These powerful engines of modern progress, so essentially necessary in the developement of the resources of a country, in bringing the great commercial centers within easy reach of our most distant and interior counties, bearing on their wings of steam, our cotton, tobacco, corn, wheat, and other products, to the distant seaboard, and returning freighted with all those articles 1095 needed by our people—this great interest in our State built up by the capital of our citizens, and most liberally assisted by an enlightened State policy, is now, on account of injury received during the war, in rather a depressed condition, so much so, (as will be seen by an examination of the following table) that many of the roads have failed to pay the interest due July last, on the State's Bonds loaned them. This temporary embarrassment, on the part of the roads that are yet embarrassed, is owing to the large sums of money necessarily 1096 expended in repairing the damage done to the roads during the war, as well as replacing with new rails and machinery those worn out in the service of the U. S. Government Transportation Department during the war.

It seems reasonable to expect, however, now that the roads are once more in first-rate running order, and abundant crops give promise of returning commercial activity, that they will soon rise—those that have not already—from their depressed condition, and again 1097 start forward on their career of usefulness and profit to themselves and the people.

The interest of the railroad companies is now, emphatically, the interest of the State. To them she has loaned her bonds to the amount of twenty-two millions of dollars, relying on said roads for the payment of the interest and the providing of a sinking fund for the ultimate redemption of the bonds. This was fully realized up to the commencement of the war, and now that the cause of the failure to pay, with nearly all of 1098 its sad consequences, has almost disappeared, and the roads being repaired and fully equipped, we may, as I think—as before observed—with a little indulgence from the State to the roads that need it, expect, confidently, every road to meet its liabilities.

In order that your Honorable Body might know the character and amount of security the State retains for the large amount of bonds loaned to railroad companies, I have prepared from such data as this office
affords, and from information obtained from the roads, 1099
a tabular statement of the capital, together with the length and cost of all railroads in Tennessee, which will be found annexed. Also, in tabular form, headed "Railroads," a list of all railroads of Tennessee, the amount of bonds received by each, the amount cancelled by their respective sinking funds, amount of interest funded on the first day of January, 1866, and amount of interest due by each railroad company on the first of July last, with the July interest then due, inclusive. 1100

REPORT OF COMPTROLLER BLACKBURN.

In 1867, The Sinking Fund—

"These bonds are not credited to the different railroad companies whose funds purchased them, as a

1101 question has arisen as to the construction of the Act of 1860, chap. 93, which directs all bonds purchased by Sinking Funds, and interest accruing thereon up to January 1st, 1860, to be credited to those railroad companies entitled to such credit. As the Sinking Fund Commissioners did not so credit them at the time prescribed by the act aforesaid, the question of their disposition is referred to the Legislature, which will, in justice to the railroad companies, I apprehend, direct that the amount of said bonds be credited to their ac-1102 counts."

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE.—NOVEMBER 21, 1867.

House Journal, 1867-8.

"I deem it my duty to call the attention of the Legislature to the necessity of yielding a prudent but liberal aid to the railroads of the State to place them in a condition to be productive and enable them to meet hereafter the interest on loans made to the railroads.
1103 The State owns a substantial and valuable interest in railroads, and that interest is one of the main bases of the credit of the State."

GOVERNOR BROWNLOW'S MESSAGE.—EXTRA SESSION, 1868.

Of the thirty-two million dollars constituting our State debt, fully three-fourths were incurred by the State loaning her credit and issuing her bonds to the different railroad companies of the State. To secure 1104 the payment of these bonds the State has a first mortgage upon all railroads so aided making her security fully adequate; capitalists and dealers in stocks will, understanding these facts, have no lack of confidence in the ultimate redemption of Tennessee bonds.

Some of the railroad companies committed the great error of not making their payments in advance of the first of July. The Comptroller will inform you who they are. In the discharge of my duty I served the following notice upon them all:

EXECUTIVE OFFICE, 1105
Nashville, Tenn., May 24, 1868.

To the Railroads of the State of Tennessee:

It is made your duty by the law of 1852, and also by the Act entitled "An Act to liquidate the debt of the State falling due in 1868 and 1869," passed March 13, 1868, to pay the interest on the bonds loaned you at least fifteen days before said bonds become due.

The penalty for the failure of this duty is, that I am to appoint a suitable person at your expense to take 1106 charge of your road.

I therefore warn you that the interest due from you on the first July next must be paid to the Comptroller of the State at least fifteen days before that date.

W. G. BROWNLOW,
Governor of Tennessee.

GOV. BROWNLOW'S MESSAGE.

NOVEMBER 10th, 1868. 1107

The six railroads in the hands of receivers are indebted to the State on interest account, due July 1, 1868, one million one hundred and twenty thousand nine hundred and ninety-six dollars and eighty-six cents. The interest of these roads, as well as that of the State, require that they should be sold and the proceeds thereof be applied to the reduction of the State debt.

I would have seized the two other roads for failure to pay the July interest, and placed them in the hands 1108 of receivers, but that I had learned by experience that to do so would only entail increased burdens upon the State Treasury.

I recommend that no more appropriations be made to railroads except in those cases where the State has large interest in said roads, and would suffer heavy loss on account of the lack of such appropriations. Of this class are the roads running out, North and South, 1109 from Knoxville, and the one extending South from Morristown; and also the road of which Hon. Senator Parker is president. These roads, in order to become profitable and productive to the State, will require enough additional appropriations to enable them to complete their lines, so as to connect with other roads now in process of construction. I propose, however, to meet these demands in a way not to increase the liabilities of the State. The plan is this:

Leading gentlemen, connected with important rail-1110 roads largely indebted to the State, are asking for authority to issue second mortgage bonds, with a view of exchanging them for State bonds, the debt now due by the State would, in like amount, be transferred to these railroad companies, and so the State would be relieved by a burden of several million of dollars of debt now resting upon it.

I regard this proposition with approval, and advise its adoption by the Assembly. The payment of large debts now due from the roads alluded to, and the sale
1111 of the roads already in the hands of receivers, would reduce the State liabilities at least one-third.

This plan, it is seen, would enable the General Assembly not only to reduce materially the State's liabilities, but also to render such necessary additional aid to the roads, whose completion is demanded by considerations of public economy.

Several of the railroad companies have unsettled accounts with the sinking fund. The State being indebted to them and they being indebted to the State, it is im-
1112 portant that an early settlement of these accounts be had. I recommend, therefore, that the proper action be had by your respective Houses, to procure the desired settlement with the said railroads.

Since the adjournment of your extraordinary session, the Comptroller has visited New York and made satisfactory arrangements for the payment of the July interest. This fact, together with the result of the late State and Presidential elections, has induced an appreciation of our State bonds, and a material deprecia- 1113

tion on the price of gold.

The occasion serves to allude to the gratifying fact, that, financially and otherwise, Tennessee occupies a far more desirable position than any of the States recently in rebellion. Thus the policy of reconstruction maintained by the Union Republican party of Tennessee, finds ample and triumphant vindication by its achievements among us; and thus, also, the path of our future growing prosperity is traced for us by the history of the last four years, we have only to follow up with 1114
steady nerve and unfaltering step, the policy thus far so successful, to assure to this great commonwealth that degree of thrift, wealth and power, to which our national position, our boundless resources and our enterprising population so eminently entitle us.

Report of G. W. BLACKBURN, Comptroller (p. 14) to Extra Session of the 35*th General Assembly in reply to Senate Resolution passed Aug.* 3, 1868. 1115

" Rejoicing in the belief that a better day was dawning on our State, I pursued my duties in this office undisturbed by a thought of approaching difficulties, until some time in the day of the 29th of June, when Mr. McCrary, of the First National Bank of Nashville, came into this office and told me he had received a dispatch from New York stating 1116 that the rumor there was, that the railroad men, then in New York would be enjoined from paying the State money due on the State loan. I at once telegraphed to President Calhoun, telling him what I had heard and requested him to tell me if there was any truth in it. His answer received the same day was "That the railroad men had been enjoined, and the report was, that the funds of the State in his bank would be enjoined."

1117 SPECIAL REPORT OF COMPTROLLER BLACKBURN.

November 30, 1868.

Recurring to the following tables, it will be seen that the cardinal and all-important truth thereby elicited—a truth which may be regarded as the tutelary deity of the State, calling on the Legislature to interpose its power and authority in behalf of its injured wards— is this, That the policy of issuing bonds to railrods which have been taken out of the hands of the company and 1118 put into the hands of Receivers—that is, of the bonds, the roads and all their assets—and who have, for a longer or shorter period of time, so managed the roads, the bonds, and the assets, as to prevent the State from receiving one single dollar, can no longer be tolerated. This is the great change the financial interest of the State calls for. To the consideration of it, I most respectfully and earnestly call the attention of your Honorable Body.

Mr. Speaker:—The Committee on Judiciary have had under consideration the House Bill No. 542, and have instructed me to recommend its rejection. The committee cannot see how the railroad companies are to be benefited by the arrangement proposed by the bill, except by some advantage to be gained at the expense of the State. The Comptroller is required to certify that bonds of the companies have been issued for the bonds of the State, cancelled, and certify these facts, not at 1120 his office here, but transact the same in New York by an agent in a distant city, and a person over whom the Legislature can have no control.

Again, the bill proposes that the State shall take coupons from the companies where they have failed to pay the interest what she may thus have advanced in cash for bonds loaned to said company. This is certainly a strange proposition; while the present policy of the State should continue the State issues her bonds, the companies are to pay the interest on them, they fail 1121 to do so, and she pays it in money; they then can buy her bonds at sixty-five cents on the dollar, and reimburse her in her own paper, issued for their benefit; she, at this rate, paying some fifty per cent. to said company, or rather, they are making that out of the State in the transaction. This must surely greatly affect the credit and resources of the State. The committee, therefore, hopes the bill will be rejected.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WM. H. WISENER,
Chairman.

HOUSE APPENDIX 1868-9.

REPORT.

1123

MR. SPEAKER:

The Judiciary Committtee, to whom was referred the various measures before the Senate, looking to a sale of the different railroads in Tennessee that have failed, or may hereafter fail, to meet the interest on the bonds issued and loaned to them, or their own bonds endorsed by the State, have had the same under consideratien, devoting as much time to their investigation as other duties would permit, and the great interests in- 1124
volved require.

It seems to be conceded by all, that something should be done; but, whilst all agree that some remedy should be applied to relieve the Treasury of the State from its present embarrassed condition, there is, as might have been expected, a great diversity of opinion as to the proper measures to be adopted to accomplish the object to be attained.

1125 First, as to the necessity. Whilst it is conceded that some remedy should be applied, it may not be known to every member of this body and to our Constituents and Country, that there is such an imperative, absolute and overruling necessity for the removal of the evil, as the Committee believe to exist, and will now proceed to show.

The State debt, including liabilities for railroads and turnpikes was, according to the Comptroller's Report of the 30th of November last $34,454,873.44. Add 1126 to this the amount borrowed to meet the January interest, say $450,000, being in round numbers, half the annual deficiency, and you have as your actual existing debt, at the beginning of the present year, $34,891,873.44.
That it may be seen how enormous this is, as compared with our resources, the Committee will submit a few remarks.

According to the assessments for the year 1868, the aggregate of taxable property of every kind was, in round numbers, two hundred and eight millions of 1127 dollars. Upon the indebtedness would be sixteen and seventy-seven hundredths per cent. on the amount thus assessed.

By existing laws, bonds are authorized to be issued to different railroads, to the amount of at least four million three hundred and seventy-five thousand dollars ($4,375,000) making an aggregate of thirty-nine million two hundred and sixty thousand eight hundred and seventy-three dollars ; say in round numbers, forty million dollars. This is equal to nineteen and twenty 1128 three hundredths per cent. on the taxable property of the State. As this is the amount of the State debt, as it actually exists, and authorized by law, the Committee might, on this particular branch of the question involved, cease their inquiries, but, as the condition of the finances of the State is a matter of such vast importance, as well to the tax payer, as to the public creditor, they hope it will not be considered out of place for them to extend their investigations a little further, and see what may be the situation of affairs, should the various propositions now pending before the Legislature be passed into laws. The various propositions, without going into detail, at the time of preparing this report, amount to the sum of six million dollars, which, should they become laws, will swell your debt to forty-five or six millions. At forty-five millions the indebtedness would amount to twenty-one and sixty-three hundredths per cent. on the aggregate taxable property in the State.

At this rate of taxation, a farm worth one thousand dollars could only be sold by the owner for seven hundred and eighty-three dollars and seventy cents. It is only worth this latter sum to the owner, although its actual value was one thousand dollars. In other words the property of the people of the State was valued at two hundred and eight millions of dollars, at the last assessment, it, in fact, is only worth to the owners one hundred and sixty-three millions.

Suppose an emigrant of capital should come to Tennessee to buy land, and would call on some man, the owner of a farm worth ten thousand dollars, he would be willing to pay for it, owing to our enormous taxes, only seven thousand eight hundred and thirty-seven dollars. Can we go home and face our constituents with this state of things existing, without doing something to relieve them? Should we do so, it is doubted whether many of us would return again.

Again, as shown by your Committee, in a report on another proposition before the Senate, the annual deficiency in the receipts is now nine hundred thousand dollars, with the present rate of taxation and existing liabilities. This will continue to be the case, unless taxes be increased, or something be done to reduce the existing liabilities, and the deficiency will be annually increased by the amount of interest paid on such deficiency the preceding year. How long can this state of things exist? The deficiency has been met heretofore by semi-annual loans; except, perhaps, in one instance, by an application of near three hundred thousand dollars of what is called the School Fund. Will capitalists continue to lend us money to pay interest, when no adequate means are prepared to meet the demands on the Treasury? This is a grave question, and the Committee apprehend that men of means will cease to lend, and the coupons on your bonds must go to protest. Indeed, it cannot be expected that our credit can be kept up and demands on the Treasury met, unless a change in our financial policy be adopted. In a few years, the annual interest thereon, will amount, itself, to an enormous debt. In six years, including the last annual deficiency, the debt on this score alone would be increased five million six hundred thousand dollars.

These calculations are based on the actual indebtedness of the State; but add to this the bonds authorized by law, and not yet issued, and the finances will be enhanced by the addition of some five or six millions of principal, and an additional deficiency of interest of some three hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars, making the amount of a million and two hundred and twenty-five thousand dollars excess of demands on the Treasury over the receipts.

Should the different propositions before the Legislature become law, your debt will be forty-five millions, and the annual deficiency over a million and a half of dollars. The Committee hope the Senate will profit by these figures, and to make no more appropriations of bonds for the benefit of railroads or manufacturing companies.

Now, what is the remedy? The Committee will venture a few suggestions, some of which may not be strictly within the matters referred to them; but they are so intimately connected with them as to excuse the making of such suggestions.

And, first, the suggestion above is a very important one, and easily applied. That is, make no more appropriations of bonds; do not increase your debt. Our bonds are now at a discount of some thirty-three and 1137 a third per cent. The State is now actually in need of funds to meet her current expenses. Indeed, but for the liberality of the banks who are her fiscal agents, the members of the Legislature could not draw their per diem.

Let her now go into the market to borrow money on her bonds, and she can only realize, on her six per cent. securities, sixty-six and two-third cents in the dollar, costing her on a twenty years' debenture at the rate of eleven and a half per cent.; and this because she has 1138 so extended her credit by lending it to others. She will have to borrow money in a few days, or weeks, to pay her ordinary expenses, to an amount of nearly a million dollars ; and to do this, she must increase her rate of interest, or issue a million and a half of dollars in six per cent bonds.

To illustrate the condition of her finances, and the erroneous, if not ruinous policy of her legislators, let us apply the principle to the case of private citizens :

Suppose a man of large estate, and in good credit; 1139
he has needy friends who want money, and are unable to borrow it, one from another. They call on their wealthy neighbor, and he lends them his note to sell in the market, and they do so at a discount of thirty-three and one-third per cent., and are to pay the note, interest and principal, at maturity. How long before they would both become bankrupt? The novice in finance could answer the question. But, suppose the persons to whom the paper was lent should fail to pay,
and he should have to meet these obligations himself, 1140
and have to continue to do so until his own means ceased, and he should have to borrow money to pay them, would not any man say he should at once refuse further loans of his credit? Of course, all would say he should. Yet this Legislature, with just such a case before them—the State of Tennessee being in precisely the condition supposed—is importuned by these failing companies and new enterprises, to further extend 1141 her credit to the amount of millions. The Committee hope no such thing will be done, but all such applications will be rejected. If we reject every application of the kind—every proposition, however specious, and by whomsoever made—some good will have resulted.

Further, repeal all laws authorizing the issuance of bonds to any railroad Company, where it can be done, as the committee believe such cases are within the legislative competency, and thereby many millions may be saved to the Treasury and the people.

1142 Having done this, the Legislature has only begun its work. These recommendations, if adopted and carried out, only prevent the increase of the State debt, by the repeal of the law for the issuance of bonds for new objects of expenditure. But something more must be done to reduce the present expenditures to the amount of the receipts into the Treasury. If this be not done, our State debt will be annually increasing by the excess of expenditures over the income. This can only be done by a sale of the roads of companies who failed 1143 to pay the interest on these bonds. This is absolutely necessary in the opinion of the majority, if not of all the committee, as the best means of reducing the demands to the receipts into the Treasury. But how is this to be effected, and upon what terms are they to be sold, whether for what the roads may be worth, or will bring in the market, or for what they may owe the State, or for the amount for which the State may have a mortgage?

The Committee are of the opinion, for reasons here-1144 inafter shown, that they should be sold for whatever they will bring, under the proceedings herein provided for, if near their reasonable value. In the first place, they can probably only be sold after going into the hands of a Receiver, and a failure under his management to pay expenses of running the road, and the interest on the bonds issued to such Company. In this view of the Case, it is the interest of the State to enforce the mortgage, and thereby be relieved from paying the expenses of running the road, or rather the difference between the receipts and actual outlays in the management of the affairs of the Company, by the Receiver. This much the State saves by the sale, and in addition, whatever the road may bring. 1145

To illustrate the view of the Committee, they will take the case of the Nashville and Northwestern Road. By the management of this road under a Receiver, it fails to make enough to pay repairs and expenses of running. By a sale this item is saved. But the State has advanced to that Company four million one hundred thousand dollars. 1146 Suppose we sell the road, the rolling stock and other property of the Company, for ten thousand dollars per mile, you save the expense of running the road, and reduce the amount of State debt at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile. You have reduced the principal, and of course the annual interest on the same, to the extent of what the road sold for. To appreciate this, we must bear in mind the fact that the Company did not pay its interest before it went into the hands of a Receiver, and has not 1147 since and probably never will, and that the road is constantly diminishing in value.

It is better therefore, in the opinion of the Committee that such roads sell for what they may bring, than for the State to buy them in, at what her claim is, or to run the same as her own. If she run it in the hands of a Receiver, the Committee have shown it to be a constant drain on the Treasury, and if purchased by the State the same drain will continue, and the interest on the bonds be the same as before the sale, whilst the 1148 road, by wear and tear, will constantly grow less valuable, for the iron on the railroads has to be replaced every eight years. The Committee have gone somewhat into detail on this point, as the Bill from the House of Representatives, providing for a sale of railroads, contains such provisions.

In further illustration of the impolicy of buying railroads by the State, until a more convenient season to sell, let us suppose a case: A farmer has purchased a fine animal at $5000. The animal not only is not worth what he costs, and is constantly diminishing in value, but is a constant drain on the income of his owner. What would any considerate man say should be done in such a case? The answer would be, sell at any price before the animal becomes worthless, and at least save the expense of his keep. But what would be thought of the owner, if he should, when the animal should be offered for sale, propose to purchase, and actually buy him at the original cost, or even at any price, that he might keep him for further use, or to sell at a more propitious time? Surely every one would pronounce the policy ruinous as a financial question, if not that the owner was actually insane. But this is in strict analogy to the proposed policy of buying the railroad at the amount they owe the State, or for which the State may be liable for such railroad Company.

Again, some of the bills referred to the Committee, contain a provision or stipulation, that the purchaser must continue to run the road. If this proposition be engrafted into the bill that may become a law, it will defeat the sale entirely, unless the State should become the purchaser, for no prudent capitalist, indeed no sane man, would buy a road at any price to operate it when it could not pay expenses.

But this would ultimately avoid a final sale, as will be shown in a subsequent part of this report; for, sooner or later, unless the legislative policy in regard to these questions change, the mortgage will be foreclosed in a tribunal where the roads must go to him who will give the most for them, with the right to run or not, as he chooses. So that it is the true policy to sell the roads as soon as possible, for whatever they may bring.

The Committee are of the opinion, and the bill reported by them is in accordance with such opinion, that the sale should be made under a decree of a Chancery Court by suit, in the name of the State against the railroad company, making proper and necessary 1153 parties, so that the purchaser would be sure of getting a good and valid title, and the property bring the best price, with payments of a sufficiency in cash, to meet fees, costs and expenses, and the residue in bonds of the State, or for what may be coming to her, and upon such terms as the Court might deem best for the interests of all the parties concerned.

The Committee deem it best to leave all questions of lien and priority of satisfaction out of the proceeds to the Court, to adjudge and determine accord- 1154 ing to the law applicable to each particular case. If the Legislature should declare any priority, or that any class of persons should be first paid out of the proceeds, the Court might disregard it as being in violation of some vested right. If the parties to whom a preference should be given, did not have it before, our legislation could not confer it on them, and if they already possessed it, the enactment would be unnecessary; and hence, the bill reported leaves all these questions to the Court, where they properly belong. 1155
And, however much they might desire to provide for certain classes, many of them, in needy circumstances, they do not believe they have the power.

It may be argued, that if sales take place as proposed, that the road will be bought up by large capitalists, or wealthy companies, and become monopolies. This may be so; but the railroad system throughout the United States is a monopoly, and the only effectual check that can be found against it is our great rivers, and the magnificent steamers that majestically 1156 float upon their waters. These mighty rivers are natural highways, and whenever railroads become so exacting in their charges for freight or passengers, the public will travel on these great arteries, as they did before railroads came into use. But if the check suggested be not effectual, or does not exist, how can you prevent the monopoly? For it is only a question of time, and all the non-paying railroads will be swal-

1157 lowed up, whether purchased and owned by the State or not. If bought by the State, she cannot hold them long, for in her hands, with her debt not only not diminishing, but increasing, they must sooner or later go to pay her obligations to whomsoever will buy them, and at such price as they may see proper to give.

The Committee have said that they must go at some time or other, unless the policy of the State, or rather of her legislators, is changed.

1158 Now for the facts and law establishing this proposition. Repudiation, if resorted to, cannot save them. Suppose the State should buy them at the sales under the decrees. They are then the property of the State, and she may not be willing to sell them. Concede she will not. The Committee have shown her enormous indebtedness, and that it is constantly and rapidly increasing. It is admitted that a sovereignty can be sued only and in the manner in which she may consent to be brought before the Courts. The Constitution of the 1159 State of Tennessee provides that she may be sued in such manner as the Legislature may prescribe. This was giving her consent, should the Legislature, in its wisdom, prescribe the manner of doing so. The Legislature did at one time, by law so prescribe, but a subsequent Legislature repeated the Statute thereby withdrawing her consent. And hence, she cannot be sued in her own Courts. Neither can she, since the adoption of the eleventh amendment of the Constitution of the United States, be sued in the Federal Courts by 1160 citizens of another State, or citizens or subjects of a foreign government. But she can be sued in the Supreme Court of the United States by another State. Most of her bonds are held by citizens of New York. Now, suppose, by her policy she becomes so involved as not to be able to pay her bonds, interest or principal; all the citizen of New York has to do is to get the Legislature of his State to intervene and take up the bonds, and then the State of New York, as it will be her duty to do for her people, can bring suit and recover judgment in the Supreme Court of the United States. Upon such judgment she can have her execution, and sell the railroads of the State, and any other property she may own; and if there be not a sufficiency, the Legislature might be compelled to levy a tax sufficient to pay the residue. This is a strong case, but it is not beyond the range of probability, if the course of events do not change.

Let us take another view of these questions: Suppose, to avoid suits against the State in the Federal Courts, when your indebtedness runs up to the amount indicated, you levy a tax to meet the demands on the Treasury, it will be so high that few people can pay it, and the citizens who have been living in fancied security along your railroads, or in more remote parts, will have their lands sold to meet these ruinous exactions. Then wealthy capitalists, of whom we fear so much, will come in and buy the homes of these people, and their firesides will be gone, for they will not be able to redeem them.

But, suppose this Legislature, as the Committee hope they will, should adopt the retrenchments suggested, and agree to pass a bill to sell the railroads belonging to companies who have failed to pay their interest, then the grave constitutional question comes up, have we the power, under the law existing at the time these companies were chartered, or according to the provisions of these Acts of incorporation, to force a sale; or rather should we pass a law, would it be constitutional; and could the Court decree a sale before the maturity of the bonds.

It is conceded that the Code provides that, "if the Company fail to pay any of the bonds at maturity, the Governor shall notify the Attorney General of the District in which said company has its place of business, who shall immediately file a bill in the Chancery Court to enforce the lien of the State." This is substantially, if not literally, the provisions of the Act of 1165 1852, brought forward in the Code, and may be considered, therefore, as a part of the charter of each railroad Company that has received the bonds of the State. There is no other statutory provision authorizing a sale by decree to enforce the lien, or to foreclose the mortgage for non-payment of interest. But this does not expressly negative the power for sufficient cause, to foreclose the mortgage before the bonds should fall due.

Again, the provision of the Code is, that, "upon 1166 failure" to comply with the requirements of the preceding Section, (that is, to pay the interest,) "the Comptroller shall report the fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith appoint a suitable person, at the expense of the Company, to take possession and control of the road," and "manage the same, and receive the rents, issues and profits," and apply the same, after paying expenses of running the road, to the payment of interest due on the bonds of the State, issued and loaned to the Company, and so soon as this is done, 1167 he shall give up the road to such company.

Now, under these provisions, what are the vested rights of the companies and what are those of the State. It is conceded that there may be no authority or that it is doubtful whether there is any power before the maturity of ths bonds and the failure to make the interest by the Receiver, other questions aside, to foreclose the mortgage by Bill, without the consent of the companies or their stockholders.

But there is another principle of law administered in 1168 Courts of equity, by proceedings quia timet, which in the opinion of the Committee authorizes the filing of a bill to seize the property and have it sold to pay the debt.

If this were not so, the condition of the State would be embarrassing indeed. She would not only be compelled to pay the semi-annual interest as it fell due, and the bonds at maturity, without any hope of reimbursement, but would be bound to run and keep up the road at her own cost and expense, which would make 1169 her debt before she could do anything to relieve herself probably amount to two-thirds of all the taxable property in the State. Such results are fearful to contemplate. But the law is well settled that when a creditor has such mortgage, and the debt increasing, and the security by its use constantly diminishing in value, so as soon to be worthless, that Courts of Chancery will interpose, and upon principles of quia timet, it being to the interest of both parties, as it must be in these railroad cases, to sell the property and 1170 pay the debt in whole or in part, according to the nature of the security. Upon this view, therefore, of the law, the Committee are of the opinion that the State is entitled, when a proper case arises, to have the roads sold to indemnify her against her liability for such Companies.

The opinion of the Committee, however, is, that the right may not accrue until Receivers are appointed, and have a reasonable time to "manage" the roads and pay the interest, if it can be done; and if not then paid, 1171
the State can successfully go into a Court of Chancery for relief.

The Committee hereto append a statement of the condition of some of the principal railroad companies, by which it will be seen that some eight companies have received largely over what the roads actually cost. This appears from the latest reports from the Comptroller's office, and may or may not be strictly correct.

The Committee again, and in conclusion, would say, that whatever sales may be made, to that extent, relieve 1172
the people and reduces the amount of the public debt, which is, indeed, a mortgage upon the lands within the limits of the State, and therefore, hope the Bill reported by them will become a law.

The Committee have probably traveled out of the strict line of duty imposed on them, in discussing so fully the financial condition of the State; but they find an excuse for it in the magnitude and importance 1173 of the questions involved, and the deep interest their constituents have in the proper solution of the problems discussed.

The Committee may not be unanimous in their opinions touching all the matters discussed, but are so in the results arrived at.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

WILLIAM H. WISENER, Sr.,
Chairman.

Page 49, Report of G. W. Blackburn, Comptroller, Oct. 6, 1869:

"The cause of this deficit on the part of the railroads, was the inability of some of the roads, (that are unfinished) longer to pay, and the refusal of others to 1175 pay (that were abundantly able to do so) unless the State would receive from them in payment of their indebtedness, past due coupons which they had purchased at a reduced price for that special purpose—as I have been credibly informed, and verily believe. The Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company (due the State on interest account) $55,931.62, proposed to pay its dues to the State—as above—to the fiscal agency of the State in New York, on the 30th of June last; provided a portion of it, nearly half the sum, would be received 1176 in coupons.

Learning in June last that certain Railroad Companies had agreed among themselves not to pay their July interest—thus making it impossible for the State to meet its liabilities—and afterwards, when our securities had depreciated, to buy up the coupons, and present them in payment of their July interest, I instructed our agency in New York not to receive coupons from any road. The proposition of the Memphis and

Charleston Railroad Company therefore was rejected 1177 and the $55,931.62 remains unpaid.

The Mississippi Central and Tennessee Railroad Company has also failed to pay, notwithstanding the fact that its president was fully advised of the necessities of the State Treasury, and notwithstanding the ability of the Company to pay).

The case of these two roads is especially spoken of here in my report for the purpose of calling the attention of the Legislature to the necessity of instituting measures to effectually checkmate the designs of Rail- 1178 road Companies which—dead to every principle of gratitude to the State that has warmed them into life—use every means within their reach to sink her in temporary bankruptcy for purposes of selfish speculation. These roads certainly ought at once to be put into the hands of Receivers, and run in the interest of the State till the last farthing is paid.

GOV. SENTER'S MESSAGE, OCTOBER 13, 1869, p. 16.

House Appendix, 1869–70.

This view is taken without even a consideration of the ample security the State has against her liabilities in the railroads in aid of which they have been almost entirely created. In this connection I deem it proper to refer to the Act of the Legislature, passed December 1180
7, 1867, making additional appropriations to railroads, and by its conditions conferring on the Governor, Secretary of State and the Comptroller, power at their discretion to sell the roads accepting aid upon their failure for two consecutive years to pay the interest on their respective appropriations. Several, if not all of the roads provided for have accepted the aid with the conditions, and I am advised the State can sell such as have so done and failed in their interest payments for

1181 two years which now soon expire. If the railroads pay the interest the State can instantly discharge all overdue interest on her liability and have left a large amount in her Treasury; if they fail to pay, then the example of Pennsylvania and more recently Missouri under similar circumstances, with its highly favorable results, is strongly inviting to a similar course on our part. With thirty-four millions, more than nine-tenths of the State's liability, secured by first lien on our several railroads and their equipments 1182 and appurtenances of every description, the sale of either one of them and retirement of bonds which might be taken in payment, would instantly command for the credit of the State the high position which its large resources and the integrity of its population entitle it.

Senate Journal, 1868–9.

1183 House Bill 542, entitled "An Act to liquidate the State debt contracted in aid of railroads." (See p. 168).

House Bill 542 taken up on its first reading and passed.

P. 184.—Passed its second reading and referred to Judiciary Committee.

P. 275.—House Bill No. 275 taken up on third reading, 1184 the following amendment offered by Mr. Alridge to the bill and referred to the Judiciary Committee was adopted, to wit:

Be it further enacted, That any person or persons may with the consent and approbation of any railroad company which is indebted to the State for which the State of Tennessee may have a lien pay the said debt so far as the State is concerned in bonds of this State or any matured coupon bonds at par; and the person or persons so paying the debt of any railroad company with 1185

the consent of such railroad company shall upon filing with the Treasurer of this State the written assent of said railroad company under the corporate seal of such railroad company, be entitled to have and hold all the lien or liens which the State of Tennessee has or have upon said railroad company or its property, and shall have the same right to enforce the same which the State of Tennessee had, the object and intent being to place the person or persons so paying with the consent of said railroad company in the same position and with the 1186 same rights which the State of Tennessee had previous to and before said payment and with full power to enforce the same.

Be it further enacted, That any person or persons who may with the consent and approbation of any railroad company pay any part or portion of the indebtedness of said company as provided in section shall hold and be subrogated in all the rights, privileges and lien or liens of the State to the extent of in proportion to 1187
the amount of such indebtedness with the same rights and privileges the State now has to the extent of such payment or payments.

Mr. Cate offered the following amendment, to wit:

Provided the passage of this Act shall not decrease
the lien of the State upon any railroad of the State until the entire claim of the State is fully liquidated or affect the interest of present bondholders of the State. 1188

Adopted.

Mr. Senter offered the following amendment, to wit:

Provided that the railroad companies which have issued second mortgage bonds availing themselves of the provision of this act, shall file with the Comptroller the bonds of the same series as those loaned to such company for which the State holds a first mortgage

1189 lien, provided the bonds to be issued by the company under the provisions of this act shall not have a longer time to run than the bonds of the State thus certified and cancelled.

Adopted.

The following is the amendment proposed by the Judiciary Committee:

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee that the 1190 respective railroad companies may relieve themselves from liability to the State to the extent of the bonds hereinafter authorized to be taken up by producing to the Governor, Comptroller, Secretary of State and Treasurer for cancellation and destruction the bonds of the State issued to such company, and which are a lien upon the road-bed and property of such company with the unpaid coupons attached, and when the whole amount of bonds thus issued to such company shall have been thus produced 1191 and cancelled or destroyed and any lien the State may have for interest paid by her for such company shall have been paid, said railroad company may issue its own bonds to that amount in such manner and time as they may see proper, and so far as the State is concerned may be and are hereby declared to be a lien on the road-bed and other property as fully and completely as the State now has and can convey or transfer to such company or its bondholders.

1192 SECTION 2. Be it further enacted that if any company in this State shall produce any amount of the bonds of this State issued to such company and which are a lien upon the property of said railroad company with coupons attached to the Governor, Comptroller, Secretary of State and Treasurer, the same may be cancelled and destroyed, the company may issue its own bonds for a like amount payable at such time and in such manner as the bonds of the State issued to said company and produced by it for cancellation, and the bonds thus issued 1193 shall so far as the State is concerned be a lien upon the property of said company as such bonds thus taken up and cancelled were.

Section 3. Be it further enacted, that nothing herein contained shall be considered to weaken or in any manner destroy the lien or mortgage the State has upon the property of said railroad company, and by accepting the provisions of this Act the company agree to the same. 1194

Section 4. Be it further enacted, that the State hereby reserves a superior lien to any given in the second section of this Act for any payment of interest she may have paid for any companies applying for the benefits of said section.

Section 5. Be it further enacted that any bonds issued under the second section of this Act shall not have the effect therein provided unless it is certified on said 1195 bonds by the Comptroller and countersigned by the Secretary of State with the seal of the State attached and attested by the Governor, and if this be not done, the said bonds thus issued shall be of no force and validity against the State or any lien it may have upon the property of such railroad company nor against the holders of the bonds of the State having a lien on the property of said company.

Section 6. Be it further enacted that any railroad companies of this State may consolidate by the consent 1196 of the stockholders of the respective companies and assume the name of either company; from and after their consolidation they may continue their corporate existence with all the rights, privileges and exemptions and be subject to all liability, restrictions and obligations of the company whose name they assume, but when they are thus consolidated and assume the new name no further State bonds shall issue to such companies by 1197 way of lien or otherwise, unless afterwards authorized by express legislation for that purpose.

Amendment was adopted; ayes 10, nays 9.

Mr. Alridge moved to lay the bill on the table; ayes 6, noes 14. The bill then passed third reading, ayes 13, noes 7.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1870.

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON INTERNAL IMPROVEMENTS.

MR. SPEAKER:

The Committee on Internal Improvements, to whom was referred House Bill No. 153, have had the same un-1205 der consideration, and a majority of said Committee have instructed me to return the same to the Senate, with a recommendation that it be rejected.

The propositions of the bill, in brief, are to enable the railroads of the State to pay their respective interest dues to the State in any over due coupons of her bonds, and to discharge their liabilities to the State by paying in any bonds of the State, without regard to the series of issue.

To do these things, would materially change the contract between the State and railroads, perhaps, some- 1206 what to the advantage of a portion of the roads, and the disadvantage of others; but we certainly think without benefit to the State, and possibly to its serious embarrassment and injury.

First, to pay the interest in coupons, would be to compel the State's acceptance of a depreciated security in lieu of money; and apart from this disadvantage it is difficult for us to see the justice of the State's permitting large corporations built up by her generous fa- 1207 vor in the past to thus discharge their liabilities; while nothing but money is accepted from her citizens, merchants, mechanics, farmers and all other classes, for their taxes and other State dues. Certainly this is departure from the safe rule of legislation "for the many, as against the few, and for the weak as against the strong."

It is not 'pretended that the privilege of paying in coupons will enable a single non-paying road to discharge its interest account in coupons, but it is only 1208 proposed to allow roads which have the ability to pay in money to discharge their just dues in what is worth less than money. Certainly this is discrimination in favor of railroad corporations and against the great body of her citizens, without reason, contrary to justice, and only to the disadvantage of the State in its revenues. Such we cannot commend as judicious liberality; but must rather consider as most unwise improvidence, since all deficit in necessary revenues 1209

must be supplied from the body of her people, or at expense of the State's honor.

With respect to the proposition to enable the roads to discharge their liabilities to the State, in principal, by paying in any outstanding bonds of the State, without regard to the series of issues, it may be remarked, that this gives the ability to the roads to retire bonds remotest from maturity, leaving the State at probably great inconvenience and sacrifice to provide for those earliest maturing; and this palpable advantage to the 1210 roads is proposed without the least equivalent to the State in return for it.

But it is claimed and urged by the friends of the bill, that under its provisions a large portion of the State's outstanding bonds will be certainly retired and the State credit be so appreciated. But does this claim bear the test of reason? It certainly is not pretended that any of the non-interest paying roads will be enabled to retire bonds in discharge of their principal debt, and it is palpable that the bonds loaned to 1211 interest paying roads are no embarrassment to the State, since she is amply secured and indemnified against loss upon such. Then the entire embarrassment of the State credit is on account of non-paying roads, and in no degree on account of those which would be able to retire bonds; this simple yet incontrovertible statement establishes perfectly the fallacy of all claim of advantage to the State.

Finally the bill, while it affords the privilege to the railroads of disharging their liabilities to the State in 1212 any of her outstanding bonds, provides no compulsion on them to do so. There is not even a provision as to a limit of time in this respect. Is it, then, certain that the solvent roads, or any of them, will under the provisions of the bill, retire and so diminish the amount of outstanding bonds. Of this we have no assurance, and the reasons for fearing a contrary result are not a few.

1213 It is a truth, old as humanity, that men empowered so to do will promote their own interests without respect to the interests or even rights of others; and both reason and experience have taught that soulless corporations are fully prone to abuse such powers as are individual men, while they are more dangerous on account of the increased capacity for mischief afforded by combination and superior wealth.

With the great powers of mischief possessed by these 1214 railroad corporations, can there, then, be temptation in their interests to do else than retire the State bonds in settlement of their indebtedness? Let this proposition be examined. The railroads able to retire any of our bonds are few in number, and hence combination would be forced among them for any action tending to their advantage. Suppose, then, this bill were an enacted law. These railroads might easily give out the purpose of purchasing an adequate amount of the State's bonds to cancel their debts to the State; this 1215 naturally would stimulate an advance in their price.
Now the whole cause of the advance being entirely and exclusively under the control of such roads, they might elect to sell bonds on the advance, and then after so doing to the extent of their wishes, by concerted action, withdraw all propositions to purchase. This action by the inflexible laws applying to demand and supply, would lower the prices of the bonds they had sold: and they could then buy at a profit equal to the difference between the stimulated price they had sold 1216 at, and the depressed price they bought at. These operations known among bond speculators as long and short transactions, being made to the pecuniary profit of the Railroad Companies, might influence them to desire to keep outstanding our public securities rather than to retire them, since their cancellation would only diminish and curtail their field of operations. Is it urged by some ardent supporters of the bill that our Railroad Companies would never consent to causes so contrary to the public interest and credit—it may be 1217 replied, that the prayer most perfect in wisdom asks protection from "temptation" before "deliverance" from evil.

To transfer such absolute control over the all-important subject of our public debt, from the representatives of the public to Railroad Companies, irresponsible to the public, we are convinced would not only be inopportune just at the time when our whole people have attained the rights of representation, but be stigmatized
by them as more than unwise on the part of their 1218
Representatives. We conceive it a duty to protect the State against any power to abuse her and not to improvidently subject her to the mercy, or leave her dependent, in any important interest, upon the good will of her railroad companies. To do so would be violence to all wisdom in subjecting the creator to its creature.

With the unlimited control over our bonded debt afforded our railroads by this bill, not only may the public credit be scandalized by the improper speculation 1119 in our securities, but should the necessities even of the State ever require her to raise money for any purpose, the price paid for her bonds, if offered, could be dictated by the Railroad Companies it is proposed to arm with such dangerous powers.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

COOPER, of Davidson,
Chairman.

P. 245. Evening Session, Thursday, November 25, 1869, Mr. Fleming, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, returned House bill No. 265 with the following report :

1222 Mr. Speaker, the Committee on Judiciary have had under consideration House bill No. 265, to be entitled An Act to protect the interest of the State by the sale of certain railroads and their property, and have directed me to report it back with the amendments as follows :

First.—Amend the first section in tenth line printed copy by inserting after the word "thereto" the words
"said railroad company by the service of process on the president thereof or on other person or persons as 1223 were provided by sections 2,831, 2,832 of the Code of Tennessee in any suits against corporations."

Second.—Amend Section 4, by striking all out after the word "State" in the third line and insert
"the parties defendants to the bills of any such companies shall file their answers within twenty days after serving process on the companies, and shall stand for hearing at the first term of the Court after the filing of the bill, provided it be filed twenty days before the first day of the term, whether the same be a special or 1224 regular term, and the said causes shall take precedence on the docket of the Court over all other causes. The sale herein provided shall be made upon the following terms and conditions, namely, one-fourth of the purchase money to be paid in hand or within twenty days after the sale, the remainder to be paid in semi-annual instalments of twelve and half per cent. of the whole sum, the purchaser giving bond with good personal security for the full payment of the purchase money.

with interest thereon from the day of sale, and the 1225
State retaining its lien upon the road, until the whole of the purchase money and interest thereon is paid."

Third.—Amend section 7 by striking out the word "thirty" in the second line and insert the word "ninety."

Fourth.—Add the following two sections to the bill.

SECTION 10. That should either of said companies against which proceeding in Court shall have been in- 1226
stituted on or before the final decree or sale in the cause pay to the State through its proper officer three-quarters of the amount of said indebtedness in any of the bonds of the State whether due or not, and if not due,
then with the coupons that are not due attached thereto, such payment shall be deemed and taken as a final settlement and payment of such indebtedness, and upon the payment of the costs by the company, the said Court shall have authority and power to render a decree declaring the payment and satisfaction of said 1227 indebtedness and the discharge of the lien of the State of Tennessee, provided that this section of the bill apply only to those railroad companies that have received bonds of the State as aforesaid under said acts, and have failed, and now fail to pay interest due by them that became due and payable on or before the first day of January, 1869, and to no other companies.

SECTION 11. That it shall be lawful for the railroad companies that are excluded from the provision and 1228 benefit of the tenth section of this act by the proviso thereto, to pay their entire indebtedness to the State created by the issuance of bonds to them as aforesaid, with any of the bonds of the State at par, whether due or not, but if not due the coupons not due must be attached or included, provided that if any of said companies pay the said indebtedness with the particular bonds issued to such company they shall be cancelled and the lien of the State be deemed discharged, but 1229 should such payment be made partly with the bonds issued to it, or partly or wholly with bonds issued to another company, the company's first named bonds shall be cancelled, but all the other named bonds shall be preserved by the State, and the lien of the State created by their issuance shall remain in full force.

Make section 10 of the bill section 12 of the same. The bill being thus amended, the committee recommended its passage.

Mr. Fleming offered the following amendment:

1231 Be it further enacted, That when any company under the provisions of this Act shall pay into the Treasury of the State bonds which have been issued by the State to said company, the said bonds shall be cancelled, but should any company in discharge of its own debt pay into the treasury any bonds that were issued to other companies that may still be indebted to the State, such bonds so paid in shall not be cancelled, but shall be held by the State as purchased bonds, retaining a lien for the State upon the road to which such bonds were 1232 originally issued until the debt of said road to the State shall be fully discharged. Adopted.

The bill as amended then passed its third reading. Its immediate transmission to the Senate was then ordered.

On motion of Mr. Speaker Perkins, striking out the word "principal" in House bill No. 153 was reconsidered. Mr. Ray offered the following amendment:

Provided, That when said railroad company owes interest already due coupons past due shall be taken by the Comptroller or Treasurer in discharge of said interest. Adopted. 1233

Also strike out the words "thirty days" in the second line of printed bill and insert the word "four months."

Also add the following proviso: Section 2. And provided further, that in the event any of said railroads shall fail or refuse to accept and comply with the terms 1238 of this act, then, in that event, the Governor of the State may receive from any person or persons or corporations bonds of the State, and the persons paying the same shall be substituted to the lien of the State for the amounts of the bonds issued to said railroad company or companies so as to give the said person or persons or companies all priority of lien which the State has and shall have, all the rights, powers, and privileges the State may have under existing laws," and with the foregoing amendments unanimously re- 1239 commend the passage of the bill in lieu of all others.

I am directed to return House bill No. 153 to prodvie for the payment of the public debt. January 21, 1870.

P. 799. Your Committee have had under consideration House bill No. 611 for the benefit of laborers of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad. This bill 1240 seeks to make the State responsible for all the debts contracted in the way of expenses of the Company of said road while in possession of the State receiver or receivers.

This involves a very grave and momentous judicial question, in the consideration of which your Committee has been greatly embarrassed.

The office of Railroad Receiver is a statutory one, and one almost peculiar to our own State, there being but one other State in the Union known to the Committee 1241

where a similar office exists—Pennsylvania.

Your Committee know of no analogous office, except that of a receiver in Court. This question has never been adjudicated by the Supreme Court of Tennessee, it having been but once before that Court, in the case of Bristol, Skidmore versus Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad, which cause was dismissed in said Court upon a preliminary question, and no opinion was given by said Court upon this grave subject, but intimations were given in the argument of said 1242
cause against the liability of the State for such claims.

Your committee are informed that the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has decided this question against the liability of said State, but as your committee have not had an opportunity to examine the opinion of said Court, they are not able to present the authorities upon this question.

With this limited amount of information, and these few precedents, your committee are constrained to rely mainly on a proper construction of the Statutes of the 1243
State upon this subject, being the Internal Improvement
Act of 1852, embodied in the Code from Section
1091 to 1223 inclusive, and the various Internal Improvement Acts amendatory thereof passed subsequently to the adoption of the Code. By said Internal Improvement Acts, and from various provisions of the acts amendatory thereof, it appears that the entire interest of the State in any of the railroads to which she has issued her bonds is only that of a surety, and hence only secondary liability is thereby incurred, to wit, to 1244 become responsible for the interest upon the bonds as it falls due, and also for the bond at its maturity in the event the company should fail to meet and discharge
the same. To secure the State in this suretyship she has a statutory lien or mortgage upon the whole road, superstructure, equipments and stock, and upon all the other property owned by the company as incident to or necessary for its business over the road to which she has thus given her aid.

1245 The statute further provides, section 1101 of the Code, upon failure of the company to comply with the requirements of the preceding section, the Comptroller shall report the fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith appoint a suitable person at the expense of the company to take possession and control of the road, and all the property and effects of the company, manage the same and receive the rents and profits.

Section 1103 of the Code provides that the receiver shall apply the rents, issues and profits of the said road to the liquidation of the unpaid interest due upon bonds of the company. 1246

It is evident from these several provisions of the Act that the office of receiver is one of trust purely, in the interest of and for the benefit of the railroad company for which he is acting, and out of the rents, issues or profits which may come to his hands, are for the exclusive purpose of liquidating the unpaid interest and that the same cannot otherwise be applied than for said trust purposes.

1247 It is evident that the State is to derive no profit from said receivership except to relieve herself from her liability as surety for the railroad company, and whenever a sufficient sum is realized to pay off the unpaid interest the receivership is to cease, and the road shall be surrendered to the company. Now, under these various provisions of the law, it seems preposterous to your committee to render the State liable upon her general credit for whatever debts and expenses in the management of running a railroad under a receivership. 1248

It is a well settled principle of law that all expenses of a receivership in a Court of Chancery, the only analogous case to this, is properly charged to the funds in the hands of the receiver. Hence your committee would conclude that the only responsibility that could be incurred by the State in the receivership would be exclusively upon the road thus situated and would only bind it and all its bonds. It may be that expenses thus legitimately incurred should have priority of satisfaction before the discharge of any State lien but not otherwise. Hence your committee would suggest the propriety of raising a joint committee of the two houses of this General Assembly to investigate and audit all such claims, and upon the report of said committee that certain claims were properly incurred in the running of the various railroads of the State in the hands of Receivers, then a bill should be passed directing said claims then audited to be paid out of the first earnings of the respective roads upon which the same were incurred. 1249 1250

Your committee cannot report in favor of the passage of House bill No. 611 in its present shape. But upon its being ascertained what amount or amounts are justly due against said railroad, then they would recommend the passage of this bill with said amendments as to direct the same to be paid out of the earnings of said road.

RESOLUTIONS.

By Mr. NELSON: Senate Resolution No. 15, viz.:

Whereas, The State of Tennessee expressly reserves the right to enact by the Legislature all such laws as may be deemed necessary to protect the interest of the State, and to secure the State from loss in consequence 1253 of the issuance of such bonds, but so as not to impair the vested rights of the stockholders of the companies, therefore,

Be it resolved by the Senate, That the Judiciary Committee be and they are hereby requested to take into consideration, at the earliest possible period, the expediency of selling certain delinquent railroads in Tennessee, now in the hands of Receivers, and report to the Senate by bill or otherwise.

1254 Adopted under a suspension of the rules. On motion of Mr. Cooper, of Bedford, the vote adopting the resolution was reconsidered, and it was referred to the Judiciary Committee.

DELINQUENT RAILROADS.

REPORT OF THE COMMISSIONERS APPOINTED TO SELL THE STATE'S INTEREST.

To the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee:

The undersigned Commissioners respectfully report 1268 to your Honorable Body, that, in pursuance of the Act of 1870, Chapter 79, they proceeded—after due advertisement—to offer for sale, separately, the interest of the State in the several Railroad Companies, contemplated by said Act, but failed to sell, or to receive a bid, for either road. This result was not unexpected. The proposal to sell the interest of the State in said Railroad Companies, under the Act of 1870, gave rise to va-

1269 rious embarrassing questions ; some of which are of serious importance to the interests of the State, as well as to the stockholders, Bondholders and Creditors of the several roads ; and are well calculated—so long as they remain open and undetermined—to deter persons from buying, and, consequently, to defeat the laudable object sought to be accomplished by the Act referred to.

Most of these questions are exclusively of a judicial nature. The legislative department of the Government 1270 is not competent to deal with, or make any final obligatory determination of them. This can only be done by some tribunal invested with full jurisdiction of the whole subject matter, and also of the person of all parties whose rights may, in any way, be affected by the proposed sale.

After a careful consideration of the subject, the commissioners are of opinion, that, before a sale should again be attempted, farther and more specific legislation is indispensably necessary—providing for the removal 1271 of existing obstacles to a sale under the Act of 1870, by a speedy and final determination of the multifarious legal questions affecting essentially the rights of all the parties interested in said roads. Without this, it is obvious that the interest of the State must be sold,
if sold at all, at a great sacrifice, and be followed, in all probability, by a multiplicity of vexatious and protracted litigation.

It may not be improper to remark here, that, by the act of 1870, the Commissioners were invested with the 1272 mere power to sell the interest of the State. No authority was given them to consider of, or adjudicate any of the numerous questions that have arisen ; and even had such authority been conferred, they would scarcely have felt justified in exercising it, as their proceedings would have been ex parte, and consequently not obligatory on other parties. Nor do they now assume to express an opinion upon any of the questions presented ; but simply state, as briefly as possible, some of the more important of them, in order that the absolute necessity 1273 of farther action on the part of the General Assembly, preliminary to a sale, may the more fully appear.

And in case of farther legislation, looking to a sale of the interest of the State, the Commissioners would respectfully suggest the propriety of a sale on time, and payment in instalments, upon such stringent conditions as would coerce prompt compliance with the terms of the sale, on the part of the purchaser; say, let twenty-five per cent. of the amount agreed to be paid,
be required in hand, and the remainder at such inter- 1274
vals as might be deemed proper. The purchaser to pay the interest semi-annually, on the whole amount agreed to be paid by him, from the time of his purchase; and his failure promptly to meet any future instalment to work an absolute forfeiture, to the State, of the payment or payments previously made by him; and, in addition, that the road should be instantly, upon such default, resold by the Commissioners.

The Commissioners would further suggest that the provision of the Act of 1870, fixing the minimum price 1275 of sale at the amount due from each company to the State, is impracticable. They are fully satisfied that the interest of the State in some of the roads—especially the shorter and least valuable roads—cannot be sold for an amount even approximating the debts due to the State. And in this view a minimum price ought either to be fixed upon each road, or a discretion vested in the Commissioners in regard to the price.

And in this connection, the Commissioners beg leave to express their approval of that feature of the Act of 1276 1870, which secures to the purchaser the right to discharge the amount of his purchase in any of the legal bonds of the State. This provision, they believe, will, in no small degree, facilitate a sale, and serve to enhance the price. And it cannot be of prejudice to the State, inasmuch as it is all the same to the State whether a given amount of its liability be extinguished, by the surrender and cancellation of one set of bonds or

1277 another. The only conceivable objection, as it seems to the Commissioners, would be in the mouth of the purchaser himself, and that only in the event that it should be held that the bondholders have a lien on the road. But this objection is of no practical force if the State shall provide for the faithful discharge of the remaining outstanding bonds as they mature.

Having made these suggestions, the Commissioners proceed to present to the consideration of your Honorable body some of the embarrassing questions before 1278 alluded to.

One of the difficulties is, the ascertainment of the actual indebtedness, of some of the companies, to the State.

Shortly preceding the day appointed for the sale, by the commissioners, three injunction bills were filed at Nashville, against the commissioners—one by the Edgefield & Kentucky Road; another by the Memphis, Clarksville & Louisville Road; and a third, by certain creditors of said roads—an injunction, to restrain a sale 1279 by the commissioners was refused, but the commissioners were enjoined, in case of sale, to retain of the proceeds an amount sufficient to cover the demands set up by the alleged creditors.

It seems that the receivers of some of the roads contracted large debts, for the benefit of the roads, as is alleged, to different persons and on different accounts;
and it is assumed that the State is liable for these debts; and upon this assumption the injunction was awarded.

1280 How far these demands are just and bona fide, it is not for the Commissioners to say; and if, upon a careful judicial investigation, they shall be found to be valid, whether the State can be held liable for their satisfaction, under the existing laws, must be left for the courts to determine.

It further appears, that after the roads were placed in the hands of receivers, the Governor, under an act of the General Assembly, passed in 1866, assumed, for the Memphis, Clarksville, and Louisville Road, a debt 1281

to the United States Government of between three and four hundred thousand dollars ; and for the Edgefield and Kentucky Road a debt, of like character, of more than one hundred thousand dollars. These companies insist that they are not liable for these debts.

It also appears that, by an act passed in 1867, bonds of the State, to the amount of two hundred thousand dollars, were issued to the Henderson and Evansville Railroad Company.

This road lies beyond the limits of this State, and 1282 wholly within the territorial limits of Kentucky ; and the proceeds of said bonds were exclusively applied to its construction. For this singular appropriation of the bonds of the State, the Edgefield Company insists that it cannot be made liable.

It further appears that, to the Edgefield and Kentucky Road, and to the Memphis, Clarksville, and Louisville Road, and, perhaps, to other roads, after they were placed in the hands of receivers, bonds of the State, to a very large amount, were issued and 1283 delivered to said receivers, which it is alleged, were disposed of greatly under par ; and it is now claimed by said companies that they are not properly liable to be charged with the bonds thus issued, but that, if held liable at all, it should not be for a greater amount than was actually realized from their sale.

It is manifest that, in regard to the issuance of bonds to some of the roads, and the reckless disposition of them, and general management of the roads, by some of the receivers, a heavy responsibility rests some- 1284 where ; but upon whom it should fall, it is not within the province of the Commissioners to determine.

It need scarcely be stated that the foregoing, and other questions raised by said companies, must be adjudicated before the amounts due from them respectively can be accurately stated ; and it is apparent that this should be done before a sale of the State's interest is made.

Another question of importance, and in regard to which there is some diversity of opinion, is, what interest will vest in the purchaser of the State's interest in the road? What rights will be acquired, and what liabilities incurred by him? Will he, in all respects, stand in the shoes of the State, as a mere assignee of the State's interest in the road? And in case the company, in the future, should find itself able to pay its arrearages of interest on its bonds to the purchaser, will such company, as against him (in like manner as it would against the State, if no sale had taken place), still be entitled to be restored to the possession of its road, as provided by Act of 1852, Section 5?

Again, an important question, as to which there is, also, a wide difference of opinion, is, have the holders of the bonds, issued to a particular railroad company, a lien upon the road and property of that company, as security for the payment of such bonds at maturity? Or have they no other pledge than the faith of the State?

In regard to some of the roads, this further question arises: After bonds to a large amount had been issued to certain companies by the State, said companies were empowered, by Act of the General Assembly, to issue second mortgage company bonds, large amounts of which were actually issued and passed into the hands of bona fide holders; and subsequently to the issuance of such company bonds, a second issue of bonds of the State was made to said companies.

Now, upon this state of facts, the question is to be determined whether the lien of the State, provided for by the Act of 1852, shall, as regards the second issue of bonds, be preferred over the lien of the intermediate holders of the company bonds, or be postponed to it?

The foregoing general questions involve various collateral and subordinate matters, which it would be tedious to detail, and which, for the present purpose, need not be noticed, as enough has been stated, perhaps, to enforce the absolute necessity for such further legislation as shall seem best adapted to disembarrass 1289

the proposed sale.

The Commissioners further state, that an effort seems to have been made, in some quarters, to prejudice the proposed sale of the State's interest in the roads, on the alleged ground of want of legal power in the State, under the act of 1852, to make any sale of the same, except on default of the companies to meet the final payment of their bonds at maturity.

This objection, in the opinion of the Commissioners, has no foundation. The legal power of the State to 1290 assign and transfer its interest in a railroad (whether the company be in default or not), in the proposed mode of sale, can admit of no doubt. It cannot be held that the State, in this respect, is not possessed of, at least, equal power with every private individual mortgagee. And certainly, in view of the very comprehensive and cogent provisions of the 12th section of the act of 1852, this must be regarded as a very lenient exercise of power on the part of the State toward the companies that have, for a series of years, failed to 1291 perform the obligations of their contract with the State, created by the act of 1852, in neglecting to meet the accruing interest on their bonds semi-annually, and to provide a sinking fund. The spirit and reason of the act referred to would, perhaps, sanction a much stronger measure of redress.

It might, with more plausibility, be maintained that the palpable violation on the part of the delinquent companies, of the fundamental terms of their charter, on the faith of which the credit of the State was loan- 1292
ed to them, amounted to a forfeiture of the entire benefit of their contract, so as to justify a sale, out and out, of the corpus of the property, without right of redemption.

These companies cannot be heard to say that they may persist in neglecting to pay the interest on their bonds, and in providing a sinking fund; and that the State, though reduced to the verge of insolvency by 1293 their neglect, must silently stand by, for a period of twenty years, more or less, until their bonds shall finally mature.

It is obvious that the remedy adopted, of placing the roads in the hands of Receivers, is illusory, as the experience of the past few years has sufficiently demonstrated. This expedient, so far from furnishing the Treasury with the means of meeting the accruing interest on the bonds of the delinquent companies, and providing a sinking fund, has resulted, in most instances, 1294 in a heavy loss to the State; and has likewise proved to be a fruitful source of fraud and corruption.

Better for the State to abandon its interest in the roads at once, than to attempt their further management through the agency of Receivers, at such ruinous loss.

In conclusion, the undersigned would respectfully urge the speedy adoption of such measures as your Honorable Body may deem most expedient to relieve the credit of the State, and to arrest the rapid accumulation of the public debt, which is estimated to be, at 1295 present, not short of $2,500 per day.

House Journal, 1870-71, page 391, 27 June, 1870.

Mr. Steele, from the Committee to examine into the payments made by the Memphis and Charleston Railroad to the Bank of Tennessee,

Submitted the following report:

Mr. Speaker: The undersigned, as a member of the Joint Select Committee, appointed by authority of a 1297 joint resolution of this General Assembly, adopted February 28, 1870, to investigate the alleged payments made by the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company to the Bank of Tennessee on account of interest due on bonds loaned by the State to said Company, together with the time when paid and where, and amount, and if upon investigation the Committee are satisfied that the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company have made proper payments, and which have not yet, but ought now to be allowed, to report the 1298 facts to this General Assembly for action, by bill or otherwise, beg leave to make the following report:

By the Act to establish a system of Internal Improvements in the State, passed February. 11, 1852, coupon bonds of the State to the amount of $1,081,000 were issued to the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, payable in lawful money of the United States, and at such place in the United States as the President of said Railroad Company may designate. The president 1299 designated the city of New York as the place where said bonds and the semi-annual interest thereon should be paid. By the 5th Section of said Internal Improvement Act it was made the duty of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee at Nashville, at least fifteen days before the interest became due, from time to time, upon said bonds issued to said company an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commission, or satisfactory evidence that said interest 1300 has been paid or provided for; and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, or furnish the evidence aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the company to report that fact to the Governor, who shall immediately appoint a Receiver for the road, etc.

By an examination of the Comptroller's books it is shown that the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company are credited with the deposit in the Bank of 1301 Tennessee of their interest due July 1, 1861, and January 1, 1862, except the sum of $3,540 yet unpaid.

No evidence is shown that said deposit or payment was made in lawful money of the United States as required by law. No exchange or necessary commission was deposited by the Company in the Bank of Tennessee to arrange for, and secure the payment of the interest for 1861 in New York. The Railroad Company might then have paid their interest in New York, and furnished the evidence of such payment to the Bank of 1802 Tennessee. If they were prevented from so doing by the war between the States then raging, then they knew that any deposit of money with the Bank of Tennessee not in lawful money of the United States, would prevent the Bank at that time from paying the interest in New York.

The interest on said bonds falling due July 1st, 1862, and January 1st, 1863, was never paid by the Company, amounting to $64,860. The Company claimed a credit for the interest falling due July 1st, 1863, and January 1303 1st, 1864, which they allege was deposited in the Bank of Tennessee at Griffin, Georgia, and present the following receipt as evidence of deposit in the Bank of Tennessee of $32,450.

BANK OF TENNESSEE, GRIFFIN,
October 14*th*, 1863.

Received from the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, per George Robertson, Eng., Tr., thirty-two 1304 thousand four hundred and fifty dollars, which is to be paid over to the Treasurer of Tennessee for the semi-annual interest from said Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee on July 1st, 1863.
$32,370.

JOHN A. FISHER,
Cashier.

BANK OF TENNESSEE, GRIFFIN, GA., 1305
December 21st, 1863.

Received from the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company, per George Robertson, Treasurer, thirty-two thousand three hundred and seventy dollars in currency, which is to be applied to the payment of the interest due from said Company upon January 1st, 1864, upon aid furnished by the State of Tennessee.

JOHN A. FISHER,
Cashier Bank of Tennessee. 1306

The above deposits appear on the books of the Bank to the credit of railroad companies for interest. It is apparent from said receipts, that the "deposits" were not made in the Bank of Tennessee at Nashville. It was in proof before the committee, that the deposit consisted of confederate currency, perhaps some Georgia and South Carolina bank notes, and that none of either of the deposits consisted of "lawful money of the United States," which 1307 the Company had agreed to pay in the City of New York; nor was the "exchange and necessary commissions" to enable the bank to effect the payment in New York, deposited with the interest. It was in fact and in law no payment or deposit as required by the Internal Improvement Act.

The Bank of Tennessee, as fiscal agent of the State, had no authority to receive such a deposit for the State from the railroad company; nor could the holders of the interest coupons be compelled to receive such 1308 deposits from the Company or the Bank, in payment of their dues. The railroad company, at the time very well knew that the Bank of Tennessee could not arrange for the payment of interest in New York, with such a depreciated or worthless currency deposit, nor would it have been permitted so to do by the Confederate authorities, even if the deposit had consisted of lawful money of the United States. The books of the Comp-

1309 troller show that the railroad company had never been allowed any credits for the deposits or pretended payment of interest at Griffin, Georgia.

The company stand charged for the interest to-day.
No interest was paid by the company for the years 1862, 1863, 1864, 1865, and to the 1st of January 1866,
as appears from the Comptroller's book.

By an Act of the Legislature entitled an Act to amend an Act to establish a system of Internal Improvements in this State, passed 23d of November, 1865, all interest 1310 on the bonds of the State issued, or endorsed to railroads, then past due and unpaid, as well as the interest 1st January, 1866, and during the year 1867, was funded by the State. And the several railroad companies that received aid under that act even required to pay the interest on their funded debts, and a lien was retained on the road by the State for the payment of interest funded.

Under this Act interest due and owing from the Memphis and Charleston Railroad to the amount of 1311 $262.980 was funded for it by the State of Tennessee.
This funded interest included the interest falling due 1st January, 1863, and 1st January, 1864, which the Company allege they paid as aforesaid in Bank at Griffin, Georgia, and now claim they ought to have a credit therefor. The State of Tennessee is contingently bound to pay all the $262,980 funded and interest thereon, and has refused through the Comptroller to give the Company any credit for the $64,820 unlawful currency deposited in Georgia.

1312 It would be very unjust for her to pay this amount funded and allow this company to have a credit entered on the books of the Comptroller, for currency deposited in Bank at Griffin, Georgia, none of which was, or ever could or would be used, or received in payment of the interest for 1863. The holders of the interest coupons for that year have been paid by the State in funding bonds issued for the benefit of railroad companies. Said company accepted the benefit and provisions of the Act of November, 1865, and thereby 1313 admitted that the deposits at Griffin, Georgia, were no payment at all. The State has made payment of that interest instead of the railroad company ; and it would be a monstrous act of injustice to allow the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company a credit for interest. The case presented is an entirely different one to that of a debtor to the Bank of Tennessee ; the railroad company was a debtor to the holders of the interest coupons due in 1863. (Italics in the original.) The Bank nor the Company could not bind the State for 1314 such deposits by the Company at Griffin, or even at Nashville ; they never paid but which the State has funded.

The foregoing are the facts in the case as they appeared to the undersigned in making the investigation called for by the resolution of this General Assembly.

Being satisfied that said company is not entitled to a credit for said deposit, and ought yet to pay said interest, the undersigned recommend the passage of the following joint resolution. 1315

Be it resolved by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the Comptroller be and he is hereby ordered not to enter to the credit of the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company upon the books of his office the sum of $32,450 as of the 14th of October, 1863, and the sum of $32,370 as of the 21st of December, 1863. All of which is respectfully submitted.

A. A. STEELE,
Of the Committee on the part of 1316
the House of Representatives.

The undersigned concurs in so much of the above report as states the facts connected with the payment of the two amounts in dispute, but he dissents from the conclusion of his colleague, the representative from Marshall, the undersigned being of the opinion that the Comptroller should credit the Memphis and 1317 Charleston Railroad Company with the amount embraced in the two receipts which are set out in the foregoing report.

GOV. BROWN'S MESSAGE, p. 29.

House Journal and Appendix, 1871. 1323

The delay of the solvent roads that have retired their indebtedness to the State under the Act of 20th January 1870, to avail themselves of the benefit of the Act, indicates an indisposition to do so, and inasmuch as more than eighteen months have elapsed since this legislation was adopted, I recommend that the act be either repealed, to take effect at some future time not remote, or that its provisions be so remedied as that the roads be required to pay all accrued interest as well as the 1324 sinking fund not heretofore paid.

The reason for this suggestion is that ample time has elapsed for these roads to have aided the State in diminishing her outstanding indebtedness under this most liberal legislation if disposed to do so, and the continuance of this policy affords an opportunity for speculative transactions injurious to the credit of the State and in no way beneficial to the great mass of the 1325 people. While the railroads of the State should be fostered and receive all necessary aid and assistance, yet they must not be allowed to become oppressive monopolies at the expense of the prosperity of the general community.

COMPTROLLER'S REPORT.

October, 1871.

E. R. Pennebaker, P. 109.

In my possession there are several thousand bonds which have been paid in by railroads, also some hundreds signed but never used by the State except for the purpose of collateral in effecting loans. The responsibility of guarding them is greater than I feel willing to bear, and as no good can be accomplished by keeping them, I would recommend a committee to count, record 1327 the numbers and burn them; they will then be out of danger.

GOVERNOR'S MESSAGE,

TO LEGISLATURE OF 1879.

1328 Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

The able and exhaustive communication of my immediate predecessor in office in a great measure relieves me in the performance of the duty imposed upon me by the Constitution.

The subject first in importance claiming your attention is that of the State debt.

It is obvious that it is impossible for the State to meet its ostensible obligations, and this inability has 1329 resulted in a total cessation of payment. Payment upon no part of the debt can be renewed until there shall have been an adjustment of it upon such basis as will bring the debt within the ability of the tax-payers to meet it. This subject is embarrassed by great difficulties, and until they are solved, the State must continue to suffer from discord at home and reproach abroad.

An impartial investigation of the financial history of the State will show that, when her government was in 1330
the hands of her people, in financial integrity and forecast, Tennessee was second to no State in the Federal Union; that all of her embarrassments have resulted from the late war, and the usurpation of her State government following the war, and that all imputations upon the honor of the State proceed from malice, interest or ignorance. That history will also testify that Tennessee never created a dollar of debt without at the time of its creation, providing a safe and sufficient mode of payment, and that too without calling upon 1331
the tax-payers for the slightest contribution.

It has been asserted abroad by those whose purpose it is to injure and defame the State, that while she is enjoying the benefits of the investments made with the proceeds of her bonds, she willfully refuses to provide for her just obligations, and is, therefore, a wilful and dishonest delinquent. This assertion is not only without foundation in truth, but on the contrary the facts show that the only occasion for reproach to which the State is justly subject, is that at the proper time she failed to 1332 assert the rights of her tax-payers. As defamation can contribute nothing to the solution of the difficulties which embarrass this subject, but instead tends to aggravate them, it is to be regretted that it has been employed.

A thorough and exhaustive examination of all the facts connected with this subject, and a firm adherence to the principles of justice in its adjustment will solve

1333 it, permanently and satisfactorily. But if passion is to frighten judgment from its propriety; if justice is to be defeated by accident or occasion; if unjust advantages are not to be surrendered; if wrong is to be cured by time, then indeed the future is without promise.

The proper limits of this communication will not permit that extended analysis of this subject which its importance merits. The salient facts only will be presented as briefly as possible, with such recommendations as appear to be appropriate.

1334 When the war of 1861 began, the debt for which the State was primarily liable consisted of the following elements:

First, for stock in turnpike companies in the sum of $1,227,556.66. Nearly the whole of this debt bore interest at the rate of 5 per cent., and the remainder at 5½ per cent. This investment was secured by a lien in favor of the State upon the roads and property of the several companies, and also upon the usufruct arising therefrom.

Second, for stock in certain railroad companies in the sum of $835,250.00. Nearly the whole of this debt bore interest at the rate of 5 per cent., and the remainder at 5½ per cent. This investment was secured by a like lien.

Third, by six per cent. bonds loaned the Bank of Tennessee, in the sum of $1,000,000.00.

Fourth, by six per cent. bonds for the purchase of 1336 the Hermitage, in the sum of $48,000.00.

Fifth, by six per cent. bonds for the building of the State capitol, in the sum of $658,000.00.

The whole amount of this debt, then, was $3,768,806.66. Its annual interest was $206,236.00. The revenue paid into the State treasury annually, arising from these investments exceeded the annual interest on the whole by about $200,000.00

The debt for which the State was then secondarily liable was as follows: 1337

First, by six per cent bonds loaned the Agricultural Bureau, for the sum of $30,000.00.

Second, by six per cent. bonds loaned turnpike and plank road companies, for the sum of $57,000.00.

Third, by six per cent. bonds loaned railroad companies, for the sum of $13,739,000.00.

After the 6th of May, 1861, there were issued to the Rome and Carthage Turnpike Company six per cent. bonds amounting to $8,000.00, and to the Mobile and 1338 Ohio Railroad Company six per cent. bonds amounting to $172,000.00. These bonds were repudiated in 1865, but still the Comptroller included them in the execution of the Funding Act of 1866, as a part of the public debt.

The Agricultural Bureau, a part of the plank road, and turnpike companies, and two of the railroad companies were then in default. The whole amount of the bonds was $1,335,000.00, bearing an interest of $80,100.00. Without estimating the measure of the de- 1339 fault, and assuming that no part of the interest was paid by the principals in the debt, the whole interest for which the State then had to provide was $286,336.00; and after paying it all the State still received into the treasury, annually, over $100,000.00 from its investments in excess of the interest it had to pay to public creditors.

But in fact, all of this debt except $87,000.00 was the debt of two delinquent railroad companies, and as other roads with equal debt and less business facilities 1340 continued to pay their interest, it is obvious the delinquency was but partial and temporary.

The debt recited comprehends the entire liability of the State existing at the time, both primary and secondary, except a contingent liability as endorser upon the bonds of certain railroad companies amounting to $2,207,000.00.

It appears, therefore, that when the war began, the 1341 public debt was not only no burden upon the tax-payers, but, on the contrary, the investments made by the State contributed largely to alleviate the burden of taxation for the ordinary purposes of government.

The credit of the State had been so cautiously extended to the railroad companies that the possibility of loss was remote. The internal improvement act of 1851–2, with its subsequent amendments, not only provided abundant indemnity for the State, if faithfully adhered to, but it made the perpetration of fraud upon 1342 the State impossible. The cost of the railroads of the State was estimated to be from twenty-six to twenty-seven thousand dollars per mile. The law limited the amount for which the State could become surety for the company to about $11,000.00 per mile for all purposes, with a lien upon the whole property and its usufruct for its indemnity. Nor was aid in any case to be extended until the road was so far completed as to insure completion by the application of the amount guaranteed by the State, and to the end that the road, 1343 when completed, should be of such value as to afford unquestionable indemnity to the State and protection to the tax-payers, the sale of a bond under its par value was expressly prohibited, and the actual application of the whole proceeds of the bonds to the sole purpose prescribed by law was directly enjoined. By a positive provision of the law the power to issue bonds, with which the Governor was clothed, was made conditional, and those conditions were:

1st. That there was stock subscribed sufficient in amount and solvency to grade and bridge the whole 1344 road.

2nd. That a given number of miles were completed.

3d. That there was no other lien upon the road.

4th. That the bonds were to be exclusively applied to the purposes prescribed.

5th. That the bonds were not to be sold for less than their par value.

The law prescribed that all of these precedent conditions should be made to appear to the Governor by the affidavits of certain officers of the Company, by a resolution of the Board of Directors, and by the affidavits of an Engineer and Commissioner, each appointed by the State. When all of these conditions were shown to exist in the mode prescribed by law, then, and not till then, did the Governor have power to issue the bonds. To protect the tax payers against fraud and negligence, the original Act prescribed that its limitations and conditions should be notice to all. 1345

The geographical position of Tennessee made her soil the theatre of active military operations from the beginning to the close of the war. The blight of war which fell upon Tennessee is without parallel in modern times. For years her Courts were closed; her laws abrogated; her people left without protection; the arts of peace abandoned; and her accumulated wealth, banking capital and currency annihilated—licensed murder, arson, robbery and pillage filled the land with terror, want and suffering. The general Government seized and appropriated to its use the crops and stock of the non-combatant citizens without compensation. It occupied and used all the property belonging to the State, and all upon which it had a lien for the security of public creditors. It made the State Capitol a military fortress. It converted the Asylum and University buildings into military hospitals and barracks, and wantonly destroying a part of them, it seriously damaged them all. It filled the Penitentiary with its prisoners. It destroyed the turnpike and plank roads in its military use. It stripped the branch railroads of their iron, and appropriated it to its own use. It operated the main lines of railroads from the beginning of 1862 to the close of 1865, and appropriated all of the profits. It took from the State the banking power which had been so profitable to it, and bestowed it upon its own bondholders. 1346 1347 1348

With a debt to provide for at the close of the war, and every source of revenue destroyed save that of a 1349 direct tax upon the impoverished citizens of the State, the situation was perplexing, but by no means desperate.

The annual interest for which the tax payer had to provide upon the State debt proper, for bonds loaned the Agricultural Bureau and turnpike and plank road companies was $211,456.00. The coin assets of the Bank of Tennessee converted into National bonds yielded an annual interest of $45,132.25, which reduced the amount to be raised by taxation to $166,324.75. In 1350 addition to this indebtedness the State had issued bonds to eight railroads, which ultimately proved insolvent, amounting to $4,428,000.00. All of these roads which had not been stripped of their iron, were worth the amount of the bonds issued them, as the iron was low when purchased, and had largely enhanced in price. If these roads had then been sold, and the proceeds turned over to the holders of the bonds issued to them, with the claim on the Government for the iron appropriated, it is clear that these bonds could have been thus fully paid. But if it be assumed that the insol-1351 vent roads were worth no more than one-half the debt, the annual interest for which the tax-payers would have been required to make provision, would not have exceeded $300,000.00, an amount which they could have met without serious difficulty.

All of the balance of the public debt, was the primary debt of solvent companies, then and now able to meet it.

But unfortunately, with the return of peace, the Government of Tennessee was not restored to the tax-1352 payers. The first utterances of the Governor and Comptroller in 1865, exhibited clearly that the rights of the tax-payers and the obligations of the general Government were appreciated. In discussing the duty of the general Government to pay the interest which had accumulated during the war, upon the railroad bonds, the Governor said: "As the war is for the benefit of the whole nation, it is not believed that the general Government intends that Tennessee shall pay 1353 more than her just proportion of the war debt." The Comptroller, after reciting the fact that the general Government in 1862 took possession of and was still using the roads of the State, except the Louisville and Nashville road, said: "That the general Government will pay the State for the use of the roads a sum adequate to meet the interest on the bonds, we cannot doubt." The Governor recommended but two measures of relief. The first was to repudiate all bonds held by "Rebels," and the last to have the general Govern- 1354

ment to pay its debt to the State. The one was found impracticable, and the other was refused. The war interest was then funded. To demand it under the circumstances was cruel, and to concede it was a crime. There was a precedent directly in point. By the treaty which concluded the Revolutionary war, there was a stipulation that the debt due British subjects before the war from the citizens of the United States should be deemed valid, and the Courts of the States should be open for their collection. All the States declined to 1355 allow interest. The British Minister called Mr. Jefferson's attention to it, and upon this point, among other things, he said: "And we may add, once for all, that there is no instrument or title to debt so formal and sacred as to give a right to interest on it under all possible circumstances. * * * If, then, there is no instrument or title of debt so formal and sacred as to give the right to interest under all possible circumstances, and if circumstances of exemption, stronger than in the 1356 present case, cannot possibly be found, then no instrument or title of debt, however formal or sacred, can give the right to interest under the circumstances of our case. * * General calamity then prevented profit, and consequently stopped interest, which is in lieu of profit." It need not be affirmed that the "general calamity," then, is not comparable to the general calamity of Tennessee resulting from the late war.

1357 The next fatal step was the issue of additional bonds to the insolvent roads. It was done under the pretence that it was necessary to enable those roads to meet the interest upon their ante-war bonds, and thus protect the tax-payer. All of these bonds were pretended to be issued under various amendments to the Act of 1851–2. The amount issued was $10,683,000. There were honest men in the Legislative bodies which authorized this fraud, but their efforts to protect the State were unavailing. But their manly protests ex-
1358 hibit the shameful methods employed in the perpetration of this vast fraud. The facts subsequently officially developed, in connection with the Journals of the two Houses, show that appropriations were refused unless the members were paid to make them. It appears that bonds were sold at a large discount to raise money to pay members to vote further appropriations. It appears that with the proceeds of bonds so sold, a minister of the Gospel was employed to manipulate members of the Legislature, and that when he reached the Capi-1359 tol, a bill authorizing the issuance of bonds, had been rejected by a decided majority. In the morning he opened the proceedings with prayer; before night the vote was reconsidered, and the next day the bill passed with but two dissenting votes. This bill appropriated $3,000,000.00 to the insolvent roads.

It appears that relatives of high officials were paid money, the proceeds of bonds, to induce favorable action in the further issuance of bonds. It appears that bonds were sold at a large discount to pay interest in 1360 order to conceal delinquencies. That the proceeds were used to pay high salaries to railroad officials; to pay exorbitant lawyer's fees; to pay old debts, and in short, applied to an infinite variety of other unlawful purposes. It appears that the Governor, who was clothed with the power to decide when the law was complied with, delegated his power to issue bonds, and that many of them were signed and issued by one of his subordinates in the City of New York. The prodigal waste of this vast sum can be appreciated, when 1361

it is stated before the war the State had appropriated bonds to the insolvent roads of East Tennessee to the amount of $471,000.00. That after the war, for the alleged purpose of protecting the tax-payers from paying interest on the $471,000.00, there were issued to the insolvent roads of East Tennessee $4,847,000.00. That when they were sold they brought, in depreciated bonds, $768,000.00, worth not more than $350,000.00
in currency. The same disastrous policy was pursued in dealing with the delinquent roads of Middle and 1362 West Tennessee.

By an examination of the unanimous report of the Joint Judiciary Committee of both Houses of the Legislature of 1869–70, composed of some of the best lawyers in the State, in relation to the validity of the bonds issued to the Tennessee & Pacific road, it will be found that the principle is affirmed that unless the conditions and limitation fixed by law were complied with, in the mode prescribed, that the Governor had no power to 1363 issue bonds, and if issued without such compliance they are void. The same committee, in its report in relation to the Mineral Home road, declared the principle that if the law was fraudulently complied with, and the purchasers of the bonds purchased at less than the par value of the bond, he and purchasers from him were affected with notice, and the bond void. In his message of 1875, Governor Brown declared the principle, in discussing the liability of the State upon the endorsement on the bonds of the Memphis & Little 1364 Rock road, that if the purchaser paid full price, yet if the Governor who issued the bonds did not comply with the law, the bonds were void. Upon this point he said, "The execution of these mortgages and providing of a sinking fund, were conditions precedent to the right and power of the Governor to endorse said bonds, and the liability of the State did not attach in the absence of a compliance with such conditions."

1365 Tested by these principles, but few, if any, of the post-war bonds were valid.

The holders of these bonds were aware that when the Government was restored to the people, and they had knowledge of all the facts, and were left free to act, they would never recognize this debt. It is not supposed the debt would be repudiated, but it was believed the relative value of that part of the roads built by the ante-war bonds, and that built by the post-war bonds, would be ascertained, and the Courts opened for 1366 the sale of the roads, and that so much of the proceeds as arose from the roads built by the post-war bonds would be paid on those bonds, and nothing more, and the remainder applied to the ante-war bonds.

When the election of 1869 demonstrated that the right to vote and to hold office was about to be restored to the whole people, the interest of the solvent Railroad Companies and the holders of the post-war bonds concurring, they made a joint effort to procure legislation allowing the solvent Railroad Companies to buy 1367 the post-war bonds and deliver them to the State, and for every bond delivered to have the tax-payers assume one of theirs.

At the beginning of the session of 1869–70, a bill was introduced upon this subject and passed the House. In the Senate there was an able and unanimous report rejecting the bill, and by a decided vote the Senate concurred in the report. Subsequently, by some means, the bill became a law. But the bill that was passed was not all that was desired. Although there had been 1368 no investigation, it was believed that the post-war bonds had been illegally issued and sold, and fraudulently used, and therefore the act restricted the right of exchange to bonds "legally issued."

The post-war bonds, by reason of their infirmities, were greatly depreciated, and although there were two grave questions in the way of the solvent railroad companies, yet the speculation was so tempting they determined to take the chances. The first difficulty was that as the act restricted the right of exchange to bonds 1369

"legally issued," and as there had been no investigation or determination of that question, it was uncertain what bonds had been "legally issued." The other difficulty was that the holders of the bonds issued to the several solvent roads had a lien upon all the property and its usufruct of the respective roads for the payment of the bonds, and it was doubtful whether the State could defeat their lien by legislation. The first question the solvent railroad companies determined to decide for themselves; and they decided that all 1370
the bonds were "legally issued," and the report of the Comptroller shows they bought and paid in the most objectionable bonds first, as they were the cheapest, and this was done in great part before an investigation was had.

This precipitate action upon the part of the solvent railroad companies seriously embarrassed the action of the Legislature, and that embarrassment was augmented by a threatened military government, which was then asked for by the members in the Lower House of 1371 Congress from Tennessee.

The question as to the lien of the bondholders is now pending in the Courts.

In 1869 the just debt for which the taxpayers had to provide was comparatively small, while the debt of the solvent roads was large, but by manipulation the solvent railroads undertook to transfer their debt to the taxpayers and relieve themselves.

Under duress from the threatened overthrow of the State Government by Federal interference, and believ- 1372
ing they had the ability to provide for the payment of the entire debt, the taxpayers submitted to the grave wrongs which had been done them, rather than imperil their liberties, and subject themselves to unfriendly criticisms. But a debt difficult to bear in the beginning, and constantly augmenting by fraud and funding, while all values were rapidly depreciating, became at

1373 last too great for them to bear, and they went down in the hopeless effort.

At no time since the first funding act have the taxpayers been able to pay the interest upon the nominal public debt. An examination will disclose the fact that there was no legitimate payment of interest before 1870. The interest was paid by borrowing money, by appropriating the assets of the Bank of Tennessee, by selling bonds to raise money, and partly by taxation.

In 1873, when the payment of interest was resumed, 1374 it was estimated that the taxable property of the State would now be $700,000,000. In fact, it is but a little over $300,000,000. The bond-holders appreciate the fact that the debt cannot be met, and long since a compromise would have been had but for the fact that the holders of the bonds of the solvent railroads regarded their bonds still a lien upon the roads, and until that question is settled adversely to them they will never offer a compromise within the ability of the taxpayers.

1375 The confusion of the just debt of the State with the questionable and fraudulent debt has resulted disastrously to her interest and reputation. There has never been a time when the State was not able and willing to pay the interest upon her just indebtedness,
but by uniting all, payment has been made impossible.

The bonds which represent the several branches of our State debt, can at least be approximately distinguished, and if so, they ought to be distinguished, and 1376 permit each branch of the debt to stand upon its own merits, and be adjusted accordingly ; and for this purpose an appropriate committee should investigate all the facts connected with the debt, and report thereon, in order that the justice of the case of the State may be exhibited, and intelligent action had. All efforts at an adjustment of the debt heretofore have failed, and that failure has resulted from the fact that the meritorious debt and the unjust debt have been equally recognized, and until a plan is adopted, founded in justice to all, it 1377 is apparent no satisfactory result will be reached.

Uniform legislation by the General Government in favor of capital and against production, has not only depreciated values in the State, but has paralyzed more or less every industrial pursuit. Consequently, the subject of the State debt presents itself at a most inauspicious time for adjustment, yet it is obvious that some step should be taken to solve the difficulty and remove all just occasion for reproach.

An investigation will disclose that the public debt is 1378 divided into the following branches, stated in the order of their merit: First, the primary debt of the State, and distinguished as the State debt proper. This part of the debt embraces the bonds for the Capitol and Hermitage, the only property now owned by the State, as the result of its investments. Second, the bonds loaned the Agricultural Bureau. Third, the bonds loaned Turnpike and Plank Road Companies before the war. All of this property has been sold and the proceeds turned over to the bondholders. Fourth, the 1379 bonds loaned to solvent Railroad Companies. These companies own their roads and take all the profits. Fifth, the post-war bonds. All of the property purchased with them has been sold and the proceeds paid the bondholders.

It appears, therefore, that all of the property purchased with the proceeds of this vast debt, except the Capitol and Hermitage, has gone into the hands of the Federal Government, the Bondholders and the Railroad Companies, while the State has nothing but the debt and 1380
the obloquy resulting from her inability to pay it. The amount realized from the public property in Tennessee by the Federal Government can only be approximately estimated. The net earnings of the Louisville and Nashville Road for the year ending in June, 1865, largely exceeded $2,000,000. For the same period, for some months after, and for nearly two years before, the General Government was operating all the other roads of 1381 the State, and took all the profits, besides removing public property amounting in value to nearly $2,000,000.

All of this property and its profits had been put in pledge by the State as the primary security for the payment of the bondholder, and at last, whatever injury the bondholder has sustained, resulted from the injustice of the Federal Government in refusing to pay what was justly due for the property and profits pledged to the bondholder and appropriated by it.

1382 The obvious equities as to the State debt proper, are: First, the funded war interest ought to be expunged and all other funded interest. Second, all payments upon the war interest ought to be credited upon the principal at their value at the time of payment. Third, where funded at a greater rate of interest than the contract originally bore, the original rate ought to be restored. Fourth, where interest has been paid at a greater rate than the original contract, the excess ought to be credited upon the principal at its then value.
1383 Fifth, as the debt, at the time of its creation, was payable in gold or silver, and as, by Federal legislation, the State has been deprived of the opportunity to pay inthe cheaper metal, the State ought to be allowed the difference between the market value of gold and silver.

So much of the State debt proper as is owned by the Federal Government ought to be entirely rejected, until it is willing to pay the State the money justly due her. The bonds loaned the Agricultural Bureau ought to be embraced in the settlement of the primary debt of the 1384 State. A settlement of this branch of the debt upon these principles of justice will be right and ought to command the approval of all.

The next branch of the public debt in order of merit is that of the ante-war bonds issued to insolvent railroads, turnpike and plank road companies. All the equities existing as to the State debt proper obtain as to this, and in addition the whole loss of the iron appropriated by the Federal Government upon which these bondholders had a lien, ought not in justice to 1385 be thrown upon the State, but as a matter of right, those bondholders ought to have an assignment to them by the State of the claim, if they have confidence in the ability and willingness of the General Government to pay a just debt.

As to that branch of the debt comprising the bonds issued to solvent railroad companies, it is not probable any adjustment of it can be made until the question of lien is settled. If the decision is in favor of the roads, the adjustment will be with the bondholders, and if in 1386 favor of the bondholders the adjustment will be with the companies.

As to that part of the debt embracing the post-war bonds, no part of it should be settled now, or hereafter, only in so far as the bonds were issued, sold and used in conformity to law.

The State is able to provide for the first branch of the debt when adjusted, and it ought to be done now. It is probable an investigation will disclose the ability of the State to provide for the second branch, and if 1387 so, it ought to be done, but no more ought to be attempted than can certainly be accomplished. Prudent and cautious steps will lead to satisfactory results, but if more is attempted than can certainly be accomplished, the result will necessarily be disastrous.

If an adjustment is made the coupons ought not to be made receivable for taxes. The demand for this condition implies a want of confidence in the integrity of the State, and ought for that reason to be rejected.
But as a matter of principle the State should never 1388 consent to put her sovereignty, which she holds in trust for the welfare of the whole people, in pledge for debt. Famine or pestilence may befall and cut off revenue, and then it will happen to us as it has elsewhere, where this demand was conceded: that the public schools will be closed, and the administration of the Government paralyzed in all of its functions, for the want of necessary means. If an adjustment is made, however, 1389 certain sources of revenue may be set apart for the payment of interest. If any part of the debt is adjusted, the bonds ought to be payable after five years, at the option of the Government, so as to give the opportunity to take up the bonds, or refund them at a lower rate of interest, if opportunity offers.

If any plan of adjustment is adopted, it ought to be submitted to the people for ratification or rejection at the ballot-box, and if it is approved by the people at the polls, the Legislature will be convened, if neces-
1390 sary, for the purpose of enacting it into a law. That pledge has been made to the people, and it ought to be respected. If disregarded upon any ground, it will only afford occasion for distrust, and insure the ultimate defeat of any adjustment made. As the history of our State debt shows that in every contest with the bondholder and railroad companies on one side, and the tax-payers on the other, that the tax-payers have gone down, it is not remarkable that they demand the right to protect themselves.

1391 The fact that a great variety of opinion exists as to this vexed question of the State debt, and that mutual concession alone can lead to a successful result, is appreciated and with an earnest desire that a satisfactory solution may be reached, these suggestions are submitted for your consideration.

E. L. ANDREWS, 1428
GEORGE HOADLY,
Solicitors for Complainant.

1429 The supplemental answer of the Nashville & Decatur
Railroad Company and of the Louisville & Nashville Railroad Company (sued by the name of the Louisville & Nashville & Great Southern Railroad Company) to the bill of complaint filed by Calvin Amory Stevens in the United States Circuit Court for the Middle District of Tennessee, in Equity No. 2464 on the Rule docket of said Court.

These defendants further answering say, that since their original answer was filed in this case, the complainant 1430 Stevens has given his deposition, and from the matter and manner of his answers upon cross-examination, defendants are satisfied and so charge that complainant
for some time prior to filing his bill in this case was engaged in the New York market in hunting out some of such of the Tennessee State bonds as were loaned to the Central Southern and other Railroad Companies, and in order to get them has been buying Tennessee bonds on the market at ruinous rates of discount, in fact at less than forty per cent. of their par value, and 1431 after selecting out such of them as had been loaned to such Railroad Companies as he desired to sue, selling the others for such price as he could get. That with the same view he has been exchanging Tennessee bonds which had not been loaned to Railroads for others which had been, paying one or two per cent. for the exchange.

That at the time he was making these transactions he well knew that the Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company had paid off the entire debt of the Central 1432 Southern Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee, in 1871, and denied all liability either to the State or to the bondholders for the bonds loaned said Company. If therefore complainant is the owner or holder of any bonds loaned by the State of Tennessee to said company, which these defendants do not admit but deny,
they aver and charge that instead of being a bona fide holder thereof as he represents in his bill, he procured at least a portion of them with full notice of respondent's defenses against them; that he is in fact a mere 1433 speculator and is seeking, in alliance with certain confederates, whose operations he refused to disclose, to make a profitable and inequitable speculation by setting up a lien upon respondent's railroads to the extent and effect of compelling them to pay the same debt twice over. Respondents submit that a Court of Conscience ought not to tolerate such reckless gambling upon the rights of those who have acted in good faith. They therefore desire to make and rely upon this defense as an objection to complainant's right to maintain 1434

his suit at all, and at all events to limit any possible right of recovery to the amount he may have paid, with interest. His right to recover anything, however, being expressly denied. Further answering, respondents submit that the construction of the Act of Feb'y 11, 1852, insisted upon by the complainant, which obligates the Central Southern Railroad Company or the Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company as their successors to pay the holders thereof the bonds of the State of Tennessee, loaned to said Central Southern Railroad 1435
Company, but upon which bonds the names of either of said companies nowhere appears, and after the company have, under the working of the scheme provided by the Act under which the bonds were issued fully paid the State for the bonds originally loaned to them, so as to make the bonds originally loaned clearly payable by the State, as its own proper debt, without any recourse or claim on its behalf against the company in respect thereof, is, in substance and effect, an attempt to charge the company as guarantor or surety for the 1436
State debt; and respondents aver that at the time of the passage of the said Act of February 11, 1852, as well as for many years prior thereto, it was and it ever since has been the statutory law of the State of Tennessee, that no action shall be brought whereby to charge the debt upon any special promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another, or upon

1437 any agreement or contract which is not to be performed within the space of one year from the making thereof, unless the promise or agreement upon which said
action shall be brought, or some memorandum or note thereof, shall be in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or some other person by him thereto lawfully authorized; and that at all such times there was in existence a statutory law of the State of New York of substantially similar purport and of like effect. And respondents say that the transactions of 1438 receiving the State bonds by the Central Southern Railroad Company upon loan thereof to them by the State
under the Act of February 11, 1852, and the amendments thereof respectively, took place in the State of Tennessee, and the negotiation disposal and transfers of said bonds by said railroad companies took place either in Tennessee or in the State of New York; and respondents set up and claim the benefit of the statutes above referred to by said States respectively, commonly called the Statutes of Frauds, by way of defence 1439 against the complainant's attempt on behalf of himself and other Tennessee State bondholders, to charge respondents or either of them, or their property with liability for the State bonds originally loaned to the Central Southern Railroad Company, for which loan their successors, the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company, have duly and fully paid and satisfied the State; and respondents say that neither they nor the Central Southern Railroad Company, or either of them ever made any such promise or agreement in writing, 1440 nor any note or memorandum thereof, either themselves or by an authorized agent, and never made or assumed in any way any such obligation or undertaking, nor any promise or undertaking whatever to complainant, or to any holder of any of the State bonds loaned to the Central Southern Railroad Company to guarantee or become responsible for, or to make payment of or to subject their railroad or any of their property to liability for, either the principal or interest, or any part thereof, or any of such State bonds, and they 1441 insist that no such obligation or responsibility can, under the circumstances aforesaid, be implied or deduced from anything contained in said Act, and, moreover, such a construction of the Act would be in violation of the Constitution of the State of Tennessee, referred to in the original answer as prohibiting special or partial legislation. Respondents further insist that if any agreement or contract whatever was made, either by the Central Southern Railroad Company, or either of these respondents, it not only rested exclusively in 1442 parol, but it was also not to be performed within the space of one year from the making thereof, and therefore upon that ground is within the Statutes of Frauds aforesaid. Further answering, respondents willl show in relation to bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to the Central Southern Railroad Company that the persons to whom they were originally negotiated in most instances did not come into communication with said Company, nor at all know them in the transaction, nor know that the bonds had been loaned to them, nor that 1443

they had ever had anything to do with the same. The bonds were either payable "to bearer," using those words, or they were payable to blank or order, leaving the blank unfilled, so as to make the bonds in effect payable to bearer, or if the blank was filled, it was the name of some one other than the railroad Company, and by such person endorsed in blank. Experience had shown that straight bonds of the State of Tennessee had sold for more in the New York market than bonds of railroad companies guaranteed or endorsed by the 1444
State. This fact, among others, had led to a complete change in the internal improvement system of Tennessee, as evidenced by the Act of February 11, 1852, under which the State, instead of being surety or guarantor of the railroad companies as she had been under the system immediately preceding that Act, became the principal and only debtor to the bondholders and became the only creditor of the railroad companies for the 1445 debts created by the loan to them of State bonds by the State. The bonds being expressly, or in effect, payable to bearer, and at that time worth their face value in specie, were received by the companies from the State as equivalent to the amount of money called for by their face; they were chiefly sold in open market in New York, through brokers or bankers whose agency for the railroad companies was not disclosed, and they were negotiated as simply and purely State bonds, without any security other than the faith and 1446 credit of the State; and the subsequent dealing in said bonds were all on the same basis and understanding.

Further answering, respondents show that now, and when the bill in this case was filed, the price of Tennessee State bonds was much lower than in 1871, when the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company paid off their debt to the State of Tennessee, as stated in the original answer, and therefore if complainant should obtain the decree he seeks, respondents will have been very greatly prejudiced by his laches, even if the State should restore 1447 to respondents, the bonds and coupons which the Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company paid to the State in discharge of their indebtedness, Respondents further show that under the act of the Legislature of Tennessee authorizing the same, the coupons which matured prior to 1874, upon bonds which had been loaned by the State to railroad companies, including those loaned to the Central Southern Railroad Company have all or nearly all been funded into new bonds of the State by those who now hold them, or by those under whom 1448 the present holders have derived title, that in such funding the original coupons were surrendered to the State and cancelled; and new bonds were received for the old coupons, without any discrimination in respect to the different railroad companies to whom had been originally loaned the bonds to which had belonged such funded coupons, so that one of the new bonds if for coupons upon bonds which had been loaned to several different railroad companies without any separation or discrimination, and likewise coupons from other State 1449

bonds issued for other purposes of the State; and if complainant is the owner of any bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to the Central Southern Railroad Company, which respondents deny, the coupons maturing thereon prior to 1874, were funded by him or those under or through whom he claims. Respondents further answering to the allegations of the bill imputing fraud, wrongful conduct or impropriety of any kind to any of the persons who may have been instrumental in seeking or obtaining the passage of the Acts 1450 of February 25, 1860, and January 2, 1870, or either of them, or to any of the railroad companies, in respect of their acts and proceedings under or in virtue of such acts, or either of them, say that it is true that during the late civil war, the railroad companies did not generally pay the interest on the amounts of the bonds issued to them, and after the war they still continued in great part, in default in making the payments due by them to the State on account of such interest. And the State of Tennessee, during the same period like- 1451
wise had been and was in default in paying the interest on its bonds, and the market value of the State bonds had fallen greatly, and the value and market price of the State bonds had become and was very much depreciated, such depreciation varied greatly
and with wide fluctuations, the market price at times being considerable below and at other times considerable above fifty per cent. And respondents say that the events of the war had inflicted enormous losses upon the State of Tennessee, and upon its 1452 people; and besides and apart from the depreciation of the Railroad interests and claims, had greatly diminished the resources and means of the State and the ability which it would otherwise have possessed to meet its obligations to its creditors; and that the Railroad Companies which had respectively received the loans
of the State bonds under the Internal Improvements
Acts, had, by the events of the war, sustained enormous

1453 losses and depreciation, of their property; and the events consequent upon the war, had also greatly depreciated the comparative business and profitableness of their railroads; and the roads themselves and their bridges and other appurtenances and equipments and materials had, amidst the conflict of the contending armies, and under the spirit of lawlessness thereby engendered, become greatly dilapidated, wasted, injured, and to a large extent, destroyed, so as to require very large expenditures for rehabilitating them and 1454 putting them in suitable condition for profitable working, and to make them efficient instruments for affording the facilities for travel and transportation required by the wants of the community; and in the then condition of the companies, precuniarily depressed, financially embarrassed and discredited, it was, as to the best of the roads, extremely difficult and to many of them utterly impossible to obtain the funds or means necessary for such expenditures, without relief in respect of some portion of the indebtedness with which 1455 they were loaded; and as to some of the poorer roads, it was impossible to extricate them from embarrassment or make them serviceable instruments of travel or transportation under their then organization or indebtedness, or to make them available for practical value or working, short of selling them out for what they might be made to bring by enforcement of the liens against them. And at the time of said legislation, 1869—70, the bonded debt of the State of Tennessee, including the accumulations of unpaid interest, had become 1456 swollen to some forty-five millions of dollars, or thereabout, which was greatly beyond the practical ability of the State to meet or then satisfactorily deal with, unless some particular measures of relief could be adopted; and it was then greatly desired by the State of Tennessee, and among its people, that some means should be devised for largely reducing the amount of its indebtedness, and bringing the same within such compass as that it might be enabled as speedily as possible to resume payment of its interest. And under 1457

this state of things it was regarded not merely by the said railroad companies, but by the governing authorities of the State of Tennessee, and by the people of the State generally, as desirable that some plan should be adopted for reducing the State debt by inducing the Railroad Companies, or such of them as could possibly command or obtain the means for doing so, to pay up and satisfy at once and without waiting for the full maturing of their legal obligations in that behalf, the amounts of their indebtedness to the State, for the 1458 amounts of their State bonds which had been loaned to them under the Internal Improvement Acts, and that in order to afford adequate inducements to the Railroad Companies so to do, as likewise to bring it practically within their power to command or obtain the means therefor, such payments should be received from them in State bonds, so as to give to them the benefit of the discounts at which purchases of such bonds by them in the market might be practicable, and so as to permit the transfer by substitution of the statutory 1459
mortgage of the State for securing the Company's indebtedness to it, to such parties as could be induced to advance the money wherewith to purchase the State bonds to effect the settlement of the Company's indebtedness, and it was to give effect to such plain scheme, and not for any purpose fraudulent, wrongful, or in anywise inequitable, that the said Legislation of 1869-70 was enacted. It was at the time considered by all parties whose legal or equitable interests were concerned in respect thereof, and as defendants conceive 1460 and now insist, rightly so considered, that such plan and scheme, and the execution thereof, in so far as such execution should prove practicable, would be beneficial to all concerned and unjust to no one.

Respondents further answering show that the Central Southern Railroad is ample security for the full amount of all the bonds and coupons loaned to said Company by the State of Tennessee, which are now outstanding, 1461 if complainant and the other holders thereof should succeed in obtaining the decrees which he seeks.

Said Railroad is an indispensable link in the line from Louisville, Ky., to Montgomery, Ala., and as such will at all times command at least three times the amount of the State bonds and interest now outstanding. And even regarded as a separate road it is worth in the market to-day at least twice the amount of said bonds and interest, and the annual net earnings thereof would pay far more than the interest annually to 1462 accrue on said bonds. There can therefore be no possible danger to complainant and no necessity for the issuance of an injunction or the appointment of a Receiver to interfere with the present skillful and prudent management of the road. And having fully answered, respondents pray to be hence dismissed with their reasonable costs.

I, Louis T. 1469 The answer of the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company to the petition filed by Calvin Amory Stevens on the 9th day of July, 1879, in the cases of said Stevens against these respondents in the U. S. Circuit Court for the Middle District of Tennessee. In Equity.

It is true that these causes have been at issue by the filing of answers and general replications since the day of 1879. The Bill and answer will show upon their face the character of proof which the issues will 1470 require. Defendant's proof will consist largely of statutes, extracts from Legislative Journals, from Governors' Messages, Reports of Committees, and of Comptrollers, and of other public documents, but it will also embrace much oral testimony of witnesses to show the contemporanous construction, placed upon the internal improvement system of Tennessee by the railroad companies, the State and the bondholder from 1852, until the filing of the bill in these causes, and to show that said construction was to the effect that the 1471 lien upon the railroads belonged exclusively to the State of Tennessee and not to the bondholders. The oral proof will also go to show the amount and character of expenditures that have been made upon the Nashville and Decatur Railroad since the debt for the State bonds loaned to that company has been paid, and the amount of money that has been borrowed to raise the means to pay off said debt, the bonds that have been issued by said company with the mortgages executed to secure them, and the circumstances under which the holder of 1472 such bonds acquired them. In a word respondents expect by documentary or oral proof to sustain all the material averments and denials contained in their original and supplemental answers on file in these causes, which answers are here referred to and made part of this answer.

Respondent also expects to be able to contradict many of complainant's statements in his deposition lately taken in this case. The witnesses by whom the oral testimony will be given are scattered over the 1473 country, at great distances from Respondent's chief office, some of them live in New York, some in Philadelphia, Atlanta, Georgia, Knoxville, Chattanooga, Sparta, Triune, Franklin, Clarksville, Jackson, Memphis and other points in Tennessee and some in Louisville, Ky.

Respondent's solicitor has by correspondence and otherwise been diligently engaged in ascertaining their whereabouts and the points upon which their testimony will be material so as to facilitate the taking of their de- 1474 positions and expects to be able to procure their testimony within the time allowed defendants by the Honorable U. S. Circuit Court at Nashville.

Respondents have no knowledge of any request being made by complainant's solicitor of defendant's solicitor, on or about April 29, for an agreement to close the testimony at an early day, to wit, the latter part of May. Such request may have been made, but if so, has been forgotten. It was, of course, declined, because it was impossible for respondents to get ready by 1475
the time indicated.

It is true that about May 29 defendants were satisfied that the ninety-day rule would be insisted on, and on the next day they notified complainants' solicitor that they would move for an extension of time to take testimony. But upon discovering that their time was not so near out as they supposed, and hoping to be able to take their proof within the time left to them, they retracted the notice. It is true that complainant applied for and obtained an order adjourning the 1476
Court to the 4th August, but this order was made on June 14, the same day on which defendants obtained an order from the same judge extending their time for taking proof. A copy of said order is here filed, marked Exhibit A, and prayed to be taken as part hereof. Said order was obtained in open Court, complainants' counsel being present and opposing. Respondents have relied on the validity of said order, 1477 and insist upon the time thereby granted to them, because it is absolutely necessary to enable them to prepare their case properly, and with safety. Respondents felt that complainant ought, in justice and fair play, to take his testimony before they took theirs, but he held his own deposition back until July 5, 1879, when the taking of it was begun in New York, and when Respondents' solicitor arrived there to cross-examine he was served with notice of motion for receiver and injunction, and offers to stipulate, thus having 1478 the time and attention which they would otherwise have devoted to preparing the case for trial, diverted by complainant to the consideration of interlocutory but important side issues.

Respondents positively deny that they have been guilty of any tardiness or obstructive delay. No case approaching these cases in magnitude or importance has been brought to trial in the U. S. Circuit Court at Nashville in the short space of time that has intervened since these bills were filed. Even in ordinary 1479 cases the ninety-day rule has never been enforced in general practice, and has been universally extended with liberality.

Respondents deny that they became participants in the act of the Legislature of Tennessee, quoted in the bill, or that they are in anywise responsible, legally or morally, for any of its provisions, or for any of the expressions contained in the message of the Governor of Tennessee referred to therein. Some of the railroad companies of Tennessee did propose to surrender their 1480 exemptions to aid in settling the State debt on any terms that would be satisfactory to the State creditors. The reasons which actuated them are fully set out in a letter dated March 18, 1879, written to Governor Marks by E. D. Standiford and other railroad presidents. Respondents insist that the object of said railroad companies as therein set forth were praiseworthy in the highest degree, and such as no bondholder can justly complain of. A copy of said letter is here filed and made part hereof as Exhibit B. If the Legislature or 1481

the Governor are actuated by other or different motives the railroad companies cannot control them, and, therefore, are not responsible for them. Respondents deny that they have conspired with the State to defeat the bondholders of an opportunity to obtain a hearing, but expect to give them a hearing as speedily as they can do so, with due regard to the proper preparation of their cases.

It is true that one of the questions involved in these causes was argued before the Supreme Court of the 1482 United States in April, 1878, it being incidentally involved in a suit between parties other than holders of Tennessee Internal Improvement bonds. The L. & N. R. R. Co. prepared a petition to be filed in that case, the object of which was to show that the question was not properly presented in that case, one of the solicitors of said company was present and heard the argument, but was not allowed to argue the case orally, and did not prepare any brief. The case was afterwards terminated in some way as respondents are informed, 1483
but how respondent never knew.

Respondents deny that the assets of their company are being wasted or misapplied. Their revenues are applied first to paying interest and sinking fund on bonds of the company secured by the mortgages referred to in their original answer, and the balance is applied to paying dividends to their stockholders. This cause has been pursued for the last six or eight years with the full knowledge of Complainant and other holders of Tennessee bonds who have stood by 1484
and allowed the community to invest their money in said bonds and stock, relying upon it as a safe investment, and in many cases as their only source of income. From Complainant's own showing he is in no possible danger. The net earnings for a single year would more than pay more than all the bonds loaned by the State which are now outstanding, and would pay nearly five times the amount that would accrue in any 1485 one year upon said bonds. The railroad is being managed by skillful and careful officers who are constantly and permanently improving its condition and business.

Whatever effect it may have upon the final hearing complainant's laches is a sufficient answer to an application for a Receiver and injunction, to divert the revenues from a channel in which he has allowed them to run for years, where others have acted upon his acquiscence and where no possible ultimate injury can be done him by refusing these interlocutory and extraordinary meas-1486 ures as this property would be ample security for any decree that he can possibly hope to obtain. Respondents assure the Court that they will proceed with all diligence in the preparation of their cases for hearing, and they submit that the extraordinary process and powers of the Court ought not to be employed to force them into a hearing before they can possibly get ready.

Exhibit B.

NASHVILLE, March 8, 1878.

To His Excellency, ALBERT S. MARKS,
Governor of Tennessee.

SIR: The undersigned representatives of the railroad companies named below, believe that a settlement of the debt of the State of Tennessee, upon terms satisfactory to the people and the creditors of the State, would, by a restoration of confidence and credit, greatly promote the agricultural, mechanical and commercial prosperity of the people and enhance the value of their property. 1490

By far the largest proportion of the railroad property in this State, in fact about two-thirds of it, is as the companies confidently believe, protected by charter exemption from all taxation whatever, but being desirous of aiding in such settlement, and thereby relieving the State and her people from their present embarrassment, the said companies agree, in the event of such settlement, that their said property shall in the future be subject to State taxation for state purposes, as and upon the same assessments and rates as the property of private citizens. 1491

They further believe that should the State debt be settled, such will be the improvement in value of property in this State that a fair assessment upon the railroad property, including that portion of it now for the first time subject to taxation, will produce an annual fund of between eighty and one hundred thousand dollars, which, with a fifty-cent tax upon the other property of the State, will enable her to meet with ease the expenses of the State Government, including her charitable institutions and school fund, together with 1492

1493 their interest upon her bonded debt, and a proper sinking fund for its ultimate redemption.

MIDDLE DISTRICT OF TENNESSEE

I, LEWIS T. BAXTER, Clerk of the Circuit Court of the United States for the District aforesaid, do hereby 1495 certify that the foregoing is a true copy of the answer of the Nashville & Decatur Railroad Company, together with the Exhibits, to the bill of complaint filed by Calvin Amory Stevens, in the United States Circuit Court for the District in Equity No. as the Rule Docket of said Court.

Witness my hand and the seal of said Court at Nashville, this 6th day of August, 1879.

1496 [L.S.] LEWIS T. BAXTER, Clerk,
By E. R. CAMPBELL. D. C.

The supplemental answer of the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company, and of the Louisvile and Nashville Railroad Company (sued by the name of the Louisville and Nashville and Great Southern Railroad Company), to the bill of complaint filed by Calvin Amory Stevens, in the United States Circuit Court, for the Middle District of Tennessee, in Equity No. 2458, on the Rule Docket of said Court: 1497

These defendants, further answering, say that since 1498
their original answer was filed in this case, the complainant, Stevens, has given his deposition, and from the matter and manner of his answer upon cross-examination, defendants are satisfied, and so charge, that complainant, for some time prior to filing his bill in this case, was engaged in the New York Market, hunting out some of such of Tennessee State bonds as were loaned to the Tennessee and Alabama and other railroad companies, and in order to get them, has been buying Tennessee bonds on the market at various rates of discount, 1499 in fact, at less than forty per cent. of their par value, and after selecting out such of them as had been loaned to such railroad companies he desired to sue, selling the others for such prices as he could get.
That with the same view, he has been exchanging Tennessee
bonds which has not been loaned to railroads, for others which had been, paying one or two per cent.
for the exchange. That at the time he was making these transactions, he well knew that the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company had paid off the entire 1500 debt of the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company to the State of Tennessee in 1871, and denied all liability either to the State or to the bondholders, for the bonds loaned said company. If, therefore, complainant is the owner or holder of any bonds loaned by the State of Tennessee to said company, which these defendants do not admit, but deny, they aver and charge, that instead of being a bona fide holder thereof, as he 1501 represents in his bill, he procured at least a portion of them with full notice of respondents' defences against them; that he is, in fact, a mere speculator, and is seeking, in alliance with certain confederates, whose operations he refused to disclose, to make a profitable and inequitable speculation, by setting up a lien upon respondents' railroad to the extent and effect of compelling them to pay the same debt twice over. Respondents submit that a Court of conscience ought not to tolerate such reckless gambling upon the 1502 rights of those who have acted in good faith. They therefore desire to make and rely upon this defence as an objection to complainant's right to maintain his suit at all, and at all events to limit any possible right of recovery to the amount he may have paid, with interest. His right to recover anything being expressly denied. Further answering. respondents submit that the construction of the Act of February 11, 1852, insisted upon by complainant, which obligates the Tennessee and Alabama R. R. Co., or the 1503 Nashville and Decatur R. R. Co., as their successors, to pay to the holders thereof, the bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to said Tennessee and Alabama R. R. Co., but upon which bonds the name of either of said companies nowhere appears, and after the company had under the working of the scheme provided by the Act under which the bonds were issued fully paid the State for the bonds originally loaned to them, so as to make the bonds originally loaned clearly payable by the State as its own proper debt, without 1504 resource or claim on its behalf against the company in respect thereof is in substance and effect, an attempt to charge the company as guarantee or surety for the State's debt; and respondents aver that at the time of the passage of the said Act of February 11, 1852, as for many years prior thereto, it was, and it ever since has been the statutory law of the State of Tennessee, that no action shall be brought, whereby to charge the defendant upon any special promise to answer for the debt, default or miscarriage of another, or upon any 1505 agreement or contract which is not to be found within the space of one year from the making thereof, unless the promise or agreement upon which such action shall be brought, or some memorandum or note thereof shall be in writing and signed by the party to be charged therewith, or some other person by him thereto lawfully authorized ; and that at all such times there was in existence a statutory law of the State of New York, of substantially similar purport and of like effect ; and respondents say that the transactions of receiving the 1506

State bonds by the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company upon loan thereof to them by the State
under the Act of February 11, 1852, and the amendments
thereof respectively took place in the State of Tennessee, and the negotiations, disposal and transfers
of said bonds by said railroad company took place, either in Tennessee or in the State of New York ;
and respondents set up and claim the benefit of the Statutes above referred to of said States respectively, commonly called the Statutes of Frauds, by way 1507
of defence against the complainants' attempt on behalf of himself and other Tennessee State bondholders to charge respondents, or either of them, or their property, with liability for the State bonds originally loaned to the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, for which loan their successors, the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company have duly and fully paid and satisfied the State, and respondents say that neither they or the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, nor either of them, ever made any such promise or agree- 1508
ment in writing, nor any note or memorandum thereof, either themselves or by any authorized agent, and never made or assumed in any way any such obligation or undertaking, nor any promise or undertaking whatever to complainant, or to any holder of any of the State bonds loaned to the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company to guaranty or become responsible for, or to make payment of or to, subject

1509 said railroad or any of their property to liability for either the principal or interest, or any part thereof, of any such State bonds, and they insist that no such obligation or responsibility can, under the circumstances aforesaid, be implied or deduced from anything contained in said Act, and, moreover, such a construction of the Act would be in violation of the Constitution of Tennessee referred to in the original answer as prohibiting special or partial legislation.
Respondents further insist that if any agreement or 1510 contract whatever was made either by the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company or either of these respondents, it not only vested exclusively in parol, but it was also not to be performed within the space of one year from the making thereof, and therefore upon that ground is within the Statute of Fraud aforesaid.

Further answering, respondents will show, in relation to bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, that the persons to whom they were originally negotiated in most 1511 instances did not come into communication with said company, nor at all known them in the transaction, nor knew that the bonds had been loaned to them, nor that they had ever had anything to do with the same.
The bonds were either payable "to bearer," using those words, or they were payable to blank or order, leaving the blank unfilled, so as to make the words in effect payable to bearer, or if the blank was filled it was with the the name of some one other than the Railroad 1512 Company and by such persons endorsed in blank—experience has shown that straight bonds of the State of Tennessee sold for more in the New York market than bonds of railroad companies guaranteed or endorsed by the State. This fact among others had led to a complete change in the Internal Improvement System of Tennessee as evidenced by the Act of February 11, 1852, under which the State instead of being surety or guarantor of the Railroad Companies as she had been under the system immediately preceeding that Act 1513 became the principal and only debtor to the bondholders and became the only creditor of the railroad companies for the debt created by the loan to them of State bonds by the State. The bonds being expressly or in effect payable to bearer, and at that time worth their face value in specie, were received by the companies from the State as equivalent to the amount of money called for by their face, they were chiefly sold in open market in New York through brokers or bankers whose agencies for the railroad companies was 1514

not disclosed, and they were negotiated as simply and and purely State bonds without any security other than faith and credit of the State, and the subsequent dealings in said bonds were all in the same basis and understanding.

Further answering, respondents show that now and when the bill in this case was filed the price of Tennessee bonds was much lower than in 1871, when the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company paid off their debt to the State of Tennessee as stated in their original 1515 answer, and therofore if complainant should obtain the decree he seeks, respondents will have been, very greatly prejudiced by his laches even if the State should restore to respondents the bonds and coupons which the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company paid to the State in discharge of their indebtedness.

Respondents further show that under the Acts of the Legislature of Tennessee authorizing the same, the coupons which matured prior to 1874, upon bonds which had been loaned by the State to Railroad Com- 1516 panies, including those loaned to the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, all or nearly all been funded into new bonds of the State by those who now hold them or by those under whom the present holders have derived title. That in such funding the original coupons never surrendered to the State and cancelled, and new bonds were received for the old Coupons without any discrimination in respect

1517 to the different railroad companies, to whom had been originally loaned the bonds, to which had belonged such funded coupons, so that one of the new bonds is for coupons upon bonds, which had been loaned to several different railroad companies without any seperation or discrimination, and likewise, coupons upon other State bonds issued for other purposes of the State. And if Complainant is the owner of any bonds of the State of Tennessee loaned to the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad Company, which respondents deny 1518 the coupons maturing thereon prior to 1874, were funded by him or those under or through whom he claims. Respondents further answering to the allegations of the bill imputing fraud, wrongfull conduct or impropriety of any kind to any of the person, who may have been instrumental in seeking or obtaining the passage of the Acts of February 25th, 1869, and January 2d, 1870, or either of them or to any railroad companies, in respect of their Acts and proceedings under, or in virtue of such Acts, or either of them say that it is true, 1519 that during the late civil war the railroad companies did not generally pay the interest on the amounts of the bonds issued to them, and after the war they still continued in great part in default, in making the payments due by them to the State on account of such interest, and the State of Tennessee during the same period likewise had been and was in default in paying the interest on its bonds, and the market value of the State bonds had fallen greatly, and the value and market price of the State bonds had become and was 1520 very much depreciated, such depreciation varied greatly
and with wide fluctuations, the market price at times
being considerably lower, and at other times considerably above fifty per cent. And Respondents say that the events of the war had inflicted enormous losses upon the State of Tennessee and upon its people, and besides, and apart from the depreciation of its railroad interests, and claims had greatly diminished the resources and means of the State, and the ability which it would otherwise have posssessed to meet its obligations to its creditors, and that the railroad companies which had respectively received the loans of the State bonds under the Internal Improvement Acts, had by the events of the war, sustained enormous losses and depreciations of their property, and the events consequent upon the war had also greatly depreciated the comparative business and profitableness of their railroads and the roads themselves and their bridges and other appurtenances and equipments and materials had amidst the conflict of the contending armies and under the spirit of lawless,ness thereby engendered, become greatly delapidateds wasted, injured, and to a large extent destroyed so as to require very large expenditures for rehabilitating them and putting them in suitable condition for profitable working and to make them efficient instruments for affording the facilities for travel and transportation required by the wants of the community, and inthe then condition of the companies pecuniarily depressed, financially embarrassed and discredited it was as to the best of the roads extremely difficult and to many of them utterly impossible to obtain the funds or means necessary for such expenditures without relief in respect to some portion of the indebtedness with which they were loaded and as to some of the poorer roads it was impossible to extricate them from embarrassment or make them serviceable instruments of travel or transportation under their then organization and indebtedness or to make them available for practical value or working short of selling them out for what they might be made to bring by enforcement of the liens against them, and at the time of the said legislature of 1869-70, the bonded debt of the State of Tennessee including the accumulation of unpaid interest had become swollen to some forty-five millions of dollars or thereabouts, which was greatly beyond the practical ability of the State to meet then or satisfactorily deal with unless some particular measure

1525 of relief could be adopted and it was then greatly desired by the State of Tennessee, and among its people that some means should be devised for largely reducing the amount of its indebtedness, and bringing the same within such compass as that it might be enabled, as speedily as possible, to resume payment of its interest. And under this state of things, it was regarded, not merely by the said railroad campanies, but by the governing authorities of the State of Tennessee, and by the people of the State gen-1526 erally, as desirable that some plan should be adopted for reducing the State debt, by inducing the railroad companies, or such of them as could possibly command or obtain the means for doing so to pay up and satisfy at once, and without writing for the full maturity of their legal obligations in that behalf the amounts of their indebtedness to the Sate for the amounts of the State bonds which had been loaned to them under the Internal Improvement Acts, and that in order to offer adequate inducements to the railroad companies so to 1527 do, as likewise to bring it practically within their power to command or obtain the means therefor, such payments should be received from them in State bonds so as to give to them the benefit of the discounts at which purchases of such bonds by them in the market might then be practically. And so as to permit the transfer by substitution of the statutory mortgage of the State for securing the companies indebtedness to it, to such parties as could be induced to advance the money wherewith to purchase the State bonds, to effect the 1528 settlement of the company's indebtedness and it was to give effect to such plan and scheme and not for any purpose fraudulent wrongful or in anywise inequitable that the said legislation of 1869-70 was enacted. It was at the time considered by all parties whose legal or equitable interests more concerned in respect thereof was as defendants conceive and now insist rightly so considered that such plan and scheme and the execution thereof in so far as such execution should prove practicable would be beneficial to all concerned and unjust to no 1529 one.

Respondents further answering show that the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad is ample security for the full amount of all the bonds and coupons loaned to said Company by the State of Tennessee whicn are now outstanding if complainant and the other holders thereof should succeed in obtaining the decrees which he seeks. Said railroad is an indispensable link in the line from Louisville, Ky., to Montgomery, Ala., and as such will at all times command at least three times 1530 the amount of the State bonds and interest now outstanding. And even regerded as a separated road it is worth in the market to-day at least twice the amount of said bonds and interest and the annual net earnings thereof would pay far more than the interest annually to accrue on said bonds. There can therefore be no possible danger to complainants and no necessity for the issuance of an injunction or the appointment of a receiver to interfere with the present skillful and prudent management of the road. 1531

Notice and admissions of Supplemental answer.

To the Solicitors of the Respondents:

Gentlemen:

The complainant, reserving all rights of exceptions to the pleading of the supplemental answer in the above-named suits, and to all irrelevant and impertinent mat- 1543 ters therein contained, hereby offers, for the purpose of the final hearing of these causes at an early day, to admit the truth of the following matters of fact set forth in said suplemental answers, in order that delays for the taking of testimony and the certification of documents may be obviated:

First.—As to the portions of the answer which are based upon the testimony given by complainant on cross-examination, it is consented that the case stand upon the testimony upon which the respondents pur- 1544 port to base those portions of their answers.

Second.—It is stipulated that the statement of the law of Tennessee and of New York, in reference to the Statute of Frauds, correct, but without any concession of its applicability to this case. It is admitted that the negotiations, disposal and transfers of said bonds by these railroad companies took place either in Tennessee or the State of New York.

It is admitted that the persons to whom the bonds of 1545
the State of Tennessee loaned to the Alabama and Central Southern Railroad Companies were originally negotiated, in most instances did not come into communication with said companies ; that the bonds were either payable to bearer, using those words, or they were payable to blank or order, leaving the blank unfilled, or if the blank was filled, it was with the name of some one other than the railroad company, and by such person endorsed in blank.

It is further admitted that experience has shown that 1546 straight bonds of the State of Tennessee sold for more in New York than bonds of railroad companies guaranteed or endorsed by the State, that this fact among other things had led to a complete change in the Internal Improvement system of Tennessee, as evidenced by the Act of February 11th, 1852, under which the State in stead of being surety or guarantor of the railroad companies, (on the face of bond) as she had been under the system immediately preceding that Act, became the only debter whose name appeared on the face of the 1547 bond itself, that the bonds were chiefly sold in the open market in New York through brokers or bankers.

It is further stipulated, that now and when the bill in this case was filed, the price of Tennessee bonds was much lower than in 1871, when the Nashville and Decatur Railroad Company delivered bonds of the State of Tennessee to the State.

It is further stipulated, that under the Acts of the Legislature of Tennessee authorizing the same, the coupons matured prior to 1874 upon bonds which had 1548 been loaned by the State to railroad companies including those loaned to the Tennessee and Alabama and Central Southern Railroad Companies, all or nearly all, had been funded into new bonds of the State by those who now hold them, or by those under whom the present holders have derived title. That in such event the original coupons were surrendered to the State and cancelled and new bonds were received for the old cou-

1549 pons without any discrimination in respect to the different railraod companies to whom had been originally loaned the bonds to which had belonged such funded coupons, so that some of the new bonds is for coupons upon bonds which had been loaned to several different railroad companies, without any separation or discrimination, and likewise coupons upon other State bonds issued for other purposes of the State; that the coupons maturing upon the complainant's bonds prior to 1874, were funded by him or those under him or 1550 through he claimed.

Complainant admits that after the war the depreciation in Tennessee State bonds varied greatly and with wide fluctuations, the market price at times being considerably lower and at other times considerably above fifty per cent. and that the events of the war had inflicted enormous losses upon the State of Tennessee and upon its people, and besides apart from the depreciation of its railroad interests and claims had greatly diminished the resources and means of the 1551 State and the ability which it would otherwise have possessed to meet its obligetions to its creditors, and that the railroad companies which had respectively received the loans of the State bonds under the Internal Improvement Acts had by the events of the war sustained enormous losses and depreciation of their property, and the events consequent upon the war had also greatly depreciated the comparative business and profitableness of their railroads, and the roads themselves and their bridges and their appurtenances 1552 and equipments and materials, had amidst the conflict of the contending armies and under the spirit of lawlessness thereby engendered, become greatly dilapidated, wasted, injured and to a large extent destroyed so as to require very large expenditures for rehabilitating them and putting them in suitable condition for profitable working and to make them efficient instruments for affording facilities for travel and transportation required by the wants of the community and in the then condition of the companies pecuniarily depressed, fiinancially embarrassed and discredited it was as to the best of the roads, extremely difficult,and to many of them utterly impossible to obtain the funds or means necessary for such expenditures without relief in respect to some portion of the indebtedness with which they were loaded and as to some of the poorer roads it was impossible to extricate them from embarrassment or make them serviceable instruments of travel or transportation under their organization or indebtedness, or to make them available or of practical value or working, short of selling them out for what they might be made to bring by the enforcement of the liens against them, and that at the time of the said legislation of 1869–1870, the bonded debt of the State of Tennessee, including the accumulations of unpaid interest, had become swollen to some forty-five millions or thereabouts, which was greatly beyond the practical ability of the State to meet or then satisfactorily to deal with, unless some particular measures of relief could be adopted, and it was then greatly desired by the State of Tennessee and among the people that some means should be devised for largely reducing the amount of its indebtedness and bringing the same within such compass as that it might be enabled, as speedily as possible, to resume payment of its interest, and under this state of things it was regarded not merely by the said railroad companies but by the governing authorities of the State of Tennessee, and by the people of the State generally, as desirable that some plan should be adopted for reducing the State debt by the railroad companies, or such of them as could possibly command or obtain the means for doing so by delivering State bonds to the State so as to give them the benefit of the discount at which purchases of such bonds by them in the market might be practicable, (Complainant shows by the public documents of the State of Tennessee that some of her ablest

1557 lawyers and wisest statesmen did not admit that the above plan could be carried out legally or properly except by delivery by the companies respectively of the bonds issued to them respectively and which were liens upon their roads.)

Complainant further admits, that the Tennessee and Alabama Railroad and the Central Southern Railroad are ample security for the full amount of all the bonds and coupons loaned to said company by the State of Tennessee, which are now outstanding; that said Railroad is an indispensable link in the line from Louis-1558 ville, Kentucky to Montgomery, Alabama, and as such will at all times command at least three times the amount of the State bonds and interest now outstanding, and even regarded as a separate road, it is worth in the market to-day at least twice the amount of said bonds and interest, and the annual net earnings thereof, would pay far more than the interest annually to accrue on said bonds.

Those portions of the supplemental answer, which 1559 consist of admissions of the statements in the bill, it has not been deemed necessary to reiterate in this stipulation. The same may be said of allegations in this supplemental answer, which are reiterations of statements in the previous answers, and which have been already stipulated for at previous stages of this litigation.

The above stipulation carefully avoids conclusions of law and inferences and deductions which can be more properly drawn by the Court from the facts.

An Act to Incorporate the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

§ 1. That an act to incorporate the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, passed by the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, on the 22d day of January, 1852, together with the several amendments thereto, made by the said Legislature of the State of Tennessee, passed February 28th, 1852, and February 15th, 1854, in the words and figures as follows, viz:

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee.

§ 1. 8 the said books are directed to be kept open, and on each share so subscribed, shall demand and receive the sum of five dollars in cash, or a note or check for the same, without which the subscription shall be void.

§ 4. As soon as the time for receiving subscriptions, as aforesaid, shall have expired, the said commissioners shall respectively deposit all the money so received by them in some incorporated bank, redeeming its notes in specie, to the credit of the Nashville and

Northwestern Railroad Company, and subject to the 9
order of the President of the Board of Commissioners

B. B. Spicer, S. C. Pavatt and Jas. T. Dunlay, who may establish rules to govern their proceedings, choose their own President, and appoint such other officers and agents as they may think proper; and who or a majority of whom, shall meet at Nashville on the third Monday of April next, ascertain the whole number of shares taken in said company, and publish the same 11
in some newspaper printed in Nashville, on or before the first Monday in May next; and if the number of one thousand shares shall have been subscribed on each of which there shall have been paid the sum of five dollars, the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company shall be regarded as formed, and thenceforth and from the day of the closing of the books of subscription as aforesaid, the said subscribers to the stock shall form a body corporate and politic, in deed and in law, by the name and for the purpose aforesaid, and in 12
all things to be represented by the Board of Commissioners aforesaid, until the Board of Directors are elected as hereinafter prescribed.

§ 5. If, on closing the books aforesaid, the number of one thousand shares shall not have been subscribed, then and in that case the said Board of Commissioners, by themselves or their agents, may receive subscriptions

13 until the number of one thousand shares be taken;
and whenever that number of shares shall be sub-

having a corporate existence as aforesaid, and of which notice shall be given as hereinbefore directed, and may proceed to survey the route for the road, and make an estimate of the cost of its construction; nevertheless, no conclusive and binding location of the road shall be made by the Board of Commissioners, but the same be such times and places as they may think proper, and upon such terms as to time and manner of payment as they may deem expedient, receive additional subscrip-

have been subscribed, upon which the company may be formed, and the subscribers shall thenceforth form a body corporate as aforesaid; Provided, The same shall be done on or before the first day of January, 15 1858; and for the residue of the original number of thirty thousand shares, the said corporation, when organized, may in like manner receive additional subscriptions.

§6. In case more than thirty thousand shares shall have been subscribed on closing the books, when they are first opened, the shares shall be reduced to that number by deducting the surplus shares from the highest subscribers, placing them on equality of numbers 16 as far as can be done, and after such reduction, the holders of the remaining shares shall form the company, and be interested therein, in proportion to the number of shares which they may then respectively hold.

§7. If, on closing the books on the first day of January, 1858, the number of ten thousand shares shall not have been subscribed, the money paid by each subscriber shall be returned to him by the said Board of 17

Commissioners, after paying the expenses of opening the books, and of making a survey and map of the route and estimate of the cost of the road, which the said commissioners are hereby authorized to have made as soon as practicable.

§ 8. The affairs of said company shall be managed by a Board of Directors, to consist of fifteen, and who shall be chosen by the stockholders from their own body, and a President of the company shall be 18 elected by the Director from their own members in such manner as the regulations of the corporation shall prescribe.

§ 9. As soon as the number of one thousand shares shall have been subscribed, it shall be the duty of the Commissioners appointed to declare the same, to appoint a time for the stockholders to meet in Nashville, and give the notice thereof by publication in some of the newspapers in Nashville, at which time and place the stockholders in person, or by proxy shall proceed 19
to elect the Directors of the company, and to enact all such regulations, rules, and by-laws, as may be necessary for the government of the corporation and the transaction of its business.

The persons elected Directors at this meeting, shall serve for such period not exceeding one year, as the stockholders may direct; and at this day the stockholders shall fix on the day the subsequent election of directors shall be held, and such elections shall 20 thenceforth be annually made. But if the day of annual election shall pass without any election of directors the corporation shall not thereby be dissolved, but it shall be lawful on any other day to hold and make such elections in such manner as may be prescribed by a by-law of the corporation.

§ 10. The Board of Directors may fill all vacancies

21 which may occur in it during the period for which their board shall have been elected, and in the absence of the president, may fill his place by electing a president pro tempore.

§ 11. All contracts and arrangements authenticated by the President of the Board, shall be binding on the company without seal, or such other mode of authentication may be used as the company by its by-laws may adopt.

22 § 12. The Board of Directors shall not exceed in their contracts the amount of the capital of the corporation, and of the funds which the company may have borrowed and placed at the disposal of the Board; and in case they shall do so, the President and Directors who may be present at the meeting at which such contract or contracts so exceeding the amount aforesaid shall be made, shall be jointly and severally liable for the excess both to the contractor or contractors and to the corporation: Provided, That any one may discharge 23 himself from such liability by voting against such contract or contracts, and causing said vote to be recorded on the minutes of the board, and giving notice thereof to the next general meeting of the stockholders.

§ 13. The said company shall have the exclusive right of transportation or conveyance or persons, goods, merchandise, and produce over said railroad by them to be constructed: Provided, That the cost of transportation or conveyance shall not exceed thiry-five cents per 24 hundred pounds on heavy articles, and ten cents per cubic foot on articles of measurement, for every hundred miles, and five cents a mile for every passenger: And provided also, That said company may, when they see fit, farm out their right of transportation on said road subject to the rates above mentioned.

§ 14. The Board of Directors may call for the payment of ninety-five dollars on each share of stock in sums not exceeding ten dollars in every thirty days: 25

Provided, That twenty days notice be given of such call in at least one public newspaper of the State in which any of the stockholders may reside; and a failure to pay or secure to be paid, according to the rules of the company, any of the installments so called as aforesaid shall induce a forfeiture of the shares or shares on which default shall be so made, and all payments thereon, and the same shall vest in and belong to the company, and may be restored to the owner or owners
by the Board of Directors, if they deem proper, on the 26 payment of all arrears on such shares and legal interest thereon, or the Directors may waive the forfeiture after thirty days default, and sue the stockholder for the installments due at their discretion.

§ 15. The stock of said company may be transferred in such manner and form as may be directed by the bylaws of said corporation.

§ 16 The said company may, at any time, increase it capital to a sum sufficient to complete said road and 27
stock it with everything necessary to give it full operation and effect, either by opening books for new stock, or by selling such new stock, or by borrowing money on the credit of the company, and on the mortgage of its charter and works, and the manner in which the same shall be done in either case shall be prescribed by the stockholders at a general meeting; and any State or any citizen, corporation or company of this or any other State or country, may subscribe for and hold stock in said company with all the rights and subject 28
to all the liabilities of any other stockholder.

§ 17. The Board of Directors shall, once in every year at least, make a full report of the state of the company and its affairs to a general meeting of the stockholders, and oftener if directed by a by-law, and shall have power to call a general meeting of the stockholders when the Board may deem it expedient.

29 § 18. No person but a bona fide stockholder in his own right, of at least ten shares, which he shall have held at least three months previous to his election (except the first election) shall be president or a director of the company, nor shall any stockholder vote in person or by proxy at any general or other election (except the first) who shall not have held in his own right the shares on which he offers to vote, at least three months previous to such election.

30 § 19. Stockholders may vote in person or by proxy, and in the election of directors and in voting on all questions which come before a meeting of the stockholders, or which may be submitted to the decision of the stockholders in any other manner, the vote shall be taken according to the following scale, viz, each stockholder shall have one vote for each share he owns; Provided, That no individual, corporation or company shall be entitled to more than five hundred votes.

31 § 20. That said company may purchase, have and hold in fee or for a term of years, any lands, tenements and hereditaments, which may be necessary for said road or appurtenances thereof, or for the erection of depositories, store houses, houses for the officers, servants or agents of the company, or for workshops or foundaries to be used for said company, or for procuring timber, stones or any other materials necessary for the construction of the road or its appurtenances, or for effecting transportation thereon or for other purposes.

32 § 21. That said company shall have the right when necessary to construct the said road or any branch thereof, across or along any public road or water course; Provided, that the said road and the navigation of such water course, shall not be thereby obstructed.

§ 22. The said company may purchase, have and hold any bridge or turnpike road over which it may be necessary to pass, and when such purchase is made, to 33 hold the said bridge or turnpike road on the same terms and with all the rights which belong to the individual, individuals or corporation from which such purchase may be made; Provided, that the said company shall not obstruct any public road without constructing another as convenient as may be.

§ 23. Where any lands or rights of way may be required by the said company for the purpose of constructing their road, and for want of agreement as to 34
the value thereof, or from any other causes the same cannot be purchased from the owner or owners, the same may be taken at a valuation to be made by five commissioners or a majority of them, to be appointed by the Circuit Court of the county where some part of the land or right of way is situated, and the said commissioners before they act shall severally take an oath before some Justice of the Peace, faithfully and im-partially to discharge the duty assigned to them. In making the said valuation, the commissioners shall take 35
into consideration the loss or damage which may occur to the owner or owners of the land, in consequence of the land being taken, or the right of way surrendered, and also the benefit and advantage he, she or they may receive from the erection or establishment of the railroad or works, and shall state particularly the nature and amount of each, and the excess of loss and damage over and above the benefit and advantage shall form the measure of valuation of the said land or right of way. The proceedings of said commissioners, accom- 36
panied with a full description of the said land or right of way, shall be returned under the hands and seals of a majority of the commissioners to the court from which the commission issued, there to remain a matter of record. In case either party to the proceedings shall appeal from the valuation to the next session of the Court granting the commission, and give reasonable notice to the opposite party of such

37 appeal, the Court shall order a new valuation to be made by a jury, who shall be charged therewith in the same term, or as soon as practicable, and their verdict shall be final and conclusive between the parties unless a new trial shall be granted ; and the lands or right of way so valued by the commissioners or jury, shall vest in the said company in fee simple, so soon as the valuation may be paid, or when refused may be tendered to the extent of two hundred feet wide. Where there may be an appeal as aforesaid, from the valuation of 38 the commissioners of either of the parties, the same shall not prevent the works intending to be constructed from proceeding, but where the appeal is by the company requiring the surrender, they shall be at liberty to proceed with their works only on condition of giving to the opposite party a bond with good security to be approved by the Clerk of the Court where the valuation is returned, in a penalty equal to double the said valuation and interest in case the same be sustained ; and in case it be reversed, for the payment of the valuation
39 thereafter to be made by the jury and confirmed by the Court. Provided, That when the land cannot be had by gift or purchase the operations of the work are not to be hindered or delayed, during the pendency of any proceeding to assess its value as aforesaid, nor shall any injunction or supercedeas be awarded by any judge or Court to delay the progress of said work.

§ 24. In the absence of any contract with the said company in relation to lands through which the said
40 road may pass, signed by the owner thereof or by his agent, or any claimant or person in possession thereof, which may be confirmed by the owner, it shall be presumed that the land upon which the road may be constructed, together with a space of one hundred feet on each side of the centre of said road, has been granted to the company by the owner thereof, and the said company shall have good right and title thereto, and shall have, hold and enjoy the same as long as the same

be used only for purposes of the road and no longer, unless the person or persons owning the said land at the time that part of the road which may be on said land was finished, or those claiming under him, her or them, may apply for an assessment for the value of the said lands as hereinbefore directed, within five years next after that part of said road was finished ; and in case the said owner or owners, or those claiming under him, her or them, shall not within five years after the said part was finished, apply for such assessment, he, she or they shall be forever barred from recovering the said land, or having any assessment or compensation therefor. Provided, nothing herein contained, shall effect the right of femmes covert or infants, until two years after the removal of their respective disabilities.

§ 25. If any person shall intrude upon the said railroad or any part thereof, by any manner of use thereof or of the rights and privileges connected therewith, without the permission or contrary to the will of said company, he, she or they shall forthwith forfeit to the said company all the vehicles that may be intruded on said road, and the same may be recovered by suit at law, and the person or persons so intruding may also be indicted for misdemeanor, and upon conviction fined and imprisoned by any Court of competent jurisdiction.

§ 26. If any person shall wilfully or maliciously destroy, or in any manner hurt, damage or obstruct the said railroad, or any bridge or any vehicle used for or in the transportation thereon, such person or persons so offending, shall be liable to be indicted therefor, and on conviction, shall be imprisoned not more than six nor less than one month, and pay a fine of not less than twenty dollars, and shall be further liable to pay all expenses of repairing the same, and it shall not be competent for any person so offending against the provisions of this charter to defend himself by pleading or giving in evidence that he was the owner or agent, or

45 servant of the owner of the land where such destruction, hurt, damage, injury or obstruction was done, or caused at the time the same was caused or done.

§ 27. Every obstruction to the safe and free passage of vehicles on the said road, shall be deemed a public nuisance, and may be abated as such by an officer, agent or servant of the company, and the person causing such obstruction, may be indicted and punished for erecting a public nuisance.

46 § 28. The said company shall have the right to take at the storehouses they may establish, or next to their railroad, all goods, wares, merchandise and produce intended for transportation, prescribe the rules of priority and charge and receive such just and reasonable compensation for storage as they by rules may establish (which they shall cause to be published) or as may be affixed by agreement with the owner which may be distinct from the rates of transportation. Pro-
47 vided, That the said company shall not charge or receive storage on goods, wares or produce which may be delivered to them at their regular depositories for immediate transportation, and which the company may have the power of transporting immediately.

§ 29. The profits of the company, or so much thereof as the board of directors may deem advisable, shall, when the affairs of the Company will permit, be semi-annually divided among stockholders in proportion to the stock each may hold. 48

§ 30. The said company is hereby expressly prohibited from carrying on any banking operations, but may effect insurance on lives and property transported on the road.

§ 31. Whenever, in the construction of said road, it shall be necessary to cross or intersect any established road or way, it shall be the duty of the company to construct said road across such road or way, as not to 49 impede the passage or transportation of persons or property along the same, or where it shall be necessary to pass through the land of any individual, it shall be their duty to provide for such individual a proper wagon way or ways across said road from one part of his road to the other.

§ 32. The said company shall possess such additional powers as may be convenient for the due and successful execution of the powers granted in this charter, and 50 for the successful construction and management of the work.

§ 33. The president, directors, clerks, agents, officers and servants of said company, shall be exempt from military duty, except in cases of invasion or insurrection, and shall also be exempt from serving on juries and working on public roads.

§ 34. The company shall have full power and authority to purchase and own such number of slaves as 51 shall be necessary for the construction of the said road and for keeping the same in repairs.

§ 35. If, by decree or otherwise, the said corporation shall be dissolved, the president and directors of said company are created trustees, with such powers only as may be necessary to collect the debts due the company, preserve the property, pay the debts, and distribute the property and effects of the company to those who may be entitled thereto under the charter. 52

§ 36. The capital stock of said company shall be forever exempt from taxation, and the road, with all its fixtures and appurtenances, including workshops, warehouses and vehicles of transportation, shall be exempt from taxation for the period of twenty years from the completion of the road, and no longer.

§ 37. The railroad authorized by this act, shall be

53 commenced within three years after the passage of this act, and shall be finished within ten years thereafter, otherwise the charter hereby granted shall be void.

§ 38. Any individual or individuals, company or body corporate, with permission of the Legislature of this State, may hereafter construct branches to connect with the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad; and it shall be the duty of said company, when required, to receive on their road the full loaded freight cars from such 54 branches, and transport the same to their destination, and to return them without changing the loads thereof or charging for the transportation of the goods, wares, merchandise and produce therein, any greater rate of freight than they charge for similar goods, wares, merchandise and produce in their own cars; Provided, that the company shall not be compelled to receive said cars on their roads, unless they are constructed in the same manner and are of equal strength with their own cars, of which the engineer of the main road shall be
55 the judge; and provided, that the company shall not be required to receive any car from such branches without receiving payment for at least twenty miles transportation; and provided, also, that the said company shall be entitled, in all respects, to similar and equal privileges on such branches constructed to unite with their road, with the same restraints.

§ 39. That the Board of Commissioners of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, is hereby authorized and empowered to appoint three judges and two clerks, 56 for the purpose of holding an election for fifteen directors of said company, and upon the certificate of said judges, the said directors shall be authorised to qualify as directors, and to make all rules, regulations and by-laws, necessary for the government of said company and the management of its affairs, not inconsistent with the general laws of the land.

§ 40. That the board of directors of said company shall have power to appoint three judges and two 57 clerks from year to year, for the purpose of holding an election for directors.

§ 41. That the said company be required to estimate and credit semi-annually, to the several holders thereof, a sum equal to six per centum per annum on the capital stock of said company actually paid in, to be charged to the construction until the road opens for business: Provided, a majority of the stockholders at their first regular meeting agree thereto. 58

§ 42. That when a sufficient portion of the stock of the company is taken to commence work upon said road, that the work be commenced at the same time at Nashville and at the Mississippi river, and that the work be thus continued until said road be completed.

§ 43. That in the construction of a bridge across the Tennessee river for the purpose of avoiding any interference with the navigation of said river, it shall be the duty of said company to build said bridge at least 59
thirty feet above extreme high water mark, between any two piers the company may deem best, and the distance between the two so selected shall be at least one hundred and fifty feet, so as to afford free and safe passage for all size boats.

CHAPTER 275.

SECTION 12. Be it further enacted, That the charter 60 of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad be so amended that the stockholders upon subscribing shall not be required to pay more than one per cent. of their subscriptions, and that the acts of any three of the commissioners at any one place may be valid without the concurrence of the whole board.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee.

61 § 1. That the forty-second section of an act entitled,
"an Act to charter the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad," passed January 22d, 1852, be so amended as to read as follows: "That the President and Board of Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, may commence the work on said road where it intersects the Mobile and Ohio Railroad in Obion County, Tennessee, at the point where the cheapest and most practicable route to the Madrid Bend will strike said Mobile and Ohio Road, to be ascertained by 62 a sworn engineer, and prosecute their work eastwardly from that point, instead of commencing on the Mississippi river, as required in the 42nd section of their charter, and also on both banks of the Tennessee river, if in the opinion of the Board of Directors it is expedient to do so: Provided, That no call shall be made on the stockholders residing west of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad, until that part of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad lying west of the Mobile and Ohio road is under contract: And provided further, 63 That this amendment shall not be binding on the company, or become a part of its charter until the same is ratified at a general meeting of the stockholders in said company (called for that purpose by order of the Board of Directors), by a vote of a majority in interest of the stockholders, counting the votes according to the basis fixed in the charter of said company, in the election of Directors.

§ 2. Be it enacted, That the 37th section of "An act
64 to incorporate the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company," passed January, 1852, Chapter 74, be so amended as to allow said railroad company three years from the passage of this act to commence their work, and five years from the passage of this act to complete a section of thirty miles "ready to receive the iron rails, and that the said company shall receive the State aid as provided by the act of 11th February, 1852, entitled, '"An act to establish a system of Internal Improvements in this State:" ' Provided, That the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad shall be located through Dickson County. 65

§3. Be it enacted, That the 43d section of the charter of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company be so amended as to allow said company to construct a draw-bridge across the Tennessee river, so as not to obstruct the free navigation of said river.

§4. Be it enacted, That said company be and they are hereby allowed to receive subscriptions for three-quarters, half, and quarter shares of stock, and issue certificates for such fractional shares of stock. 66

Be and the same are hereby re-enacted and adopted, with the privileges, franchisees, powers and responsibilities conferred and granted by said charter, so far as the same are applicable and not inconsistent with the constitution of Kentucky, to enable the said Nashville and Northwestern Company to continue their line of railway to the city of Hickman, in Fulton County, Kentucky. 67

§5. This act to take effect from its passage.

Approved March 8, 1856.

EDGEFIELD AND KENTUCKY RAILROAD 1
vs.
D. W. SENTER, Governor, et al.

This bill is founded on a misapprehension of the 2
action of the Commissioners of the State of Tennessee, under the law approved July 5th, 1870. That act does not contemplate a "foreclosure of the mortgage" as alleged in the bill, nor do the Commissioners by their advertisement referred to as an exhibit propose a sale of the road or of the interest of complainants. It has evidently been overlooked by complainants that the State as mortgagee merely proposes a sale or assignment of its own interest in the railroads, and does not propose a foreclosure, as repeatedly alleged in the bill.
The only mention of the true action of the State and 3 its Commissioners in the bill is an interlineation in pencil made evidently after the draught was finished, and perhaps on the argument of the cause. The sale proposed is provided for in the Act amendatory of the Internal Improvement Act passed December 7th, 1867, which provision is "that upon failure of any railroad company mentioned in said Act for two consecutive years to pay the interest on bonds," &c. This "mortgage" 4 then is to secure the interest as well as principal of the bonds.

The bill proceeds upon the presumption that the sale of the State's interest will amount to a destruction of the interest of the stockholders. This cannot and does

5 not appear from anything in or out of the bill. The State does not propose a sale of the interest of the stockholders. Such a sale would amount to a conversion of the road by the State and would preclude the State from demanding the money secured by the mortgage. The sale of her own interest, which alone she proposes, would simply put the purchaser or assignee of the State's interest into the shoes of the State, and would "not destroy the privity of the estate," nor "pass the title to the road to the purchaser," and if 6 the earnings of the road will soon be ample to meet its debts, as alleged in the bill, what hardships can there be in paying those earnings to another person instead of the State?

The State did not contract to hold her interest forever. It was never contemplated that a contingency would arise where the railroad in the hands of the State's Receiver, as it has been since 1861, would not be able to pay its interest on the bonds.

The bill is lavish in promises like every bankrupt, 7 that the golden shower will descend to-morrow. The State has been neither a rapacious nor niggardly creditor. She has put her Receiver on the road and has run it for some ten years without a return. She assumed its debts to the Federal Government, and has lavished her bonds upon a bankrupt corporation to keep it on its feet, and now when she proposes to dissolve so profitless a partnership and sell out her interest, her hands are to be tied by injunctions, and she amused with promise of future payment which nothing 8 int he past history of the road warrants. And in the same breath that speaks golden promises we are told that the debts assumed for it to the United States Government and the advances made to it, by which, if at all, its prosperous future will be produced, were a fraud upon the stockholders and an iniquity that a Court of conscience must prevent. Is the State of Tennessee to be prohibited from selling her own interest on account of general and declaratory allegations as to

"Strangers" obtaining possession of the road who will 9
destroy complainant's interest? If the $10,000 or $20,000 net earning of the road (per month) shortly to be realized is an argument to keep the State from selling out, it will certainly keep the purchaser of the State's interest from destroying the road or complainants' interest therein. It would certainly be a strange stranger who would buy "a goose" worth $1,481,000 and "kill her" in the act of laying 20,000 golden eggs per month. Complainants are endeavoring to climb
the mountain before reaching its base. 10

Whether there may or may not be equity upon the face of complainants' bill to entitle complainants to an account, it is not necessary now to discuss. The proposition now to be disposed of is whether upon the case made out by the bill, the sale of the State's interest should be enjoined. Whatever rights and securities might be found to relate to a proposed conversion of the property of complainants by an absolute sale, we apprehend no one has the right to object to the State's disposing of her own. It is not proposed to argue the 11 right of the foreclose, however that ought to be decided, and however clear the right even to do that may be, it is not necessary upon this application to enter into it. But it is not intended by anything in the foregoing to concede that she has not a perfect right now to foreclose.

A. J. CALDWELL,
Attorney-General.

Washburn, Vol. 1st, 580-1.

REMARKS OF U. S. SUPREME COURT IN MERIAN v. DUNCAN. 15

P. 21. Mr. Justice Strong. How can this decree cut off their rights?

P. 23. Mr. Justice Bradley. Will you state for my information? the holders of State bonds have a lien? do you mean to say they have an expressed lien, or do you contend that the lien which the State has for the payment of these bonds is theirs by implications?

16 P. 23. Mr. Justice Bradley. In whosoever hands they are?

P. 27. Mr. Justice Bradley. Will you please refer me to a copy of one of the bonds?

P. 28. Mr. Justice Bradley. Did the holder get his interest at the State Treasury, or did he have to go to the Company?

P. 28. Mr. Justice Bradley. I want to get all the ar- 17 rangement between the State and the Company. The Company was to furnish the State with money to pay the interest or was the bondholder to go to the company and get his interest.

P. 64. Chief Justice Waite. I don't call to mind the facts of the case, although I remember the names which you have mentioned.

P. 70. Chief Justice. In this case, if I understand correctly the pleadings, there was surrendered by 18
the railroad company an amount of bonds equal to the amount that had been issued to the company, and these bonds were issued for the purpose of raising the money to make that purchase of the State securities to surrender.

P. 70. Chief Justice. But in point of fact the railroad company has discharged an equal amount of the indebtedness of the State as was delivered to the railroad company. 19

P. 70. Chief Justice. They have actually taken up and surrendered to the State an equal amount of bonds to that delivered.

P. 71. Chief Justice. They were internal improvement bonds.

P. 71. Mr. Justice Strong. Do you claim that the remainder of these State bonds, internal improvement bonds, are outstanding ? 20
(They are.)

P. 71. Mr. Justice Strong. Bonds which were surrendered to the State were other State debts.
(Yes, sir.)

P. 72. Mr. Justice Miller. Do you maintain that because these original bonds are out and are a first lien, that these bonds ought not to be a first lien also ?

21 P. 72. Mr. Justice Bradley. The whole proceeding by the legislature was that the lien was for the benefit of the State, and that the State would take up and assume it altogether provided an equal amount of bonds of different kind were surrendered.

Yes, sir.

ARGUMENT OF C. F. SOUTHMAYD, Esq.

22 P. 96. Mr. Justice Strong. The Court below have decreed that these substitution bondholders have a priority.

P. 97. Mr. Justice Strong. The Court below have decreed, if I understand the decree, that the holders of these substitution bonds, by virtue of the action of the Legislature of Tennessee, have a priority of lien over the mortgages of the company, which were prior in 23 date to the passage of the act in 1869. In other words, they have a priority over all the mortgages that were ever in form executed, and, therefore, that they come into the exact place into which the internal improvement holders were.

Mr. Southmayd. They have held that.

P. 97. Mr. Justice Strong. Then are not the holders of mortgages prior in date to the mortgage covering these substitution bonds interested in resisting that.
24 Are they not proper parties?

P. 98. Mr. Justice Strong. They contend that these substitution bonds have no lien whatever.

P. 99. Mr. Justice Miller. If the holders of these first statutory bonds are necessary parties, the Federal Court is ousted of jurisdiction.

P. 100. Mr. Justice Miller. Can you suggest any way in which five hundred men all over the United 25 States could be brought in ?

P. 103. Mr. Justice Strong. Under the act of 1851-2 —this original act which authorized these Internal Improvement Bonds—the State agreed to deliver its own bonds to this railroad company, but retained a lien, if you please, for its indemnity, but requiring the railroad company to provide money to pay the bonds. At best, therefore, was not the State at least a surety in reference to the bonds, if the railroad company was a 26 principal debtor.

P. 104. Mr. Justice Strong. Now, the bondholder was the creditor, the one who purchased the bond. Now, if the principal debtor gives a mortgage to his surety for indemnity, does the mortgage in equity belong to the creditor, and can the grantee assign that mortgage away, so as to take it from a creditor.

P. 122. Mr. Justice Miller. Is there any mode of ascertaining of all these Internal Improvement Bonds 27
what number were issued ?

P. 127. Mr. Justice Harlan. That does not read exactly like the one in the record.

P. 127. Chief Justice. The difference is said not to be material.

P. 128. Mr. Justice Miller. Were those bonds numbered ?

28

P. 128. Mr. Justice Miller. The copy we have here is not numbered.

P. 129. Mr. Justice Clifford. Did the money which the purchaser paid for that bond go to the railroad ?

P. 129. Mr. Justice Clifford. And what security had the holder of the bond for the money ? He had this paper and what else ?

29 P. 129. Mr. Justice Clifford. You can maintain that proposition and perhaps get along.

P. 132. Mr. Justice Strong. How can any man who owns bonds know that he owns one of those that were issued to the Mobile and Ohio Railroad ?

P. 141. Mr. Justice Bradley. Is the State of Tennessee amenable to suits in equity ?

P. 142. Mr. Justice Bradley. No implications arise
30 against a sovereign State, such as do arise against individual sureties, that they shall hold the securities or collaterals in their hands for the benefit of the creditors.

ARGUMENT OF A. CAMPBELL.

P. 174. Mr. Justice Miller. Mr. Southmayd has said nothing at all about the rights of the State to transfer the security or the lien of these bonds.

31 P. 177. Mr. Chief Justice Waite. That was the provision in the Duncan-Elliot mortgage.

P. 181. Mr. Chief Justice Waite. Was any portion of the sinking fund included in that amount.

P. 198. Mr. Justice Strong. Was the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company one of them ?

P. 199. Mr. Justice Strong. That decree was made 32 by the Chancellor of the District of Nashville, and not by the Supreme Court.

P. 199. Mr. Justice Bradley. Who was Chancellor at Nashville at that time ?

P. 201. Chief Justice Waite. What became of the roads that were sold, who bought them, and what has beendone with them ?

P. 201. Chief Justice Waite. They were not bought 33
by the State.

P. 201. Mr. Justice Harlan. Does the State pay the interest on these outstanding bonds ?

P. 210. Mr. Justice Clifford. Does that take vested rights out of the control of the State, that reservation ?

P. 214. Mr. Justice Strong. Suppose that be admitted, that there is no remedy vested in the Court in such a case as that, is it still true that it is impossible for the 34
State to constitute itself trustee for another ?

ARGUMENT OF MR. HUMES.

P. 232. Mr. Justice Miller. You are not willing that this mortgage should be extinguished, but transferred to somebody else ?

ARGUMENT OF JUDGE GEORGE HOADLY.

35
P. 250. Mr. Justice Strong. When you say that, do you mean the liability of the Mobile and Ohio Railroad Company was discharged ?

P. 303. Mr. Justice Harlan. I suppose under that seventh section, that $10,000 in bonds of the State of Tennessee, other than those issued by the railroad, had been purchased by the Company, and the Company had a receipt showing the delivery of that amount of bonds, "and bonds so paid shall be a credit on the bonds issued to the Company." Is it your argument 36 that after they are thus credited, the lien still exists for the bonds.

P. 304. Mr. Justice Harlan. And as between the State and said Company the bonds so paid in shall be a credit.

P. 304. Mr. Justice Harlan. The point is whether 37 you intend to claim the lien is still alive in favor of the bondholders?

P. 305. Mr. Chief Justice Waite. It is your argument, that, after the payment by the Railroad Company to the State of its Sinking Fund, in exact accordance with the terms of the Act, that the Company is again liable for the payment of the bonds of the State in the hands of the holders?

P. 305. Mr. Chief Justice Waite. I say, is again 38 liable for the bonds of the State in the hands of the holders?

P. 305. Mr. Chief Justice Waite. Then your argument is, that the payment by the State of the Sinking Fund to the State is not a discharge of the obligation of the Company in respect to the bonds?

P. 307. Mr. Justice Strong. The Sinking Fund is a cumulative security.

39 P. 307. Mr. Justice Bradley. The cases you have cited are not precisely parallel.

A bill to authorize the Governor of the State to issue bonds of the State of Tennessee to the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company to aid in the building of bridges.

40

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, that for the purpose of aiding the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company in the construction of bridges on their said Railroad, the Governor of the State is hereby authorized and required to issue coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee to said company, to an amount not exceeding the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, bearing an interest of six 41 per centum per annum, payable semi-annually at such places as the President of the said company may designate, which bonds shall be payable in not less than thirty, nor more than forty years after date, and at such places as said President may designate, but said bonds are to be issued as hereinafter provided.

Section 2. Be it enacted, That whenever it shall be made known to the Governor to his satisfaction by the President and directors of said company, that forty 42 miles of said railroad have been put under contract, and that the work on the same is progressing to completion,
and said company has sufficient bona fide subscription
to grade and put the necessary culverts on said section of forty miles, ready for the iron rails, which subscription shall be adjudged solvent and valid by the Board of Internal Improvements, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue to said company coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee of the description aforesaid, to an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dol- 43
lars, to be expended on the bridges necessary to be constructed on the said section of forty miles. And in like manner, when a second section of forty miles shall have been put under contract, and the work therein progressing,
and said company has sufficient bona fide subscription,
to grade and put on the necessary culverts as aforesaid, ready for the iron rails, which subscription shall be adjudged solvent and valid by the Board of Internal Improvements, and all of which facts shall be made known to the Governor in the manner aforesaid, 44 to his satisfaction, then it shall be the duty of said Governor to issue to said company coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee of the description aforesaid, to the amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars to be expended on the bridges necessary to be constructed on said section of forty miles, and a like provision with the like restrictions and conditions in all respects is hereby for an additional section of forty miles of said

45 railroad, the funds to be used in the construction of the necessary bridges on said last named section.

In the 2d Section, 5th line from bottom after improvement insert, "Or any Chief Engineer or other persons appointed to examine and report work of Internal Improvement."

By Guild adopted December 18th.

SECTION 3. Be it enacted, That so soon as the bonds 46 are issued for the first section of forty miles as provided in the first section of this act, the said bonds shall on the issuance thereof, constitute a lien upon all the stock of said company, upon the road-bed, masonry, bridges and other property of said company, and the state shall be invested with such lien on and by virtue of the issuance of said bonds, without a deed from the company for the payment of said bonds and interest accruing thereon; and whenever the bonds are issued for either or both of the other sections of forty 47 miles as specified in the first section of this act, the State of Tennessee shall on and by virtue of the issuance of said bonds be invested with a like lien or mortgage on said section for the payment of said bonds and the interest thereon; including road-beds, masonry, bridges on all of the said section provided for in this act and on all of the stock of said company, without a deed from the company, and said lien or mortgage shall have priority over all other claims against said company, and liens created by the company, after the issu-48 ance of the bonds of the first forty miles of said railroad, shall be void as to the lien of the State of Tennessee hereby created, for the payment of the bonds issued under the provisions of this act and the accruing interest thereon, and the said liens of the state shall extend to and embrace the entire railroad, its superstructure and equipments after completed, and so continue until said bonds and interest thereon are paid off and discharged, without a deed from the company.

SECTION 4. Be it enacted, That said company shall pay into the Bank of Tennessee at Nashville, at least ten days before the interest falls due upon said bonds from time to time, an amount sufficient to pay said interest as it falls due, or deposit in said bank at Nashville satisfactory evidence that the same has been paid or provided for by said company. And should said company fail to comply with the provisions of this section of this act, or fail to pay said bonds when they fall due, then it shall be the duty of the Governor of the State to cause such suit or suits to be instituted and such proceedings to be had against said company as will most speedily and effectually protect the interest of the State and secure the payment of said bonds or said interest. And the Court or Courts in which such suits are instituted shall make all such rules or orders and decrees therein as will best indemnify the State against any loss on account of the issuance of said bonds by a sale of said roads, equipments and other property of the company, or by ordering the road, rents, issues, profits and assets to be placed in the hands of a Receiver or Receivers, or otherwise.

SECTION 5. Be it enacted, That the Legislature of this State shall have power to enact any law or laws that may hereafter be deemed necessary to protect the interest or credit of the State against loss or damage on account of the issuance of said bonds, and to provide for the more speedy and certain payment by the company of said bond and interest—not impairing the vested rights of the stockholders—and that for that purpose and the purposes of notice of the existence of this act, the same is hereby declared to be a public law.

SECTION 6. Be it further enacted, That before the Governor shall issue any bonds under the provisions of this act, he shall require the engineers of said company to examine the premises where said bridge or bridges are to be built, and ascertain as near as he may

53 be able, the cost of construction of such bridge or bridges with good materials and in a good and substantial manner, and report the same under oath to the Governor, and it shall not be lawful for said Governor to issue bonds as aforesaid for a greater amount for the construction of such bridge or bridges than the sum specified in the report of said engineer, and the provisions of this act shall only extend to and include a bridge across the Watanga River—two bridges across the Holston River, and a bridge across Lick Creek on 54 the line of said road—and no bonds shall issue under this act unless upon the written affidavit of the President of said company, and a resolution of a majority of the directors thereof; that said bonds when issued shall not be used for any other purpose than for procuring the means for the construction of said bridge or bridges, and it shall not be lawful for said bonds to be used for any other purpose, provided the estimates of said engineer shall include the masonry on the line of said road.
Provided that the bonds of the State shall not be issued 55 to build the bridges herein provided for until there is stock subscribed by good and solvent individuals, corporations, companies or counties sufficient to grade
the roads and put the timbers on the same from Knoxville to the Virginia State line, which facts shall be certified to the Governor of the State by the written affidavit of the President and Directors of said road.

SECTION 7. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty 56 of said company to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due, from time to time, upon said bonds issued as aforesaid,
an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commissions, or satisfactory evidence that said interest has been paid or provided for,
and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, at the time aforesaid, or furnish the evidence aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to report that fact to the Governor, and the Governor shall 57 immediately appoint some suitable person or persons, at the expense of the Company, to take possession and control of said railroad, and all the assets thereof, and manage the same and receive the rents, issues, profits and dividends thereof, whose duty it shall be to give a bond and security to the State of Tennessee, in such penalty as the Governor may require, for the faithful discharge of his or their duty, as Receiver or Receivers to receive said rents, issues, profits and dividends, and pay over the same under the direction of the Governor 58 towards the liquidation of such unpaid interest. And if said Company fail or refuse to deliver up said road to the person or persons so appointed by the Governor, the said person or persons shall report that fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith issue his warrant directed to the Sheriffs of the Counties through which said road shall run, commanding them to take possession of said road, fixtures and equipments, and everything pertaining thereto, and place the said Receiver in full and complete possession of the same, and said 59 Receiver so appointed shall continue in the possession of said road and fixtures and equipments, and run the same and manage the entire road until a sufficient sum shall be realized, exclusive of the cost and expenses, incident to said proceeding, to pay off and discharge the interest as aforesaid, due on said bonds, when being done, the Receiver shall surrender said road and fixtures and equipments to said Company. The Comptroller shall from time to time settle the accounts with the Receivers, and the balances shall be deposited in 60

the Treasury of the State. The Comptroller is authorized, and it is made his duty upon his warrant to draw from the Treasury any sum of money necessary to meet the interest on such bonds as may not be provided for by the Company, as provided for in this Act, and the Comptroller shall report thereof to the General Assembly from time to time.

61 SECTION 8. Be it enacted, That if said Company shall fail or refuse to pay any of said bonds when they fall due, it shall be the duty of the Governor to notify the Attorney General of the District in which is situated the place of business of said Company, of the fact, and thereupon said Attorney General shall forthwith file a bill against said Company in the name of the State of Tennessee, in the Chancery or Circuit of the County in which is situated said place of business, setting forth the facts, and thereupon said Courts shall 62 make all such orders and decrees in said cause as deemed necessary by the Court to receive the payment of said bonds with the interest thereon and to indemnify the State of Tennessee against loss on account of the issuance of said bonds, by ordering the said railroad to be placed in the hands of a Receiver, ordering the sale of said road, and all the property and assets attached thereto or belonging to said company, or in such other manner as the Court may deem best for the interest of the State.

SECTION 9. Be it enacted, That at the end of five years after the completion of said road, said Company shall set apart one per centum per annum upon the amount of bonds issued to the Company, and shall use the same in the purchase of bonds of the State of Tennessee, which bonds the Company shall pay into the Treasury of the State after assigning them to the Governor and for which the Governor shall give said Company a receipt, and as between the State and said Com-
64 pany the bonds so paid in shall be a credit on the bonds issued to the Company. And said bonds so paid in, and the interest accruing thereon from time to time, shall be and used by the State as a sinking fund, for the payment of the bonds issued to the Company, and should said Company re-purchase any of the bonds issued to it under the provisions of this act, they shall be a credit as aforesaid and cancelled.

And should said company fail to comply with the provisions of this section it shall be proceeded against 65

as provided in the fifth section of this act.

Section 10. Be it enacted, That in the event any of the roads, fixtures or property belonging to any of said roads shall be sold under the provisions of this act, it shall be the duty of the Governor to appoint an agent for the State, who shall attend said sale and protect the interest of the State; and shall, if necessary to protect said interest buy in said road or property in the name of the State. And in case said agent shall 66 purchase said road for the State, the Governor shall appoint a Receiver, who shall take possession of said road and property; and use the same as provided for in the 5th section of this act, and said Receiver shall settle with the Comptroller semi-annually, until the next meeting of the General Assembly.

To the Hon. E. H. East, Chancellor of the State of 67
Tennessee, presiding at Nashville, Tennessee.

The bill of complaint of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, G. A. Henry the President, and the Directors of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company.

DeWitt C. Senter, E. R. Pennebaker, F. H. Butler, Francis B. Fogg, R. J. McKinney and Archibald Wright, citizens of Tennessee, and the first four citizens of Davidson County, R. J. McKinney, of Knox, and 68
Archibald Wright, of Shelby County of said State.

Complainants state that they are the legal representatives of a corporation of said State known and designated in its charter as the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, in the full exercise and enjoyment of the rights and privileges granted them by the legislature of the State in their said charter.

69 That besides the rights, powers, privileges and franchises granted in their own particular charter they are vested by express provision with all the rights, powers, privileges, franchises granted to the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Co. Complainants further state that by the Act of the Legislature known as the General Internal Improvement Law, passed in 1852, the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, upon conditions set out in said law, was authorized to demand and receive from the Governor of the State
70 the coupon bonds of the State at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile, with additional bridge aid granted in other and additional acts, as set out in the same.

Complainants further state that the citizens of Montgomery County, in said State, subscribed six hundred and fifty thousand dollars of stock in said company besides other additional stock subscribed by the citizens of Stewart, Benton and Henry Counties, making a good and solvent stock list of over seven hundred thou-71 sand dollars. That said subscribers with but few exceptions, have paid up all their stock subscriptions, and the money has been expended judiciously, economically, and wholly in the preparation of the roadbed ready for the iron rail.

That finding unprecedented and unsuspected obstacles in the path of said roadway which penetrates and cuts through the Tennessee River Ridge, the said company was compelled to raise other means outside of their stock subscription to complete their roadway.
72 To do so they applied to the Legislature then in session to pass an act authorizing the said company to issue second mortgage bonds to the maximum amount of three hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($350,000), and to secure the same by a mortgage on their roadbed, rights, franchises, and all other property of every description belonging to said company; making said bonds secondary only to State aid so as above authorized to be issued. A copy of their said mortgage is herewith filled and made part of this bill as Exhibit 73 (A). Complainants state that of the expenditure of said stock subscription the proceeds arising from the sale of a portion of said mortgage bonds and the predicating of others as collaterals on loans, the said road was finished and put in successful operation. But almost immediately thereafter the road was seized by the military authorities, then in possession of the County by and with the concurrence and sanction of the State of Tennessee, and after having used the same without payment or profit to the company was left by 74

the military aforesaid, with the bridges across the Tennessee and Cumberland rivers burned and the track torn up; and the rolling stock destroyed or removed.
In this prostrate condition it remained for nearly five years during which time, the whole country through which it passed suffered the ravages of a desolating civil war. During this time the interest on its bonds was of course unpaid, but as complainants state from no fault with which they are justly chargeable, but from the overwhelming calamities of civil war, and are 75 advised that it is the duty of a State to protect its citizens from the consequences of lawful war, and will not permit them to bear the losses inflicted by a state of war.

Complainants state that in the year 1865, when the business of the country was utterly prostrated and when the said Company was so as above stated in default, but having been guilty of no malfeasance, the State by its Governor appointing a Receiver for said Railroad and the Act of 1865, Chap. 9, was passed, by 76 which the unpaid interest was funded and bonds issued in discharge of same to the amount of three hundred and twelve thousand six hundred dollars and charged up to said company. That afterwards, to wit: in 1866, January 18th, the State issued to said company or rather to the Receiver, but not on application of the company, the further sum of five hundred thousand dollars of the bonds of the State, and though the same

77 went into the hands of the Receiver and never into the control or management of the company, they have been charged up to this company on its bonded debt account at their par value, when they aver the fact to be that said bonds were not worth par, but largely less, say from fifty to forty cents in the dollar, and they are informed and believe were used by the Receiver at a discount to the amount above specified thus making the bonded debt of the road $1,894,600, which when added to the now accrued interest account, to wit: $511,542,
78 makes the whole bonded debt as above stated July 1st, 1870, $2,406,144. Thus by its own action and that of its Receiver and without the assent of the corporation more than doubles the original bonded debt of company in the short space of four years and by the gross mismanagement and frauds of its agents largely increasing the floating unbonded debt of the company.

Complainants state that with the affairs of the company in this deplorable condition the Legislature, in 1869, passed an Act permitting the President and Di-79 rectors of the company to take charge of and manage its affairs, the President to be ex-officio Receiver for the State.

They state that when they proceeded to take charge of said company, they found the accumulated indebtness as above stated, and the treasury without one cent, and the road itself in the hands of a foreign corporation made with a former Receiver, as they are advised, without authority of law, and that, too, with a corporation whose policy it is to get not only the tempor-80 ary possession, but the absolute ownership of said road.

Complainants state that this lease will now soon be terminated, and the road come really and not nominally under the management and into the hands of the proper officers of the company.

Complainants state that this road has had no other northern outlet but the Louisville and Nashville road, but that now the Nashville, Henderson and Evansville is very near completion, and will run its trains through, 81 as they are advised and believe, on or before the first day of January next. That this line will enable their road to tap the great northern system of roads by a route as near and convenient as by way of Louisville; that this connection will make their road the great trunk line, over which must go southward the immense coal supplies furnished by the inexhaustible mines through which the N. H. and Evansville Road runs, and in every other way add largely to its travel and traffic; that the said N. H. and Evansville Road is in- 82 timately connected, geographically and in interest, with the Penn. Central Road (a wealthy corporation seeking southern trade and travel), and as soon as its roadway is so, as above said, completed, will, in interest, and as they believe in fact, bring said Pennsylvania Central in actual contact with their said road, at its northern terminus, the Kentucky State line, thus adding greatly to its earnings, and if, at any time, a sale should be necessary, furnishing a competing and wealthy bidder, when, as the matter now stands, the Louisville and 83 Nashville Road will be the only bidder at the sale of sufficient power of wealth to become a real purchaser and retain the property at the minimum price fixed by the law, when, as these complainants aver, it is worth many hundred thousand of dollars now. And thus, too, enabling said Louisville and Nashville Company to cut off the Memphis and Ohio Road from all hope of shaking off the incubus of a lease said company has on said M. and O. Road, and by means of which (if thus cut off from all northern and eastern con- 84 nection at Paris) the said Louisville and Nashville Company can and will absorb the said M. and O., in its own good time and at its own figures.

Complainants state in addition, by way of showing the great and speedy enhancement of value which has and will continue to be the case with their roads, that owing to the improved and improving condition of the South, the earnings of their road has increased under

85 the management of its present President, in one year, to a sum almost equal to their interest account, and that in the last month the earnings of their road has been almost double that of its earnings while in the hands of other receivers, and they verily believe and assert that from and after the 1st day of January next the company will be able to pay its interest and sinking fund account.

Complainants state that on the day of the Legislature, at the instance of this 86 company, in part, passed an act authorizing all railroad companies in the State to pay their indebtedness to the State in State bonds of any series, and to substitute their own mortgage bonds therefor. They state that, in accordance with a provision of their charter, making it necessary in order that any amendment of their charter should become a part thereof, that it shall receive the unanimous sanction of their Board; this company did so accept and adopt said above recited law, and that the same, as they are advised, thereby 87 became a part of their vested or chartered rights, and they were in the act of availing themselves of its provisions by arranging with all the creditors, except the State, to convert their debts into stock, and by a mortgage of their road, obtain money with which to purchase
the Tennessee bonds to liquidate their State liability,
a scheme which has been successfully carried out by other corporations in this and other States, and which, they aver and state, they still feel competent to accomplish. This, without the loss of one cent to the 88 State, save to its citizens, the stockholders and creditors of the company, one million of dollars in the single item of discount, keep the road in original hands and prevent it from going into the hands of some foreign company or corporation, whose policy and interest is inimical to that of the State and its people.

Complainant is advised that the State, as one only of the creditors, will not, in your Honor's Court, be permitted to take an inequitable advantage of its precedence to the irreparable detriment of other creditors, 89 equal in merit though subsequent in priority of lien; nor by any unwise and forced sale diminish the trust fund to such a wasteful extent as to render impossible for others to obtain their just demands or any portion thereof. And much more forcible does this principle apply when it is, as can be be made clearly and palpably to appear, that a different management of the trust property can result in no loss to the State, but in great advantage to the other and equally meritorious creditors. Notwithstanding all the above recited facts 90 and laws, the Legislature on the 5th and 8th of July last, passed an act authorizing the said defendants as Commissioners, to sell or to lease said M. O. and Louisville Road, its rights and franchises and all its property of any sort and description, which said two acts the company never accepted, adopted or made part of their charter, but on the contrary have always protested against the same. And the said commissioners are now pretending to execute the said pretended law, as will more fully appear by reference 91

to the advertisement filed along herewith, as Exhibit
B, and made part of this bill, by reference to which it will be seen they propose not only to sell but to transfer said road, and otherwise to carry out the provisions of said act, whereby they are not only authorized to sell and convey or lease, but to put the purchaser in possession and denounce heavy penalties, both fine and imprisonment, if said possession is resisted. Complainants are advised that the act above recited as the General Internal Improvement Law, is virtually the 92 contract between stockholders who put their money in ths enterprise along with the State, and that any law changing the condition of the same would be in violation of their charter, and as it would be a law impairing the obligation of contracts unconstitutional. By the terms of said law, in case the road shall, by calamities it could not control, or by any malfeasance or otherwise, fail to pay its interest, the law authorizes the Governor of the

93 State to put a receiver in possession who shall run said road, and pay over the net earnings until the overdue intersest is all paid; and when this is done the law provides that the road shall be returned to the company by such receiver. The power of sale is only given when the bonds themselves fall due, and complainants aver that none of the bonds issued to this company are yet due, or will for eighteen years yet to come; but the laws passed as above said, on the 5th and 8th of July last, authorize said commissioners to sell, convey and,
94 depriving the company of control, put the purchaser in actual possession without privilege of redemption; in a word, to create in the purchaser an absolute title.

Complainant is advised that even though the honorable Court should think the State possessed the power to pass a law to sell and convey, the courts would interfere in case the amount being a large one was not, with some approximate degree of certainty, ascertained, as the largeness of the debt, which is made a minimum, would deter and drive off bidders, and place the inter-95 est of the company and its creditors in the power and at the mercy of wealthy corporations and individuals.

In this connection, complainants state, as they have before stated, that at least one-half of the whole debt claimed by the State, to wit, $1,200,000, was incurred by the receiver, who was put in possession by the State and received these bonds and used them without the sanction or authority of complainants or said company; and are advised that even if the Court should hold that they are responsible at all, they could only be held 96 liable for the actual value of said bonds and interest on said sum so realized, and applied to the improvement of said road. Complainants state again, as they have before stated, that the State, through its receiver, was in possession of said property for nearly five years; and they are advised that during all of said time, the mortgagee being in possession of the mortgaged property, cannot collect interest, but only the earnings, the rents and profits of the estate.

They state that during said period of occupation by 97
the State, through its receiver, they, the stockholders
of the company, were deprived of their property, and could have paid their interest or have made some provision for same ; but inasmuch as they did not have possession, they are in nowise responsible for the interest aforesaid, and the sum ought not to be charged against this company. Complainants aver that if upon an account taken, which they here ask for, it should appear, as they verily believe it will, that they owe the State but a million and a half, they could 98 easily pay up every cent so due, but if this road is sold until this balance is ascertained, they could not protect their property from hasty sale, because these large demands would inevitably make capital timid in investing in their mortgage bonds.

Complainants are advised that not only is said acts of 7th and 8th of July unconstitutional, for the reasons above stated, but for the further reason that they confer upon the treasurer, one of the distinct and separate departments of the Government, to wit, the Executive, 99 judicial powers, thus violating the constitution of the State, which declares that the executive and judicial departments of the Government shall be separate and distinct. The enforcement of legal rights can only be effected by judicial orders and decrees ; but these acts imposed upon him the judicial power to issue his warrant to the sheriff, commanding him to put the purchaser or lessee in full possession, and inflict heavy penalties upon all persons who may resist this flagrant outrage upon the chartered rights of the company. 100
They are advised there is no authority in the Constitution for this extraordinary exercise of power, and that the acts of the General Assembly of the 5th and 8th of July, 1870, are therefore null and void.

Complainants state that, occupying fiduciary relations to all the parties in interest, the creditors, including the State, the 2d mortgage bondholders, the general creditors and the stockholders, they file this bill in

101 the interest and for the protection of the rights of all and ask that all be allowed to become parties and assert their rights. Complainants state that the Honorable Board of Commissioners have by virtue of said acts of 5th and 8th July, 1870, advertised said road for sale and will sell the same at Nashville at public auction on the 3d day of Nov. next, or lease the same to the irreparable loss and damage of this company and in violation of their chartered rights unless restrained by injunction from this Honorable Court. The premises considered, 102 complainants pray that copy and Spa issue that all the parties named as Railroad Commissioners in the caption be made parties defendant. Complainant's pray that your Honor will grant them writs of injunction restraining and enjoining said defendants, either or all of them, their agents or attorneys, from selling said road as they propose to do in their said advertisement or in any other manner carrying out or enforcing said acts of July 5th and 8th, 1870, either by sale or lease. Complainants further pray that said defendants and 103 all other persons be prohibited and enjoined from molesting any of the property or assets of said R. R. company or from executing any laws enacted in reference to said road except those which are contained in, or accord with, the terms of the original charter and the amendments which have been adopted by the said company. And the State of Tennessee being now in the possession of said railroad and property and assets by its Receiver holding a sufficient guarantee for the proper use of the property, they pray the writ of in-104 junction herein prayed for, issue without security. Complainant prays for an account in this cause and that the company be relieved of all the interest on the bonds issued to it during the war while the road was under the military authority of the State, and while the same was in the possession and run by the Receiver of the State. As to whether the company is responsible for the bonds issued by the State since the war, and if so, what discount the same were used at and how 105

much of actual value they were to the road.

And upon final hearing said injunction be made perpetual, that the said company be relieved of said interest accrued during the war and while the road was in the possession of the State. Of all bonds issued since to Receiver and not to the company, or of all except the real cash value of the same. And as in duty bound they will ever pray. This is the first application for an injunction in this case. They pray that the charter and all the statutes of the State of Tennessee 106 with relation to said railroad, the reports of the earnings of the said railroad by the Louisville and Nashville, and the Receiver, and the reports made to the Legislature herewith filed be received as Exhibits in this Bill to be read at the hearing thereof.

Friday morning, April 5th, 1872, County Court of said county; met pursuant to adjournment at the court-house in Nashville. Present—His Honor, Thos. T. Smiley, Judge, &c., and the following members of the Court, to wit:

(Here follows names of members.) 19

A majority of the acting Justices of the Peace in and for said county.

Esq. Baskette offered the following, which was adopted:

Be it ordered by the County Court of Davidson county, that the order of this Court on April 3d, 1872, submitting the question of the sale of the county's interest in the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad to the people on the 1st Thursday in 20
August next be recommended.

Whereupon, Esq. Maxey offered the following preamble and resolution in lieu of the one offered by him on Wednesday, the 3d inst.:

Whereas, The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company submitted a proposition to this Honorable Court at its meeting on the day of November, 1871, proposing as a compromise to purchase the interest (whatever it might be) of Davidson county in the capital stock of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and pay therefor thirty bonds of legally issued Tennessee bonds of one thousand dollars each.

And Whereas, That proposition was accepted by this Honl. Court by a vote of thirty-six (36) to one (1).

And Whereas, That action of the Court was subsequently referred to the people of the county for approval, and was approved by a vote of for the proposition to against it.

And Whereas, This Court has heretofore been furnished with an able and exhaustive legal opinion prepared by A. L. Demoss, W. F. Cooper and E. W. Ewing, deciding that all action legally necessary to make the contract binding on the county has already been taken, and that in their opinion the title of said stock now vests in the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company.

And Whereas, Since that opinion was furnished, a case similar in character to that of the county has been decided by the Supreme Court of the State adversely to the position taken by the county, therefore,

Be it Resolved, That the Judge of this Honl. Court be and is hereby authorized and directed to transfer to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company on the books of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company the stock owned by the county of Davidson in said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, being three thousand shares of one hundred dollars each, upon the said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company complying with the following terms and conditions, to wit:

The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Com- 25
pany to pay over to the railroad commissioners for the county, the thirty Tennessee State bonds, as provided for in the proposition of E. W. Cole, President referred to above, with the further condition that said bonds shall have attached thereto the accruing interest coupons from the 1st of January, 1869, to the 1st of January, 1872; and further that said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company shall enter into bond, and deliver such bond to the Judge of this Court, guaranteeing the county 26 against loss on account of any legal claim or claims by the tax-payers of Davidson County to stock in the Nashville and North-Western Railroad Company to an amount equal to the sum, and of the same character of stock as is hereby ordered to be transferred to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company; and further, that said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company shall permit the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company (in which this county has considerable interest) to ex- 27 tend its track on the right of way owned by said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company from the present junction of tracks, near Brown's Creek, to the depot grounds of said Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company.

Upon the foregoing terms being complied with by the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company,
the Judge of this Court is hereby directed to dismiss the appeal and supersedeas now pending in the Supreme Court of the State of Tennessee at Nashville. 28

Which foregoing preamble and resolution was adopted by a vote of 42 to 5, as follows:

CALVIN AMORY STEVENS et al., on behalf of the holders of Internal Improvement Bonds of Tennessee, issued to the Memphis and Charleston Railroad Company

vs.

THE MEMPHIS & CHARLESTON RAILROAD COMPANY et al.

It is hereby stipulated by and between the parties to the above-entitled suits, in order to avoid the trouble, expense and delay of formal proof, that the following facts are to be taken as proven in these causes :

First.—That up to the passage of the Internal Improvement law, February 11, 1852, the State of Tennessee had never defaulted upon the interest of her public debt, and the straight bonds of the State were, before such date, and thereafter, quoted on New York stock exchange as follows :

13 Quotations of sales of Tennessee State bonds taken from the official reports of the New York Stock Exchange—

DATE OF SALE.			AMOUNT OF SALE.	PRICE.
1850	April	23	1,000 6s	105

Second.—That with the exception of some interest paid in 1867 and 1868, and some paid in 1874 and 1875, the State of Tennessee has paid no interest upon any of its obligations since the commencement of the late war, and the coupons of the bonds of these complainants, up to the first day of January, 1876, and since the beginning of the war, except that paid by the State in 1867-8, and in 1874-5, 16 as previously stated, has nearly all been funded into new bonds of the State of Tennessee under the various funding Acts of said State.

Third.—That the prices of Tennessee State bonds at the New York Stock Exchange in each month from April, 1870, to December, 1875, and during the first six months of 1879, were as follows:

1870. 17

QUARTERMASTER GENERAL'S OFFICE, 1

WASHINGTON, D. C., 28*th Sept.*, 1865.

GENERAL ORDERS,
No. 56.

The following order, by the President of the United States, in relation to the relinquishment of the Government's control over all railroads in the State of Tennessee, and their continuations in adjoining 2
States, now occupied by the United States military authorities, and no longer needed for military purposes, is published for the information of all officers and agents of the Quartermaster's Department.

M. C. MEIGS,
Brevet Major General, U. S. A., Quartermaster General.

WAR DEPARTMENT, 3

WASHINGTON, August 8th, 1865.

MAJOR-GENERAL GEORGE H. THOMAS, Commanding Military Division of Tennessee, Nashville, Tennessee.

GENERAL: 4

It having been determined by the Government to relinquish control over all railroads in the State of

5 Tennessee, and their continuations in adjoining States, that have been in charge of, and are now occupied by, the United States military authorities, and no longer needed for military purposes, you are hereby authorized and directed to turn over the same to the respective owners thereof, at as early a date as practicable, causing, in all cases of transfer as aforesaid, the following regulations to be observed and carried out :

6 1. Each and every Company will be required to reorganize and elect a Board of Directors, whose loyalty shall be established to your satisfaction.

2. You will cause to be made out in triplicate, by such person or persons as you may indicate, a complete inventory of the rolling stock, tools, and other materials and property on each road.

3. Separate inventories will be, in the same man-
7 ner, made of the rolling stock and other property originally belonging to each of said roads, and that furnished by and belonging to the Government.

4. Each Company will be required to give bonds satisfactory to the Government that they will, in twelve months from the date of transfer as aforesaid, or such other reasonable time as may be agreed upon, pay a fair valuation for the Government property turned over to said Companies, the same being first
8 appraised by competent and disinterested parties at a fair valuation, the United States reserving all Government dues for carrying mails, and other service performed by each Company, until said obligations are paid ; and if, at the maturity of said debt, the amount of Government dues, retained as aforesaid, does not liquidate the same, the balance is to be paid by the Company in money.

5. Tabular statements will be made of all expenditures by the Government for repairing each road, with a full statement of receipts from private freights passage, and other sources; also a full statement of all transportation performed on Government account giving the number of persons transported, and amount of freight, and the distance carried in each case—all of said reports or tabular statements to be made in triplicate, one each for the Secretary of War, the Military Headquarters of the Department, and the Railroad Company. 9 10

6. All railroads in Tennessee will be required to pay all arrearages of interest due on the bonds issued by that State, prior to the date of its pretended secession from the Union, to aid in the construction of said roads, before any dividends are declared or paid to the stockholders thereof.

7. Buildings erected for Government purposes on the line of railroads, and not valuable or useful for 11 the business of said companies, should not form a legitimate charge against such companies; nor should they be charged for rebuilding houses, bridges, or other structures which were destroyed by the Federal army.

8. You are authorized to give any orders to Quartermasters within your Division, which you may deem necessary to carry into execution this order. 12

By order of the President:

EDWIN M. STANTON,
Secretary of War.

HOUSE BILL No. 542.

A Bill to liquidate the State Debt Contracted in aid of Railroad Companies in the State of Tennessee.

WHEREAS, under the General Internal Improvement Laws of the State, passed from time to time, aid has been granted to various railroad companies by the loaning of the six per cent. bonds of the State, to enable said companies to iron, equip, build and bridge, and for other purposes, which is now secured to the State by a first mortgage, or lien, on the franchise, property, and fixtures of the respective railroad companies, and whereas it is desirable for the general welfare of the State that the

State shall be reimbursed for such amounts as have been advanced to the different railroad companies as fast as may be practicable; therefore,

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the General Asssmbly of the State of Tennessee, That the respective railroad companies, or either of them, that have created indebtedness to the State, are hereby authorized to repay any amount of the principal of such indebtedness as they have respectively created in the bonds of the State, in such amounts and at such times as may be practicable; provided, however, that nothing in this act shall be so construed as to release said railroad companies from any lien which the State may have on the same for any unpaid interest now due on said bonds of the State, authorized to be surrendered by this act.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That any railroad company or companies repaying indebtedness due the State under the provisions of this act, are authorized to issue bonds of equal amount and denomination with bonds of the State paid and delivered up for cancellation as hereinafter provided, which said railroad bonds, so issued in lieu of an equal amount of State bonds, shall be certified to by the Comptroller, and entered in a book to be kept for that purpose, with date, number, and amount, and shall be a lien pro rata in amount, and of equal validity and effect with the unretired part of the State indebtedness upon such railroad, and all its property, franchises, fixtures and materials.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That in order to facilitate the railroad companies that may wish to avail themselves of the provisions of this act in repaying the indebtedness due to the State respectively, they, or any of them, are hereby authorized to consolidate their property, in whole or in part, with other railroad companies, and issue bonds and stock as provided for in the second section of this act, and may adopt the corporate franchise of either of the roads, as the stockholders may elect, and each railroad company paying its indebtedness, and such railroad companies as may consolidate under the provisions of this act are hereby authorized to determine, by a vote of the stockholders of said company or consolidated companies, the number of directors of such company, and elect the same under the new organization, and that the said directors so elected shall, according to the by-laws and rules of said corporation, elect one of their number president of said company.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That the Comptroller of the State shall receive from the railroad companies, or any of them, bonds of the State in such amounts as may be presented, and cancel the same in the presence of the officer or agent of the railroad company paying therein, and execute to said railroad company or companies duplicate receipts for the amount and number of said bonds so paid in, and it shall further be the duty of the Comptroller to certify on the bonds of any railroad company or companies repaying indebtedness due to the State, that the same has been paid, and that the bonds so certified are secured by first mortgage; Provided, that said railroad companies shall liquidate their indebtedness prior to the maturity of the bonds that have caused said indebtedness; and be it further provided, that said bonds, when executed by the respective railroad companies, or either of them, shall be deposited with the Comptroller of the State, whose duty it shall be to deliver said bonds, or any number of them, to the president and directors of the company, or an authorized agent of the company, and the deposit by said president and directors, or authorized agent, an equal amount of the six per cent. bonds of the State of Tennessee, with unpaid coupons attached, and the companies' first mortgage bonds, authorized to be issued by this act, shall have no validity or value except the Comptroller's certificate is affixed on the face of each bond that said bond is executed and issued, and by virtue of law takes the place of a bond of the State, and is a first mortgage bond.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That the Comptroller shall be entitled to a fee of one dollar on each thousand dollars of the bonds certified as aforesaid, to be paid by the railroad company for which the same is done, and it shall be lawful for the Comptroller to discharge the duties imposed by this act by and through an agent in the city of New York, and all the provisions of this act shall attach to and become a part of the charter of any railroad company or companies acting under it.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, That by and with the consent of the board of directors of any railroad company in this State, that has received aid from the State under the general improvement law, passed the 11th of February, 1852, and all the amendments thereto, that any person or corporation may, by paying the indebtedness of such railroad company to the State in bonds of the State as provided for by law, be and they are hereby substituted and entitled to all the liens against said companies for the payment of said debt that the State had or has by law, and the Governor and Secretary of State shall give such party or parties paying said indebtedness, a certificate showing the fact, which shall be evidence against said company of such indebtedness to such individual or corporation.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Amendment No. 1.

Be it further enacted, That any person or persons may, with the consent and approbation of any railroad company which is indebted to, and for which the State of Tennessee holds a lien, pay the said debt, so far as the State is concerned, in the bonds of this State or any mature coupons of bonds at par, and the person or persons so paying the debt of any railroad company, with the consent of such railroad company, shall, upon filing with the Treasurer of this State the written assent of said railroad company, under the corporate seal of said railroad company, be entitled to have and hold all the lien or liens which the State of Tennessee had or has upon said railroad company or its property, and shall have the same right to enforce the same which the State of Tennessee had, the object and intent being to place the person or persons so paying, with the consent of said railroad company, in the same position and with the same rights which the State of Tennessee had previous to and before the said payment, and with full power to enforce the same.

Be it further enacted, That any person or persons who may, with the consent and approbation of any railroad company, pay any part or portion of the indebtedness of such company as provided in section —, shall have, hold and be subrogated in all the rights, privileges and lien or liens of the State, to the extent of, and in proportion to the amount of such indebtedness, with the same rights and privileges the State now has, to the extent of such payment or payments.

Adopted.

Amendment No. 2.

Provided, The passage of this act shall not decrease the lien of the State upon any railroad of the State until the entire claim of the State is fully liquidated, or affect the interest of present bondholders of the State; provided, that railroad companies which have issued second mortgage bonds availing themselves of the provisions of this act shall file with the Comptroller bonds of the same series as those loaned to such company, for which the State holds a first mortgage lien; provided, the bonds to be issued by the company under the provisions of this act shall not have a longer time to run than the bonds of the State thus released and cancelled.

House Bill No. 542, passed second reading, and referred to the Judiciary Committee.

SATURDAY MORNING, January 30, 1869.

Reports from the Committee on the Judiciary, to wit:

Mr. Speaker—The Committee on the Judiciary have had under consideration House Bill No. 542, and have instructed me to recommend its rejection. The committee cannot see how the railroad companies are to be benefited by the arrangement proposed by the bill, except by some advantage to be gained at the expense of the State. The Comptroller is required to certify that the bonds of the company have been issued for the bonds of the State, and exchange and certify these facts, not at his office here, but transact the same in New York, by an agent in a distant city, and a person over whom the Legislature can have no control. Again, the bill proposes that the State shall take from the companies, where they have failed to pay the interest, what she may thus have advanced in cash, her bonds lent to said companies. This is certainly a strange proposition, whilst the present policy of the State shall continue. The State issues her bonds, the companies are to pay the interest on them, they fail to do so, and she pays it in money; they can then buy her bonds at, say sixty-five cents in the dollar, and reimburse her in her own paper, issued for their benefit, she, at this rate, paying some fifty per cent. to said companies, or rather, they are making that off the State in the transaction. This must surely greatly affect the credit and resources of the State. The committee, therefore, hope the bill will be rejected.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

WM. H. WEISENR, Sr., Ch'n.

The unfinished business (House Bill No. 542) was taken up. Mr. Aldridge offered an amendment, which was referred, with the bill, to the Judiciary Committee.

FRIDAY MORNING, February 19, 1869.

Report from the Judiciary Committee, to wit:

Mr. Speaker—The Committee on the Judiciary have had under consideration House Bill No. 542, recommitted to them, and after further investigation they have instructed me to recommend a bill in lieu of both bill and accompanying amendment, and that the bill proposed in lieu be passed. If the bill in lieu be adopted, no difficulty will be encountered; and if the companies are able, as some of them say they are, to substitute their own bonds for those of the State in the money market, of course they can comply with the terms proposed in the bill in lieu. It is said that the bonds of some of the companies who desire the passage of the bill are better, or will bring more in the market, than the State securities. Of course if this be so they will have no difficulty in exchanging their own bonds for those of the State, and in that view they will have no difficulty in complying with the requirements of the bill in lieu. The bill proposes to give, so far as the State can do so, the same lien that she has for her own bonds, to the company whenever it takes up all the bonds issued to such company.

The Committee cannot perceive any valid objection to allowing the companies to issue their own bonds to take up those of the State which are a lien upon the road, if done in good faith, except that the State thereby becomes jointly a mortgagee with such company or its bondholders. This is a very serious objection in more lights than one. In the first place the State should never be a joint mortgagee or partner in any transaction. It complicates her business, and she greatly suffers thereby.

But, then, in a proceeding by the bondholders to foreclose their mortgage, they cannot make the State a party, and might proceed against the road alone, and sell to pay their securities. This is a remote probability, however. Yet, in the embarrassed condition of the roads, and the treasury, such a contingency might happen.

However, if the companies shall procure the bonds issued to them, and which are a lien on the road of the company offering them, perhaps no great harm could result, and that much of the State debt would be paid and extinguished.

But the committee are of opinion that the bonds of the State taken up should be delivered at the capitol in the presence of the Governor, Comptroller, Secretary of State, and Treasurer, and a record made of them ; and that they should, in the presence of the parties aforesaid, with their coupons attached, if any, be defaced or destroyed.

All of which is respectfully submitted,

WM. H. WISENER, Sr.,
Chairman.

House Bill No. 542 was taken up on third reading.

The following amendment, offered by Mr. Aldridge, to the bill, and referred to the Judiciary Committee was adopted, to wit:

Be it further enacted, That any person or persons may, with the consent and approbation of any railroad company which is indebted to the State, for which the State of Tennessee may have a lien, pay the said debt, so far as the State is concerned, in the bonds of this State, or any matured coupons of bonds at par ; and the person or persons so paying the debt of any railroad company, with the consent of such railroad company, shall, upon filing with the Treasurer of this State the written assent of said railroad company, under the corporate seal of said railroad company, be entitled to have and hold all the lien or liens which the State of Tennessee had or has upon said railroad company, or its property, and shall have the same right to enforce the same, which the State of Tennessee had, the object and intent being to place the person or persons so paying, with the consent of said railroad company, in the same position, and with the same rights which the State of Tennessee had previous to and before the said payment, and with full power to enforce the same.

Be it further enacted, That any person or persons who may, with the consent and approbation of any railroad company, pay any part or portion of the indebtedness of such company, as provided in sectiion ——, shall have, hold, and be subrogated in all the rights, privileges, and lien or liens of the State, to the extent of and in proportion to the amount of such indebtedness, with the same rights and privileges the State now has, to the extent of such payment or payments.

Mr. Cate offered the following amendment, to wit:

Provided, The passage of this act shall not decrease the lien of the State upon any railroad of the State until the entire claim of the State is fully liquidated, or affect the interest of the present bondholders of the State.

Adopted.

Mr. Senter offered the following amendment, to wit:

Provided, that railroad companies, which have issued second mortgage bonds, availing themselves of the provisions of this act, shall file with the comptroller bonds of the same series as those loaned to such company, for which the State holds a first mortgage lien. Provided, the bonds to be issued by the company, under the provisions of this act, shall not have a longer time to run than the bonds of the State thus relieved and canceled.

Adopted.

The following is the amendment proposed by the Judiciary Committee, to wit:

Sec. 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the respective railroad companies may relieve themselves from liability to the State, to the extent of the bonds hereinafter authorized to be taken up by producing to the Governor, Comptroller, Secretary of State and Treasurer, for cancellation and destruction, the bonds of the State issued to such company, and which are a lien upon the road bed and property of such company, with unpaid coupons attached, and when the whole amount of said bonds thus issued to said company, shall have been thus produced and cancelled or destroyed, and any lien the State may have for interest paid by her, for such company, shall have been paid, said railroad company may issue its own bonds to that amount, in such manner and time as they may see proper, and which, so far as the State is concerned, may be and are hereby declared to be a lien on the roadbed and other property, as fully and completely as the State now has, and can convey or transfer to such company or its bondholders.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That if any company in this State shall produce any amount of the bonds of this State, issued to said company, and which are a lien on the property of said railroad company, with coupons attached, to the Governor, Comptroller, Secretary of State, and Treasurer, the same may be cancelled and destroyed, the company may issue its own bonds for a like amount, payable at such time and in such manner as the bonds of the State issued to said company, and produced by it for cancellation, and the bonds thus issued shall, so far as the State is concerned, be a lien upon the property of said company, as such bonds thus taken up and cancelled were.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That nothing herein contained shall be construed to weaken, or in any manner destroy, the lien or mortgage the State has on the property of said railroad company, and by accepting the provisions of this act, the companies agree to the same.

Sec. 4. Be it further enacted, That the State hereby reserves a superior lien to any given in the second section of this act, for any payments of interest she may have made for any of the companies applying for the benefits of said section.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That no bonds issued under the second section of this act shall have the effect therein provided for, unless it is certified on said bonds by the Comptroller, and countersigned by the Secretary of State, with the seal of the State attached, and attested by the Governor, and if this be not done, the said bonds thus issued shall be of no force or validity against the State, or any lien it may have on the property of such railroad company, nor against the holder of the bonds of the State having a lien on the property of said company.

Sec. 6. Be it further enacted, That any railroad companies of the State may consolidate, by the consent of the stockholders of the respective companies, and assume the name of either company, and from and after their consolidation, they may continue their corporate existence, with all the rights, privileges and exemptions, and be subject to all the liabilities, restrictions and obligations of the companies whose name they assume; but when they are thus consolidated, and assume the new name, no further State bonds shall issue to said companies, by way of loan or otherwise, unless afterwards authorized by express legislation for that purpose.

SEC. 18. Be it enacted, That the lands, tenements, and hereditaments which it may be lawful for said corporation to hold, shall be only such as shall be requisite for its immediate accommodation for the transaction of its business, and such as have been bona fide mortgaged to it by way of security for, or conveyed to it in satisfaction of debts previously contracted in the course of ordinary banking business, or purchased at sales upon judgments or decrees rendered in favor of said bank.

SEC. 19. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Governor, as soon as the directors are appointed of the principal bank and branches, to convene the several boards of the same by advertisement in some newspaper, giving ten days' notice thereof, at the place the bank or branch may be located, for the purpose of carrying this act into effect.

SEC. 20. Be it enacted, That whenever the president and directors of any company incorporated for the purpose of internal improvement, shall negotiate any bonds executed under the provisions of this act, it shall be their duty to notify the president and directors of the bank, of the place at which the interest on said bonds is stipulated to be paid, which shall be within the limits of the United States, and the president and directors of the bank shall provide for the payment of the interest aforesaid, out of the dividends of the bank; Provided, that if there shall be a surplus of the dividends, after setting apart the amount appropriated to common schools and academies, and after paying the interest on the bonds of the State, the same shall be held by the bank as a contingent fund to be appropriated at any time when there may occur a deficiency in the dividends for the purposes aforesaid; And provided also, that if at any time there shall be a deficiency in the dividends to liquidate the accruing interest on the State bonds, and the contingent fund shall be insufficient for such purpose, such deficiency shall be made up out of any uninvested dividends that may have been declared on the stock owned by the State, in the several works of internal improvement; and if there should still be a deficiency, the same shall be made up by the individual stockholders of the several roads in which the State has subscribed for stock, in proportion to the amount for which the State may have issued her bonds in each, the amount so paid by the several companies to be reimbursed out of the first dividends declared in favor of the State on her stock in said companies.

In the event the dividends of the bank and the profits arising from the stock of the State in internal improvements shall prove insufficient to liquidate the interest on the bonds of the State issued for the purpose of internal improvement, it shall be the duty of the Governor to notify the president and directors of such companies in which the State has subscribed for stock, at least three months before the interest will become payable on the State's bonds, of the probable deficit, and of the amount which will be required of each company to be paid in order to meet the interest on the bonds of the State, and upon receiving such notice from the Governor, it shall be the duty of the president and directors of each and every company thus notified, forthwith to make a call upon the individual stockholders, for an amount equal to the sum claimed by the Governor, in his notice to said companies, which sum or sums of money shall be paid at the time, place and manner required by the Governor, and upon failure thereof, by any of said companies, to meet the instalment thus required, it shall be deemed and taken to be a forfeiture of the interest of the individual stockholder or stockholders thus failing to pay the instalment called for by the Governor; And provided further, that no State bonds shall be issued for the payment of State stock, in works of internal improvement, under the provisions of this act, until the bank hereby established shall go into operation.

SEC. 21. Be it enacted, That the State of Tennessee shall become a subscriber for one-half of the capital stock in all railroads, macadamized turnpikes, graded turnpikes and sanded turnpikes, for which acts of incorporation have heretofore been granted, or for which acts of incorporation may hereafter be granted; Provided, that the subscription on the part of the State shall not exceed one thousand dollars per mile on graded turnpikes, nor seven hundred and fifty dollars per mile in sanded turnpikes; Provided also, the subscription by the State to the Charleston and Cincinnati railroad, and the Hiwassee railroad, shall not exceed one million three hundred thousand dollars, to be equally divided between them, and to be expended within the State of Tennessee.

Sec. 22. Be it enacted, That whenever the Governor shall be notified in writing by the president and directors of any company, for the construction of railroads, macadamized turnpikes, graded turnpikes, or sanded turnpikes, that one-half of the capital stock of said company has been subscribed for, thereupon the Governor shall appoint a number of directors, not to be stockholders, equal to the number elected by individual stockholders, and if in the opinion of two-thirds of said entire board, the payment is well secured by the individual stockholders, or that the individual stockholders are good and solvent persons, and fully able to pay the amount of stock subscribed for by each of them, and that they have paid ten per cent. upon the stock, the Governor of the State is hereby authorized and empowered, and required to subscribe on behalf of the State for the amount provided for in the foregoing section; and from the date of the subscription by the Governor, the State shall have a lien upon the property of each individual stockholder, to the amount of the stock owned by each, and upon the failure of any stockholder to pay any subsequent instalment after the first, such failure shall not operate as a forfeiture of the stock, unless the president and directors shall so agree, but payment shall be enforced by the president and directors, and no transfer or assignment of stock shall defeat the said lien; Provided, that said lien shall cease after the individual stockholders shall have paid in one-half their stock.

SEC. 23. Be it enacted, That whenever the indididuai stockholders of any of the said companies in which the State has become a stockholder under this act, shall have paid five per cent. in addition to the ten per cent. heretofore provided to be paid, making fifteen per cent. upon the amount of their stock, and the president and directors of such company shall notify the Governor of that fact, he is hereby authorized and required to issue the bonds of the State, signed officially by him and countersigned by the Secretary of State, with the seal of the State, payable thirty years after execution, and bearing an interest of five per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually at the office of the Treasurer of Tennessee, or such other places as the president and directors negotiating the same may designate, for an amount equal to fifteen per cent. of the stock subscribed by the State in said company, and deliver said bonds to the president and directors of said company, in full payment of fifteen per cent. of the State subscription. And upon the further payment of fifteen per cent. upon the stock of individual stockholders in any of said companies, the Governor shall issue the bonds of the State for fifteen per cent. more of the stock of the State, in the same manner and under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as hereinbefore provided; and upon the further payment of five per cent. or more upon the stock of individual stockholders, the Governor is authorized and required to issue the bonds of the State for the like proportion of the stock due by the State, under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as before. And in like manner the amounts paid by individuals and the State, at the several subsequent calls, shall be equal, until the whole amount required to complete the work is paid in; and from time to time he shall take the receipts of the president and directors for the several sums as paid. So soon as the president and directors of the Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Company shall certify to the Governor of the State, that the stockholders of said company have paid in five per cent. on their stock, the Governor of the State shall subscribe on behalf of the State, six hundred and fifty thousand dollars in stock in said company, and shall issue bonds of the State to said company for five per cent. on the State stock so subscribed, subject nevertheless to the conditions hereinafter provided. And as soon as the president and directors of the Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Company, or a board of directors appointed by said company, to construct that part of the road lying within the limits of Tennessee, shall certify to the Governor that a sum has been paid in for the construction of said road within the limits of Tennessee, by individual stockholders upon their stock, equal in amount to fifteen per cent. upon the amount to be subscribed by the State, the Governor shall execute the bonds of the State to said company for the amount of fifteen per cent. of the six hundred and fifty thousand dollars of stock to be subscribed by the State. And whenever individual stockholders in said road shall have paid in a further sum upon their stock, equal in amount to fifteen per cent. upon their stock subscribed by the State, the Governor shall issue the bonds of the State for fifteen per cent. of the remaining stock of the State; and upon the further payment by individual stockholders of an amount equal to five per cent. or more on stock subscribed by the State, the Governor shall issue bonds for five per cent. or more of the State stock, and so on in like proportion until the whole amount is issued, all of which is to be laid out within the limits of the State. And whenever the president and directors of the Hiwassee Railroad Company shall notify the Governor in writing, of the amount of stock subscribad by individuals in said company, the Governor shall subscribe for an equal amount of State stock; Provided, such amount does not exceed six hundred and fifty thousand dollars, subject to the same rules as to issuing the bonds of the State as is pointed out by this act for the government of other railroads and macadamized turnpike companies; Provided, that if the six hundred and fifty thousand dollars should not be subscribed by individuals for stock in said company, and a certicate of that fact made out to the Governor on or before the first day of October next, agreeably to the provisions of this act, so as to authorize the Governor to subscribe for the full amount of the six hundred and fifty thousand dollars in said company, the Governor shall subscribe for an equal amount of stock in said road, as is or shall be subscribed by individuals, and certified as is directed by the 21st and 22d sections of this act, and the remainder of the six hundred and fifty thousand dollars shall be subscribed by the Governor to any macadamized, sanded or graded turnpike road company in East Tennessee that shall bring themselves within the provisions of this act. And the Governor is hereby authorized from time to time, to constitute and appoint proxies to vote for directors in said Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Company, and such proxies shall give all other votes he may be authorized to do by virtue of such appointment agreeable to the provisions of said charter. And provided further, that if the Louisville, Cincinnati and Charleston Railroad Company, or the Hiwassee Railroad Company, or either of them, shall fail to obtain the subscription on the part of the State on or before the first day of January, 1839, then and in that case, it shall be the duty of the Governor to subscribe for stock in such turnpike roads in East Tennessee as may bring themselves within the general provisions of this act.

SEC. 24. Be it enacted, That the State of Tennessee shall have a lien on the entire works of said companies respectively, for the amount so paid in by the State. And in all, the profits, rents and tolls of said companies shall inure to the benefit of the State, until individual stockholders shall have paid in their entire stock in said companies respectively; Provided, the right and lien on the part of the State to the entire profits, rents and tolls of the several works, shall not inure until twelve months after the execution of the bonds of the State, for the last installment on her stock as aforesaid, and then only to the extent of that portion of the individual stockholders who have not paid up the entire amount of their stock, and to remain no longer than said defaulting stockholders fail to pay the same.

SEC. 25. Be it enacted, That the stock to be taken by the State in the several improvements, shall not exceed four millions of dollars, to-wit: one million four hundred thousand dollars in East Tennessee, one million six hundred thousand dollars in Middle Tennessee, and one million of dollars in the Western District; Provided, that one hundred thousand dollars shall be raised upon the bonds of the State, and be expended as a portion of the fund allotted to East Tennessee upon the rivers in East Tennessee, as the General Assembly may hereinafter direct; And provided also, that one hundred thousand dollars of the fund alloted to the Western District of Tennessee, be expended upon the rivers in that part of the State, as the General Assembly may hereafter direct; And provided, that one hundred thousand dollars of the fund alloted to Middle Tennessee shall be appropriated to rivers of Middle Tennessee.

Sec. 26 Be it enacted, That the profit arising upon the stock owned by the State in the several works of internal improvement, shall constitute a fund to be applied to the redemption of the bonds of the State executed and to be executed for raising the bank capital herein provided for, and the internal improvement bonds of the State.

Sec. 4. Be it enacted, That whenever, in the opinion of the president and directors of the principal bank, a change of policy in the management of any particular branch or of the whole is required for the general benefit of the institution, they shall have power to call a convention of delegates from all the branches, to be composed of one member from each board of the branches, and the president and directors of the principal bank, to consult and advise in relation to the same, and whatever may be determined on by a majority of said convention, the same shall be the governing policy of the institution.

Sec. 5. Be it enacted, That within thirty days after the appointment of the directors of the different branches, it shall be the duty of the president of the principal bank to call a convention of delegates from the branches, to be composed of the president of each of the said branches and the president and directors of the principal bank, whose duty it shall be to adopt the necessary rules for the intercourse between said principal bank and branches. The proceedings of said convention shall be entered of record at the principal bank by ayes and noes.

Sec. 6. Be it enacted, That in all cases the funds received as capital by the president and directors of the principal bank, from time to time, shall be distributed in the aforesaid proportions, in kind and value, to the respective branches; and in like manner, when the principal bank shall negotiate any bonds for internal improvement purposes, the funds procured shall be distributed in the same proportion in kind and value to the branches, upon their placing the proper amount to the credit of the internal improvement companies in their books.

PUBLIC ACTS 1839-40, CHAPTER 1, PAGE 1, PASSED JANUARY 25, 1840.

AN ACT to repeal all laws authorizing the Governor of this State to subscribe for stock in any internal improvement companies on behalf the State, and for other purposes.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That all laws authorizing the Governor of this State to subscribe for stock on behalf of the State in any company incorporated or to be incorporated for the purpose of constructing any works of internal improvement be and the same are hereby repealed.

SEC. 2. Be it enacted, That the president and directors of any internal improvement company in which the Governor has subscribed for stock on behalf of the State, but has not issued any bond or bonds in payment for such stock, or any part thereof, may by deed surrender the charter of such company, which deed shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State. And in case the Governor shall have issued any bond or bonds of the State in part or whole payment of stock subscribed by him on behalf of the State in any of said internal improvement companies, the president and directors of such company, by first filing in the office of the Secretary of State, to be cancelled, all of such bonds issued to such company, and paying into the Bank of Tennessee, or any of its branches, to the credit of the State, all interest on the same bond or bonds received by such company from the State, may surrender the charter of such company by deed, which deed shall also be filed in the office of the Secretary of State. And the president and directors of any such company in which the Governor has subscribed for stock on behalf of the State, whether the bond or bonds of the State have been issued or not, in whole or part payment of such stock, may by deed release the State from such subscriptions, which deed shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State: Provided, the Governor shall be of opinion the acceptance of such deed of surrender and dissolution of partnership shall be advantageous as well to the State as to said company: Provided, that in case any bond or bonds of the State have issued, such bond or bonds shall be first filed in the office of the Secretary of State to be cancelled, and any interest thereon that shall have been paid by the State shall be first paid into the Bank of Tennessee or its branches to the credit of the State.

SEC. 3. Be it enacted, That in case any internal improvement company in which the Governor has subscribed for stock, and the road not completed, shall be willing to release the State from its subscription or co-partnership in said road, it may be lawful, and the Governor is authorized and empowered, for and on behalf of the State, to dissolve such co-partnership upon the following conditions, to wit: All the bonds which may have been issued by the State to such company shall be filed in the office of the Secretary of State, and all the interest that may have accumulated thereon and been paid by the State, shall be paid into the Bank of Tennessee, together with all other expenses which the State may have incurred in such partnership; then it shall be lawful for the individual stockholders to prosecute to completion, on their own liability, such road. Provided, that no surrender shall be made under this section, unless the Governor, Comptroller and Attorney-General shall be of opinion that the interest of the State will be advanced by such surrender.

Sec. 4. Be it enacted, That in all cases where the subscription of stock by the State in any incorporated company shall have been procured by fraud or mistake; or where the incorporated companies have been making a fraudulent or improper use of the subscriptions of stock on the part of the State, or the bonds issued in pursuance thereof, or where the incorporated companies have disposed of the bonds, and have made, or are attempting to make a fraudulent or improper use of proceeds, or have or intend to apply the same to any other purpose than the bona fide prosecution of the public work for which the same was issued, or may be claimed to be issued or where the corporation or its agents have not acted, or shall not be acting up to the end and design for which they were created, and are not proceeding in good faith to make and accomplish the works of internal improvement for which they were incorporated, or where, although the company does intend to make and accomplish the work, yet it intends to do so at the expense of the State, and does not intend the private stockholders to pay their due proportion thereof. In all the foregoing cases it shall be lawful for the Attorney General for the State to file his bill on the part of the State against the private stockholders in said company, in which he shall set forth the facts of the case and a prayer for relief, as in other bills of chancery; and if, upon the hearing of the case, it shall appear that the work is a valuable improvement and ought to progress, the Court may direct the same to be done; but if the State has paid more than its proportion of the expense, the private stockholders shall be decreed to refund as much to the State in proportion to the stock subscribed by such as will make the State and all the stockholders equal. And if any of the other foregoing matters shall appear, [the Court shall be authorized to annul and make void the charter, or to decree such relief as the parties may be entitled to if the charter were a private agreement, and according to the modes and principles governing courts of chancery in enforcing or cancelling contracts and giving relief in consequence thereof. Where any bill shall be filed under this act, a service upon the president or any of the directors elected by the private stockholders shall be equivalent to a service on all the stockholders, and the court shall proceed as though the process were served on all. And in like manner, the Chancellor shall be authorized to issue injunctions, appoint receivers, and grant all other orders and process necessary to prevent mischief and carry into effect the object and intent of this act. And in each and every case where any company shall have received or may claim the right of having issued and receiving any amount of State bonds, it shall be the duty of the commissioners appointed under this act to investigate the affairs and accounts of such company according to the provisions of this act, requiring proof on oath, and report the same on oath to the Governor, who shall refer the same to the Attorney General and the Comptroller of the Treasury, for such action thereon as they, together with the Governor, may deem the public good to require.

Sec. 5. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of the Attorney General for the several circuits or solicitorial districts throughout the State, to make diligent inquiry into the cases provided for in this act, and to give information when necessary to the Attorney General for the State, and to file such bills and to attend to the cases under his superintendence, as may come under the provisions of this act, when the Attorney General for the State cannot attend to the same in person.

SEC. 6. Be it enacted, That when it shall appear to the Governor, from information or evidence, that any internal improvement company has in anywise acted fraudulently and contrary to the intent of the provisions of the act of incorporation, or has fail to pay or invest the stock by the stockholders subscribed, it shal not be lawful for him to issue any further bonds to such company, unless such company shall satisfactorily make it appear that they have in all things honestly and bona fide complied with the true intent of the several acts incorporating such company.

SEC. 7. Be it enacted, That nothing contained in this act shall be construed as to effect the bonds issued for the improvement of the rivers in this State.

SEC. 8. Be it enacted, That the president and directors of any internal improvement company in which the State has taken stock, may, with the assent of the Governor, reduce the amount of the capital stock of such company; Provided, the company shall have all the rights and be subject to all the restrictions and duties contained in the charter in other respects; and provided, that nothing contained herein shall be construed to authorize the company to diminish the extent of the work for which the company was incorporated to make according to the charter.

SEO. 9. Be it enacted, That if any internal improvement company heretofore incorporated, in which the State has become a subscriber for a part of the capital stock thereof, shall fail or refuse to surrender its charter, or release the State from its subscription, as hereinbefore provided, or where the charter thereof shall not be cancelled for fraud, by a bill of chancery, as hereinbefore provided, the subscription on the part of the State in such company shall be paid by the issuance of the bonds of the State according to the provisions of the existing laws, subject, nevertheless, to the limitations and restrictions hereinafter contained.

SEC. 10. Be it enacted, That before any further bonds of the State shall be issued to any of the said internal improvement companies in which the State has heretofore become a subscriber, it shall be the duty of the Governor upon the application of any of said companies for the further issue of State bonds in payment of the State's subscription to commission three respectable and disinterested persons, to examine and inspect the work actually done and performed on the road or roads (by the actual expenditure of the money paid in by individual stockholders and the State bonds) for the further construction of which, the companies may apply for a further issue of State bonds, and it shall be the duty of said commissioners to report on oath in writing to the Governor, the Comptroller, and Attorney General for the State, the amount of work done thereon by the actual expenditure of the money and State bonds, and whether in their opinion it has been done according to the provisions of the charters respectively; and if it shall appear from said report to the satisfaction of the Governor, Comptroller and Attorney General that work has been done and performed on said roads respectively, in the way and manner aforesaid by any of said companies in conformity with their charters, to the amount of the capital hereinbefore paid in by the individual stockholders, and the amount of bonds heretofore issued by the State for the benefit of said companies respectively; and if any of said companies shall make application to the Governor for the further issue of State bonds in further payment of the State's subscription in any said roads, before it shall be lawful for him to issue the same, the said commissioners shall certify to the Governor, the Comptroller and the Attorney General that they are satisfied by the oath of the president and treasurer of said company that the additional sum paid in by the individual stockholders, specifying the precise sum that has been bona fide paid in by them as is intended to be applied bona fide to the construction of the public works or road as the case may be, and they shall be satisfied that no fraud has been practiced by said company, it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue the bonds of the State for the benefit of such company for an amount equal to the additional sum paid in by the individual stockholders, but no bond of the State shall be issued for a less amount than one thousand dollars; and in like manner when the work shall have progressed and work to the amount of the additional amount of the capital stock thus paid in by the individual stockholders and the additional amount of bonds thus issued by the State shall have been done and performed on said road, a like examination of the additional work done thereon shall be made by three commissioners to be in like manner appointed by the Governor, and a like report made to the Governor, Comptroller and Attorney-General, and upon further application of any of said companies to the Governor for a further issue of State bonds in payment of the State's subscription a like certificate shall be required by him from the said commissioners, before issuing the same that they are satisfied by the oath of the president and treasurer of said company, as heretofore provided, that an additional amount of the capital stock of said company, specifying the sum that has been bona fide paid in by the individual stockholders, and is intended to be bona fide applied to the further construction of said road ; aad upon receiving said report, if the Governor, Comptroller and Attorney-General shall be satisfied that no fraud has been practiced by said company, it shall in like manner be the duty of the Governor to issue the bonds of the State for the benefit of said company for an amount equal to the further additional sum paid in by the individual stockholders ; and the like proceeding shall be had on each subsequent application by any of said companies to the Governor for the further issue of the bonds of the State before the Governor shall be authorized to issue the bonds of the State for the benefit of any of said companies ; provided, that the Governor shall not be bound to issue bonds in any case unless the Comptroller of the Treasury and Attorney-General of the State shall concur with him and be satisfied of the propriety and correctness thereof.

SEC. 11. Be it enacted, That whenever any internal improvement company in this State in which the State has heretofore become a subscriber under the existing laws shall bona fide perform work in the construction of any railroad or turnpike company which has been incorporated to the amount of fifteen per cent. or more on the capital stock of said company, and the same shall be certified to the Governor, Comptroller and Attorney-General by three respectable and disinterested persons to be appointed by the Governor to examine the same as provided in the foregoing sections of this act, and shall be approved by them, it shall be deemed and taken as a payment on the part of the company, and the Governor shall thereupon issue the bonds of the State for an equal amount of State's stock in said company.

SEC. 12. Be it enacted, That any bonds which have been or which may hereafter be issued to any internal improvement company and deposited by the Governor in the Bank of Tennessee for the use of such company, shall, on demand being made therefor, be delivered by the Bank of Tennessee to such company, or at the option of the bank be retained by paying the amount of such bonds to the company for whose benefit they were issued; provided, that the semi-annual interest on all the bonds of the State hereafter to be issued for the benefit of any internal improvement company shall become due and payable on the first day of January and on the first day of July, in each year, and at no other time.

SEC. 13. Be it further enacted, That whenever commissioners shall be appointed under the provisions of this act they shall be entitled to receive the sum of two dollars and fifty cents per day for each and every day they shall be engaged in the discharge of the duties for which they may be commissioned.

SEC. 14. Be it enacted, That the twentieth section of act entitled "an act to establish a State Bank, to raise a fund for internal improvement, and to aid in the establishment of a system of education" shall not be so construed as to require the Governor of the State to call upon one internal improvement company for the deficit interest upon the bonds issued for the benefit of another company; but each company shall be bound for the interest when there shall be a deficit upon the bonds issued to the companies severally, provided nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to interfere with the vested rights of any internal improvement company in this State.

Speaker of the House of Representatives.

Senate of the 28th General Assembly of Tennessee, Session of 1849-50, the original of which is now of record in my office; and also the action of the Senate of the 28th General Assembly of Tennessee on Senate Bill No. 186, taken from the Senate Journal of the Legislature for 1849-50, the original of which is now of record in my office.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto subscribed my Official Signature; and, by order of the Governor, affixed the Great Seal of the State [SEAL.] of Tennessee, at the Department of the City of Nashville, this 4th day of August, A. D., 1879.

CHAS. N. GIBBS,
Secretary of State.

EXTRACT FROM MESSAGE OF GOV. N. S. BROWN, OCT. 5, 1849, HOUSE JOURNAL, 1849-50, PAGES 45-48.

The subject of internal improvement is one which is exciting more interest at present than any, perhaps, which will enter into your deliberations. And it is gratifying to witness the spirit which now pervades the different sections of the State with regard to it. The Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, and the East Tennessee and Georgia railroad, are in a state of vigorous progress, and furnish assurances of their completion at no distant day. Much interest is also felt in Upper Tennessee, in favor of a road from Knoxville to the Virginia line, chartered at your last session. These enterprises are all rendered more important by the policy of the State of Virginia, which promises the construction of a route from the Tennessee line to Lynchburg, thus presenting the prospect of a line of railroad, almost unbroken, from Nashville to the Eastern Atlantic. While, by the enlightened policy and liberal enterprise of the people and State of Georgia, a continuous line is opening up to us to the Southern Atlantic. The vast advantages presented by these works appeal to your enlightened policy for all the aid in your power to bestow to insure their completion. Although the State debt is now considerable, yet it is not such, in my opinion, considering the amount of our means, as to deter us from still further appropriations of the public credit in aid of specific objects ; I say in aid of specific objects, for I hope never again to see the indiscriminate policy of the act of 1837–8 resorted to by the State. Such a policy, if persevered in, would bankrupt any State in the world. The tendency was to construct any and every sort of road, without reference to its importance or value. The Upper East Tennessee route, viewed both in its local bearing upon the interests of that section of the State, and as a part of the great chain connecting us with the Eastern Atlantic, becomes an enterprise of the highest value. Indeed, it is indispensable, and I have no hesitation in recommending it as deserving a liberal patronage at the hands of the State. How much may be needed, remains to be seen ; and how much should be granted, you will determine. It is not to be expected that private enterprise alone can build the road, it is a work of too much magnitude. The advantages of this branch of improvement to Est Tennessee are apparent. No man can contemplate her condition and natural resources without being impressed with it. But these works, though directly connected with East and a portion of Middle Tennessee, are important to the whole State. They form the basis of other and similar enterprises already in agitation, and destined at no distant day, I trust, to be carried out. Looking at the spirit of the day upon such subjects, and the necessity of multiplying outlets to market, no one can believe for a moment that the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad will be limited to its present terminus. And to all who indulge an enlarged view of the interest of the whole State, it must be a desirable object to see this road extended from Nashville, or some intermediate point, west of Memphis. The western portion of the State is interested in such a communication to the east and southeast. And so are the other sections of the State in a speedy approach to the Mississippi and southwest. The extension of this route west would complete the chain from one end of the State to the other. And besides the commercial advantages as flow from it, it would bring into constant and close communication the people of all portions of the State—a result greatly to be desired in every view of our social and domestic well being. I trust you may concur with me in the importance and practicability of the route from Nashville to Memphis, and grant a charter with such pledges of aid from the State as you may deem safe. I do not doubt but the greater portion of the stock, at least, would be taken, as the line would pass through many counties of great wealth and resources, and deeply interested by their locality in the attainment of such a road. I need not employ arguments or facts to enforce the incalculable benefits of such a line of railroad to the people of Tennessee. Remote from the ocean and lakes, and limited, to a great extent excluded, from water communication, this State, with all its vast resources, has been kept in the rear of improvements which now mark the age. Our growth in numbers and wealth, though considerable, has been slow compared to our capabilities. This is a question which addresses the interest of every farmer and mechanic in the land, more especially, they being producers, and directly concerned in the enjoyment of a speedy and certain market. The interest of all others compared to theirs is but secondary. But there is another inducement which appeals alike to all. The construction of such a road throughout the length of the State would conduce to the growth of manufactures in all their variety. Besides its influence in enticing the capital of our own people into that department of industry, it would not fail to bring into our midst the capital and enterprise of other States. Our natural resources, agricultural, mineral, and manufacturing, are well known and appreciated. Development ought to be the order of the day, at least in the politics of Tennessee. The property holder and the non-property-holder are equally interested. the former in the increased value of what he has, and the latter in the acquisition of means for the attainment of property.

And if we need the stimulus of example upon this subject, we have it in the policy of our sister State of Georgia. That State has the honor of being foremost among all the southern States in this great branch of enterprise. Though bounded on her southern limits by the Atlantic shore, and enjoying many navigable rivers, yet, not content with these natural advantages, far superior to ours, her public undertakings for railroads already amount to about six millions, while private enterprise has incurred an equal sum on the same account. The results so far have been propitious, and promise the certainty of a new era in the wealth and commerce of that State.

One difficulty always encountered in any specific work of this kind is the opposition of these sections not directly addressed by it. This ought not to be. All portions cannot at once be supplied with these facilities. It must be done in detail, and with a steady and cautious calculation of the public and general as well as local advantage to arise.

But there is still another reason that ought of itself to enforce the extension of this railroad to some point on the Mississippi river—and that is the probable construction of a route to the Pacific—to be built by the General Government out of the public lands. This latter enterprise, if carried on, may connect itself with some point on our Western border—if so, it would form but the continuation of the line above recommended. And why may we not expect the route from Tennessee to be selected? It is recommended by the very enterprises I have been urging—now in progress and in contemplation—and the character and resources of the countries through which they will pass, forming altogether an inducement in favor of this point. And from every observation that has been made, it will be shorter, cheaper in its construction than any other yet indicated, and will not encounter the impassable snows that are found, at least in winter, on the other routes. This great national project, so important to the nation at large, and especially to the Mississippi Valley, will, doubtless, receive your earnest countenance and favor, as it is now receiving much attention and regard by the people of the southern and western States. To have the Atlantic and Pacific connected by one great highway, and Tennessee enjoying an intermediate portion of it within her own territory, is well worthy of a vigorous demonstration on your part at the present session, independent of all other local considerations and interests.

The Mobile and Ohio Railroad will no doubt be pressed upon your consideration, either in its main route across the State, or in one or more diverging branches. It is destined, if completed, to be of immense value to a large and growing portion of our State, and proposes to add to other advantages another southern market for our produce. I respectfully bespeak for this, as well as every other substantial project of improvement that may be presented, your liberal and enlightened regard. In this connection the further improvement of our rivers ought not to be overlooked. Many lasting advantages can be attained by the expenditure of small sums in the removal of specified obstructions that now interfere materially with the navigation of many of our streams. The details of these, their locality, and estimated cost, are best known to yourselves.

But while I am the earnest advocate of every thing that tends to develop the resources of the State, to quicken and advance her growth in agriculture and the mechanic arts, in commerce and manufactures. I am not a friend to rash and improvident expenditures. The faith of the State ought not to be impaired or endangered for any improvements, however desirable. And it is gratifying to our pride of character as a people, that hitherto all our public engagements have been promptly and faithfully met. The credit of the State has hitherto escaped any reflection, either at home or abroad, and this may assure the world that repudiation will never find a lodgment within our limits, as I trust it may never find an advocate.

I know of no subject which is entitled to more of your deliberations than that of a system of internal improvements. Nature has been liberal in bestowing upon our State the elements of prosperity and happiness, but until these resources are developed by a liberal system of internal improvements, our real advantages can never be fully understood and appreciated. Without facilities for commercial communication, our citizens are not presented with inducements to exert their industry and enterprise in bringing to light the hidden treasures within their reach. Some portions of our State, in which nature has been most lavish in her agricultural and mineral bounties, are so completely cut off from commercial facilities by surrounding mountain ranges, that little or no advancement can be made toward wealth and prosperity. I regard it to be the duty of the State to exert her power in removing the barriers to commercial intercourse, and, so far as she has the means, to enable all of her citizens to have easy access to the best markets for the products of their labor.

Upon looking at the geographical position of our State, the mind is strongly impressed with the necessity of a railroad communication extending from the eastern to the western boundary, as nearly through its center as practicable. Such an improvement would place every portion of the State within an accessible distance of the line of road, and would give a universal impulse to industry and enterprise which could not fail in a short time to make ours one of the richest States in the Union. Such a line of railroad is the more strongly recommended from the fact that, at our eastern boundary it would promise direct communication with the Atlantic through similar works in progress by Virginia, and at the western boundary it would make the communication easy with the projected railroad to the Pacific. Upon the completion of these several projects, in connection with the Georgia improvements which are rapidly approaching our borders, our State would become the great thoroughfare, in its whole length, for the immense travel and transportation which such a line would command. If our State possessed the necessary means of constructing such a work, I should have no hesitation in recommending its adoption as a system worthy of our enterprise. All, however, who are acquainted with the extent of our means and the amount of our present indebtedness, will at once agree that the system indicated is impracticable on account of its great magnitude.

If we cannot accomplish so great an undertaking, it is a matter of duty to inquire whether we can safely embark in any portion of it, and to what extent.

With this view, I invite your attention to four projects already occupying a large share of the public mind. I allude to the proposed railroad from the Virginia line to Knoxville—the Tennessee and Georgia road, already in process of construction. connecting Knoxville with the Georgia road, and the Nashville and Chattanooga, in a rapid progress of construction, connecting Nashville with Chattanooga, and that portion of the Mobile and Ohio railroad proposed to be extended from south to north through the western district of our State. The three first may all be regarded as sections of the general system to which I have already directed your attention. The two proposed roads in East Tennessee are of incalculable importance to that portion of the State. Their completion (particularly if the Virginia road is constructed to our eastern border) would remove the barriers which have heretofore prevented the development of the rich resources of that division of the State. The Tennessee and Georgia road ,presents particularly strong claims upon your consideration, from the fact that the State has already sunk a large amount on this work, and its completion furnishes the only hope of any return for the expenditures already made. Of the importance of the Nashville and Chattanooga road to the interests of the middle portion of the State, I need not speak ; the work will at once commend itself to your consideration as one of the noblest enterprises of the age. The advantages of a road running through the western district, between the Tennessee and Mississippi rivers, will at once occur to all who examine the subject.

I recommend each of these projects as well worthy of all the aid which the State can safely render to them. But in determining whether you will extend the aid of the State to all or either of them, and to what extent, there are certain considerations of great moment which, in my judgment, ought to be kept constantly in view. It is certain that the State can furnish no aid to these or any other projects of internal improvement, except by the use of her credit. In deciding whether her credit can be safely resorted to or not, it will be incumbent on you to look carefully into the present indebtedness of the State, and our means of meeting promptly its principal and interest. If you shall come to the conclusion that our present debt cannot be increased without affecting the credit of our bonds, this ought to be an insuperable barrier to any action on the subject. We are bound by the highest obligations to preserve the credit of the State inviolate and untarnished. If you should be satisfied that our credit would not suffer by an increase of our debt, I cannot too strongly impress upon your minds the importance of providing with certainty for the payment of the accruing interest at the same time that you provide for contracting the additional debt. I feel it my duty also to recommend that before embarking the credit of the State in any work you satisfy yourselves fully that the work, when completed, will yield a fair profit upon the capital invested, and as the best guarantee on this point that the State shall only come forward with her aid after individual capital has been embarked to such an extent as to insure the State against ultimate loss. These principles I regard as fundamental in connection with this subject, and I commend them to your adoption, whether you are about to embark the State in the works I have specifically designated, or any others in which the aid of the State may be invoked.

LANDON C. HAYNES,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.

JOHN F. HENRY,
Speaker of the Senate.

Extract from Message of Governor William Trousdale, of Oct. 9, 1851, on the subject of Internal Improvements. House Journal 1851-2, pp. 43, 44, 45.

The subject of Internal Improvements is more exciting than any other likely to occupy your attention during the session. The people of each division of the State are aroused upon this subject, and have their plans of improvement, some in progress and others in contemplation. You will be asked to extend the aid of the State, to a large amount in building railroads and opening rivers. Beginning at the West, a railroad is in progress, or soon will be, from Memphis to Charleston, South Carolina, a portion of which is located in this State. I am not advised that any aid will be asked for that road from your body. From Memphis, by Jackson to Nashville, a railroad is contemplated to unite with the Nashville and Chattanooga road; this we all know would be a work of vast interest to the people, and should receive every aid the State can give it. The Mobile and Ohio railroad, should it be made, will cross the State from south to north, west of the Tennessee river, and would be of no small importance to the people in that section of the Staee, affording them an additional market for the sale of their produce. The utility of a continuous railroad from the Mississippi river to the Atlantic, traversing an entire length of our State, cannot be denied. In Middle Tennessee, the Nashville and Chattanooga railroad, a most noble enterprise, a portion of which is now in operation, and the East Tennessee and Georgia railroad, now partly in operation, and nearly completed, a most admirable road, constitute an important part of the road above indicated, and guarantee the construction of the whole line of road from the Mississippi to the eastern boundary of the State, there to unite with the road now building from Petersberg, Virginia, to the Tennessee line. The road from Knoxville to the Virginia line has been chartered and a portion of it placed under contract; this road calls loudly for assistance from the State, both on account of its national importance, and the many local advantages which would result from it to the people of that division of the State. This road would develop the vast resources of wealth which have been concealed for ages in the mountains of East Tennessee. This delightful division of our State, abounding in all the native elements of wealth, but hemmed in all sides by ledges of lofty mountains, which seem to forbid its intercourse with other parts of the earth, demands artificial assistance to remove the obstructions which have so long kept back the streams of wealth which would fertilize the country were those barriers removed. The line of road above mentioned would pass diagonally through the State from southwest to northeast, affording railroad communication with the Atlantic, east and south, by the Virginia and Georgia roads. This improvement would secure the travel and transportation for a large scope of country from the Valley of the Mississippi to the Atlantic, and would be a source of great profit to the stockholders in the road, besides the wealth and population it would bring into the State. The completion of this line of road would be an inducement, should the General Government determine to build a railroad to the Pacific, to make its eastern terminus unite with the Tennessee road.

Thus our State would become the highway of nations, and the traffic between Europe on the one hand, and the East Indies and China on the other, would be conducted along this road. Many other railroads are in contemplation, some of which would be highly useful. The road from Nashville to Jefferson City, in the State of Missouri, called the Central Missouri Railroad, would cross the Tennessee river not far from the Kentucky line, and would furnish railroad communication to the people occupying the northern section of Middle Tennessee with the Atlantic. Also the Cincinnati Railroad from Nashville through Frankfort, Kentucky, to Cincinnati, thus uniting with the northeastern railroads and the lakes, and onward to the Atlantic; likewise the Louisville and Nashville Railroad. These roads, or at least one of them, would be of great utility, and may require the aid of the State in their construction. In addition to these, other railroads have been mentioned as likely to pass over some portion of our State. But having already treated this subject at some length, I shall particularize no others. We are all satisfied with the benefits which would result to the State, from a well-organized system of railroad communication. But the great question is, can the State safely extend such aid to individual enterprise, as will accomplish this desirable object? This is a question alone for the determination of your honorable body. Experience has shown that partnerships between the State and individuals, in works of internal improvement, result badly. Perhaps the better plan would be to grant liberal charters to companies composed of individuals, for the construction of railroads. Let them by their money and labor prepare the road for the rails and fixtures, and then call upon the State for aid. Should it appear from investigation that the improvements thus made, when furnished, would be profitable, let a lien be taken by the State, upon the whole stock of the company in the road as completed, and upon the rails and fixtures, to save the State from loss; then let the State loan her credit in State bonds, payable at a distant day, say fifty years or less, bearing an interest of six per cent., paying semi-annually, at some commercial point in the United States. Should the credit of the State not be impaired by the issue of bonds to an amount beyond which it can safely go, the bonds will sell in the market for a premium, which might be applied in payment of interest. In this way works of internal improvement may be constructed and put in operation, which would defray the expense of building, and enrich the individual stockholders, and the State be subjected to no cost, and but little risk in the aid she affords in the construction. I recommend to your favorable consideration, each of the roads specified above, as meriting all the aid the State can safely give, while at the same time, the interest of the State should be strictly guarded, and all the necessary steps taken to secure her against loss.

Extract from Message of Governor William Campbell, October 28, 1851, on the Subject of Internal Improvements. House Journal 1851-2, pp. 147 to 150.

In such a government, and one which has grown to be of vast extent and diverse interests, the injunction of the Constitution of the State "to encourage knowledge, learning and virtue," and "a well-regulated system of internal improvements"— as "being essential to the preservation of republican institutions," and "calculated to develop the resources of the State, and promote the happiness and prosperity of her citizens," cannot but be regarded as wise and patriotic. It is by all conceded to be the obvious duty of the Legislature to promote and encourage education. A faithful observance of the constitutional provision making the common school fund a "perpetual fund, the principal of which shall never be diminished by legislative appropriations," may doubtless be expected at your hands. I would, however, invite your careful examination into the best mode of carrying out another portion of the same fundamental law, which requires that "the interest thereof shall be inviolably applied to the support and encouragement of common schools throughout the State, and for the equal benefit of all the people thereof." It is deeply to be regretted that the fund is not larger or more effective. It is much to be desired that some plan could be devised by which its benefits could be so distributed as to secure an education to all who are really unable to procure one. But, coming as you do, fresh from the different counties, and fully enlightened as to the sentiments of your respective constituencies, I submit the question of a modification of the present school system to your decision, merely begging to impress on you the propriety of a free interchange of opinion, and an attentive consideration on the whole subject.

No State has more to promise itself from "a well-regulated system of internal improvement" than Tennessee, geographically placed in a vast interior, far distant from ocean and lakes, and the great marts of commerce, the heavy products of our labor slowly wend their way to distant markets, burdened with great costs, risks, and delays of transportation, while the fabrics of other countries reach us in return, taxed with the profits of a hundred hands through which they must pass before they touch our borders.

We possess in a remarkable degree the elements of wealth; but being cut off from commercial intercourse, they remain comparatively undeveloped. The soil teems with a superabundance of agricultural products; embowled in the earth lie inestimable mineral treasures the water power of the streams, the timber of the forests, the variety of staples, and the excellence of the climate, combine to give us a capacity for population and wealth, rarely to be met with elsewhere. But is worthy of remark that other states less favored appear to have outstripped us. Why is this so? The last census returns show that our increase of population within the last ten years has been twenty-one per cent., whilst the average increase for the United States has been thirty-five per cent. It would seem that where railroads have been built, there has been a rapid development of population and resources. Within the period above referred to, Georgia has increased in population thirty per cent.; New York twenty-seven per cent.; Pennsylvania thirty-one per cent; Ohio forty-one per cent.; Indiana forty-four per cent.; Illinois sixty-eight per cent., and some other states still more largely.

Rivers and railroads beyond our borders turn the currents of travel around and from us, diverting to other fields masses of capital and skilled labor in search of employment. A railroad from Louisville to Nashville, affording a passage in six hours, at a cost of from three to five dollars, would introduce thousands of sturdy and skilled laborers from the teeming thoroughfares of the Northwest, who now, encountering a stage passage of thirty-six hours, at a cost of fifteen dollars, turn aside from what they regard as an impenetrable interior. And so it would be at each end of the great thoroughfare from Central Virginia through East Tennessee to the Mississippi river at Memphis, or one from the seaboard at Charleston and Savannah, through Middle and West Tennessee to the Madrid Bend; or from Mobile or New Orleans through West Tennessee to the Ohio river and the lakes.

Our vast coal fields, which lie undisturbed while our pig iron seeks foundries 'and rolling mills erected upon the coal fields of Pennsylvania and other States, and while our cotton and wool are transported to still more distant manufactories, would then be thrown open to the purpose for which they were designed, and our mountains and valleys would resound with the busy clang of hammers, looms and spindles. A wise division of labor would ensue; consumers of the farmer's produce would take at good prices all his surplus products at his very door. Every portion of the State would be brought into close proximity with good markets, and the value of lands would be greatly enhanced. The results, as shown by other States, which have constructed such roads, and to the details of which I invite your attention, are no less astonishing than cheering to the friends of internal improvements.

The public works indicated are invited by the approaches of the neighboring States of Virginia, South Carolina, Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Kentucky, all of whom, it is gratifying to observe, are pointing their great roads toward Tennessee. South Carolina and Georgia, as you are aware, have already penetrated our border; Virginia is pushing her work rapidly to the line; Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi and Louisiana, are earnestly moving in the same great system of public works. We shall have but a small part to be accomplished in the immense network of railroads of which Tennessee will become the center; but this small part will be sufficient to tax very greatly the energies of our people. It will require many years and large expenditures to accomplish it; but when done it will return the expenditures ten-fold, fully develop our vast resources, and ultimately render Tennessee one of the most prosperous and powerful States in the confederacy.

Individual enterprise, assisted by the credit of the State, has already accomplished much towards it, and show how the remainder may in the main be effected. Without demanding a dollar from the State treasury, or requiring any guarantee without the most ample indemnity, the Nashville and Chattanooga Company have raised abundant means for completing that road, more than forty miles of which are already finished, and the remainder expected to be completed in another year, a total distance of about one hundred and fifty miles. Individual enterprise, assisted by the State, has already completed about forty miles of the East Tennessee and Georgia Road, and the work is rapidly progressing. Individual enterprise has also taken the lead, and thus far without the aid of the State has made a commencement upon the East Tennessee and Virginia Road, another great link in the important chain through the valleys of East Tennessee. About $2,600,000 have been subscribed to the Memphis and Charleston Road. Over $2,000,000 to the road from Louisville to Nashville, and above $150,000 to the road from Nashville to Columbia.

All these works deserve the countenance of the State, and some of them will, to a greater or less extent, no doubt, require in some form a loan of the credit of the State. Individuals should in all such enterprises take the lead. They are entitled, when the works promise to be of public utility, to liberal charters. The State ought not herself to engage in them, but when it is manifest that the works are important to the public interest, promising fair profits on investments, but are not able to accomplish their heavy undertakings, it does seem to be a high duty of the State to loan her credit, at least towards ironing and equipping the roads after they have been prepared for the iron, upon ample indemnity by the individual stockholders against loss, and to any needed extent which will not seriously embarrass the State treasury or cripple her credit.

These principles are regarded as fundamental, and ought never to be lost sight of or departed from. It will be your duty carefully to examine into, and determine upon the ability of the State to grant the aid which may be asked for. I would also suggest to you the great propriety of securing for the State an intelligent and careful supervision of such work as she may feel called upon to give her aid to, at least to the extent of seeing that the condition upon which such aid is to be granted, shall in good faith be complied with.

PUBLIC ACTS 1851-2, CHAPTER 72, PASSED JANUARY 15TH, 1852.

AN ACT to authorize the Governor of the State to issue bonds of the State of Tennessee to the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, to aid in the building of bridges.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That for the purpose of aiding the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, in the construction of bridges on their said railroad, the Governor of the State is hereby authorized and required to issue coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, to said company, to an amount not exceeding the sum of three hundred thousand dollars, bearing an interest of six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually at such place as the president of said company may designate, which bonds shall be payable in not less than thirty, nor more than forty years after date, and at such place as said president may designate, but said bonds are to be issued as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 2. Be it enacted, That whenever it shall be made known to the Governor to his satisfaction by the president and directors of said company, that forty miles of said railroad have been put under contract and the work on the same is progressing to completion, and that said company has sufficient bona fide subscription to grade and put the necessary culverts on said section of forty miles ready for the iron rails, which subscription shall be adjudged solvent and valid by the board of internal improvements, or any chief engineer or other persons appointed to examine and report upon works of internal improvements, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue to said company coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, of the description aforesaid, to an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, to be expended on the bridges necessary to be constructed on the said section of forty miles. And in like manner when a second section of forty miles shall have been put under contract, and the work thereon progressing, and said company has sufficient bona fide subscriptions to grade and put on the necessary culverts as aforesaid ready for the iron rails, which subscription shall be adjudged solvent and valid by the board of internal improvements, and all of which facts shall be made known to the Governor in the manner aforesaid to his satisfaction, then it shall be the duty of said Governor to issue to said company bonds of the State of Tennessee, of the description aforesaid, for an amount not exceeding one hundred thousand dollars, to be expended on the bridges necessary to be constructed on said section of forty miles, and a like provision with like restrictions and conditions in all respects is hereby made for an additional section of forty miles of said railroad, the funds to be used in construction of the necessary bridges on said last named section.

SEC. 3. Be it enacted, That so soon as the bonds are issued for the first section of forty miles, as provided in the first section of this act, the said bonds shall on issuance thereof, constitute a lien upon all the stock of said company, upon the road-bed, masonry, bridges and other property of said company, and the State shall be invested with such lien on and by virtue of the issuance of said bonds, without a deed from the company for the payment of said bonds and interest accruing thereon; and whenever the bonds are issued for either or both of said sections of forty miles, as specified in the first section of this act, the State of Tennessee shall on and by virtue of the issuance of said bonds be invested with a like lien or mortgage on said sections for the payment of said bonds and the interest thereon, including road-bed, masonry and bridges, on all of the sections provided for in this act, and on all of the stock of said company, without a deed from the company, and said lien or mortgage shall have priority over all other claims against said company, and all liens created by the company after the issuance of the bonds for the first forty miles of said railroad, shall be void as to the liens of the State of Tennessee hereby created for the payment of the bonds issued under the provisions of this act, and the accruing interest thereon, and the said liens of the State shall extend to and embrace the entire railroad, its superstructure and equipments after completed, and so continue until said bonds and interest thereon are paid off and discharged, and without a deed from the company.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That the Legislature of this State shall have power to enact any law or laws that may hereafter be deemed necessary to protect the interest or credit of the State against loss or damage on account of the issuance of said bonds, and to provide for the more speedy and certain payment by the company of said bonds and interest, not impairing the vested rights of the stockholders, and that for that purpose and the purposes of notice of the existence of this act, the same is hereby declared to be a public law.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That before the Governor shall issue any bonds under the provisions of this act, he shall require the engineer of said company to examine the premises where said bridge or bridges are to be built, and ascertain as near as he may be able, the cost of construction of such bridge or bridges with good materials, and in a good and substantial manner, and report the same under oath to the Governor, and it shall not be lawful for said Governor to issue bonds as aforesaid, for a greater amount for the construction of such bridge or bridges than the sum specified in the report of said engineer, and the provisions of this act shall only extend to and include a bridge across the Watauga river, two bridges abross the Holston river and a bridge across Lick creek on the line of said road. And no bonds shall issue under this act, unless upon the written affidavit of the president of said company, and a resolution of a majority of the directors thereof, and that said bonds when issued shall not be used for any other purpose than procuring the means for the construction of said bridge or bridges. and it shall not be lawful for said bonds to be used for any other purpose. Provided, the estimates of said engineer shall include the masonry on the line of said road. Provided, that the bonds of the State shall not be issued to build the bridges herein provided for, until there is stock subscribed by good and solvent individuals, corporations, companies or counties sufficient to grade the road and put the timbers on the same from Knoxville to the Virginia State Line, which facts shall be certified to the Governor of the State by the written affidavit of the president and directors of said road. And provid- ed further, that the three hundred thousand dollars of bonds, hereinbefore authorized to be issued to said company, may be included with the aggregate amount of stock subscribed by good and solvent individuals, corporations, companies or counties, and if the said sum of three hundred thousand dollars, together with the said subscriptions of stock in said road, shall be sufficient to grade and build the bridges and masonry thereon, and otherwise prepare the said road for the iron rails, which facts shall be made to appear by the report of the chief engineer of said road, on oath to the Governor, then it shall be the duty of the Governor to issue to the said company upon the application of the president and a majority of the directors of said company, the bonds of the State for three hundred thousand dollars, as provided in the first section of this act, and the proceeds of said bonds shall be applied to the construction of the bridges specified in the 5th section of this act, and the masonry on the line of the said road and the surplus, if any, to any other bridges on the line of said road, or other purpose necessary to prepare the said road for the iron rails.

Sec. 6. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of said company to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee at Nashville, at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due, from time to time, upon said bonds issued as aforesaid, an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commission, or satisfactory evidence that said interest has been paid or provided for, and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, at the time aforesaid, or furnish the evidence aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to report that fact to the Governor, and the Governor shall immediately appoint some suitable person or persons, at he expense of the company, to take possession and control of said railroad, and all the assets thereof, and manage the same and receive the rents, issues, profits and dividends thereof, whose duty it shall be to give bond and security to the State of Tennessee, in such penalty as the Governor may require for the faithful discharge of his or their duty as receiver or receivers, to receive said rents, issues, profits and dividends, and pay over the same under the direction of the Governor towards the liquidation of such unpaid interest. A Bill to establish a System of Internal Improvements in this State.

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That whenever the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company shall have procured bona fide subscriptions for the capital stock in said company to an amount sufficient to grade, bridge and prepare for the iron rails the whole extent of the main trunk line proposed to be constructed by said company, and it shall be shown by said company to the Governor of the State, that said subscriptions are good and solvent, and whenever said company shall have graded, bridged, put down the necessary timbers for the reception of the rails, and fully prepared a section of thirty miles of said road at either terminus, in a good and substantial manner, with good materials, for putting on the iron rails and equipments, and the Governor shall be notified of these facts, and that said section, or any part thereof, is not subject to any lien whatever, by the written affidavits of the chief engineer and president of said company, together with the written affidavit of a competent engineer, by him appointed, at the cost of the company, to examine said section, then said Governor shall issue to said company coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee to an amount not exceeding eight thousand dollars per mile on said section, and on no other condition, which bonds shall be payable at such place as the president of the company may designate, bearing an interest of six per centum per annum, payable semi-annually, and not having more than forty, nor less than thirty years to mature.

SEC. 2. Be it enacted, That the bonds before specified shall not be issued by said company for any other purpose than for procuring the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments for said section of said road, and the Governor shall not issue the same, unless upon affidavit of said president and a resolution of a majority of the board of directors, for the time being, that said bonds shall not be used for any other purpose than for procuring the said iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments for said section, and the Governor shall have power to appoint a commission to act, under oath, in conjunction with said president in negotiating said bonds for the purpose aforesaid.

SEC. 3. Be it enacted, That so soon as the bonds of the State shall have been issued for the first section of the road as aforesaid, they shall constitute a lien upon said section so prepared as aforesaid, including the road, bed, right of way, grading, bridges and masonry, upon all the stock subscribed for in said company, and upon said iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments, when purchased and delivered, and the State of Tennessee, upon the issuance of said bonds and by virtue of the same, shall be invested with said lien or mortgage without a deed from the company for payment by said company of said bonds, with the interest thereon, as the same becomes due.

SEC. 4. Be it enacted, That when said company shall have prepared as aforesaid, a second section, or any additional number of sections of ten miles each of said road, connecting with a section already completed for the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments, as provided by the first section of this act, and the Governor shall be notified of the facts as before provided, he shall, in like manner, issue to said company like bonds of the State of Tennessee to an equal amount with that before issued under the first section of this act, for each and every section of ten miles of said road so prepared as aforesaid, but upon the terms and conditions hereinbefore provided, and upon the issuance of the said bonds, the State of Tennessee shall be invested with a like mortgage or lien without a deed from said company upon said stock, and upon said first and additional section or sections of said road so prepared, upon the rails and equipments put, or to be put upon the same, for the payment of said bonds and the accruing interest thereon. Provided, that if the last section of said road shall be less than ten miles, bonds of the State shall be issued for such section, for an amount in proportion to the distance as provided in this act, but upon the same terms and conditions, in all respects, as required in regard to the bonds to be issued for other sections of said road. And when the whole of said road shall be completed, the State of Tennessee shall be invested with a lien, without a deed from the company, upon the entire road, including the stock, right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by the company as incident to, or necessary for its business; and all depots, and depot stations, for the payment of all of said bonds issued to the company as provided in this act, and for the interest accruing on said bonds. And after the Governor shall have issued bonds for the first section of the road, it shall not be lawful for said company to give, create or convey to any person or persons, or body corporate whatever, any lien, incumbrance or mortgage of any kind which shall have priority over, or come in conflict with the lien of the State herein secured; and any such lien, incumbrance or mortgage, shall be null and void as against said lien or mortgage of the State, and the said lien or mortgage of the State shall have priority over all other claims existing or to exist against said company.

Sec. 5. Be it enacted, That it shall be the duty of said company to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee, at Nashville, at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due, from time to time, upon said bonds issued as aforesaid, an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commissions, or satisfactory evidence that said interest has been paid or provided for, and if said company fail to deposit said interest as aforesaid, at the time aforesaid, or furnish the evidence aforesaid, it shall be the duty of the Comptroller to report that fact to the Governor, and the Governor shall immediately appoint some suitable person or persons, at the expense of the company, to take possession and control of said railroad, and all the assets thereof, and manage the same and receive the rents, issues, profits and dividends thereof, whose duty it shall be to give bond and security to the State of Tennessee, in such penalty as the Governor may require, for the faithful discharge of his or their duty, as receiver or receivers—to receive said rents, issues, profits and dividends, and to pay over the same under the direction of the Governor towards the liquidation of such unpaid interest. And if said company fail or refuse to deliver up said road to the person or persons so appointed by the Governor, the said person so appointed shall report that fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith issue his warrant, directed to the sheriffs of the counties through which said road shall run, commanding them to take possession of said road, fixtures and equipments, and everything pertaining thereto, and place the said receiver in full and complete possession of the same, and said receiver so appointed, shall continue in the possession of said road, fixtures and equipments, and run the same and manage the entire road until a sufficient sum shall be realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses, incident to said proceedings, to pay off and discharge the interest as aforesaid, due on said bonds, which being done, the receiver shall surrender said road and fixtures and equipments to said company. The comptroller shall from time to time settle the accounts with the receiver, and the balances shall be deposited in the treasury of this State. The Comptroller is authorized, and it is made his duty, upon his warrant to draw from the treasury any sum of money necessary to meet the interest on such bonds, as may not be provided for by the company, as provided for in this act, and the Comptroller shall report thereof to the General Assembly from time to time.

SEC. 6. Be it enacted, That if said company shall fail or refuse to pay any of said bonds when they fall due, it shall be the duty of the Governor to notify the Attorney General of the district in which is situated the place of business of said company, of the fact, and thereupon said Attorney General shall forthwith file a bill against said company in the name of the State of Tennessee, in the Chancery or Circuit Court of the county in which is situated said place of business, setting forth the facts, and thereupon said court shall make all such orders and decrees in said cause as may be deemed necessary by the Court to receive the payment of said bonds, with the interest thereon, and to indemnify the State of Tennessee against any loss on account of the issuance of said bonds, by ordering the said railroad to be placed in the hands of a receiver, ordering the sale of said road, and all the property and assets attached thereto or belonging to said company, or in such other manner as the Court may deem best for the interest of the State.

SEC. 7. Be it enacted, That at the end of five years after the completion of said road, said company shall set apart one per centum per annum upon the amount of bonds issued to the company, and shall use the same in the purchase of bonds of the State of Tennessee, which bonds the company shall pay into the Treasury of the State, after assigning them to the Governor, and for which the Governor shall give said company a receipt, and as between the State and said company, the bonds so paid in shall be a credit on the bonds issued to the company. And said bonds so paid in, and the interest accruing thereon, from time to time, shall be held and used by the State as a sinking fund, for the payment of the bonds issued to the company, and should said company re-purchase any of the bonds issued to it under the provisions of this act, they shall be a credit as aforesaid and cancelled. And should said company fail to comply with the provisions of this section, it shall be proceeded against, as provided in the fifth section of this act.

SEC. 8. Be it enacted, That the president of the company shall make semi-annually reports under oath, to the Governor, until the completion of said road, setting forth fully the condition of the road and the company, and after its completion, he shall report to the Governor annually, showing the financial condition of the company, giving a statement of the trade and travel upon the road, the receipts and expenditures, net earnings and dividends, and what per cent. is paid on the stock to the stockholders. And said reports shall be consolidated every two years by the president of said company, and said consolidated reports shall be laid before the Governor by the first of September every two years after the completion of the road, and the Governor shall lay said report before the Legislature for its action, at the next meeting thereof after said report is made.

SEC. 9. Be it enacted, That it shall not be lawful for any officer of said company to engage in any speculation or dealing, either directly or indirectly, in any real estate on or along the line, at any of the depots or depot stations, or at either terminus of said road, until after the road is completed, and every officer of the company before entering upon the duties of his office, shall take an oath in writ-ting before any judge or justice of the peace in this State, that he will not knowingly violate the provisions of this act, and that he will faithfully perform the duties of his office, and if any such officer of the company, or other persons taking an oath as herein provided, knowingly and wilfully swear falsely, he shall be deemed guilty of perjury and subject to all the pains and penalties thereof, and every affidavit required under this act may be sworn to before any judge or justice of the peace in this State.

That each of said companies is hereby authorized and required to appoint an agent or agents to whom the bonds shall be delivered, and whose duty it shall be to control said bonds, and see that they are exclusively applied to the payment of the railroad iron and equipments, as provided for in this act, and for no other purposes whatever. And the said agent, before he receives the bonds of the State, shall give bond and security, to be approved by the Governor and payable to the State of Tennessee, for the application of the bonds, or the proceeds thereof, to the purposes aforesaid. Provided, That before any bonds, under the provisions of this act, shall be issued to any agent of any railroad contemplated by this act, the president of any such company shall first deposit in the office of the Secretary of State a full, true and accurate list of all the stockholders, with the sums subscribed by each and every stockholder.

CHAS. N. GIBBS,
Secretary of State.

Wednesday Morning, November 5th, 1851.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

. . . .

Mr. Campbell, of Washington, introduced House Bill No. 107, "to authorize the Governor of the State to endorse the bonds of the E. Tenn. and Virginia Railroad Company to aid in the building of bridges," which was read the first time and passed, and on motion was referred to the Committee on Internal Improvements.

Friday Morning, November 28th, 1851.

The House met pursuant to adjournment.

. . . .

Mr. Houston, Chairman of Committee on Internal Improvements, reported on Bill No. 107, "to authorize the Governor of the State to endorse the bonds of the E. T. and Virginia Railroad Company to aid in the building of bridges."

The committee offered a bill in lieu, and as amended, and recommended its passage as amended.

On motion the House adopted the bill in lieu of the original, and as amended, and the bill passed on its second reading.

Mr. Jackson then presented the following report, viz.;

The undersigned, a minority of the Committee of Internal Improvements, constrained by a sense of duty to their constituents, and by a wholesome regard for the public weal, to dissent from the report of the majority recommending the passage of the bill granting three hundred thousand dollars of extra aid to the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad, ask leave most respectfully to present the following reasons for their dissent:

The State of Tennessee, from an overweening regard for her credit, has for years permitted her fear of debt to restrain the spirit of enterprise which has characterized many States of this Union. She has been too long torpid and indifferent to the objects of her true interest, but under the wholesome influence of the examples of her more spirited and enterprising sisters, by the arguments and persuasions of her most gifted sons, and by the sober second thought of her yeomanry, she is at length aroused, and through the messages of the late and present Governor, declares to us that she is now disposed to see her Legislature devise and adopt a liberal and judicious system of internal improvements, and that she is disposed, when individual means and enterprise have gone ahead and prepared the local work of important lines of railway passing through her territory, enhancing the value of her soil, swelling her revenue and contributing to the comfort and prosperity of her citizens, as a generous sovereign enjoying the eminent domain of this fruitful land, loan her credit to enable such companies to iron, equip and set to immediate and profitable work the various important roads which may be deemed by legislative sagacity and prudence worthy of such aid, and by their prospect of profit and proposed mortgages will secure the State against liability to loss. Acting upon this as a governing principle, the undersigned, with a full appreciation of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad as one of our great projected thoroughfares eminently worthy to be included in the provisions of a general bill, have been unwilling to favor this or any other application for extra aid outside of that contemplated for important lines which may be embraced in the general bill. For 'tis the local work done by individual means and enterprise in the preparation of the road-bed for the reception of iron and equipments that constitutes the basis of security for the advancement of State aid, and if the means of the State are to be asked and obtained to assist in this preliminary work, the security is lessened, and for this reason the example should be avoided.

The majority of this committee who recommend this measure to the House, with the exception of two members, are from that division of the State which feels naturally the deepest interest in this important work, and in the exercise of a very common and excusable partiality for home interests, have urged this proposition with great zeal and assiduity before the committee, and it may be anticipated that the representatives of other sectional interests, encouraged by the success of this precedent and indulging a like desire to gratify their constituents, will apply for similar bounties, when these various applications for special aid are footed up with the liabilities contemplated in the general bill, the undersign fear that the sum total will excite fearful apprehensions in the minds of sanguine and ardent friends of internal improvements, and will furnish the opposition with a most potent and formidable weapon of attack. The undersigned, actuted by the kindest feeling for the East Tennessee works, and with an eye steadily directed to the paramount importance of devising a judicious system which will be readily endorsed and sustained by the great mass of the State, would most respectfully ask the House to ponder well before sanctioning this measure.

All of which is respectfully submitted by

ALEXANDER JACKSON,
G. C. HURT,
J. D. C. ATKINS,
M. B. KING,
L. POPE,
E. A. FERGUSON.

CODE OF TENNESSEE, ADOPTED 1857–8, P. 265.

1091. By the act of 1852, ch. 151, and subsequent acts amendatory thereof, a system of internal improvements by means of railroads is developed by the aid of the State through the loan of its credit.

1092. Upon its being satisfactorily shown to the Governor that either of the railroad companies in these acts mentioned has procured bona fide and good and solvent subscriptions of capital stock to an amount sufficient to grade, bridge, and prepare for the iron rails the whole extent of the main trunk line proposed to be constructed by such company, and has graded, bridged, and fully prepared thirty miles of the road at either terminus for the iron, the Governor is authorized to issue to the company coupon bonds of the State to an amount not exceeding ten thousand dollars a mile on such section, and one hundred thousand dollars for bridges across certain rivers and streams, and so on each additional section of ten miles. Such bonds shall not have more than forty nor less than thirty years to mature; shall be payable at some point in the United States to be designated by the President of the Company, and bear interest at the rate of six per cent., payable semi-annually.

1093. If the entire road is less than thirty miles or the last section less than ten miles, the bonds shall be issued upon the completion of the grading of the whole road in the one case, and of the last section in the other.

1004. No bonds are to be issued except upon the affidavit of the President of the company, and a resolution of the board of directors, that they are not to be used for any other purpose than for procuring the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments, and for putting down the rails; nor are such bonds in any case to be sold at less than their par value.

1095. The bonds are not to be used for any other purpose than for procuring the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments for the prepared section of such road and putting down the rails thereon; and the Governor may appoint a commisioner to act under oath in connection with the President of the road in the negotiation of the bonds, and to see that the proceeds are properly appropriated, and the interests of the State fully protected.

1096. It shall be felony for an officer, agent, or servant of a railroad company to appropriate such bonds, or the money arising from the sale thereof, or any portion of either, to any other use than that prescribed by law.

1097. These bonds, when issued, constitute a lien upon the section of the road so prepared including the road-bed, right of way, grading, bridges, and masonry, upon all the stock subscribed to such road, and upon the iron rails, chairs, spikes, and equipments when purchased; the State being vested with the lien, without any conveyance, as a security for the payment by such company of the interest on such bonds as it falls due, and of the principal of the bonds at their maturity.

1098. And upon the completion of the entire road, the State is invested with a lien without deed, for the purposes mentioned, on the whole road, superstructure, equipments and stock, and upon all the property owned by the company as incident to or necessary for its business.

1099. Nor can such company, after the issuance of the bonds for the first section, create any lien, encumbrance, or mortgage on any part of the road, or on any portion of their property, in conflict with or having priority of the State lien.

1100. It is the duty of such company, at least fifteen days before each instalment of interest on the bonds issued to it becomes due, to deposit in the Bank of Tennessee, at Nashville, a sum of money sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commissions ; or furnish satisfactory evidence to the Comptroller that such interest has been paid or provided for.

1101. Upon failure to comply with the requirements of the preceding section, the Comptroller shall report the fact to the Governor, who shall forthwith appoint a suitable person, at the expense of the company, to take possession and control of the road, and all the property and effects of the company, manage the same and receive the rents, issues and profits.

1102. The Governor, if necessary, may issue his warrant to the sheriffs of the different counties through which the road may run, commanding them to put the receiver appointed in possession of the road, its property and effects.

1103. The receiver shall, however, first give bond, with satisfactory surety, in a penalty to be fixed by the Governor, payable to the State, conditioned for the faithful discharge of his duty as receiver, and that he will receive the rents, issues and profits and pay the same under the direction of the Governor, in liquidation of the unpaid interest.

1104. The receiver shall continue in possession and manage the road until a sufficient sum is realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses incident to the proceedings, to pay off the unpaid interest, after which he shall surrender the road to the company.

1105. The Comptroller shall, from time to time, settle with the receiver, who shall forthwith pay into the treasury any surplus funds in his hands.

1106. The Comptroller shall, upon his warrant, draw from the treasury any sum necessary to meet the interest falling due upon the bonds of the State, and not provided for by the railroad companies.

1107. If the company fail to pay any of the bonds at maturity, the Governor shall notify the Attorney-General of the district in which such company has its place of business, who shall immediately file a bill in the Chancery Court to enforce the lien of the State; which Court shall appoint a receiver, order a sale of the road, and all the property and effects of the company, and otherwise decree as may best protect the interests of the State.

1108. At the end of five years afrer the issuance of each bond to which such road is entitled, such company shall set apart two per centum per annum on the amount of bonds issued to the company, to be used in the purchase of the bonds of the State; which, when purchased, shall be assigned to the Governor, and held, with the accruing interest, as a sinking fund for the payment of the bonds issued to such company. And the Governor, Comptroller of the Treasury, and President of the Bank of Tennessee, are constituted a Board of Commissioners for the management of said fund, and shall re-invest the same in bonds of the State.

1109. Should such company fail to comply with the provisions of the preceding section, it shall be proceeded against in the same way as above provided upon its failure to meet any instalment of interest.

1110. The president of each of these companies shall make semi-annual reports under oath to the Governor, until the completion of the road, setting forth fully the condition of the road and the company; and, after its completion, he shall report to the Governor annually, giving a statement of the trade and travel upon the road, the receipts and expenditures, net earnings and dividends, what per cent. is paid on the stock of the stockholders, and the financial condition of the company generally.

1111. Such companies shall also, at least once in each year, on the first of September, make to the railroad commissioner a report as required in the next chapter, which treats of that officer.

1112. In the event any of these roads, or the property thereof, is sold under the foregoing provisions, the Governor shall appoint an agent to attend the sale, and bid in the property if necessary to protect the interests of the State; in which case the Governor shall appoint a receiver to take possession and manage such road as hereinbefore provided.

1113. The State of Tennessee expressly reserves the right to enact, by the Legislature, all such laws as may be deemed necessary to protect the interests of the State, and to secure the State from loss in consequence of the issuance of such bonds; but so as not to impair the vested rights of the stockholders of the companies.

1114. The State is entitled to two directors, to be appointed by the Governor, in all railroad companies to which her bonds are issued.

1115. Whenever the president and directors of any such railroad fail to pay the interest on their bonds endorsed by the State, the entire board of directors shall be immediately supplanted by the election and appointment of a new board, if the Governor is of opinion that the interest of the State will be thereby promoted.

1116. In such case he shall give the stockholders of the delinquent company immediate notice of the delinquincy, and command them to elect another board, and prescribe the time and place of the election.

1117. In case of such default, all further State aid shall be withheld until the company pays the interest due on their bonds.

1118. The guage of all the roads in the State, except those connecting with railroads of other States of different guage, is required to be five feet.

1119. All the railroads of the State have power to construct their roads so as to cross each other, if necessary, by the main trunks or branches, or to unite with each other as with branches.

1120. Every railroad company, when required, shall receive on its road and branches the full-loaded freight cars of all other companies, transport them to their destination, and return them, without charging for the transportation of the goods, wares, merchandise, and produce therein, any greater rate of freight than they charge for similar transportation in their own cars.

1121. But such roads are not compelled to receive the laden cars of other roads unless they are constructed of the same guage, and are of equal strength with their own cars, of which their principal engineer is to be the judge.

1122. A railroad company owning any main line may contract with any company owning a railroad connecting with such main line, for the lease thereof.

1123. The lessee shall hold such road subject to the liens and liabilities to which it was subject in the hands of the lessor, and be bound for all payments for which the lessor was liable.

REPORT OF INTERNAL IMPROVEMENT COMMITTEE, MADE NOV. 14, 1857. SENATE JOURNAL 1857-8, P. 146.

The Internal Improvement Committee have had the bill, No. 56, under consideration, and a majority have directed me to report a bill in lieu, and recommend the passage of the same. Your committee beg leave to further report that they have unanimously determined to recommend such a line of policy as will in their judgment best protect the interest of the State, and that of the railroad companies. It is clear to every mind that will reflect upon the present and the past, that Tennessee has already extended her aid to works of Internal Improvement beyond that line of safety. The vast amount of her State securities, that have been so hastily thrown upon the market, have had a tendency to paralyze the credit of the State; the result has fallen heavily upon the companies, who have been the recipients of the bonds of the same, in many instances almost ruinously so to many of these companies. State securities have yet to be issued for the final completion of their roads. In view of these facts, and desiring to protect the interest of the people of Tennessee, as a State, and the rights and interests of the companies, as well as those who hold our securities, your committee will steadily oppose the creation af any new companies, to which the aid of the State is in any way to be given; and to prune or lop off such companies as have not already a vested interest that will compel the State to comply with former legislation on this subject. In this way, several millions of dollars of our contemplated indebtedness may, without serious injury to the companies, be held for nothing, or the law giving such contemplated aid be repealed. To effect this, your committee recommend that the Senate steadily refuse to pass any law giving to companies who have not in good faith commenced their work of construction, an extension of time, so as to allow them still to get up their stock and company organization, and claim the State aid. By this course, we will greatly diminish our prospective debt. Notwithstanding the great anxiety of the committee to lessen the liabilities of the State, they are unwilling to recommend violence on the vested rights of our citizens, who have vested their money with the advice and consent of the Tennessee Legislature in these works of Internal Improvement. Although some of these companies may have not, to the letter, complied with the law, yet they are struggling to the utmost of their ability, in good faith, to complete their roads, and have the same in a course of construction; with these companies, a majority of the committee sympathize, and recommend such leniency by the Legislature as the interest of the company demand, so as not to endanger the interest of the State.

In some of these companies the State has already become involved, and strictly to require the law executed, will, doubtless, prove ruinous to the interest of the State to the amount she has already vested or become liable for. To such companies as these a majority of your committee recommend an extension of time to a reasonable extent, if the evidences are that the same is progressing to completion. But your committee, in recommending this leniency, will not be understood as recommending an extension of time, if the surrounding circumstances do not demand it; or in other words every company must be adjudged of accordingly. There are still other companies that your committee believe can be materially assisted by a slight departure from the Internal Improvement law. The bill under consideration presents one of this description of cases, as presented in the bill I have this morning returned. This company, as the evidence shows, has thirty miles of her road graded, and ready for the timber, or will be in a short time, with the exception of a cut, nine hundred feet long, some nineteen miles from Nashville. This cut is through the Cumberland Ridge, and from its peculiar situation, but a small force can be advantageously employed; this will necessarily delay the work for some time. This company asks that the bonds she would be entitled to, if this cut were finished, shall be issued to her at this time, so as to enable them to purchase the iron for this thirty miles, so as to commence the work of track-laying at Nashville, anticipating that by the time this cut is finished, the cars will be running to the ridge, so that work may not be retarded—the one waiting for the other. The completion of this thirty miles of said road, your committee has no doubt will be finished according to existing regimens of law. And to aid the steady progress of the work to the end, that the company may the sooner have the use of the road, they recommend this departure from the present rule of law on this subject; for these reasons a majority of the committee recommend the passage of the bill.

W. P. DAVIS,
Chairman.

ACTS OF 1857–8, CH. 65, P. 76, PASSED MARCH 17, 1858.

AN ACT for the benefit of Blount county, to authorize the County Court of Knox to fix the compensation of railroad tax collectors, to amend the first section of an act passed 8th February, 1858, entitled, an act to produce uniformity in the reports of railroad companies, &c,, and to protect timber, &c., near railroad lines.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That any surplus of State Bonds issued under the internal improvement act, and the acts amendatory thereof, which any railroad company may have left after providing the rails and equipment of their road, or of any section thereof, may be applied to ballasting, trestling or construction.

EXTRACT FROM MESSAGE OF GOVERNOR ANDREW JOHNSON, OCT. 6, 1857, ON THE SUBJECT OF THE BANK OF TENNESSEE, HOUSE JOURNAL, 1857–8, P. 22 AND 23.

The strongest objection now urged to the winding up of the Bank of Tennessee is, that it is necessary as a fiscal agent for the State to receive its revenue and disburse the same, to pay the interest on State Bonds that have been issued, or may hereafter be issued. This objection, when examined and reduced to a practical test, ceases to have any force or solidity in it whatever. I would most respectfully suggest that all the duties now performed by the Bank of Tennessee as a fiscal agent in receiving and disbursing the revenue of the State, and paying the interest upon State Bonds. can be performed by the Comptroller and Treasurer, the financial officers of the State proper, with equal convenience and safety, at at a far less expense than it now costs to carry on the machinery os the Bank of Tennessee.

It is a matter of great importance to the people of Tennessee that our State should be free from debt. If the policy I have recommended should be adopted, the debt which accrued under the acts of 1835-6, and 1837-8, would be liquidated in a very short time. We should then have no interest to pay in the Eastern cities, except on the bonds loaned to railroad companies, and would, therefore, need no bank or other fiscal agent to make payment at any place, other than at the office of the State Treasurer.

Under the act of 1851-2, by which the State credit was loaned to various railroad companies, provision was made that the interest accruing on the bonds loaned should be paid into the Bank of Tennessee fifteen days before it became due in New York. Surely any president of a railroad company having the money to pay the interest on the bonds issued to his road, could, in less than fifteen days, by buying exchange from a bank or broker, or by shipping coin, transfer the amount to New York, or any other point in the Union. This is often done now, as many of the roads have issued bonds which are endorsed by the State, and the interest has been promptly met, without any agency on the part of the Bank of Tennessee. Our merchants and manufacturers must necessarily have frequent payments to make in the Northern and Southern States. These payments are made by purchasing exchange from banks or brokers, and so long as capital is employed in any pursuit which requires the transmission of money from one point to another to pay for articles purchased, there surely will be, even in the absence of all banks, exchange brokers, or factors ready to supply and demand for exchange.

In no event can there be any necessity for a fiscal agent, other than the Treasurer or State Comptroller. Both of these officers should be well qualified for the important positions they occupy, and as competent to manage the finances of the State as a bank president or cashier. The Constitution of the State provides for the election of a Treasurer, and entrusts to him the receiving and disbursing the entire funds of the State.

STATE DEBT—RAILROADS—SINKING FUND.

The entire indebtedness of the State of every descriptio, is $16,643,666.66. Of this only $3,844,606.66 constitute the State debt proper, an amount which could be redeemed at any moment, if due, with the capital owned by the State in the Bank of Tennessee. All but $87,000 of the balance of the public debt. $12,799,000, was loaned to railroad companies in State bonds, or the companies bonds were endorsed by the State. There is no reason why these bonds should not command a premium for investment, if certainty of payment and ability to pay are inducements to capitalists. The material prosperity of the State, her taxable property having increased more than $150,000,000, from $219,-

011,47 to $377,208,541, since the completion of her first railroad in 1854—the statutory line upon the roads and fixtures in favor of the State—the certainty of the payment of interest through the Bank of Tennessee, and its compulsory payment to the bank by the roads, by removal of its officers and directors if not paid promptly—the wise provision of the Legislature, creating a sinking fund for the ultimate redemption of the bonds, requiring two per centum per annum upon the amount loaned, with prompt process to collect; a sum so small as not to embarrass the operation of the roads, but large enough to redeem every bond issued before its maturity—the prosperity of the finished roads, their actual profit and comparatively small bonded debt—are material and ostensible guarantees, without appealing to State pride, that these bonds will be paid. If the railroads were worthless, the debt would still be paid. The annual interest upon this railroad debt is $763,720—the two per cent. added for a sinking fund would make $1,018,700. To pay this the present State tax would be about doubled—a tax much lighter than many of the States now pay. But the railroads themselves have thus far shown an ability to pay the interest and the sinking fund, which secures the ultimate redemption of the bonds, by their profits, as well as dividends to the stockholders. It does not matter to the State or to the bondholder whether the roads make profits for the stockholders or not, so long as the interest and the sinking fund are certainly made. The stockholders might feel compensated for their entire loss of stock by the enhancement in the value of their lands through which the roads pass. The State lends to the companies $10,000 of its bonds for each mile of railroad, and additional for bridge aid, making about $11,000 for each mile. The cost of the finished roads, fixtures, and equipments, average about $27,000 or $28,000 per mile. The State and the bondholder, being interested in the profits only to the extent to cover the interest and sinking fund upon the $11,000, would always be safe so long as the road made eight per cent. upon that amount or about three per cent. upon the whole cost of the road. And this per cent., or any per cent., is much more easily made by a Tennessee railroad than a northern one—it costs about double as much to build a road there as here—of course the road there will have to make double as much as the road here to pay the same interest upon its cost. Besides, I understand there is more capital paid here at the time of building the road than there—here the roads are mostly paid for at the time of building, with the exception or the (about) $11,000 per mile—there most of the companies issue $30,000 or $40,000 or more bonds of the companies for each mile, bearing, too seven or eight per cent. interest, while ours is six per cent., thus creating a further necessity to make more than double as much as our roads to declare the same profits upon the cost. The Northern roads are not, therefore, comparable to ours as security for investment in the stock even, and much less so in the bond they issue, and the bonds issued by the State here for railroad purposes, having the company and the State both bound in Tennessee. To illustrate the safety to the bondholder, as well as to the State, it is but necessary to glance at the present condition and operations of the finished roads in the State—those not noticed having been finished less than a year, or the facts concerning them not readily accessible. The Nashville and Chattanooga road, fixtures and equipments, cost about $28,000 per mile. The State endorsed her bonds for $1,650,000, the interest and sinking fund upon which amount to $132,000—the net profits of the road for 1859 are $320,000, leaving $188,000, after paying interest and sinking fund, to be distributed among the stockholders.

The Memphis and Charleston Railroad fixtures and equipments cost about $28,000 per mile—the State loaned it $1,100,000; the road issued $2,000,000 of other bonds—interest upon the whole, and sinking fund upon the part loaned by the State are $208,000, the net profits of the road for 1859 $600,000, leaving $392,000 to be divided as profits among the stockholders.

The East Tennessee and Georgia Road, fixtures and equipments cost about $27,000 per mile—the State loaned and endorsed for it $1,312,000 of bonds, the interest and sinking fund upon that amount are $104,960—the net profits of the road for 1859 are $162,000—leaving $57,000 to be distributed among the stockholders.

REGISTER OF BONDS AND PAYMENT OF COUPONS.

Sections 209 to 213, inclusive, are unreasonable, impracticable and unnecessary, and throw an amount of labor upon this office impossible to be performed without a heavy clerical force, and keep up its current business.

Section 209 requires the Comptroller to keep a book in which to register the number and date of every bond heretofore or hereafter to be issued, to whom, and for what purpose. The Secretary of State does this. His is the office from which bonds issue, and to whom receipts, in a book, are given. There is no necessity for the Comptroller to do it, and, after being done, it would be but a copy from the Secretary's books, and not receivable, except by special enactment, as evidence anywhere. It is an immense labor upon an officer already overburthened with legitimate business, without any practical or beneficial result being accomplished.

Section 210 requires a continuation of unnecessary labor, by having all the coupons marked in columns opposite the bonds, the time when they fall due, and marked as paid. When a coupon is paid, every material fact is and always has been put upon a book in the Comptroller's office, at the time the warrant issues; when it is paid by the Treasurer, the receipt is returned to the Comptroller, when he countersigns the check for it, and the same facts go upon another book. It would seem that putting down all the facts twice would be sufficient, but this law requires the same facts in a third book, with no counterparts or checks upon it, as the former are by the Treasurer's books. Besides, it is a moral impossibility to do it. More than three-fourths of the bonds of the State have been issued to railroad companies, with the coupons payable in New York; the Bank of Tennessee, as agent for the railroads, pays them there; they are never presented to the Comptroller, and he cannot know of their payment, except upon hearsay evidence, and his record of the fact would be worthless.

Section 211 requires the bond book of the Comptroller to show the final payment of the bond. His ordinary books do that, if paid at the Treasury, and it is therefore unnecessary to keep another and unusual book for the purpose. The Secretary of State (section 197, sub-sec. 16) is required, as the more proper officer, and the one from which they issue, to keep a registry of the payment and cancellation of bonds.

Section 212 requires a repetition in a third book of what is always put in two books in the Comptroller's office, with the additional labor of writing the number of the warrant upon the coupon, and saying who presented, not owned it. The books used for the payment of all other claims against the State show all the facts. I always cancel a coupon upon paying it, and paste it in a book. They are not debts of a more sacred character than others—not more likely to be paid twice—cannot be when cancelled—receipts are always taken as for other claims—any malpractice in their repayment would be as discoverable as any other fraud upon the Treasury.

Section 213 contains the penalty for a violation of these provisions—quite an inducement to a common informer. It is to be hoped these sections will be repealed, and a law substituted requiring the coupons to be cancelled and filed with the receipts, as other claims are. Then each case could be examined for itself.

While upon the subject of the Comptroller's duties, I would say that it is impossible for any one man to perform himself all the labors of this office, unless he have much higher qualification for business than the present incumbent. Requiring the Comptroller to pay his own clerk hire is equivalent to a reduction of his salary to that extent.

SINKING FUND FOR RAILROADS.

Acts of 1855-56, chap. 120, sec. 5, says: That it shall be the duty of the several railroad companies in this State who have received, or may hereafter receive, bonds of the State, or the endorsament of their bonds by the State, to aid in the construction of the several roads, under the provisions of the act of 1851-52 and the acts amendatory thereto, at the expiration of five years from the issuance, or endorsement, of their said several bonds, annually to set apart and pay over to the Treasurer of the State two per cent., per annum upon all bonds which have been, or may hereafter be issued or endorsed, as aforesaid, as a sinking fund, for the ultimate redemption of the bonds issued or endorsed, as aforesaid, which sinking fund, when paid over, the Governor, Comptroller of the Treasury, and President of the Bank of Tennessee shall invest in bonds of the State, and reinvest all accruing interest in like securities, and they are hereby constituted a board of commissioners for the management, government and control of said sinking fund.

Sec. 6 of same act provides, that in case of any railroad company failing to comply with the requirements of sec. 5, as aforesaid, that the Attorney General shall immediately proceed against said company, to collect said sinking fund in the manner prescribed in the 6th section of an act, entitled An Act to establish a system of internal improvements in this State, passed February 11, 1852.

In compliance with this statute, the following railroad companies have paid into the treasury the respective sums here credited, which has been invested in the purchase of bonds as here described, the accruing interest on which, also, appears to the credit of the different roads for whose benefit the purchase was made:

THE LIABILITIES OF THE STATE.

On account of bonds loaned to Internal Improvement Companies, are as follows, to wit:

6 per cent. bonds of the State, interest payable semi-annually, loaned to Railroad Companies	$10,348,000 00
6 per cent. Bonds of the State loaned to Turnpike Companies	57,000 00
6 per cent. Bonds of the State loaned to Agricultural Bureau	30,000 00
Total amount of Bonds loaned.		$10,435,000 00
Bonds of Internal Improvement Companies, the payment of the principal and interest of which is guaranteed by the State, are as follows, to wit:

The Bonds of Railroad Companies........	2,014,000 00
The Bonds of the City of Memphis for the benefit of Memphis and Little Rock Railroad Co.......	350,000 00
Total amount of endorsed bonds......		$2,364,000 00
Total present liabilities of the State, exclusive of actual indebtedness		$12,799,000 00
Add actual debt of the State..............		3,844,606 66
Which makes the total liabilities of the State of every character..............		$16,643,606 66

As most of the Internal Improvements to which the aid of the State is pledged by existing laws are completed, or far advanced towards completion, it is confidently believed that the prospective liabilities of the State in aid of those works will not far exceed three millions of dollars.

The indomitable energy and enterprise of our people, and the very liberal policy pursued by the State government, have secured to the State a splendid system of Railroads and Turnpikes, which give to every section of the Commonwealth easy access to the markets of the world.

It is gratifying that I am able to state to you that up to this time our Railroad Companies have paid each installment of interest upon their State bonds promptly at maturity. The fact that they have been able to do so, through a period of commercial revulsion and general financial derangement throughout the whole country, while most of their roads were in progress of construction, with only short and disconnected lines in operation, necessarily earning very little compared with what their earnings must be when completed and important commercial connections are formed, and through trade established, encourage the confident belief that now, as the various roads are being completed, penetrating every commercial locality within the Atlantic States, greatly increasing their business and profits, that they will in future be able to pay, as they have done heretofore, all of their liabilities promptly as they fall due.

The act of 1856, ch. 120, requires all Railroad Companies, which have received the aid of the State, either by the loan or endorsement of bonds, at the expiration of five years from the date of issuance, and annually thereafter, to pay into the treasury of the State a sinking fund of two per cent. upon the amount of said bonds, and makes it the duty of the Governor, Comptroller, and President of the Bank of Tennessee, as a Board of Sinking Fund Commissioners, to invest said fund in six per cent. bonds of the State, and annually re-invest the accruing interest, &c.

The first instalment of this fund fell due in 1858 since which time we have collected from the various Companies $82,840.95, which we have invested, with the interest accruing on the same, in the six per cent. bonds of the State, and those endorsed by the State, amounting in the aggregate to $109,750, having purchased said bonds at the current rate of discount; upon which we will hereafter collect an interest of $6,417.50 annually.

These bonds are deposited in the Bank of Tennessee, and the receipt of the President of the Bank for them is on file in the Comptroller's office.

The Commissioners have deemed it proper to keep the account of each Company separate, and to invest the funds of each for its own benefit. For a statement of their various accounts you are referred to the Comptroller's report.

The time fixed by the act referred to for the payment of this fund is, "at the expiration of five years from the date of issuance or endorsement."

The general internal improvement act requires all bonds to bear date the 1st day of January of the year in which they are issued, under which all bonds issued within the year must bear the same date, though, in point of fact, portions of them are being issued and delivered to the companies every month in the year.

To avoid the necessity of frequent settlements with the various companies, and the collection of sums too small for investment in a bond, and inasmuch as the bonds all bear date the first day of January, I have fixed that as the day upon which the annual installment is due and payable. Some of the companies contend with plausibility, if not, indeed, correctly, that the first installment of the sinking fund upon each separate lot of bonds received by them, falls due five years from the day upon which the bonds were received.

If this be the proper construction of the act, it imposes the necessity of a number of settlements with each company every year, necessarily resulting in the collection of a small portion of this fund each settlement, and balances too small for investment, thus produced, lying idle in the hands of the Commissioners, to the injury of the company.

I, therefore, respectfully recommend the passage of a law fixing a day upon which the entire sinking fund of each year shall be paid. This will obviate the necessity of more than one settlement with each company annually, and secure the collection of sums sufficiently large for investment.

If the companies continue to pay their sinking fund as they have done heretofore, of which I have no doubt, the present mode of investment will extinguish the entire railroad debt of the State before maturity.

It is to be regretted, however, that notwithstanding the entire success of our internal improvement enterprises thus far, and the fact that the interest upon our bonds, and the bonds themselves as they have matured, have been in every instance punctually paid, yet Tennessee bonds are selling in the market at a discount of near ten per cent., owing in a great measure, as I believe, to the large number of them thrown upon the market, which has a tendency to shock the confidence of capitalists who know the extent of our liabilities, and know very little of our immense resources. And the manner in which they are but too frequently sold by inexperienced holders who know little or nothing of the stock market, at just such prices as they will command upon forced sale, is well calculated to depreciate the credit of the State, and has unquestionably had that effect to some extent.

In view of which facts I cannot too earnestly recommend that the liabilities of the State be not increased.

PUBLIC ACTS 1859-60, CH. 93, P. 90, PASSED MARCH 20, 1860.

AN ACT to provide for the equalization and investment of the Sinking Fund on the Bonds issued to, or endorsed for Railroads in this State.

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the money, or the bonds that have heretofore, or may be paid by cities or railroad companies in this State, to the Sinking Fund Commissioners, by the 1st day of January, 1860, together with the accruing interest thereon, to that date, shall be passed directly to the credit of the party having so paid the same, and be a release to said party for that amount on the debt due by them to the State of Tennessee.

SEC. 2. Said bonds shall all be canceled by said Commissioners; and if endorsed bonds of any railroad company, shall be canceled as hereinafter provided, for the cancellation of the State bonds, and shall be delivered over to said company or corporation, taking the Presidents of said company, or the officer's of said company receipt for the same, which receipt shall be filed, and a copy of the same placed upon a book, which the said Commissioners shall keep for that purpose. If State bonds, they shall be canceled, and filed in the office of the Secretary of State, as hereinafter provided.

SEC. 3. That after the first day of January, 1860, all railroad companies, or city corporations, who have or may hereafter receive the bonds of the State, or its endorsement of their own bonds, under the general internal improvement law of this State, or any other law, shall be required to pay two and one-half per cent. per annum, as a sinking fund, on the amount of the bonds so issued or endorsed by the State for said company or corporation, to be paid in equal instalments, on the first days of April and October, five years after the date of said bonds, and annually thereafter.

Sec. 4. All bonds issued during any one year, shall be dated on the first day of January of that year.

Sec. 5. Said companies or corporations may pay said sinking fund in cash, or in the like character of bonds, that may have been issued or endorsed by the State for said company in their face or par value.

Sec. 6. If paid in money, the Commissioners shall invest it immediately in the bonds of the State, and shall have the same canceled and filed as heretofore provided. Such bonds are to be of the same character as those issued to such company or corporation.

Sec. 7. The sinking fund when paid, in all cases shall be passed directly to the credit of said company or corporation, and be a release to said company or corporation from that amount due by them to the State. The Commissioners shall issue a receipt to each company or corporation for such payment, retaining a duplicate in a well bound book, kept for that purpose.

Sec. 8. Each and every railroad company or city corporation shall provide the interest semi-annually as now provided by law, on the amount of bonds unpaid at the time said interest falls due, and not on the original amount issued to, or endorsed by the State for said company as heretofore provided.

Sec. 9. The Comptroller of the State shall keep a regular account against each company or corporation, charging them with the amount of bonds originally issued to or endorsed for, said company or corporation, by the State, and crediting them by the amount of sinking fund paid, and shall furnish the Treasurer of the State a statement of the amount due by each company or corporation, on the first of June and December of each year, that he may know how much interest each company or corporation has to pay.

Sec. 10. The Commissioners of the Sinking Fund shall cancel all bonds of the State as soon as paid in, or purchased, by cutting out the Governor's and Secretary of State's names, and so defacing each coupon, that it cannot by possibility be used or circulated, and shall file the same in the Secretary of State's office.

Sec. 11. This law shall be in full force from and after passage, and shall repeal all laws in conflict with it, but shall not be so construed as otherwise to affect any law on the subject of the sinking fund, or the payment of interest due on State or endorsed bonds.

Speaker of the Senate.

MESSAGE OF GOV. ISHAM G. HARRIS, JAN. 16, 1861, JOURNALS, EXTRA SESSION 1861, P. 57.

To the Gentlemen of the Senate and House of Representatives:

The sinking fund act of 1855–6, contemplating the investment of the fund, as paid in, in the internal improvement bonds of the State, at par, by which means the entire railroad debt of the State would have been extinguished before maturity. The act of 1859–60, repealed the above recited act, was intended, and will accomplish the same result.

But the Commissioners have invested the fund paid in under the act of 1855–6 in bonds at a discount of from eight to twenty-five per cent., by which much more of the debt has already been extinguished than the act contemplated. In view of which fact, and the failure of crops, derangement and prostration of commerce, and general financial distress in all the departments of business, it is certainly a hardship upon the railroad companies to be compelled to pay, in these times of universal pecuniary distress, any part of the principal of a debt which does not fall due for thirty years.

I therefore respectfully recommend the passage of an act suspending the operation of the sinking fund law for the term of one year from this date, by which time another crop will have been made, and it may be reasonably hoped that these companies will be in good condition to pay their sinking fund without material inconvenience or injury, and if the law is rigidly enforced after this suspension, as it has been heretofore, it will still extinguish the debt by maturity.

Having learned from a petition of the people of the city of Nashville, and as one of the Representatives of the county of Davidson, that the passage of an act authorizing the corporation of the city of Nashville to endorse certain income bonds of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad company, is desired by them and important to said company, at their instance I submit the question to your discretion.

The general internal improvement law makes it the duty of the Governor to appoint "Receivers to take charge of the roads and effects" of railroad companies in certain contingencies, but the law fixes no salary or compensation for such service.

The fact that the duties and responsibilities of the Receiver are much greater on some roads than on others, requires that the compensation of Receiver in each case to depend to a great extent upon the character of duties and amount of responsibilities imposed upon him.

I therefore recommend that you pass an act fixing the salary of Receivers, or conferring upon some officer of the Government the power of fixing the compensation in each case.

Regretting, as I do, the necessity of multiplying the subjects of legislation at an extra session, I have carefully avoided opening the fruitful field of internal improvements, and confined myself strictly to the Sinking Fund law, the salary of Railroad Receivers, and authorizing the corporation of Nashville to endorse the income bonds of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, if it should see proper to do so; which questions are respectfully submitted to your consideration.

ISHAM G. HARRIS.

EXTRACT FROM REPORT OF J. T. DUNLAP, COMPTROLLER, JAN. 22, 1861, JOURNALS OF EXTRA SESSION OF 1861, PP. 146, 147.

But should there be a deficiency of revenue to meet existing and current engagements of the State before the next meeting of the Legislature the Bank of Tennessee, by a sort of common law, and as the State is usually a heavy depositor, always honors the checks of the Treasurer, and has assured the Executive officers it will continue to do so. If, however, extraordinary expenditures or appropriations are made during the present session, the Legislature will, no doubt, levy a tax or order a loan, or provide other means to meet them.

The Edgefield and Kentucky and Winchester and Alabama, two short railroads, unfinished in their connections or to their original termini, have failed to meet their January interest. They are now in the hands of Receivers, appointed by the Governor, for the benefit of the State. Under section 1106 of the Code, I drew upon the Treasurer to pay the interest for each of them; for the the first, including exchange, $23,180 15, and for the last, also including exchange, $13,359 90. I have also been notified that the January interest has not been met upon the $350,000 of Memphis City Bonds, endorsed by the State for the benefit of the Memphis and Little Rock Railroad. I have directed the interest upon them to be paid in the city of New York; interest and exchange amounting to $10,605.

If all the railroads in the State fail to meet their next July interest, it is not presumed the Treasury would have the means to meet it; but if so improbable a contingency occur, the State would take charge of the roads and I should draw, under section 1106, upon the Treasury, and the Bank of Tennessee, without doubt, would furnish the money, trusting to the Legislature in October, to protect it and the honor of the State. The interest due next July upon $12,193,000 of bonds loaned to railroads, will be $365,790 ; if to this be added the interest due then upon the $2,364,000 of bonds endorsed by the State for railroads, the whole amount would be $436,710. I have heard no apprehensions expressed that the longer and finished roads would fail to meet their interest, but should they do so, I do not doubt the State would promptly pay it.

Very respectfully,

J. T. DUNLAP.

SEC. 2. Be it also enacted, That the Governor of the State be, and is hereby authorized and required to pay the Receivers who have taken or may take charge of the roads and effects, such salaries as he may deem just and fair ; Provided, That the same shall not exceed the salary paid heretofore to the Superintendent of said road by the President and Directors thereof, and upon his order the Comptroller shall issue his warrant to the Receivers for such amounts—said salary being made payable quarterly.

ACTS OF 2ND EXTRA SESSION OF 1861, CH. 7, P. 36 PASSED MAY 7, 1861.

AN ACT to amend the Railroad Law.

Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That section 1101 of the Code, and acts amendatory thereto, be so amended as to make it discretionary with the Governor to appoint Receiver as therein provided, or to permit the affairs of the several Railroads of the State to remain in the hands and under the management of the company owning the same, as the interest of the State may suggest.

Provided, however, That no lien of the State on the assets, property, and franchises of said company shall be affected thereby.

ACTS OF 2ND EXTRA SESSION OF 1861, CH. 25, P. 51, PASSED JULY 1, 1861.

AN ACT to authorize the Banks of Tennessee to receive and pay out the Treasury Notes of the Confederate States, and for other purposes.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, That the interest on all bonds of the State, or upon which the State may be liable, held by the citizens or corporations of friendly powers, shall be paid at Nashville, Charleston or New Orleans, at the discretion of the Comptroller of the State; and it shall be the duty of the various railroad companies to pay the interest required of them into the hands of the Treasurer; Provided, Said bonds were bona fide, held and owned by such citizens and corporations on the 15th day of April, 1861, and that fact is made to appear to the satisfaction of the Comptroller of the State by the affidavit of the party demanding payment, and proof of the fact, if desired by the Comptroller, or upon the establishment of the fact in such other manner as shall be satisfactory to said officer. The Comptroller shall advertise at which of said points the interest on said bonds will be met; Provided further, If any of said bonds shall be owned bona fide by a citizen of the Confederate States, and the same is held by a guardian or agent in the non-slaveholding States, the interest shall be paid as provided in this section; Provided, The same shall be paid to the owner of said bonds, or to a duly authorized agent, attorney or guardian, being a citizen of the Confederate States.

Extract from Report of J. T. Dunlap, Comptroller, October, 1861, PP. iv, vii and viii.

There is but one contingency now thought of that would demand an increased taxation upon the property of the State. If the railroads fail to meet the interest upon the bonds loaned to or endorsed for them, the State must pay. In ordinary times, there is no difficulty in their meeting promptly their interest and sinking fund. With many of the larger and finished roads there is none now. The Nashville and Chattanooga,* and some other roads, were reported to the Governor, not from inability to pay, but because, under the act of July 1, 1861, the interest was not allowed to be paid to citizens or corporations of the non-slaveholding States of the United States, and they felt they had a right to use their own money until it was needed for the payment of their own debts when presented. I mention this, not to justify the position they assume, but to show their ability to pay. It is probable the roads will pay the State as much interest upon their bonds as will be demanded during the existence of the war, and at its close the resumption of their ordinary business may yield profits corresponding to their wants.

RAILROAD RECEIVERS.

The salary of these officers, under the present law, is paid out of the Treasury. It occurs to me it ought to be paid out of the profits of the road before they are paid into the Treasury, as other officers and employes are paid. Unless this be done, the State, and not the road, will, upon final settlement, pay the salary of the Receivers while the road continued in the possession of the State. The law requires the road to refund the interest paid by the State, but is silent as to the salaries being refunded. This is comparatively a small matter now, but, if the present derangement in trade and commerce continues, it may be of some magnitude eventually.

* BANK OF TENNESSEE,
Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 16, 1861.

Hon. JAS. T. DUNLAP, Comptroller, &c.:

The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company have had on deposit in this Bank, an average of seventy-five thousand dollars for the past four months, having at no time during that period, less than forty-five thousand dollars at their credit; and are now, and were on the 15th June last, the owners of one hundred and thirty-seven of the one hundred and fifty Bonds issued by the State of Tennessee for their benefit; the July, 1861, coupons, on which have never been taken off, as the Bonds are in New York. The company would, notwithstanding the Bonds were in New York, have paid their interest, but lost sight of the fact that the collection had to be made through the Treasurer, instead of the Bank of Tennessee, as heretofore.

Respectfully, &c.;
JOHN A. FISHER,
Cashier.

INEREST ON STATE BONDS.

The act of July 1, 1861, suspends the payment of interest upon our bonds to citizens and corporations of the non-slaveholding States of the United States of America, and to the purchasers of bonds (from these parties) who did not acquire them on or before the 15th of April, 1861. I have adhered rigidly to the law, though its hardship is manifest upon those who purchased between the two dates, the law itself, as to that period, being retrospective; and, if not unconstitutional, was catching in a trap those Southerners who were exchanging northern property for, or vesting northern balances in State securities. They could not reasonably anticipate such action, as Tennessee had not then, as she has since done, shaken off the Lincoln government.

Until the passage of the law of July 1, the railroads were required to pay the interest upon State bonds loaned to them into the Bank of Tennessee fifteen days before it was due; the Bank was then required, through its agents in New York, to pay it out to the bondholers, charging exchange and commissions for so doing. Under the present law the roads pay the interest in the Treasury, and to the Treasury pays it out. There was adequate reason for this change, which has thrown an immense labor upon the Comptroller and Treasurer. The bank can pay a coupon like any other check, but every payment by the Treasury requires a warrant from the Comptrollet, which is entered upon one book when issued, and another when paid; and, if all the coupons were paid separately, there would be, semi-annually, about 30,000 entries in the Comptroller's office, and half as many in the Treasurer's, an amount of labor almost impracticable to perform, all of which may be avoided by restoring the original law.

EXTRACTS FROM MESSAGE OF GOV. WM. G. BROWNLOW, APRIL 6, 1865, LAWS OF TENN., 1865, PP. 7, 8, 11, 12.

The State debt, as reported by the Comptroller, in October, 1861, is said to be $6,896,606.66, and this demands your attention. This includes $3,000,000 of eight per cent. bonds for the "defence of the State," which has recently been discarded by the people at the ballot box. This unauthorized and most unjust indebtedness, repudiated, leaves the indebtedness of the State properly, $3,896,606.66, at an annual interest of $212,388.25. The interest is presumed to have been paid on the first of January, 1861. It is not known how much has since been paid, if any. The bonds will show, either by the endorsements or the absence of the coupons. Besides this debt, the State has bonds for internal improvement purposes, and has endorsed the bonds of railroad companies to the amount of $16,211,000. For these the State is ultimately liable upon the failure of the companies. These bonds it is believed the State will have to provide for, to preserve its credit, making an aggregate indebtedness of $20,005,606.66, and the annual interest $1,185,048.25. Of this debt proper, $66,666.66 matured in 1861; $61,250 in 1862; $177,750 in 1863; and $58,500 in 1864—in all, $366,166.66, at once to be provided for. The Comptroller states that the bonds maturing in 1861 were "taken possession of and held by the State, subject to adjustment at the end of the war." Besides these, the State held bonds, mostly her own, as follows: The Spencer T. Hunt Fund, 6; The Railroad Sinking Fund, 161; deposited by the free banks, 341; deposited by foreign insurance companies, 80: and in all, 588 bonds. These bonds, held in trust, were carried away, it is believed, with the valuables of the State Treasury, by the State officers, who ingloriously fled on the approach of the National flag. Double payment can probably be avoided. Evidence must be in existence by which they can be identified. The notorious condition of our State affairs has been sufficient to put dealers upon their guard. So that if any of the bonds have been fraudulently sold, payment to the present holders may be justly stopped. Furthermore, it will be well to consider how far it is your duty as agents of the State, not only to pay the bonds held by those who have been actively engaged in the rebellion to overthrow the government, whether held by them or parties who may seek to conceal them for the benefit of the rebels, as they will likely do, I advise that you adopt measures to prevent their payment. The bonds can in no event compensate for the loss the disloyal holders have occasioned the State. The justice of holding them responsible in this way, it is believed, cannot be successfully controverted.

As you are aware, upon the approach of the National forces, and their occupation of our country, the Government took possession of our railroads, in most of which the State is a large stockholder. The State is deeply interested in her internal improvements as she has endorsed bonds at the rate of ten thousand dollars per mile, for nearly all the railroads in Tennessee. And as most of these bonds are held by guardians, for the benefit in many instances of minors and widows, I think it nothing more than simple justice to pay them the interest already due them.

The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad was taken possession of by the Federal authorities on the 7th of March, 1862, and has been held and used ever since, and, regarded as a military necessity; it was proper and right. Presuming the Government to have kept the account strictly, she is now about ready to make a settlement. My information is that certain officers of the company visited Washington on two different occasions, for the purpose of obtaining a settlement with the Quartermaster General. They failed in their efforts, though the President of the United States, who was present on both occasions, expressed his views verbally as favoring the payment of the company for the use of the road. You should now call upon the proper authorities at Washington for payment to this and other companies, requiring the money received to be applied to the payment of interest on their bonds. The amount endorsed by the State for the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company is $1,535,000, and the interest accrued thereon is now nearly $300,000. It is believed that upon a just settlement the Government will owe the company largely over that amount. This road cost the company $3,846,00, including its equipments and depots.

The other roads in the State are similarly situated, and demand your attention. Those officers of roads and stockholders who fled South, carrying with them the rolling stock and funds, should be held to a strict accountability, and their property and stock should be made, in part, to atone for these losses to the State and country. The case of the East Tennessee and Georgia Railroad, and its faithless President, requires our special attention.

It is believed the time has now come for the companies again to use their roads—for the Government, if need be, under even a Military Superintendent thereby effecting a vas saving to the Government, asking only the same pay for freights and passengers they are now paying to the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company. As this war is for the benefit of the whole nation, it is not believed that the General Government intends that Tennessee shall pay more than her just proportion of the war debt.

Your attention is called to the fact that the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company is running a portion of that road in this State, say about sixty miles, with another branch from Bowling Green to Clarksville, and for all that portion of road in our State, the Government pays the Kentucky company, as if the road were in any other loyal State. The information I have is to the effect that the Kentucky company treats with indifference the claims of Tennessee upon that road. It is your duty to let that company know, in decided, but respectful terms, what your rights are, and that you dare assert and maintain them.

Acts of 1865, P. 150, Resolution No. 38, Adopted May 5, 1865.

Joint Resolution appointing Commissioners to settle with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad.

Resolved, by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the Comptroller, Secretary of State, Attorney-General of the State, and Commissioner of Public Roads of the State of Tennessee, be and are hereby constituted Commissioners on behalf of the State of Tennessee, to meet and make a settlement with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, and make a report thereof to this session of the General Assembly, if practicable, if not, to the next session of the same.

Be it further resolved, That if such settlement cannot be made by said Commissioners, with said Louisville and Nashville Railroad, as shall be satisfactory to them, the fact shall be made known to the Governor of the State, and he may direct the Attorney-General of the State to institute such legal proceedings against said company as may be necessary to protect the interests of the State.

Settlement with Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company. Appendix 1865-6, pp. 223, 4 and 5.

Nashville, Tenn., Nov. 18, 1865.

To the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee:

In obedience to a resolution of your honorable body, entitled "A resolution to appoint Commismissioners to settle with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company," adopted May 5th, 1865, the undersigned, as Commissioners on behalf of the State, have met the Hon. James Guthrie, President, and Mr. Willis Ranney, Secretary of said Company, at the State Capitol, for the purpose contemplated in the resolution.

The memorial upon which said resolution is founded, and which, it is said, sets forth the various matters of settlement, has not been furnished to the Commissioners, but has been mislaid in one house or the other of the Legislature. But from a statement of its contents by Mr. Guthrie, your Commissioners are of opinion that the only matter legitimately referred to them, is the indebtedness of said Company to the State on account of aid furnished to the Company in the shape of bonds loaned to them, and the interest thereon.

It appears from the books of the Secretary of State, that said Company have, at different times, received the sum of five hundred and sixty thousand five hundred dollars ($560,500,) of the bonds of the State, in aid of the construction of their road and the bridge across the Cumberland, at Nashville. It appears from the books of the Comptroller, that the interest on these bonds has been paid up to July 1st, 1861. The interest accruing since that time amounts to one hundred and forty-seven thousand one hundred and thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents ($147,131.25,) making the entire indebtedness of said Railroad Company to the State, seven hundred and seven thousand six hundred and thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents ($707,631.25). The principal, Messrs. Guthrie and Ranney, on behalf of said Company, proposed to pay over in straight six per cent. coupon bonds of the State, and the interest in coupons of the bonds of the State now due.

Believing it to be manifestly for the interest of the State to call in this large installment of its indebtedness, and, believing, moreover, that the Company had a right, under the law regulating the Sinking Fund, to pay off its entire indebtedness in the bonds of the State, your Commissioners accepted the proposal, and executed to the Commissioners on behalf of the Company, the following receipt, a duplicate of which is retained in the office of the Comptroller:

"NASHVILLE, TENN., Nov. 17, 1865.

"We, the undersigned, Commissioners appointed by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee by Joint Resolution, adopted May 5th, 1865, 'To meet and make settlement on behalf of the State with the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company,' have this day met and settled with the Hon. James Guthrie, President, and Willis Ranney, Secretary of said Company, and have received from them five hundred and fifty-one coupon bonds of the State, for one thousand dollars each ($551,000,) nine thousand five hundred dollars ($9,500,) in coupons of the bonds of the State now due; also, one hundred and forty-seven thousand one hundred and thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents ($147,131.25,) in coupons of the bonds of the State, in payment of interest due from said Company, accruing since July 1st, 1861—making in all seven hundred and seven thousand six hundred and thirty-one dollars and twenty-five cents ($767,631.25); being the total indebtedness of said Company to the State of Tennessee, on account of the bonds of the State, received in aid of the construction of said road, and the bridge across the Cumberland river.

"Given under our hands, this 17th day of November, 1865.

A. J. Fletcher, Sec'y of State.
S. W. Hatchett, Comptroller.
T. H. Coldwell, Att'y General.
A. W. Hawkins, Com. of Roads."

The bonds and coupons mentioned in said receipt are deposited with the Comptroller of the State, and a list of the numbers and amount of the coupons is filed in the office of the Secretary of State.

From the statement of Mr. Guthrie, your Commissioners are of opinion that the other matters contained in the memorial, grow out of the consolidation of said road with the Edgefield and Kentucky Road, by the acts of December 1st, 1855, and December 3d, 1859, and should be settled by the two companies, unless the latter road should fall permanently into the hands of the State. At any rate, the adjustment of these matters have been waived for the present by consent.

The last instalment of interest, amounting to sixteen thousand eight hundred and fifteen dollars ($16,815) was paid by said company into the Bank of Tennessee on the 9th day of May, 1861, as appears from their receipt. This was two days after the adoption of the Secession Ordinance; but as the law required the payment to be made to the bank, and as your Commissioners cannot see that the status of the bank was changed at that early day, they consider the payment legal. The fact that the fund was lost by the bad faith of the bank, does not, in the opinion of your Commissioners, furnish any just or legal grounds for recourse on the company.

Respectively submitted,

A. J. Fletcher, Sec'y of State.
S. W. Hatchett, Comptroller.
Thos. H. Coldwell, Att'y Gen'l.
A. W. Hawkins, Com. Roads.

PUBLIC ACTS OF 1865–6, CH. 9, P. 10, PASSED NOV. 23, 1865.

AN ACT to amend an Act entitled "An Act to establish a System of Internal Improvement in the State," passed the 11th of February, 1862.

SEC. 5. Be it enacted, That the several railroad companies receiving aid under this act, shall pay the interest on said bonds, as it matures, in the same manner and under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as they are now required to pay on bonds issued or endorsed for them under the act this is intended to amend, commencing the payment of said interest on the 15th day of June, 1866.

SEC. 6. Be it enacted, That the law now requiring all railroad companies in this State to pay into the Treasury 2½ per cent. per annum, as a sinking fund, on the amount of their indebtedness to the State, be, and the same is hereby suspended until January 1st, 1867, and said companies are relieved from the payment of the sinking fund now past due under said law.

SEC. 7. Be it enacted, That each and every railroad company in this State, who have or may receive aid under this act, or the act this is intended to amend, or any amendment thereto, shall pay to the Treasurer of the State during the year 1867, four per cent. on the amount of its indebtedness to the State, as a sinking fund on said debt, to be paid in the bonds of the State in a like character to those issued or endorsed for said company with the coupons on the same that have not matured, said payment to be made semi-annually on the first of April and October, and a like amount every year thereafter until the whole of their indebtedness is discharged.

SEC. 9. Be it further enacted, That the expense of issuing and negotiating said bonds shall be paid out of any money now in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated, and the same shall be collected from the amount issued for the benefit of said companies pro rata.

SEC. 10. Be it enacted, That any railroad company receiving aid under this act or the act this is intended to amend, or any amendment thereto, who shall discriminate in their freight or passenger tariff against the business of any city or town or place in this State, or carry freight lower in one direction than another, or refuse to give the citizens of this State equal facilities for transporting their freight to or from any point they may desire to ship to or from with the citizens of any other State, whether the act be committed within the limits of this State or not, shall, upon conviction, be fined in the sum of not less than one thousand dollars nor over five thousand dollars for each and every offense, the same to be collected as other fines and forfeitures are collected, one half of the same to go to the State, and the other half to the party aggrieved.

PUBLIC ACTS 1866–7, CH. 12, P. 11, PASSED DEC. 10, 1866.

AN ACT to amend an act passed January 18, 1866, entitled, "An Act to establish a system of Internal Improvements," passed February 11, 1852.

Whereas, The Memphis and Ohio Railroad Co., and the Mississippi and Tennesee Railroad Co. are without either passenger or freight depots at Memphis, and the former at many stations along the line of road, and also, that said roads are now much in need of from five to six locomotives each to do the business offered along their respective lines, besides owing the Government of the United States a large amount for stock bought, and in view of the fact that said roads have at all times promptly paid all interest when due, upon all bonds loaned by the State (except during the war), and that they pledge in the future as in the past, to promptly meet all interest due on bonds loaned, or that may be loaned. And whereas, by the additional loan asked, the roads may be put in first-class condition to do the business of the country through which they pass, to the better satisfaction of the people, besides the better protecting the interest of the State in said roads; and further, that without said additional aid asked, the road's receipts, for want of equipment be insufficient to meet current expenses of operating, pay the interest on State bonds, and the debt to the general Government. Therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the Governor of the State be authorized and directed to issue the bonds of the State bearing six per cent. interest, with coupons attached, similar in every respect to the bonds issued under the act this is intended to amend, and upon the same penalties and conditions.

To the Memphis and Ohio Railroad Company, ($200,000) two hundred thousand dollars.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That the sum of three hundred thousand dollars be, and the same is hereby appropriated to the Knoxville and Charleston Railroad, known as the Rabun Gap Railroad.

To the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad Co., five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000).

To the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Co., three hundred thousand dollars ($300,000).

To the Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad Co., five hundred thousand dollars ($500,000).

To the Nashville and Northwestern R. R. Co., two hundred thousand dollars ($200,000), and to the Winchester and Alabama R. R. Co., one hundred and fifty thousand dollars ($150,000); and that the Governor is hereby authorized to issue the bonds of the State for the same, according to the laws made and provided in similar cases.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That bonds of the State to the amount of one hundred thousand dollars be issued to the Atlantic, Tennessee and Ohio Railroad Company for the construction and completion of the road as far as the same is situated in the county of Johnson, and State of Tenneesee. Also, that bonds of the State to the amount of one hundred and fifty thousand dollars be issued to the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad Company, for the completion of their road upon the same terms as provided by the foregoing act.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

EXTRACTS FROM MESSAGE OF GOV. WM. G. BROWNLOW, OCT. 8, 1867. SENATE JOURNAL, 1867-8, P. 27.

ACCOUNTS BETWEEN THE STATE AND THE RAILROADS.

The entire account of the State with the railroad companies, and especially that portion relating to the sinking fund, has been so badly kept, during the war, and before, that the books are very unsatisfactory. I advise the appointment of commissioners by your body, to sit during your session, and make new settlements with all the roads, that the books may be made to show all settlements satisfactory, both to the State and companies. The expense of such settlement will be more than compensated for by rescuing the accounts from ruinous oblivion.

I further advise, that said commissioners be instructed to look into the disposition made of the bonds granted to the various Commissioners in the State, and that they be clothed with power to send for persons and papers. I have reason to believe that, in some instances, the bonds of the State have not been disposed of according to law, while in others the confidence of the State has been abused, and her credit sought to be injured, even by the recipients of her favors. And in all future appropriation to railroad companies, let us know the characters of the men into whose hands State bonds go, both as to integrity and loyalty. Meanwhile, let us guard against any future increase of the State debt by the issuance of bonds to railroads, unless it be in cases where the interests of the State would suffer for the want of further aid.

In the discharge of my duty, I have appointed receivers on as many as seven roads; and if the interest on their indebtedness to the State is not promptly met, I shall provide guardians for others. It is an outrage that nearly a million of dollars is due the State from these defaulting companies.

EXTRACT FROM REPORT OF COMPTROLLER BLACKBURN, OCT. 1, 1867. APPENDIX TO SENATE JOURNAL, PP. 45, 46, 52, 53, 54, 99.

RAILROADS.

These powerful engines of modern progress, so essentially necessary in the development of resources of a country, in bringing the great commercial centres within easy reach of our most distant and interior counties, bearing, on their wings of steam, our cotton, tobacco, corn, wheat and other products, to the distant seaboard, and returning freighted with all those articles needed by our people—this great interest in our State, built up by the capital of our citizens, and most liberally assisted by an enlightened State policy, is now, on account of injury received during the war, in rather depressed condition, so much so (as will be seen by an examination of the following table) that many of the roads have failed to pay the interest due July last, on the State's bonds loaned them. This temporary embarrassment, on the part of the roads that are yet embarrassed, is owing to the large sums of money necessarily expended in repairing the damage done to the roads during the war, as well as replacing, with new rails and machinery, those worn out in the service of the U. S. Government's Transportation Department during the war.

It seems reasonable to expect, however, now that the roads are once more in first rate running order, and abundant corps give promise of returning commercial activity, that they will soon rise—those who have not already—from their depressed condition, and again start forward on their career of usefulness and profit to themselves and the people.

By legislative enactment, on the failure of any railroad company to pay punctually the interest due on State bonds loaned it, a receiver may be appointed, to take charge of and run the road, until such interest shall be paid.

The records of this office, however, do not show that receivers are more successful than the regular officers of the railroads, in collecting and paying into the Treasury—indeed less so; for, from the roads now in the hands of receivers, hardly a dollar has been received during the past fiscal year.

The interest of the railroad companies, is now. emphatically, the interest of the State. To them she has loaned her bonds, to the amount of twenty-two millions of dollars, relying on said roads for the payment of the interest, and the providing of a sinking fund for the ultimate redemption of the bonds. This was fully realized up to the commencement of the war, and now that the cause of the failure to pay, with nearly all of its sad consequences, has almost disappeared, and the roads being repaired and fully equipped, we may, as I think—as before observed—with a little indulgence from the State to the roads that need it, expect, confidently, every road punctually to meet its liabilities.

In order that your Honorable Body might know the character and amount of security the State retains for the large amount of bonds loaned to railroad companies, I have prepared, from such data as this office affords, and from information obtained from the roads, a tabular statement of the capital, together with the length and cost of all railroads in Tennessee, which will be found annexed. Also, in tabular form, headed, "Railroads," a list of all railroads in Tennessee, the amount of bonds received by each, the amount canceled by their respective sinking funds, amount of interest funded on the first day of January, 1866, and amount of interest due by each railroad company on the first of July last, with the July interest then due, inclusive.

RAILROADS AND SINKING FUND.

The entire amount of State Bonds loaned to railroad companies up to October, 1861, was......................	$13,959,000
From which amount is to be deducted, bonds cancelled by the "Sinking Fund for Railroads," and bonds returned by the Louisville & Nashville, and Louisville & Nashville, and Edgefield & Kentucky, in full, for their indebtedness to the State. See Appendix to House Journal, 1865–6, page 234, for settlement of those accounts...........
Total amount........	737,000
	$13,222,000

All bonds of the State, loaned to railroad companies, since March, 1866, amount to		8,172,000
		$21,394,000
The State has indorsed the bonds of railroad companies, the amount of	$2,350,000
Of these, the Sinking Fund has cancelled this amount	143,000	2,207,000
		$23,601,000

Leaving the entire liabilities of the State, for railroads, to this date, $23,601,000, accruing interest, excepted. From this amount, there is yet to be deducted, an amount of bonds in the Railroad Sinking Fund, as shown in the table, below, headed "Railroad Sinking Fund." These bonds are not credited to the different railroad companies whose funds purchased them, as a question has arisen as to the construction of the act of 1860, chap. 93, which directs all bonds purchased by Sinking Funds, and interest accruing thereon, up to January 1, 1860, to be credited to those railroad companies entitled to such credit. As the Sinking Fund Commissioners did not so credit them at the time prescribed by the act aforesaid, the question of their disposition is referred to the Legislature, which will, in justice to the railroad companies, I apprehend, direct that the amount of said bonds be credited to their accounts.

The following bonds were purchased by funds furnished by railroad companies, and the accruing interest thereon, for their respective Sinking Fund accounts,

Those regular State bonds that were cancelled, are credited to the railroads whose funds purchased them, thus lessening their indebtedness to the State.

The failure of many of the railroad companies to pay their interest due on the the 1st of July last, has been very embarrassing to the Treasury—because entirely unexpected. From a tabular statement headed "Railroads," in this report, it will be seen, that the large sum of nearly $800,000 was due by them on the 1st of July last, for interest, for which amount, the Treasury was compelled to provide.

EXTRACT FROM COMPTROLLER'S REPORT, AUG. 6, 1868—SENATE JOURNAL, EX. SESSION 1868. PP. 95 to 107.

COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE,
Nashville, Tenn., August 6, 1868.

To the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee:

GENTLEMEN—In answer to a resolution adopted by your honorable body, calling on me to render an account of my "stewardship" while a member of the Board of Finance, and my reason for not participating in the proceedings of said Board of late, I have the honor to present to your honorable body the following communication.

Permit me here to state that the course pursued by me while a member of the Board was advisedly, deliberately and intentionally pursued, wholly uninfluenced by any individual member of the Board, or by any party or "Ring" outside of the Board. The law creating the Board was before me. The State with all her laboring millions—their necessities, their hopes and their fears. The present condition of things in the State, financial and political, the word of the patriot to do to-day and the hopes of the patriot touching the proximate and remote future of the State, were all before me; and were studied with an anxiety and earnestness and persevering determination, in the presence of which selfishness did not only not exist, but cannot.

Seeing that the law conferred on the Board almost unlimited power over the control of the finances of the State, and learning that one of the members of the Board, Samuel Watson, President of the Bank of Tennessee, had left for New York as soon as the law was enacted, taking a copy of the law with him, to confer with capitalists there, without even speaking to any other member of the Board in regard to the policy to be pursued; and learning also that he was in favor of issuing gold-bearing bonds, indefinitely, either to be sold for currency, with which to redeem an indefinite number of our outstanding bonds, or to give them in exchange for said outstanding bounds; also, that he was corresponding with capitalists here in relation to the certainty of the success of his scheme to "bull" the price of bonds, and that some of the parties here had ventured on the same, and that one speculator in this city had been telegraphed by said member of the Board to meet him in New York—and all this before the organization of the Board, and without having consulted the views of one single other member of the Board. Seeing all this, my mind became oppressed with most serious apprehensions, and I viewed the situation with intense anxiety. Failing to convince myself that the interests of the State could be advanced by the issuance of gold-bearing bonds for any purpose, I determined to oppose the mersure by all means available while in this office, either as a member of the Board or as Comptroller, and in the end to resign my office as Comptroller before I would sign the coupons on gold.bearing bonds.

My proposition was to fund the bonds that matured May 7, 1868, and to borrow enough money, if necessary, to help to pay the July interest, and then to wait for the meeting of the Legislature in November next.

In process of time Mr. Watson returned from New York. He and I, at his request, had a private interview, at the commencement of which he said if he and I could not agree, he would have nothing to do with the Board. I told him I never would support his policy of issuing gold-bearing bonds; but feelings of delicacy prompted me to suggest the impropriety of his withdrawing from the Board.

The Board met and organized on the 9th day of April. I was fully ready for the work. It is proper to state that at this time the Board was a unit on the bond question and on the question of the July interest, Mr. Watson being excepted.

The Board being organized and ready for business, the Secretary of State introduced the following "orders," both of which were unanimously adopted, to-wit:

"ORDER NO. 1.—Ordered by the Board of Finance of the State of Tennessee, That six per cent coupon bonds of the State be issued to such of the creditors of the State as may hold any portion of the bonds issued in May, 1838, for the establishment of the Bank of Tennessee; said (new) bonds to be dated and bearing interest from the first day of July, 1868, payable semi-annually on the first day of July and January, the bonds to fall due on the first day of July, 1898; and that the President of the Board be authorized and directed to procure the necessary engraving. and to notify said bondholders by advertisement, in New York, to present their bonds for renewal during the present year; and that the interest on said outstanding bonds be paid up to July, 1868, in currency.

"ORDER NO. 3.—Ordered by the Board of Finance of the State of Tennsesee, That the Comptroller of the State be, and is hereby, directed to call upon the Governor, from time to time, for a sufficient amount of the bonds of the State, similar to those provided for in the order of the Board proposing to fund the bonds issued to the Bank of Tennessee in the year 1838, which the said Comptroller may hypothecate so as to raise a sufficient sum to meet any deficit in the treasury for the payment of the July interest on the State debt, and for the payment of the indebtedness of the State to the Fourth National Bank of New York, for advances made to pay interest heretofore; Provided, that the terms on which said hypothecation may be negotiated shall first be submitted to this Board, for which purpose the said Comptroller may call a special meeting, if necessary; and he shall report his action from time to time, and be subject to the order of he Board."

At a subsequent meeting of the Board the date of the maturity of the bonds, the issuance of which is thus provided for, was changed to January 1, 1900. The result of the operations of the Board at this, its first meeting, was such as to remove from my mind all apprehension of danger in the future; for Mr. Watson's scheme had been freely canvassed by all the members of the Board, before its organization, and earnestly, unanimously condemned. Now, the Board had met and organized; had "ordered" the funding of the May bonds, and the borrowing of money on the hypothecation of the regular 6 per cent bonds of the State, I considered the crisis as being passed, and with my mind much relieved, proceeded at once to give the "notice" and to order the one thousand bonds, as directed in Order No. 1. Soon after the publication of this "notice" in the New York papers, the May bonds began to arrive for funding, and I gave it as my opinion, that had it not been for the expectation that seemed to begin to be entertained by the holders of these bonds, that Mr. Watson's scheme—the issuance of gold bearing bonds—would ultimately succeed, those May bonds would, by this time, have been funded. In a short time I recieved the one thousand bonds from the National Bank Note Company, New York, and have funded 157 of the May bonds.

From the 9th of April to the 13th of May, the action of the Board was not of sufficient importantance to justify a recapitulation here, especially as the General Assembly has called on the present Secretary of the Board for a transcript of the record.

A short time before the 13th of May, I heard that the Governor had decided to sanction Mr. Watson's "plan."

It is important to state here that Mr. Watson had not attended all the meetings of the Board, and that on such occasions the Board had adjourned without the transaction of business, because of his absence A few days, however, before the thirteenth, Mr. Watson appeared and called earnestly and persistently for a meeting. As I had learned that the Governor had decided to vote for Mr. Watson's scheme, and as the Secretary of State was absent, I opposed the transaction of business. At the earnest solicitations of Mr. Watson, however, "to call a meeting of the Board, and then adjourn, without the transaction of business, merely to have the record show that the Board had met and adjourned," I called the Board to "order," and Mr. Watson read a resolution to adjourn to meet at Knoxville.

After having expressed to Mr. Watson some of my views and feelings relative to the hypocrisy, false pretenses, etc., of the course he proposed, I appealed to Col. Henry, to prevent the complete disruption of the Board, and the nullifying of all it had done, by helping me to kill the resolution. He did so, and we adjourned to a day fixed.

When the Board met. May 13th, Mr. Watson offered the following resolution, No. 15, which sets forth his scheme in a modified shape :

WHEREAS, The State of Tennessee has an opportunity of procuring a loan, on six months' time, to buy the bonds of Tennessee to the amount of two million of dollars ; and whereas, the purchase of bonds at the present market rates, would save the State upwards of $3000,000, in every million of dollars purchased, and would probably save the State a considerable sum annually in interest, and would certainly increase the market value of the bonds of the State ; therefore,

"Be it resolved, That it is to the interest of the State to purchase immediately, one million dollars of its bonds, to be paid for by the issuance of gold-bearing bonds, at a rate of interest not exceeding seven per cent., provided the purchase can be made at such a price as will certainly reduce the debt of the State.

"Resolved, In order to relieve the present pressure upon the treasury, and in order to enable the treasury to meet the wants of common schools, it is the interest of the State to sell an amount of gold-bearing bonds sufficient to pay the balance now owing the Fourth National Bank of New York, and sufficient to pay the amount of interest maturing in July next, that the railroads may be unable to pay; provided, that such bonds can be negotiated at par, as a rate of interest not exceeding that authorized by the act creating the Board of Finance.

"Resolved, That an agent shall be appointed by this Board, out of its own members, to proceed to New York and other points, with authority to carry into effect the provisions of the above resolutions, to attend to the financial interests of the State at those points; and that this agent shall also have the authority to advance the credit of the State by publishing through the press, and by visiting in person, bondholders and others interested in the State of Tennessee. The expenses of this agency to be paid for by the Board, but no compensation for time given or services rendered by him, to be allowed."

Let it be romembered, that Mr. Watson's scheme, of which the foregoing preamble and resolution is a modification, had been fully discussed in New York before the organization of the Board; in fact, that the whole matter had been originated in New York.

After reading the resolution, the subject was fully discussed by the Board, during which I informed the Board that I would oppose the policy indicated by all the means available, and that I would never sanction it.

The Secretary of State then offered the following, in lieu of Mr. Watson's resolution:

"PROPOSITION IN LIEU BY THE SECRETARY OF STATE, REJECTED BY TIE VOTE.

"Ordered by the Board, That the Comptroller be authorized and required to borrow as much money as, in his judgment, may be necessary to pay the July interest on the State debt, and the debt owing to the Fourth National Bank of New York; and that to enable him to do so, he may contract for the delivery of the bonds of the State, bearing such rate of interest in gold or currency as will command a par price."

The Board then ordered Mr. James Plunket, the then Secretary of the Board, to send the two foregoing propositions to the Governor, to be examined by him, and then returned to the Board by mail, with instructions for the casting of his vote, etc.

The Board then adjourned, and met again on the 18th of May. The propositions having been returned by the Governor the package was opened, and it appeared that the Governor had approved, or at least voted for Mr. Watson's resolution! I was perfectly astonished. My heart grew sick, and I felt that these were truly "evil days." The crisis had again arrived, and the "tug of war" had truly come.

I looked upon Mr. Watson's scheme simply as a system of things devised by heartless speculators, to "bull" the price of our bonds for selfish purposes of speculation, to which the State was the victim, and by which they hoped to enrich themselves at the expense and disgrace of the State. But the majority now, for all practical purposes, was against me. Being satisfied as to what Mr. Watson's designs were—his "wheels within a wheel"—I applied my mind to "close thought" on the subject, for the purpose of devising some means yet to prevent the world from being flooded with gold-bearing bonds, for the redemption of which the State of Tennessee would be bound.

Remembering that Col. Henry had told me that he was opposed to the issuance of gold-bearing bonds for any other purpose than that of raising enough money to help pay the July interest, and to give the necessary relief to the State treasury to enable the State to extend some assistance to the common schools, and believing that Mr. Watson had deceived the Colonel into the supposition that he (Mr. Watson) intended nothing more, I offered the following—after having read the Act creating the Board, and addressed remarks explanatory to the Colonel, showing plainly and emphatically that the adoption of my resolution would secure all that he asked for. During all the time occupied by me in addressing the Colonel, Mr. Watson continued to make remarks—of course I do not mean to say continuously and without intermission—calculated, and, as I well knew, intended to distract his mind from an understanding of the truth involved in the matter:

"PROPOSITION IN LIEU BY THE COMPTROLLER, REJECTED BY TIE VOTE.

"Resolution No. 18, offered in lieu of Resolution No. 15, offered by the President of the Bank of Tennessee, on the 15th inst., at the last meeting of the Board of Finance, as said resolution, No. 15, now stands:

"WHEREAS, In the opinion of this Board, a sufficient sum of money cannot be collected from the railroads of the State and all the sources of State revenue, to pay the interest falling due July 1st, 1868, on the State debt; and whereas, in the opinion of the Board of Finance, the importance of the prompt payment of said interest may be regarded as justifying a resort to extraordinary means of raising funds for that specific purpose; Therefore,

"Ordered by the Board, That the President of the Board be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to call on the Governor of the State to issue a sufficient number of 7 per cent. coupon bonds of the State, for one thousand dollars each, dated July 1st, 1868, and to fall due January 1st, 1900, interest payable semi-annually in New York—both principal and interest payable in gold—to supply the deficit due on the July interest, 1868, and for no other purpose, after paying on said interest account every dollar that is collected from the railroads, and every dollar that can be furnished from the revenue of the State; Provided, that said bonds can be sold for currency at par; Provided further, that the said President be required to report to this Board the terms and manner of sale, before said bonds are delivered.

"Ordered further, That the President of the Board be, and he is hereby, instructed to employ the National Bank Note Company, of New York, to prepare a suitable plâte, and to engrave said bonds."

The vote was then taken on my substitute, and it was rejected by a tie vote.

Mr. Watson's resolution was then carried by the votes of himself, the Governor and Col. Henry.

Being fully imbued with the "spirit of the case" on that day, and fully understanding the situation, I could not, and I did not, otherwise look upon the spectacle before me, nor contemplate the nature and condition of said spectacle and situation, than with unutterable and indescribable contempt, loathing and disgust.

The following protest was then presented to the Board by Secretary Fletcher and myself, jointly:

"PROTEST OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE AND COMPTROLLER.

"The undersigned most earnestly protest against the action of the Board, in adopting the proposition of the President of the Bank of Tennessee, for the following reasons:

"First, The main feature of the scheme, that of selling the bonds of the State indiscriminately, with a view to purchasing other bonds of the State, without reference to the time of maturity, is wholly illegal, there being nothing in the law creating the Board, or elsewhere, authorizing the Board to borrow money, or issue new bonds for any other purpose than the payment of the interest on the State debt, and so much of the principal as may fall due within three years from the passage of the law. The bonds will, therefore, be illegally issued, and the sale of them a fraud.

"Second, The facts assumed in the preamble do not exist, viz: That the State has an opportunity to make or save $300,000 by the operation of borrowing money on six months' time, to buy a million of dollars of our six per cent. bonds, by the issuance and sale of gold-bearing bonds sufficient to repay the money borrowed, it may be easily shown by calculation, that, by the time the gold is purchased to pay the interest and principal of the new bonds, the State will lose by the transaction, besides the expense of issuing and selling said bonds.

"Third. It is discreditable and dishonorable to the State, to go into market with a proposition to purchase its own bonds at a discount of thirty per cent., and being without profit, is wholly unwarrantable, and will create suspicions of dishonest purposes.

"Fourthly. The constitution has fixed the rate of interest in Tennessee at six per cent,, to be uniform throughout the State. The courts of Tennesee can give judgment for no higher rate, nor can the Federal Courts, upon contracts made in this State. In the case of a State bond, the contract is in the bond, and is made at the Executive office. The issuance of seven per cent. bonds, which now actually bear an interest of 9 80 in legal tender money, is, therefore, to say the least, of questionable constitutionality; and though the State will never repudiate them on legal grounds alone, it is not likely that well informed dealers will buy them. The bonds being payable in New York, where seven per cent. is allowed, may be technically legal, but it is actually usury on the people; because, if the bonds be made payable in Tennessee, they would be void.

"Fifthly. The proposition does not provide that the bonds should be sold at par. The law declares that they shall be sold in no other way. The scheme only provides that they be sold so as to reduce the bonded debt of the State. Our agent may, therefore, deliver gold seven per cent. bonds in exchange for six per cent. bonds, at but one cent. difference. Other reasons might be given for condemning this movement, but are, perhaps, unnecessary here; because of all which the undersigned protest, and move to have this, their Protest, spread upon the minutes of the Board.

"A. J. FLETCHER,
"Secretary of State, and ex-officio member of the Board.

"G. W. BLACKBURN,
"President Board of Finance."

Immediately after which, I tendered to the Board my resignation as follows:

"COMPTROLLER'S OFFICE,
Nashville, Tenneesee, May 18, 1868.

"To the Board of Finance:

"GENTLEMEN: Finding it to be impossible to support the financial scheme advocated by the President of the Bank of Tennesee, and now supported by his Excellency, the Governor,, and being fully satisfied that I cannot advance, or protect the interests of the State through the Board, by longer continuing to be a member thereof, and being unwilling to be connected with measures— even by implication—which I do most conscientiously believe will redound to the financial injury and disgrace of the State, I hereby tender to the Board this, my resignation, as a member of said Board, thus, at once, dissolving my connection with said Board, as a member thereof.

"G. W. BLACKBURN,
"Comptroller and President Board of Finance."

This resignation, particularly when taken in connection with the foregoing, will fully explain the reason why I did not continue to act with the Board. While I continued to work with the Board, the interests of the State, its respectability at home, and its good name at abroad, constituted the "man of my counsel." This I know, and to me it is enough to know.

It is fitting, however, for me to remark here, that I did not, at any stage of the proceedings, regard Mr. Watson as the friend of the State. I regarded him as working here in the service of a "ring of speculators" in Tennesee bonds, having its head in New York, the business of which was to "bull" the prices of bonds momentarily, so that bonds that had been bought low might be sold high, in the success of which operation I regarded Mr. Watson as being an interested party; acting upon the same principle of those Railroad Receivers, who have been placed in possession of railroads to look after the "interests of the State," and who never pay the State any money, being wholly regardless of the unpleasant straits into which the "State" is driven by their infernal proceedings.

After the adjournment of the Board here on the 18th day of May, Mr. Watson and Col. Henry repaired to Knoxville, where they met with the Governor, and on the 21st of May, reorganized the Board. My information concerning what was done at this meeting of the Board, was derived from the Knoxville Whig, a few days after the meeting of the Board. Mr. Watson had been made chairman of the Board, appointed agent to go to New York to sell six hundred seven per cent. gold-bearing bonds, to help pay the July interest, and to enable the State to assist the schools; provided these bonds could be sold at par, for currency. This was my understanding of the matter, and I regarded it as official.

I was pleased to infer from the proceedings of this meeting, that the Governor had suspicioned the existence of Mr. Watson's cat, hitherto hid away under pretty heavy coats of sophistical meal, and had wisely concluded to circumscribe the gold bond venture to the objects as above.

When the news reached Nashville that only six hundred gold-bearing bonds were to be issued, a banker told me that he would give currency for such bonds at par. Taking this fact into consideration, I supposed Mr. Watson would sell the bonds as soon as he reached New York, and I supposed he would go immediately to New York and do it. It seems from his communication to your honorable body, however, that he completed the terms of a loan on the 7th of June, seventeen days after his appointment as agent for that special purpose. The hurry of Mr. Watson, on account of the shortness of time, etc., manifested and urged about the 10th of April, when he had the Governor's proxy in his pocket, and when I desired more time to oppose his schemes, seems to have vanished as soon as he obtained the agency.

On account of facts stated above, I considered the providing of money for the July interest as having been taken off my hands, because I believed Mr. Watson would sell the bonds as authorized by the Board—I did not suppose he was authorized to raise it in any other way—hence my supposition that he had failed in his mission, and that nothing had been done for the State, when I heard the bonds could only be sold conditionally, which condition I regarded as ending the experiment. About this time it was, that I was told by the President of our fiscal agency, that I ought to go there at once, etc.; and it was at this time that I concluded to go, instead of sending for the January and May coupons; and it was at or about this time, that I telegraphed, or wrote, President Calhoun that I would be there as soon as I could, etc.

As to my preventing Mr. Watson from raising money for the July interest, by writing to the bank there "that I was going to attend to it myself," there must be a mistake. The raising of money by Mr. Watson was a thing with which I had nothing to do. Nor did I propose to have anything to do with it; and, in fact, it never entered my mind to interfere with it.

What I distinctly remember in connection with this matter, is this: When I became satisfied that the sale of gold bonds would not be made, and fearing that Mr. Watson would again enter into entangling, conditional and unnecessary contracts in the procuring of a loan, I wrote President Calhoun, telling him what authority Mr. Watson had to raise money, and how it was to be done; and said to him that if he did, it was all right, but if he did not, that I would not sanction his operations there till I knew what they were.

As to the payment of a certain amount of money to the Fourth National Bank (about which Mr. Watson complains) after the meeting of the Board at Knoxville, and before Mr. Watson completed the terms of a loan in New York, June 7th, I only have to say that my word as Comptroller of the State, and as G. W. Blackburn straight, was pledged to President Calhoun for the payment of that money as soon as I could pay it, and I did it. That is all. That the payment of old debts darkens the prospects of making new ones, is a proposition the philosophy of which I cannot comprehend. My "lack of financial ability," however, is doubtless the cause of it.

I left for New York as soon as I could arrange matters here so that I could leave, having previously arranged with Col. Henry to forward to me at New York, to the care of the Fourth National Bank, all the money that came to my office or his from the railroads; $119,165.90 was received in my absence and not forwarded, because at the time it was received, the Colonel supposed I was on my way home. I took Mr. Plunkett with me to help me to count, receive, cancel and bring to this office nearly $800,000 in coupons from the Fourth National Bank, New York, and to help me make a settlement with the bank in reference to the past.

I went, not knowing what else I would have to do, or what I could do; but I went with a determination to leave gold bonds out of any arrangements that I made. I consulted with our Congressmen in Washington as I passed on, and arrived in New York on the 16th of June; and the next morning called on President Calhonn, and finding that there was no necessity for gold-bearing bonds, completed arrangements with him, satisfactory to him and fully so to me.

After this, I called on all the holders of our May bonds that I could find, and arranged with them and President Calhoun in reference to the funding of these bonds, by which no expense would be incurred by the holders of the bonds, and but little to the State. I also saw the President and Cashier of the Manhattan Bank, in reference to the money that was to be paid into said bank on account of the Agricultural College land scrip of the State, and made an arrangement by which the money cannot be withdrawn without the authority of the whole Board.

Having thus finished my work, leaving nothing undone that I could do, or was necessary for me to do, I left the city on the 20th of June, well pleased, in good spirits, and with the belief that all was well. And here let me state to your honorable body, that it was not the failure of the railroad men to pay before the 30th of June, nor my failure to stay in this office and send on money to New York, nor on account of my paying up the loan accounts of January, 1868; nor was it anything I had written or said to the President of the Fourth National Bank; nor was it the work of the New York capitalists—none of these, nor all of them put together, that prevented the payment of the July interest—but it was a "bear" movement, by either a Tennessean or Tennesseans, then in New York, who, for the purpose of making money, sold short, and had the railroad men and the bank enjoined effectually to "bear" the price of bonds, so that they might buy bonds at a low figure to cover their engagements.

Of course I qualify this by saying that I don't know that it is so; nor do I, therefore, say that it is so; but I do say that I don't suppose there is any one that don't believe it, unless by a possibility I am mistaken in my belief.

I do not believe that Mr. Watson had anything to do with the "bear" movement, his success depending entirely, in my opinion, on the success of the "bulls."

I returned to Nashville on the evening of the 25th of June; and on the 26th sent to New York, to our fiscal agency, $120,665.90.

Rejoicing in the belief that a better day was dawning on our State, I pursued my duties in this office, undisturbed by a thought of approaching difficulties, until some time in the day of the 29th day of June, when Mr. McCrory, of the First National Bank of Nashville, came into this office and told me he had received a dispatch from New York, stating that the rumor there was, that the railroad men, then in New York, would be enjoined from paying the State money due on the State loan. I at once telegraphed to President Calhoun, telling him what I had heard, and requesting him to tell me if there was any truth in it. His answer, received the same day, was, "that the railroad men had been enjoined, and the report was, that the funds of the State in his bank would be enjoined."

Not knowing what to think about the matter, and fearing that possibly some holder of our May bonds had concluded to compel the State to pay said bonds, and being determined that the State should not undertake to do any thing under compulsion, and not knowing but what all my arrangements there might be entangled, I proposed to cut the gordian knot by telegraphing the bank to consider for the present, our contract for the loan cancelled, and to return to me, by express, all the funds in the bank to the credit of the State.

The answer was, that my dispatch "came too late, funds all attached."

My next information was, that the trial of the case was set for a certain day. I dispatched President Calhoun to employ counsel for the State, and have the trial hurried up. He answered that Judge Watson had already employed counsel.

The trial was put off. The next information of any importance, that my inquiries elicited, was that the case would certainly be reached and disposed of, on the 20th July. That day passed, and I asked for the result, and was told that the case was put off by counsel for the State, and that Judge Watson had been telegraphed to, and it was thought when his evidence could be heard in behalf of the State, an early decision would be made in the matter, etc. This was dated July 23d, and is the latest information I have ; and here, therefore my report to your honorable body closes, with a very few additional remarks.

Believing, from intelligence received from President Calhoun, that the injunction case would be disposed of in favor of the State, on the 20th of July, I commenced preparing to go to New York, to again arrange for the payment of the July interest. I learned, however, before the 20th arrived, that Mr. Watson denied my authority to do so, claiming that he alone possessed that authority. I immediately telegraphed and wrote to the Governor requesting him to lay the matter before the extra session of the Legislature, so that the matter might be disposed of by your honorable body as you might deem most advisable.

Now, gentlemen of the General Assembly—after having witnessed all that I have in relation to what the Board has done, and what it has left undone, and what it has tried to do; and after having studied the Board itself, with all its circumstances, conditions and surroundings—allow me to say to your honorable body, that it is my deliberate opinion in which I think it impossible for me to be mistaken—that the interests of the State imperatively demand the instant repeal of the law creating the Board; and that, in the future, for a time at least, you endeavor to have the interest of the State looked after otherwise than by irresponsible agents.

In closing this report, permit me to say, that it has been hurriedly written—under circumstances not favorable to the preparation or making of a report on a subject like this, and that much might have been said additional to what has been said, of like character; but not wishing to make my reply to your resolution too cumbrous, I have tried to study brevity.

In all that I have done, or tried to do, both while acting with the Board, and since, I have been governed by what I considered to be my duty to the State.

I may have erred. If so, it has been in judgment, not otherwise. My conscience is clear.

Your obedient servant,
G. W. BLACKBURN,
Comptroller.

Extract from Message of Gov. Wm. G. Brownlow, Nov. 10, 1868. Senate Appendix 1868-9, pp. 4 and 5.

THE RAILROAD QUESTION.

The six railroads in the hands of Receivers, are indebted to the State, on interest account, due July 1, 1868, one million one hundred and twenty thousand nine hundred and ninety-six dollars and eighty-six cents. The interest of these roads, as well as that of the State, require that they should be sold and the proceeds thereof be applied to the reduction of the State debt.

I would have seized the two other roads for failure to pay the July interest, and placed them in the hands of Receivers, but that I had learned by experience. that to do so would only entail increased burdens upon the State Treasury.

I recommend that no more appropriations be made to railroads, except in those cases where the State has large interest in said roads, and would suffer heavy loss on account of the lack of such appropriations. Of this class are the roads running out, North and South, from Knoxville, and the one extending South from Morristown ; and, also, the road of which Hon. Senator Parker is President. These roads, in order to become profitable and productive to the State, will require enough additional appropriations to enable them to complete their lines, so as to connect with other roads now in process of construction. I propose, however, to meet these demands in a way not to increase the liabilities of the State. The plan is this :

Leading gentlemen, connected with important railroads largely indebted to the State, are asking for authority to issue second mortgage bonds, with a view of exchanging them for State bonds. Thus purchasing State bonds by the avails of these second mortgage bonds, the debt now due the State would, in like amount, be transferred to these railroad companies, and so the State would be relieved of a burden of several million of dollars of debt now resting upon it.

I regard this proposition with approval, and advise its adoption by the Assembly. The payment of large debts now due from the roads alluded to, and the sale of the roads already in the hands of Receivers, would reduce the State liabilities at least one-third.

This plan, it is seen, would enable the General Assembly not only to reduce materially the State's liabilities, but also to render such necessary additional aid to the roads whose completion is demanded by considerations of public economy.

Several of the railroad companies have unsettled accounts with the sinking fund. The State being indebted to them and they being indebted to the State, it is important that an early settlement of these accounts be had. I recommend, therefore, that the proper action be had by your respective Houses, to procure the desired settlement with the said railroads.

Since the adjournment of your Extraordinary Session, the Comptroller has visited New York and made satisfactory arrangements for the payment of the July interest. This fact, together with the result of the late State and Presidential elections, has induced an appreciation of our State bonds, and a material depreciation in the price of gold.

The occasion serves to allude to the gratifying fact, that, financially and otherwise, Tennessee occupies a far more desirable position than any of the States recently in rebellion. Thus the policy of reconstruction maintained by the Union Republican party of Tennessee, finds ample and triumphant vindication by its achievements among us; and thus, also, the path of our future growing prosperity is traced for us by the history of the last four years. We have only to follow up with steady nerve and unfaltering step, the policy thus far so successful, to assure to this great Commonwealth that degree of thrift, wealth and power, to which our natural position, our boundless resources and our enterprising population so eminently entitle us.

AN ACT to Accept, Confirm, Ratify and make Obligatory, a lease of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company.

WHEREAS, At a meeting of the Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, held in the city of Nashville, on the 27th day of October, 1869, E. W. Cole, President of the Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Company, submitted a written proposition, on the part of said Nashville & Chattanooga Railroad Company, for a lease to said company of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, for a term of six years, which proposition was in the words and figures following:

"The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company propose to lease the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, for the period of six years, upon the following terms and conditions:

"It will expend upon the road-bed, superstructures, bridges and trestles, and in the repair and purchase of rolling stock, within the next six months, the sum of $100,000; and, as speedily as possible, put the road in as good condition as other connecting roads,, and supply it with rolling stock sufficient to meet the requirements of the business of the road, in freights and passengers, and of the same quality and character as similar rolling stock of the Nashville and Chattanooga road, and continue to keep the road in good condition, and the rolling stock in like good order and condition, for and during the full term of the lease, and the same is fully ended; and to return the road and rolling stock in like order and condition, at the expiration of the lease; all repairs, improvements and additions, to be made at the usual, reasonable and customary prices, for the time being.

"The present rolling stock, material and personalty of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, on hand, and to be valued by three persons, one to be selected by each of the contracting parties, and they to select a third, and taken by the Nashville and Chattanooga road at the valuation, and returned in kind at the end of the lease, upon like valuation.

"The road shall continue, during the lease, to be operated on its present line, and upon every part of it, without discrimination against any part, unless with the consent of the Board of Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company; and the lessee shall so operate as to foster and encourage the local as well as through business; and such and so many trains for the accommodation of freight and passengers shall be run as are usual and customary on roads of similar length and importance, and necessary to perform the business offered.

"The tariff of through freights and passengers are to be ratably divided between the roads in proportion to the length of the two roads to each other, or the distances carried on each; and the local earnings are to be credited to the lessor.

"The lessee agrees to make no charge for use of tools, rent of shops, or yard room, or pay of yardmen at Nashville during the continuance of this lease.

"One-third of the salaries of the president, superintendent, secretary and treasurer, freight and passenger agent, and engineer, of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, shall be paid out of the earnings of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad; and the share of the lessor of these salaries shall not exceed the following sums: president, $3,000 per annum; superintendent, $2,000; secretary and treasurer, $2,000; general freight agent, $500; general passenger agent, $500; engineer, $1,000. There shall also be paid out of the earnings of the road the salary of an agent, to be appointed by the Board of Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, as hereinafter provided, to superintend the interests of said company under this lease, which salary is fixed at $———. No other agent or officers shall be employed, except such as are necessary to operating the road, and devote their whole time and attention to the business of the road, and, as are usual in such cases, who shall be paid out of the earnings of the road, the same compensation which is allowed similar agents and officers of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company for similar services. The Board of Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company may elect an agent to hold his office during the pleasure of the board, to represent said company and protect its interests during the lease, whose duty it shall be to give a general supervision to all the business of the road, and all transactions under this lease; with the right to have free access at all times to the rolling stock, property and effects used in running the road, with a view to ascertaining its condition, and whether any or what repairs are required; and to the books of the business of the two roads, so far as they relate to or have any connection with the business or operations under this lease.

"He shall be consulted as to all expenses, ordinary or extraordinary, but without having the right to prevent them, if deemed necessary by the lessee. If, however, the agent shall dissent, the matter shall be suspended until the contracting parties have come to some agreement, or the matter arbitrated as hereinafter provided.

"The agent shall make a report to the board of the lessor at least once in every three months, or oftener if necessary or required.

"All matters of difference arising under this lease, either as to the operation of the road, the expenes incurred, or otherwise, which cannot be amicably adjusted by committees of the two boards, shall be submitted at once to the arbitrament and award of three railroad officers, or engineers, one to be selected by each of the parties, and one by these two, whose decision shall be final and binding on the contracting parties.

"All depot houses, sidings, buildings and appurtenances of the road shall be returned with the road bed and rolling stock in good order and condition at the expiration of the lease.

"Regular and exact accounts shall be kept by the lessee of all the earnings and expenditures in operating the road, to which the agent above provided for shall have full access; and monthly reports and settlements shall be made between the parties.

"The lessee is to have control of the road and of its operations under the lease, and to receive all the earnings of its business, and shall be entitled out of these earnings to pay the salaries as hereinbefore provided, and all the expenses of running the said road, and to reimburse itself the money advanced to put the road in good condition, and to furnish rolling stock as herein stipulated, with interest.

"Any surplus of earnings after these disbursements, shall be paid to the State of Tennessee monthly, at the expiration of each and every month during the time of the lease, to be credited to the interest due or to become due to the State upon the bonds issued to the lessor, and which are a lien, by statute, upon said road. If the surplus earnings should, during the term of lease, pay off the arrears of interest due the State, and exceed the interest which may thereafter fall due semi-annually, such excess shall be paid to the lessor or its order.

"It is further agreed that no agent or officer of either road shall be allowed to engage in any speculation or business connected, or have anything to do with the transportation or other business of the road.

Whereas, "The time has arrived when it is necessary to protect the interests of the State, and to secure the State from loss, in consequence of the issuance of bonds to the several railroad companies of the State, that a sale should be made of the interest of the State in each and every railroad company in this State, which has heretofore failed to pay the interest that has accrued on the bonds of the State loaned to it, or which may hereafter fail to pay the interest as it accrues on the bonds of State loaned to it; and,

Whereas, It is important to relieve the people of the burden now upon them, and by wise legislation endeavor to restore the public credit, which can be done by a proper enforcement of the legal rights of the State of Tennessee as against said railroad companies so in default; therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the Governor of the State, Secretary of State, and Comptroller of the Treasury, and Robert J. Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That if any Receiver, who shall have control of any, or either, of the railroads of the State, and which road may be sold by the Commissioners, under the first section of this Act, shall refuse to give possession of said railroad track, railing, rolling stock, etc., to the purchaser upon demand, the Governor of the State shall issue his warrant to the Sheriffs of the different counties through which the road may run, commanding them to put the purchasers in possession of the railroad, its property and effects, and the Receivers so refusing shall be guilty of a high crime, and, upon conviction, shall be fined in a sum of not less than one thousand dollars, and imprisoned at the discretion of the Court.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That in the event said Commissioners cannot sell said defaulting railroads, or either of them, for the amount and upon the terms as prescribed in the first section of this Act, then the said Commissioners are authorized, after giving such public notice as they may deem advisable or necessary, to receive sealed bids from any person, persons or corporation, for the purchase of either of the delinquent railroads of the State, and, after giving thirty days notice of the time and place, shall open the bids so made, and the said Commissioners will report to this, or some subsequent General Assembly, and the best bid offered, with such recommendation as to them may seem best for the interest of the State, for the approval or rejection of the General Assembly.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That no less than four of the Commissioners named in this act shall be competent to perform any duties required by this act.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That the Commissioners, in making a sale of the interest of the State in any of the railroads, shall give the preference to the purchaser or purchasers, who will obligate himself, or themselves, to operate the road so purchased over its entire line, from terminus to terminus; and that as the public welfare requires it, this Act shall take effect from and after its passage.

Report of State Railroad Commissioners, House Appendix 1870–71, P. 997.

To the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee:

The undersigned Commissioners respectfully report to your honorable body, that, in pusuance of the Act of 1870, ch. 79, they proceeded, after due advertisement, to offer for sale, separately, the interest of the State in the several Railroad Companies, contemplated by said act, but failed to sell, or to receive a bid, for either road. This result was not unexpected. The proposal to sell the interest of the State in said Railroad Companies, under the Act of 1870, gave rise to various embarrising questions; some of which are of serious importance to the interests of the State, as well as to the stockholders, bondholders, and creditors of the several roads; and are well calculated—so long as they remain open and undetermined—to deter persons from buying, and, consequently, to defeat the laudable object sought to be accomplished by the act referred to.

Most of these questions are exclusively of a judicial nature. The legislative department of the government is not competent to deal with or make any final obligatory determination of them. This can only be done by some tribunal invested with full jurisdiction of the whole subject matter, and also of the person of all parties whose rights may, in any way, be affected by the prosed sale.

After a careful consideration of the subject, the Commissioners are of opinion that, before a sale should again be attempted, farther and more specific legislation is indispensably necessary—providing for the removal of existing obstacles to a sale under the Act of 1870, by a speedy and final determination of the multifarious legal questions affecting essentially the rights of all parties interested in said roads. Without this, it is obvious that the interest of the State must be sold, if sold at all, at a great sacrifice, and be followed, in all probability, by a multiplicity of vexatious and protracted litigation.

It may not be improper to remark here, that by the Act of 1870, the Commissioners were invested with the mere power to sell the interest of the State.

No authority was given them to consider of, or adjudicate any of the numerous questions that have arisen; and even had such authority been conferred, they would scarcely have felt justified in exercising it, as their proceedings would have been ex parte, and consequently not obligatory on other parties. Nor do they now assume to express an opinion upon any of the questions presented; but simply state, as briefly as possible, some of the more important of them, in order that the absolute necessity of father action on the part of the General Assembly, preliminary to a sale, may the more fully appear.

And in case of farther legislation, looking to a sale of the interest of the State, the Commissioners would respectfully suggest the propriety of a sale on time, and payment in instalments, upon such stringent conditions as would coerce prompt compliance with the terms of sale on the part of the purchaser: say, let twenty-five per cent. of the amount agreed to be paid be required in hand, and the remainder at such intervals as might be deemed proper. The purchaser to pay the interest semi-annually on the whole amount agreed to be paid by him, from the time of his purchase; and his failure promptly to meet any further instalment to work an absolute forfeiture, to the State, of the payment or payments previously made by him; and, in addition, that the road should be instantly, upon such default, re-sold by the Commissioners.

The Commissioners would further suggest that the provision of the Act of 1870, fixing the minimum price of sale at the amount due from each Company to the State, is impracticable. They are fully satisfied that the interest of the State in some of the roads—especially the shorter and least valuable roads—cannot be sold for an amount even approximating the debts due the State. And in this view a minimum price ought either to be fixed upon each road, or a discretion vested in the Commissioners in regard to the price.

And in this connection, the Commissioners beg leave to express their approval of that feature of the Act of 1870 which secures to the purchaser the right to discharge the amount of his purchase in any of the legal bonds of the State. This provision, they believe will, in no small degree, facilitate a sale, and serve to enhance the price. And it cannot be of prejudice to the State, inasmuch as it is all the same to the State whether a given amount of its liability be extinguished by the surrender and cancellation of one set of bonds or another. The only conceivable objection, as it seems to the Commissioners, would be in the mouth of the purchaser himself; and that only in the event that it should be held that the bondholders have a lien on the road. But this objection is of no practical force if the State shall provide for the faithful discharge of its remaining outstanding bonds as they mature.

Having made these suggestions, the Commissioners proceed to present to the consideration of your honorable body some of the embarrassing questions before alluded to.

One of the difficulties is the ascertainment of the actual indebtedness of the some Companies to the State.

Shortly preceding the day appointed for the sale by the Commissioners, three injunction bills were filed at Nashville against the Commissioners—one by the Edgefield and Kentucky Road; another by the Memphis, Clarksville, and Louisville Road; and a third by certain creditors of said roads. An injunction to restrain a sale by the Commissioners was refused; but the Commissioners were enjoined, in case of sale, to retain of the proceeds an amount sufficient to cover the demands set up by the alleged creditors.

It seems that the Receivers of some of the roads contracted large debts, for the benefit of the roads as is alleged, to different persons, and on different accounts; and it is assumed that the State is liable for these debts; and upon this assumption the injunction was awarded.

How far these demands are just and bona fide it is not for the Commissioners to say; and if, upon a careful judicial investigation, they shall be found to be valid, whether the State can be held liable for their satisfaction, under the existing laws, must be left for the Court to determine.

It further appears, that after the roads were placed in the hands of Receivers, the Governor, under an Act of the General Assembly, passed in 1866, assumed, for the Memphis, Clarksville, and Louisville Road, a debt to the United States Government of between three and four hundred thousand dollars; and for the Edgefield and Kentucky Road, a debt of like character, of more than one hundred thousand dollars. These Companies insist that they are not liable for these debts.

It also appears that, by an Act passed in 1867, bonds of the State, to the amount of two hundred thousand dollars, were issued to the Henderson and Evansville Railroad Company.

This road lies beyond the limits of this State, and wholly within the territorial limits of Kentucky; and the proceeds of said bonds were exclusively applied to its construction. For this singular appropriation of the bonds of the State the Edgefield Company insists that it cannot be made liable.

It further appears that to the Edgefield and Kentucky Road, and to the Memphis, Clarksville, and Louisville Road, and, perhaps, to other roads, after they were placed in the hands of Receivers, bonds of the State to a very large amount were issued and delivered to said Receivers; which, it is alleged, were disposed of greatly under par; and it is now claimed by said companies that they are not properly liable to be charged with the bonds thus issued; but that, if held liable at all, it should not be for a greater amount than was actually realized from their sale.

It is manifest, that in regard to the issuance of bonds to some of the roads, and the reckless disposition of them, and general management of the roads, by some of the Receivers, a heavy responsibility rests somewhere; but upon whom it should fall, it is not within the province of the Commissioners to determine.

It need scarcely be stated, that the foregoing, and other questions raised by said companies, must be adjudicated before the amounts due from them, respectively, can be accurately stated; and it is apparent that this should be done before a sale of the State's interest is made.

Another question of importance, and in regard to which there is some diversity of opinion, is: What interest will vest in the purchaser of the State's interest in the road? What rights will be acquired, and what liabilities incurred by him? Will he, in all respects, stand in the shoes of the State as a mere assignee of the State's interest in the road? And in case the company, in the future, should find itself able to pay its arrearages of interest on its bonds to the purchaser, will such Company, as against him (in like manner as it would against the State if no sale had taken place), still be entitled to be restored to the possession of its road, as provided by Act of 1852, section 5?

Again: An important question, as to which there is, also, a wide diffierence of opinion, is: Have the holders of the bonds issued to a particular Railroad Company a lien upon the road and property of that Company as security for the payment of such bonds at maturity, or have they no other pledge than the faith of the State?

In regard to some of the roads, this further question arises: After bonds to a large amount had been issued to certain companies by the State, said companies were empowered, by act of the General Assembly, to issue second mortgage company bonds, large amounts of which were actually issued and passed into the hands of bona fide holders; and subsequently to the issuance of such company bonds, a second issue of bonds of the State was made to said companies.

Now, upon this state of facts, the question is to be determined whether the lien of the State provided for by the Act of 1852 shall, as regards the second issue of bonds, be preferred over the lien of the intermediate holders of the company bonds, or be postponed to it?

The foregoing general questions involve various collateral and subordinate matters which it would be tedious to detail, and which, for the present purpose, need not be noticed, as enough has been stated, perhaps, to enforce the absolute necessity for such further legislation as shall seem best adapted to disembarrass the proposed sale.

The Commissioners further state that an effort seems to have been made, in some quarters, to prejudice the proposed sale of the State's interest in the roads, on the alleged ground of want of legal power in the State, under the Act of 1852, to make any sale of the same, except on default of the companies to meet the final payment of their bonds at maturity.

This objection, in the opinion of the Commissioners, has no foundation. The legal power of the State to assign and transfer its interest in a railroad (whether the company be in default or not), in the proposed mode of sale, can admit of no doubt. It cannot be held that the State, in this respect, is not possessed of, at least, equal power with every private individual mortgagee. And certainly, in view of the very comprehensive and cogent provisions of the 12th section of the Act of 1852, this must be reguarded as a very lenient exercise of power on the part of the State toward the companies that have, for a series of years, failed to perform the obligations of their contract with the State, created by the Act of 1852, in neglecting to meet the accruing interest on their bonds semi-annually and to provide a sinking fund. The spirit and reason of the Act referred to would, perhaps, sanction a much stronger measure of redress.

It might, with more plausibility, be maintained that the palpable violation on the part of the delinquent companies, of the fundamental terms of their charter, on the faith of which the credit of the State was loaned to them, amounted to a forfeiture of the entire benefit of their contract, so as to justify a sale, out and out, of the corpus of the property, without right of redemption. These companies cannot be heard to say that they may persist in neglecting to pay the interest on their bonds, and in providing a sinking fund; and that the State, though reduced to the verge of insolvency by their neglect, must silently stand by for a period of twenty years, more or less, until their bonds shall finally mature.

It is obvious that the remedy adopted, of placing the roads in the hands of Receivers, is illusory, as the experience of the past few years has sufficiently demonstrated. This expedient, so far from furnishing the Treasury with the means of meeting the accruing interest on the bonds of the delinquent companies, and providing a sinking fund, has resulted, in most instances, in a heavy loss to the State; and has likewise proved to be a fruitful source of fraud and corruption.

Better for the State to abandon its interest in the roads at once, than to attempt their further management through the agency of Receivers at such ruinous loss.

In conclusion, the undersigned would respectfully urge the speedy adoption of such measures as your honorable body may deem most expedient to relieve the credit of the State, and to arrest the rapid accumulation of the public debt, which is estimated to be, at present, not short of $2,500 per day.

Public Acts 1870–71, Ch. 23, 25, Passed Dec. 21, 1870.

AN ACT to amend the Act of 1870, chapter 79, for the sale of Interest of the State in Delinquent Railroad Companies, passed July 1, 1870.

Whereas, In the recent attempt to sell the State's interest in said roads, various legal questions arose, presenting serious obstacles to a sale under the act of 1870, which it is deemed expedient and necessary to obviate before the interest of the State in said roads shall be again offered for sale; and whereas, by the act of 1852, chapter 151, section 12, the right is expressly reserved to the State to enact all such laws in the future as should be deemed necessary to protect the interests of the State, and to secure the State against any loss in consequence of the issuance of bonds under the provisions of said act in such manner as not to impair the vested rights of stockholders of the companies; therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennesee, That a bill shall be immediately filed in the Chancery Court at Nashville, in the name and behalf of the State, to which all the delinquent companies, the respective stockholders, holders of the bonds, creditors, and all persons interested in the said several roads, shall be made parties defendants and shall be brought before the court in the mode prescribed bythe rules of practice in Chancery established in the State, except as otherwise herein provided. And said court is hereby invested with the exclusive jurisdiction to hear, adjudicate and determine all questions of law and matters of controversy of whatever nature, whether of law or of fact, that have arisen, or may arrise, touching the rights or interests of the State, and also of the stockholders, bondholders, creditors and others in said roads, and to make all such rules, orders and decrees, interlocutory and final, as may be deemed necessary in order to a final and proper adjustment of the rights of all parties, preliminary to a sale of the interest of the State in said road. Also to declare the exact amount of indebtedness of each of said companies to the State; and likewise to define, as may be thought proper, what shall be the rights, duties and liabilities of a purchaser of the State's interest in said roads, or either of them, and what shall be the reserved rights of said companies, stockholders, and others respecttively, as against said purchasers after such sale, under the existing laws of this State.

Sec. 2. Be it further enacted, That the Judge of said Court is hereby empowered and specially requested to appoint a special term of said court, to be held on the first Monday in March, 1871, for the purpose of expediting a speedy determination of the various matters contemplated by this act; and it shall be the duty of the clerk of said court, immediately on the filing of said bills, to issue process and make publication in the manner before indicated, requiring the defendants to appear at said special term; and the defendants shall be severally required at said term to put in such defense to said bills as they may respectively deem proper, provided that it be consistent with the Code. And in order to save expense, said parties, or any of them, may, in person or by attorney, with consent of the attorney for the State, make an agreed case, submitting all such questions as they may think proper, to the immediate decision of the Court. And it is further provided that, in the discretion of the Court, formal pleadings may be dispensed with by a simple statement on the record of the points or matters relied upon by the parties and sought to be decided by the Court.

Sec. 3. Be it further enacted, That if an account on behalf of either of the parties shall seem to the Court proper and necessary, touching any matters of fact in issue between the parties, an immediate reference of the same shall be made to the Clerk or Master, or, if thought preferable, to such special commissioner as the Court may appoint, who shall proceed at once to take such account, and make report to an adjourned term of the court, within such period as the the Court shall limit, not exceeding twenty days from the date of the decree ordering the account. And at such adjourned term final action shall be had upon said report. But the taking of such account shall not postpone the determination of all such questions of law presented by the parties as are not involved in the matters of account ordered to be taken.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That competent counsel shall be retained on behalf of the State by the commissioners, whose duty it shall be, immediately on the passage of this act, to file a bill in said chancery Court so framed as to elicit a determination by the Court of all questions of law and matters of controversy now existing, or that may hereafter arise between the State and any or all of the parties interested in said roads, and to conduct the suit and superintend its progress, with a view to the speediest practical determination; and for such services said counsel shall be paid a fair compensation out of the public treasury of the State.

SEC. 5. Be it further enacted, That upon a final decree, being made by the Chancellor, settling the rights of the parties, either party shall have the right of appeal on writ of error to the Supreme Court, in the usual mode, except that the time for prosecuting a writ of error is hereby limited—in view of the urgent public necessity for a speedy determination—to thirty days from the final decree; and in case of an appeal or writ of error to the Supreme Court, a transcript of the record, or such part thereof as may be thought necessary, shall be filed in the office of the Supreme Court at Nashville within said period of thirty days.

SEC. 6. Be it further enacted, That in case of an appeal or writ of error to the Supreme Court as therein, provided for, the Judges thereof, in view of the pressing exigencies of the State, are hereby specially empowered, and respectfully requested, as soon as the transcript of the record shall be filed in the office of said Court, if then in session, to take up and finally dispose of the case, in preference to all other cases on the docket, and if not in session, to appoint a Special Term for the immediate hearing of the same.

Sec. 7. Be it further enacted, That in case any of the said railroad companies should decline a contest with the State in regard to the sale of the State's interest in their roads, a sale may at once be made, and upon the final determination of any controversy that may arise between the State and any of said railroad companies, in the Chancery or Supreme Court, the interest of the State in such roads immediately be brought to sale by the commissioners.

Sec. 8. Be it further enacted, That a specific value shall be fixed upon the State's interest in each of said roads by the decree of the Court, and the commissioners shall be authorized to dispose of the same at such valuation, either at public or private sale, as they may judge most advisable; and if a sale of any of the roads cannot be made at such a valuation, the same shall be sold for the highest price that can be obtained.

Sec. 9. Be it further enacted, That the interest of the State in either of said railroad companies may be sold on time, and the amount agreed to be paid by the purchasers may be discharged in any of the outstanding legal bonds of this State; but a sale on time shall be upon the following expressed conditions:

The purchaser at the time of sale shall pay, or deliver to the Governor, at least one-fourth of the amount agreed to be paid, in legal bonds of the State, and shall execute a bond with sufficient security, to the Governor, for the delivery of the remainder of the bonds to be paid at intervals of one two and three years from the date of the sale, in like legal bonds of the State, and also to pay into the treasury from the time of his purchase an amount equal to the interest accruing semi-annualy, from the remaining three-fourths of the bonds, to be thereafter delivered by him, until the whole amount shall be delivered to the Governor, said interest to be paid as the coupons mature; and it is expressly declared that the failure of the purchaser to pay or deliver to the Governor any subsequent installment of bonds as above provided, when the same shall fall due, shall work an absolute forfeiture to the State of all and every payment previously made; and in addition, his interest in such road shall be re-sold by the commissioners, after forty day's notice, to meet the default in payment by him.

Sec. 10. Be it further enacted, That upon the sale of any of the franchises of either of the railroad companies by the commissioners under the provisions of this act, all the rights, privileges and and immunities appertaining to the franchise so sold, under its act of incorporation and the amendments thereto, and the general improvement law of the State, and acts amendatory thereof, shall be transferred to and vest in such purchaser, and the purchaser shall hold said franchise subject to all liens and liabilities in favor of the State as now provided by law against the railroad companies.

SEC. 11. Be it further enacted, That whenever hereafter any existing railroad company, to which bonds of the State have been issued, or loaned, or any railroad company to be hereafter created, shall fail to pay to the State the interest due thereon for the benefit of the bondholders, or should fail to pay in as required by law the sinking fund, they may be proceeded against in the Chancery Court at Nashville, in the same manner as is above provided in regard to existing delinquent railroads.

SEC. 12. Be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage, the public welfare requiring it.

AN ACT Directing Suits to be brought in the name of the State of Tennessee, by the Attorney General, against Railroad Companies, their Officers, Agents and Stockholders.

WHEREAS, There has been information furnished this General Assembly that various railroad companies of this State through their officers, have fraudulently obtained the issuance of the bonds of the State, and also have obtained other bonds contrary to the provisions of the general internal improvement laws of the State, and the express provisions of the several acts granting to them State aid, and also have disposed of said bonds in direct violation of law, and also have illegally appropriated the proceeds to other uses than that prescribed by law, and the interests of the State demand that suits should be instituted for redress in the name of the State; therefore,

SECTION 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, That the Attorney General of this State shall, forthwith, in the name of the State, institute suits in the Chancery Courts of the County of the place of business, of the Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad Company, of the Knoxville and Charleston Railroad Company, of the Rogersville and Jefferson Railroad Company, of the Mineral Home Railroad Company, of the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad Company, of the Southwestern Railroad Company, of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, of the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad Company, of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, of the Winchester and Alabama Railroad Company, of the Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston Railroad Company, and the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company, and against their Presidents, Directors, Agents and Stockholders, and all other person or persons having had anything to do with the receipt or sale of any of the bonds of the State issued in aid of either or all of said railroad companies, enjoining said railroad companies, their officers or agents, from disposing in any way of any of the bonds in their possession that may have been issued to them; and also asking of the Court, on the final hearing, for a decree against said railroad companies, either or all of them, their officers, directors and stockholders, for the full amount of all the bonds of the State, that said railroad companies, or either of them, their officers, agents, directors and stockholders, have heretofore fraudulently obtained, contrary to the true intent, meaning and provisions of the laws of this State granting aid to railroads, or to each one of said railroad companies; or that have been illegally disposed of by said railroad companies, their agents, officers, president, or directors, contrary to the law; or after the proceeds were received have appropriated said proceeds to other uses than those prescribed by law; and asking a decree against said raildroad companies, their President and Board of Directors, and against their stockholders individually, and against their agents, for the number of bonds so fraudulently received, for the number of bonds so illegally received, for the number of bonds so illegally disposed of, and for the amount of the proceeds of the bonds legally issued, received and sold, which has been illegally appropriated by said railroad companies, or either of them, their officers, agents, directors, or stockholders, to any other use or uses than those prescribed by law, whether by the general internal improvement law of the State, or by the special law granting to the respective companies additional State aid; provided, that suits shall in no case be instituted under this act against any railroad company by the said Attorney General, except by and with the consent, advice and concurrence of the commissioners appointed for the sale of delinquent railroads, viz: the Hon. R. J. McKinney, the Hon. F. B. Fogg, and the Hon. Archibald Wright, or by the consent, advice and concurrence of a majority of said commissioners.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That if, upon the trial of said causes, the Court shall be satisfied that said railroad companies, or either of them, have been guilty of fraudulently obtaining bonds of the State to be issued to it, or of illegally obtaining bonds of the State to be issued to it, contrary to the provisions of the law granting the aid; or of appropriating to other use or uses than those prescribed by law the proceeds of the bonds so sold, or any of them; or of appropriating the bonds so received, or any of them, to other uses than those for which, under the law granting the aid, they, or any of them, could be be legally used; then, and in the event of either of said facts being by the Court judicially determined, then the said Court shall decree that said railroad company has forfeited all its rights and privileges under the general internal improvement laws of the State, and of the special laws under which the said railroad company claims to have received said State aid; and against the President and Board of Directors of said railroad companies, together with their stockholders and their agents who disposed of said bonds illegally, individually, for an amount sufficient to compensate the State of Tennessee for any loss it may have sustained, or that it may be liable to sustain, because of such fraudulent and illegal acts in regard to the receipt and sale of said bond or bonds, and for losses that may fall on the State in consequence of the commission of any other fraud by said company in the sale of said bonds against law, and the misappropriation of the proceeds.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That the Attorney General shall include in the bills respectively filed all the charges contained in the 13th section of the act passed Feb. 11, 1852, entitled "An Act to Establish a System of Internal Improvements in this State;" and the Court, in making its decree, will, as far as the interests of the State demand it, observe the provisions of that act, and make such decree as the law and evidence in each case justly demands.

EXTRACTS FROM MESSAGE OF GOV. JOHN C. BROWN, 1871. HOUSE JOURNAL AND APPENDIX, 1871, PP. 19, 20, 29, 30 OF APPENDIX.

The duties awaiting you are not only important, but most responsible. Your legislation will determine the question, whether Tennessee will provide for the payment of the large debt entailed upon her by the casualties and results of war, or whether it will be indefinitely postponed, until our credit is broken down, and the debt becomes so large, by accumulating interest, that its payment will bankrupt the people.

The legislation of the last two years, as it appears to me, precludes any discrimination in our bonds, upon any assumption of illegality in their issuance.

The act of the 25th February, 1869, as amended by the act of 20th January, 1870, chapter 44, permitting railroads indebted to the State by reason of bonds loaned to them, to cancel their obligations, with bonds of any series or number, in effect acknowledges a liability of the State to pay all outstanding bonds, not specially excepted by the act itself, or amendments thereto.

That act itself makes no exception. The act of 6th December, 1870, prohibits the Comptroller of the Treasury from receiving the bonds issued to "The Mineral Home Railroad Company," and the act of the 29th of June, 1870, forbids the redemption of the bonds issued to "The Insurance Company of the Valley of Virginia."

And by interdicting the reception of no other bonds, implied authority is thereby given to receive all bonds not excepted in those acts.

And this is an unmistakable declaration to the world that all other bonds issued under the semblance of law, are regarded as obligatory upon the State.

Accordingly, bonds to over eight millions of dollars have been retired and cancelled—nearly all of which are bonds issued since the war.

Other roads have purchased and are now purchasing bonds with which to cancel their liabilities to the State under the same act, which is unrepealed.

It would seem, therefore, that the State has, by implication, at least, admitted its liability for the payment of all outstanding bonds other than those specially interdicted.

The bonds outstanding are all of them doubtless in the hands of innocent holders.

These considerations alone are sufficient to determine the question that Tennessee must and will redeem the entire outstanding bonded debt, with the exceptions stated.

But, independent of this, and as question of sound State policy and justice to the holders of our our securities—some of whom are minors, some subjects of foreign governments, and many more our own citizens who made the investment under existing laws, relying upon the good faith of the State as implied by its legislation—we cannot discriminate between these bonds. And, therefore, it is only a question of time as to when we will resume the payment of interest.

SOLVENT RAILROADS.

It is my duty to remind you, that unless you repeal existing laws permitting solvent roads to pay, in past due coupons, the interest on the bonds loaned them by the State, the State must continue to receive from them past due coupons in payment of interest, and pay the bondholder in currency, by taxing the people.

The bonds originally issued by the State, with subsequent bonds, to fund accrued interest, for which these solvent roads are liable, are as follows, to-wit:

Memphis and Charleston Railroad....	$1,864,387	45
Mobile and Ohio Railroad............	1,684,800	00
Mississippi Central Railroad..........	1,199,180	00
Mississippi and Tennessee Railroad...	417,800	00
	$5,166,167	45

The annual interest on this amount is about $300,000, and this yearly burden will continue until there are no past due coupons in the market.

The delay of the solvent roads that have not retired their indebtedness to the State, under the act of 20th January, 1870, to avail themselves of the benefits of the act, indicates an indisposition to do so.

And, inasmuch as more than eighteen months have elapsed since this legislation was adopted, I recommend that the act be either repealed, to take effect at some future time, not remote, or that its provisions be so amended at that the roads be required to pay all accrued interest, as well as the sinking fund not heretofore paid in.

The reason for this sugestion is, that ample time has elapsed for these roads to have aided the State in diminishing her outstanding indebtedness, under this most liberal legislation) if disposed to do so. And the continuance of this policy affords an opportunity for speculative transactions, injurious to the credit of the State, and in no way beneficial to the great mass of the people.

While the railroads of the State should be fostered, and receive all necessary aid and assistance, yet they must not be allowed to become oppressive monopolies, at the expense of the prosperity of the general community.

DELINQUENT RAILROADS.

There remain but three of the delinquent railroads unsold.

The information you have, through the report of the commissioners appointed to sell the delinquent roads, is all you desire on that subject. It will be a gratifying result when the State is entirely divorced from the railroad system.

And, although the sales will not realize all that was desired, and leaves a large debt to be provided for, yet the internal improvement system of Tennessee has added millions to her wealth, and diffused such energy and enterprise into every class of society, that no intelligent man can regret the policy which inaugurated the system, notwithstanding a large amount of appropriations made since the war may have been improperly expended.

Commerce, trade and manufactures have been promoted and multiplied, population has largely increased, and the value of real estate enhanced over one hundred millions of dollars.

After the hearing of such case, the jury, or if the jury be waived, the court shall assess the value of the land so entered upon, taken, possessed, occupied and used by said company at the time when the same was entered upon and taken, and after such assessment the court shall proceed to render judgment against said company for the amount of said assessment in favor of the plaintiff or plaintiffs in such case, and if the amount so assessed in favor of the said plaintiff or plaintiffs shall exceed the amount awarded by said commissioners, with interest at the rate of twelve per cent. per annum from the time of such award, and the time of such assessment by the jury or court, then judgment shall be rendered against said company for costs, and when the appeal shall be taken by the claimant, and it shall not exceed such amount and interest as aforesaid, then judgment shall be rendered in favor of said company for costs; and when the appeal shall be taken by the claimant, and it shall not exceed such amount and interest as aforesaid, then judgment shall be rendered in favor of said company for costs, and against said plaintiff or plaintiffs, and execution may issue accordingly. The judgment of the said Court may be reviewed on writ of error as other cases at law. Whenever the Commissioners shall make an award as aforesaid, and no appeal shall be taken from the same, or wherever, in case of an appeal, a final judgment shall be rendered, it shall be the duty of the Company, and not before, to pay to the party entitled to the same the amount of said award or judgment; and in any case where there shall be any lien, incumbrance, tax sale, tax title or equitable claim to or upon the land, or any part thereof, which is the subject matter of such award or judgment, or when more than one person shall be entitled to or shall set up any claim to the amount of such an award or judgment, or part of it, or when the person entitled to receive the same, shall not have any known residence within the Territory or State, the said Company may deposit the amount of such award when there is no appeal with the Clerk of the Court with whom the award in the case shall have been filed, and in case of an appeal and judgment thereon, the Company may deposit the amount of such judgment with the Clerk of the Court in which said judgment shall have been rendered, and the money so deposited in either case shall be paid over by order of the Court to the person or persons who shall be adjudged by the Court to be entitled to receive the same, and whenever the amount of such award or judgment shall have been paid or tendered or deposited as aforesaid, an absolute estate in the fee simple in such lands shall be and become vested in the said Company as against all persons so receiving notice from the said Commissioners as aforesaid, and all such persons as having received such notice shall be forever precluded from questioning such title so acquired by the said Company, and the said Company shall have full power and authority after entering upon and taking any such lands, to have, hold, possess, occupy, use and enjoy the same for any of the lawful purposes of the said Company from the time of such entry and taking until the proceeding contemplated by the act shall have been fully determined, and until said Company shall have refused, after demand made to pay, the value of said land so ascertained as aforesaid, and they shall not during such time, nor until such refusal, be disturbed in such possession or occupancy, use or enjoyment, by any proceeding, either in law or equity.

SEC. 15. The property of every person vested in the stock of said company, shall be liable to be taken in execution for the payment of his or her debts in such manner as is or may be prescribed by law, but no tax shall ever be levied on the stock shares of said company, except the yearly payment to be made by said company as herein provided; and the shares held by any stockholder, when taken in payment of any other debt or liability of such stockholder, shall be subjected to all indebtedness and claims of every kind in favor of said company against the holders of said stock, which indebtedness and claims shall be fully paid, before said company shall be required to transfer said stock to any purchaser thereof, and before any such purchaser shall acquire any right or title thereto.

They shall be signed by the Governor, countersigned and registered by the Treasurer, sealed with the seal of the State, of denominations not exceeding one thousand dollars, payable to the order of the company to whom issued, transferable by the endorsement of the president of the said company, and redeemable at any time after ten and before the expiration of twenty-five years from the date thereof. Within thirty days after the Governor shall proclaim that the people have voted for a loan of State credit to railroads, any of said companies proposing to avail themselves of the loan herein provided for, and to accept the conditions of the same, shall notify the Governor thereof, within sixty days, commence the construction of their roads, and shall, within two years thereafter, construct ready for the superstructure, at least fifty (50) miles of their road. Each company shall make provisions for the punctual payment and redemption of all bonds issued and delivered as aforesaid to said company, and for a punctual payment of the interest which shall accrue thereon, in such manner as to exonerate the treasury of the State from any advances of money for that purpose; and as security therefor the Governor shall demand and receive from each of said companies before any of said bonds are issued, an instrument pledging the net profits of its road for the payment of said interest and a conveyance to State of the first two hundred and forty sections of land free from prior incumbrances, which such company is or may be authorized to sell in trust for the better security of the treasury of the State from loss on said bonds, which said deed of trust shall authorize the Governor and Secretary of State to make conveyances of title to all or any of such lands, to purchasers agreeing with the respective railroad companies therefor; Provided, that before releasing the interest of the State to such lands, such sale shall be approved by the Governor, but the proceeds of all such sales shall be applied to the payment of interest accruing upon the bonds in case of default of the payment of the same, and as a sinking fund to meet any future default in the payment of interest and the principal thereof when due; and as further security, an amount of first mortgage bonds on the roads, lands, and franchises of the respective companies, corresponding to the State bonds issued, shall be transferred to the treasurer of the State at the time of the issue of State bonds; and in case of either of said companies shall make default in payment of either the interest or principal of the bonds issued to said companies by the Governor, no more State bonds shall thereafter be issued to said company, and the Governor shall proceed in such manner as may be prescribed by law, to sell the bonds of the defaulting company or companies, or the lands held in trust as above, or may require a foreclosure of the mortgage executed to secure the same; Provided, that if any company so in default before the day of sale shall pay all interest and principal then due, and all expenses incurred by the State, no sale shall take place, and the right of said company shall not be impaired to a further loan of State credit ; Provided, if any of said companies shall at any time offer to pay the principal, together with the interest, that may then be due upon any of the Minnesota State Railroad Bonds which may have been issued under the provisions of this section, then the treasurer of the State shall receive the same ; and the liability of the said company or companies in respect to said bonds shall cease upon such payment into the treasury of principal, together with the interest as aforesaid; Provided further, that in consideration of the loan of the State credit herein provided, that the company or companies which may accept the bonds of the State in the manner herein specified, shall as a condition thereof, each complete not less than fifty miles of its road on or before the expiration of the year 1861, and not less than one hundred miles before the year 1864, and complete four-fifths of the entire length of its road before the year 1866, and any failure on the part of such company to complete the number of miles of its road or roads, in the manner and within the several times herein prescribed, shall forfeit to the State all the right, title, and interest of any kind whatsoever in and to any lands, together with the franchises connected with the same not pertaining or applicable to the portion of the road by them constructed, and a fee simple to which has not accrued to either of said companies, by reason of such construction which was granted to the company or companies, thus failing to comply with the provisions hereof by the act of the Legislature of the Territory of Minnesota, vest said land in said companies respectively.

MS. COPY OF SOUTHERN MINNESOTA RAILROAD COMPANY MORTGAGE.

This Indenture, made and concluded at St. Paul, in the State of Minnesota, the first day of October, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, by and between the Southern Minnesota Railroad Company party of the first part, and the State of Minnesota, party of the second part, witnesseth, that whereas, by an amendment of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota, adopted by the people thereof on the fifteenth day of April, A. D. 1858, a loan of State credit was provided to be made by the said State of Minnesota to certain Railroad Companies, in manner following, to-wit: that section 10 of article 9 of the Constitution shall be as follows:

SECTION 10. The credit of the State shall never be given or loaned in aid of any individual association or corporation except that for the purpose of expediting the construction of the lines of railroad in aid of which the Congress of the United States has granted lands to the Territory of Minnesota, the Governor shall cause to be issued and delivered to each of the companies in which said grants are vested by the Legislative Assembly of Minnesota, the special bonds of the State, bearing an interest of seven per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually in the city of New York, as a loan of public credit, to an amount not exceeding twelve hundred and fifty thousand dollars, or an aggregate amount to all of said companies not exceeding five million of dollars.

And whereas it is further provided in the same section of the same article, so adopted by the people of the State of Minnesota, as aforesaid, that the Governor of said State shall only cause the bonds to be issued after the compliance by the said Railroad Companies with certain conditions precedent, among which are enumerated the following, to-wit:

The Governor shall demand and receive from each of said companies, before any of said bonds are issued, an instrument pledging the net profits of the roads for the payment of said interest, and a conveyance to the State of the first two hundred and forty sections of land, free from prior incumbrances, which such company is or may be authorized to sell in trust for the better security of the treasury of the State from loss on said bonds, which said deed of trust shall authorize the Governor and Secretary of the State to make conveyances of title to all or any of such lands to purchasers agreeing with the respective Railroad Companies therefor. Provided, that before releasing the interest of the State to such lands, such sales shall be approved by the Governor, but the proceeds of such sales shall be applied to the payment of interest accruing upon the bonds in case of default in the payment of the same, and as a sinking fund to meet any future default in the payment of interest and the principal thereof when due.

Now, therefore, the said party of the first part, for and in consideration of the premises, and of the sum of one dollar to them in hand paid by the said party of the second part, the receipt whereof is hereby acknowledged, have granted, bargained, sold, conveyed, and confirmed, and by these presents do grant, bargain, sell, convey and confirm unto the said party of the second part, in trust for the uses and purposes hereinafter specified, the first two hundred and forty sections of the land granted to the aforesaid Territory of Minnesota by an Act of Congress, entitled, "An Act making a grant of land to the Territory of Minnesota, in alternate sections, to aid in the construction of certain railroads in said Territory, and granting public lands, in alternate sections, to the State of Alabama, to aid in the construction of a certain railroad in said State," approved March the third, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven, and by the Act of the Legislative Assembly of the Territory of Minnesota, entitled "An Act to Execute the Trust Created by an Act of Congress entitled 'An Act Making a Grant of Land to the Territory of Minnesota, in alternate sections, to aid in the construction of certain railroads in said Territory, and granting public lands, in alternate sections, to the State of Alabama, to aid in the construction of a certain railroad in said State, and granting certain lands to Railroad Companies' " therein named, approved May the twenty-second, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven, granted to and vested in the said party of the first part, to have and to hold the said two hundred and forty sections of land for the sole use, benefit, and behoof of the said party of the second part forever, in trust for the following uses and purposes, to-wit:

First. In case of default in the payment of the interest or the principal, when due, of the State Bonds to be issued to the said party of the first part, in accordance with the provisions of section 10 of article 9 of the Constitution of the State of Minnesota, as hereinbefore set forth, then and in such case the party of the second part is hereby authorized and empowered, by their authorized agent or agents, to sell and convey, by good and sufficient deed any or all portions of the two hundred and forty sections of land hereby conveyed, first giving notice of the time and places of such sale by advertising the same in two or more newspapers published in the City of New York and in the State of Minnesota, sixty days previous to the day of such sale, the proceeds of such sale or sales to be applied to the payment of the accruing interest or principal due on the said State bonds so to be issued as aforesaid.

Provided, that if said party of the first part to these presents shall, before the day of sale, pay all interest and principal then due, and all expenses incurred by the State of Minnesota, the party of the second part, no sale shall take place, and the rights of said party of the first part shall not be impaired by reason of such default.

In case of the sale of any or all of the two hundred and forty sections of land, as hereinbefore provided by the said party of the second part, then, in such case, the trust hereby created shall cease and determine, and be null and void, and all the interest, claim, title and ownership of the said party of the first part to any and all of the two hundred and forty sections of land, and every part or portion thereof, shall be, and is hereby, transferred, conveyed, bargained and sold to the said party of the second part, and to their assigns, to be by them held in fee simple for their use, benefit and behoof forever, free from any and all interest, claim, demand or ownership thereafter of the said party of the first part, in law or in equity, and the said party of the first part doth hereby covenant and agree, first, that the said two hundred and forty sections of land hereby conveyed shall be of average quality and value with those of the entire lands secured to and vested in the said party of the first part by an act of the Legislative Assembly of Minnesota, approved May twenty-second, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-seven, hereinbefore referred to.

Second. That the said party of the first part, so soon as the two hundred and forty sections of land which said party of the first part now is, or may be, authorized to sell, or any part thereof, shall be set apart and designated by legal subdivisions by the Secretary of the Interior, or other legal authority of the United States, shall, upon the demand of the Governor of the said State of Minnesota, sign, seal and deliver to the said Governor, in trust, a good and sufficient conveyance of the said two hundred and forty sections of land, or any part thereof; which said deed of trust shall authorize the Governor and Secretary of State to make conveyance of title to all or any of such lands to purchasers agreeing with the respective Railroad Companies therefor, provided, that before releasing the interest of the State to such lands, such sale shall be approved by the Governor, but the proceeds of all such sales shall be applied to the payment of interest accruing upon the bonds in case of default of the payment of the same, and as a sinking fund to meet any future default in the payment of interest and the principal thereof, when due.

Third. The said party of the first part hereby expressly reserves the right to contract with any person or persons, company or corporation, for the sale of all or of any part of the said two hundred and forty sections of land, upon such terms and conditions as said party of the first part may deem proper, subject to the approval of the Governor of said State of Minnesota, the party of the second part, and the proceeds of such lands shall be applied to the payment of interest accruing upon the said State bonds in case of default of the payment of the same, and as a sinking fund to meet any future default in the payment of interest and the principal thereof when due.

Fourth. That in case of the prompt payment by said party of the first part of the principal and interest of the State bonds to be issued by the said party of the second part to said party of the first part, and so soon as the same shall be fully paid and canceled, then, in that case, this instrument shall be and become wholly null and void, and the same shall terminate, be annulled and canceled, without any act or deed to be done or performed by the party of the first part or the party of the second part, and the said two hundred and forty sections of land, or such portion thereof remaining unsold, and all right, title, claim, interest and demand thereto, in law and in equity, shall revert to and be reinvested in said party of the first part as fully and as perfectly as if this instrument had never been executed. Provided, however, and it is hereby expressly stipulated by these presents, that nothing herein contained shall be construed to interfere with, annul, or invalidate any sale or sales of any portion of the said two hundred and forty sections of land, made, or which may have been made, in accordance with the terms of this indenture, prior to the said payment of principal and interest of the State bonds as aforesaid.

In witness whereof, the party of the first part hath hereunto, and to one other original indenture of the same tenor in all respects as this, affixed the Corporate Seal of said party of the first part, and have caused the same to be signed by its President, and attested by its Secretary the day and year first above written.

III. That so soon as any such bonds shall have been endorsed as aforesaid, for the first section of the road as aforesaid, they shall constitute a lien upon said section so prepared as aforesaid, including the road-bed, right of way, grading, bridges and masonry, upon all the stock subscribed for in said company, and upon said iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments, when purchased and delivered; and the State of South Carolina, upon the endorsing of said bonds, and by virtue of the same, shall be invested with said lien or mortgage without a deed from the company for the payment by said company of said bonds, with the interest thereon, as the same becomes due.

IV. Said company may also pay the United States, wholly or in part, in the same or other bonds, treasury notes, or other evidences of debt against the United States, to be allowed at par; and after said road is completed, until said bonds and interest are paid, at least five per centum of the net earnings of said road shall also be annually applied to the payment thereof.

Territories from the State of California to the Missouri River, as shall then remain to be constructed, on the same terms and conditions as provided in this act in relation to the said Union Pacific Railroad Company. And the Hannibal and St. Joseph Railroad, the Pacific Railroad Company of Missouri, and the first-named company, or either of them, on filing their assent to this act, as aforesaid, may unite upon equal terms, under this act, with the said Kansas company, in constructing said railroad and telegraph, to said meridian of longitude, with the consent of the said State of Kansas; and in case said first-named company shall complete their line to the eastern boundary of California before it is completed across said State by the Central Pacific Railroad Company of California, said first-named company is hereby authorized to continue in constructing the same through California, with the consent of said State, upon the terms mentioned in this act, until said roads shall meet and connect, and the whole line of said railroad and telegraph is completed; and the Central Pacific Railroad Company of California, after completing its road across said State, is authorized to continue the construction of said railroad and telegraph through the Territories, of the United States to the Missouri River, including the branch roads specified in this act, upon the routes hereinbefore and and hereinafter indicated, on the terms and conditions provided in this act in relation to the said Union Pacific Railroad Company, until said roads shall meet and connect, and the whole line of said road and branches and telegraph is completed.

SEC. 11. And be it further enacted, That for three hundred miles of said road most mountainous and difficult of construction, to-wit: one hundred and fifty miles westwardly from the eastern base of the Rocky Mountains, and one hundred and fifty miles eastwardly from the Western base of the Sierra Nevada mountains, said points to be fixed by the President of the United States, the bonds to be issued to aid in the construction thereof shall be treble the number per mile hereinbefore provided, and the same shall be issued, and the lands herein granted be set apart, upon the construction of every twenty miles thereof, upon the certificate of the commissioners as aforesaid that twenty consecutive miles of the same are completed, and between the sections last named of one hundred and fifty miles each, the bonds to be issued to aid in the construction thereof shall be double the number per mile first mentioned, and the same shall be issued, and the lands herein granted be set apart, upon the construction of every twenty miles thereof, upon the certificate of the commissioners as aforesaid, that twenty consecutive miles of the same are completed; Provided, that no more than fifty thousand of said bonds shall be issued under this act to aid in constructing the main line of said railroad and telegraph.

SEC. 12. And be it further enacted, That whenever the route of said railroad shall cross the boundary of any State or Territory, or said meridian of longitude, the two companies meeting or uniting there shall agree upon its location at that point, with reference to the most direct and practible through route, and in case of difference between them as to said location, the President of the United States shall determine the said location; the companies named in each State and Territory to locate the road across the same between the points so agreed upon except as herein provided. The track upon the entire line of railroad and branches shall be of uniform width, to be determined by the President of the United States, so that, when completed, cars can be run from the Missouri river to the Pacific coast; the grades and curves shall not exceed the maximum grades and curves of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad; the whole line of said railroad and branches and telegraph shall be operated and used for all purposes of communication, travel and transportation, so far as the public and the government are concerned, as one connected, continuous line; and the companies herein named in Missouri, Kansas and California filing their consent to the provisions in this act, shall receive and transport all iron rails, chairs, spikes, ties, timber, and all materials required for constructing and furnishing said mentioned line between the aforesaid point on the one hundredth meridian of longitude, and western boundary of Nevada Territory, whenever the same is required by said first named company, at cost, over that portion of the roads of said companies constructed under the provisions of this act.

SEC. 13. And be it further enacted, That the Hannibal and Saint Joseph Railroad Company of Missouri may extend its roads from St. Joseph, via Atchison, to connect and unite with the road through Kansas, upon filing its assent to the provisions of this act, upon the same terms and conditions, in all respects, for one hundred miles next to the Missouri river, as are provided in this act for the construction of the railroad and telegraph line first mentioned, and may for this purpose use any railroad charter which has been or may be granted by the Legislature of Kansas; Provided, that if actual surveys shall render it desirable, the said company may construct their road, with the consent of the Kansas Legislature, on the most direct and practicable route west from St. Joseph, Missouri, so as to connect and unite with the road leading from the western boundary of Iowa at any point east of the one hundredth meridian of west longitude, or with the main trunk road at said point; but in no event shall lands or bonds be given to said company, as herein directed, to aid in the construction of their said road for a greater distance than one hundred miles. And the Leavenworth, Pawnee and Western Railroad Company of Kansas may construct their road from Leavenworth to unite with the road through Kansas.

SEC. 14. And be it further enacted, That the said Union Pacific Railroad Company is hereby authorized and required to construct a single line of railroad and telegraph from a point on the western boundary of the State of Iowa, to be fixed by the President of the United States, upon the most direct and practicable route, to be subject to his approval, so as to form a connection with the lines of said company at some point on the one hundreth meridian of longitude aforesaid, from the point of commencement on the western boundary of the State of Iowa, upon the same terms and conditions, in all respects, as are contained in this act for the construction of the railroad and telegraph first mentioned; and the said Union Pacific Railroad Company shall complete one hundred miles of the road and telegraph in this section provided for, in two years after filing their assent to the conditions of this act, as by the terms of this act required, and at the rate of one hundred miles per year thereafter, until the whole is completed; Provided, that a failure upon the part of said company to make such connection in the time aforesaid, and to perform the obligations imposed on said company by this section, and to operate said road in the same manner as the main line shall be operated, shall forfeit to the government of the United States all the rights, privileges and franchises granted to and conferred upon said company by this act. And whenever there shall be a line of railroad completed through Minnesota or Iowa to Sioux City, then the said Pacific Railroad Company is hereby authorized and required to construct a railroad and telegraph from said Sioux City upon the most direct and practicable route to a point on, and so as to connect with, the branch railroad and telegraph in this section hereinbefore mentioned, or with the said Union Pacific Railroad, said point of junction to be fixed by the President of the United States, not further west than the one hundreth meridian of longitude aforesaid, and on the same terms and conditions as provided in this act for the construction of the Union Pacific Railroad as aforesaid, and to complete the same at the rate of one hundred miles per year; and should said company fail to comply with the requirements of this act in relation to the said Sioux City railroad and telegraph, the said company shall suffer the same forfeitures prescribed in relation to the Iowa branch railroad and telegraph hereinbefore mentioned.

SEC. 15. And be it further enacted, That any other railroad company now incorporated, or hereafter to be incorporated, shall have the right to connect their road with the road and branches provided for by this act, at such places and upon such just and equitable terms as the President of the United States may prescribe. Wherever the word company is used in this act it shall be construed to embrace the words their associates, successors and assigns, the same as if the words had been properly added thereto.

SEC. 16. And be it further enacted, That at any time after the passage of this act, all of the railroad companies named herein, and assenting hereto, or any two or more of them, are authorized to form themselves into one consolidated company; notice of such consolidation, in writing, shall be filed in the Department of the Interior, and such consolidated company shall thereafter proceed to construct said railroad and branches and telegraph line upon the terms and conditions provided in this act.

SEC. 17. And be it further enacted, That in case said company or companies shall fail to comply with the terms and conditions of this act, by not completing said road and telegraph and branches within a reasonable time, or by not keeping the same in repair and use, but shall permit the same, for an unreasonable time, to remain unfinished, or out of repair, and unfit for use, Congress may pass any act to insure the speedy completion of said road and branches, or put the same in repair and use, and may direct the income of said railroad and telegraph line to be thereafter devoted to the use of the United States, to repay all such expenditures caused by the default and neglect of such company or companies; Provided, that if said roads are not completed, so as to form a continuous line of railroad, ready for use, from the Missouri river to the navigable waters of the Sacramento river, in California, by the first day of July, eighteen hundred and seventy six, the whole of all of said railroads before mentioned and to be constructed under the provisions of this act, together with all their furniture, fixtures, rolling stock, machine shops, lands, tenements and hereditaments, and property of every kind and character, shall be forfeited to and be taken possession of by the United States; Provided, that of the bonds of the United States in this act provided to be delivered for any and all parts of the roads to be constructed east of the one hundredth meridian of west longitude from Greenwich, and for any part of the road west of the west foot of the Sierra Nevada mountain, there shall be reserved of each part and instalment twenty-five per centum, to be and remain in the United States treasury, undelivered, until said road and all parts thereof provided for in this act are entirely completed ; and of all the bonds provided to be delivered for the said road, between the two points aforesaid, there shall be reserved out of each instalment fifteen per centum, to be and remain in the treasury until the whole of the road provided for in this act is fully completed ; and if the said road or any part thereof shall fail of completion at the time limited therefor in this act, then and in that case the said part of said bonds so reserved shall be forfeited to the United States.

SEC. 18. And be it further enacted, That whenever it appears that the net earnings of the entire road and telegraph, including the amount allowed for services rendered for the United States, after deducting all expenditures, including repairs, and the furnishing, running and managing of said road, shall exceed ten per centum upon its cost, exclusive of the five per centum to be paid to the United States, Congress may reduce the rates of fare thereon, if unreasonable in amount, and may fix and establish the same by law. And the better to accomplish the object of this act, namely, to promote the public interest and welfare by the construction of said railroad and telegraph line, and keeping the same in working order, and to secure to the government at all times (but particularly in time of war) the use and benefits of the same for postal, military and other purposes, Congress may, at any time, having due regard for the rights of said companies, amend herein, add to, alter, amend, or repeal this act.

Sec. 19. And be it further enacted, That th several railroad companies herein named are authorized to enter into an agreement with the Pacific Telegraph Company, the Overland Telegraph Company, and the California State Telegraph Company, so that the present line of telegraph between the Missouri river and San Francisco may be moved upon or along the line of said railroad and branches as fast as said roads and branches are built; and if said arrangement be entered into, and the transfer of said telegraph be made in accordance therewith to the line of said railroad and branches, such transfer shall, for all purposes of this act, be held and considered a fulfillment on the part of said railroad companies of the provisions of this act in regard to the construction of said line of telegraph. And, in case of disagreement, said telegraph companies are authorized to remove their line of telegraph along and upon the line of railroad herein contemplated without prejudice to the rights of said railroad companies named herein.

Sec. 20. And be it further enacted, That the corporation hereby created and the roads connected therewith, under the provisions of this act, shall make to the Secretary of the Treasury an annual report, wherein shall be set forth—

First. The names of the stockholders and their places of residence, so far as the same can be ascertained;

Second. The names and residences of the directors, and all other officers of the company;

Third. The amount of stock subscribed, and the amount thereof actually paid in;

Sixth. The amount received for freight thereon;

Seventh. A statement of the expense of said road and its fixtures;

Eighth. A statement of the indebtedness of said company, setting forth the various kinds thereof;

PART XII.

REPORT OF JOINT SELECT COMMITTEE OF 1857-8, APPOINTED TO INVESTIGATE THE OFFICES OF COMPTROLLER AND SECRETARY OF STATE, PP. 3, 35 to 84 inclusive, 142.

NASHVILLE, August 11, 1858.

To His Excellency, ISHAM G. HARRIS, Governor of the State of Teunessee:

The undersigned, a Joint Select Committee, appointed by the last General Assembly, "To enquire into the mode in which the securities of the several Free Banks have been managed in the office of the Comptroller—whether any changes have been made in the securities—how the accounts of said Banks have been kept in said office—to enquire fully how all matters touching the Free Banks have been managed in said office; the Committee will also enquire and ascertain what amount of interest has been paid on the State Coupon Bonds, and what amount should have been paid, so as to ascertain whether any payments have been improperly made—the Committee will report fully upon all matters referred to them—and that they enquire, whether or not, any of the Free Banks have received from the Comptroller any more of the notes of the said Banks than State bonds filed in the Comptroller's office, as by law required, and whether or not any bonds heretofore filed in the Comptroller's office have been withdrawn and others filed"—beg leave to submit the following report:

The Committee met at the State Capitol, May 10, 1858, in pursuance of the above instructions, and proceeded immediately to the discharge of the several duties assigned them.

The Committee beg leave to submit the following report under that part of the resolution which requires them to "inquire and ascertain what amount of interest has been paid on the State coupon bonds, and what amount should have been paid, so as to ascertain whether any payments have been improperly made."

The Committee, upon this branch of their investigation, have had many difficulties to encounter. They referred to the Comptroller's reports for the last six years for the information desired, but were soon convinced that they could not be relied upon, either as to the exact amount of our indebtedness, or as to the rate of interest the bonds were bearing; nor did said reports furnish us with full information as to the bonds loaned to the various Internal Improvement Companies, or as to the bonds endorsed by the State. To report fully and accurately under the resolution, it became necessary to get at the actual amount of indebtedness, the date when the bonds were issued, and when they fell due, and the rate of interest they bear, which would give the amount of interest due annually on the bonds outstanding. It likewise became necessary to arrive accurately at the amount of bonds loaned and endorsed by the State to the various Companies, and to see the amount of interest that they bore annually, and the amount they actually paid; and whether the said Companies had always met the interest paid on the bonds loaned or endorsed. To arrive at the whole matter correctly, the Committee have carefully examined and prepared the original books and papers in the office of the Comptroller and Secretary of State, which have been very imperfectly kept, and from them, and other information, they have made out tables showing everying in regard to the issuance of bonds, and the interest they bear, when issued, and when they fall due. Each item of State indebtedness has been very carefully and critically examined from the original sources, and the Committee feel that they can submit the various tables, each one of which will be fully explained hereafter, with perfect confidence in their accuracy.

The Committee find it a matter of impossibility to report the precise amount of interest paid upon coupon bonds, from the fact that all the original Bonds issued to the Internal Improvement Companies, and to increase the capital of the Bank of Tennessee, &c., did not have coupons attached to them, and when interest was paid on these Bonds, the evidence of it was placed on the Bonds. By act of the 21st of February, 1852, a law was passed permitting the holders of Bonds that did not have coupons attached to them, to have them renewed, and coupon Bonds issued to them in lieu of the old Bonds, and have the latter canceled. Under that act a large number of Bonds were renewed with coupons attached. A correct list of these renewals is appended to this report. There are still a large number of the old Bonds outstanding, that have not been renewed, and the Committee cannot possibly arrive at the separate items of interest paid on the Bonds that do not have coupons attached, and on Bonds with coupons attached. The tables will, however, show the amount of interest due on our State debt from January 1, 1850, to July 1, 1858, and the amount actually paid, and this will show any amounts improperly paid.

The Committee have had but two sources from which to derive the amount of interest paid on our State debt—one of which is the books of the Comptroller, and the other is the coupons paid off and canceled by the Comptroller; but the interest thus paid off is a part of the interest that appears on the books in his office. The interest on a portion of our bonds is payable in New York and Philadelphia, and the remainder is payable at the Treasury, on the warrant of the Comptroller. Whether the coupons were paid here or elsewhere, the warrants merely show that so much interest has been paid on a certain character of bonds. The interest payable in New York and Philadelphia, is paid by the Bank of Tennessee, as agent of the Treasurer, by act passed February 9, 1850. By the same act, the Bank of Tennessee is required to declare dividends on the 1st of January and July of each year, but this law seems never to have been observed. For instance, no dividends at all were declared for the year 1856, and we find that the Bank has in one case held up her interest account for eighteen months, without presenting it to the Comptroller for settlement. This has presented some difficulty in ascertaining the particular interest for any one year. For instance, though the Bank declared a dividend in February and September of 1857, yet they did not present their account of interest paid in New York and Philadelphia from January, 1857, to June 8, 1858, inclusive, until about the 15th of June, 1858, though the checks of the Treasurer have always been paid, whether the dividends were declared or not, or whether there was money or not in the Bank to the credit of the Treasury.

If the account for interest were presented every six months, the amount of interest for any particular year could be much more easily ascertained, than when the account is withheld for a longer period. The Committee have had no difficulty at all in ascertaining the amount of interest paid on coupon bonds in New York and Philadelphia by the Bank of Tennessee, as regular books have been kept with the numbers of the bonds placed on the books, and when a coupon was presented and paid, it was invariably canceled and pasted on the book opposite the number, the coupon always bearing the same number as the bond. The Committee, however, have not been able to arrive at the coupon interest paid at the office of the Comptroller for the last six years, from the fact that there have been no regular books kept by him in which the coupons were pasted in any order or regularity. The coupons have been pasted on without reference to the number they bear, or the character of them, or the date they fall due; and the books do not show any particular year or month when the coupons were paid off, and of course very little can be discovered from them. The Committee would recommend that the Comptroller shall procure books and cancel and paste on the coupons similarly to those now held by the Bank of Tennessee, and then there will be no difficulty in arriving at the amount of interest paid by him on coupons.

EXPLANATORY NOTES.

The following tables marked "A" show the number and amount of Bonds loaned to, and endorsed for the various Railroad Companies, and the names of the Companies. They likewise show the Nos. of the Bonds, the rate of interest they bear, the time they fall due, and the time the first coupon falls due. These tables include all the Bonds that have been issued to Railroad Companies, or Bonds which have been endorsed by the State for said Companies, to July 1, 1858.

Table "B" is a recapitulation of the whole amount of Bonds loaned to, and endorsed for the various railroad Companies, and the semi-annual and annual interest they bear.

The table "C" show the number of bonds, when the coupons are due and paid, likewise the semi-annual interest due on the Bonds of each Railroad Company, and which amount with the exchange is required to be paid into the Bank of Tennessee fifteen days before the 1st of January and July, of each year.

The tables "D" show when the coupons are due and paid, and the amount of money paid by the Companies to the Bank of Tennessee, and the number of coupons returned by them, showing in full how the interest has been paid by the various Railroad Companies on the Bonds loaned to them. The Committee have carefully examined the whole matter from July 1, 1853, to July 1, 1858, and find it correct, and they are confident that it is also correct before that time.

These tables will show all the transactions of the Bank of Tennessee, in paying off the interest Bonds loaned to the Railroad Companies. The Committee find that the accounts of the Bank of Tennessee, with the Railroad Companies and the State have been kept with great care and accuracy, and are correct in every particular, and she has made a most satisfactory exhibit of the transactions with the Railroads, also, with the State Treasury and the Comptroller.

In issuing this series of Bonds, the numbers from 7000 to 7027 were duplicated by inadvertence. The duplicates can be distinguished in this, that the Bonds issued to the Edgefield and Kentucky and L. and N. R. R. are signed by Burton, and those issued to the Tennessee and Alabama R. R. are signed by Ray.

And, thereupon, your orator complains and says, that by an act of the General Assembly of the 11th of February, 1852, ch. 151, and subsequent acts amendatory thereof, a system of internal improvements, by means of railroads, was inaugurated and developed by the aid of your orator, through the loan of its credit, in the form of coupon bonds issued to the several railroad companies to whom State aid was granted, having not less than thirty years to run, made payable at such places in the United States as the president of the company might designate, and bearing six per cent. per annum interest, payable semi-annually. Said acts provide for the issuance of said bonds from time to time as the work progresses on the said roads, and that the bonds, when issued, shall constitute a lien upon so much of the road as may then be prepared, including the road-bed, right of way, grading, bridges and masonry, upon all the stock subscribed for in said company, and upon the iron rails, chairs, spikes and equipments, when purchased and delivered, and that your orator, upon the issuance of said bonds, and by virtue of the same, shall be invested with said lien or mortgage, without a deed from the company‘ for the payment by said company of said bonds, with interest thereon, as the same becomes due. Said act further provides, that when the whole of said roads shall be completed, your orator shall be invested with a lien, without a deed from the company, upon the entire road, including the stock, right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, and the whole superstructure and epuipments, and all the property owned by the company as incident to, or necessary for its business, and all depots, depot stations, for the payment of all said bonds issued to the company, and for the interest accruing on said bonds. It is further provided by sec. 4 of the original act of 1852, that after the Governor shall have issued bonds for the first section of the road, it shall not be lawful for said company to give, create or convey to any person or persons, or body corporate whatever, any lien, incumbrance, or mortgage of any kind, which shall have priority over, or come in conflict with the lien of the State herein secured; and any such lien, incumbrance or mortgage shall be null and void as against said lien or mortgage of the State, and the said lien or mortgage of the State shall have priority over all other claims existing or to exist against said company. By the fifth section of the original act, as amended by act of 26th January, 1869, ch. 19, it is provided that the company to which bonds are issued shall pay to the Comptroller of the State, at least fifteen days before the interest becomes due, from time to time, upon said bonds issued as aforesaid, an amount sufficient to pay such interest, including exchange and necessary commissions, or satisfactory evidence that said interest has been paid or provided for, and, on failure, it is made the duty of the Comptroller to report to the Governor, who shall immediately appoint some suitable person at the expense of the company, to take possession and control of said road, and all the assets thereof, and manage the same, and receive the rents, issues, profits and dividends thereof, and pay over the same, under the direction of the Governor, towards the liquidation of such unpaid interest; and said receiver shall continue in possession, and run and manage the entire road, until a sufficient sum shall be realized, exclusive of the costs and expenses incident to said proceedings, to pay off and discharge the interest as aforesaid. By the 6th section provision is made for the case where the railroad company fails to pay the bonds at maturity. By sec. 7 provision is made for the payment of a sinking fund for the payment of the bonds so issued, and, in case of failure to comply with its provisions, it is provided that the company so failing shall be proceeded against as provided in the fifth section of the act. The 12th section of said act is in these words:

> "Sec. 12. Be it enacted, That the State of Tennessee expressly reserves the right to enact, by the Legislature thereof, hereafter, all such laws as may be deemed necessary to protect the interest of the State, and to secure the State against any loss in consequence of the issuance of bonds under the provisions of this act, but in such manner as not to impair the vested rights of the stockholders of the companies."

By the 10th section of this original act, the benefit of its provisions was extended to five of the railroad companies mentioned in the caption of this bill, viz: the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, the Southwestern Railroad Company, the McMinnville & Manchester Railroad Company the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and the Winchester and Alabama Railroad Company; and by subsequent acts the benefits of its provisions, and of the acts amendatory thereof, was extended to each of the other roads mentioned in said caption. By subsequent acts, amendatory of the act of 1852, the extent of State aid was largely increased by authorizing the issuance of State bonds to a much larger amount for each mile of road than the original eight thousand dollars per mile mentioned in said act, and for the purpose of building bridges, trestles, roadway, embankments, etc., etc. By subsequent legislation, also, the time of paying in the sinking fund, and the per cent. of such fund, were changed for the accommodation of said roads, and every indulgence extended to them by the Legislature to aid them in their completion and equipment, and to secure to the people the benefits of a liberal system of internal improvements, and to the stockholders and other persons interested in the roads themselves, directly the fruits of their investments. In all cases in which State aid was extended or increased to any of said companies, beyond the provisions of the act of 1852, it was expressly provided that your orator should have, for its security, the same lien given by the act of 1852, and in substance, to use the language of the 10th section of that act, that "said companies shall have all the powers and privileges, and be subject to all the restrictions and liabilities contained in this (that) act."

Your orator would further show, that large arrears of unpaid interest having accrued during the pendency of the late civil war, the Legislature, by the act of the 23d of November, 1865, ch. 9, provided for the funding of such interest by issuing coupon State bonds similar to those issued under the act of 1852, and its amendments, and maturing at the same time, for all the interest which had accrued, or might, up to the 1st of January, 1868, accrue upon any of the bonds issued under these acts previous to the 6th of May, 1861. And by the 4th section of the said of 1865, the Legislature directed that such funded interest should be charged up to said companies on the same terms and conditions of the original loan, and that the State shall have the liens upon each of the said roads, their franchises and property, for the prompt and faithful payment of the principal and interest of the bonds thus authorized to be issued, as it has under the act of 1852, and its amendments, for bonds issued under them. And by the 5th section it is provided, that the several railroad companies receiving aid under the act of 1865, by the funding of the interest, should pay the interest on the bonds thus issued as it matures, commencing on the 15th day of June, 1866, in the same manner and under the same rules, regulations and restrictions as they are now required to pay under the act of 1852 and its amendments. By the 6th section of said act, the law requiring the railroad companies who had received State aid to pay into the treasury of the State a sinking fund, was suspended until January 1st, 1867 (afterwards extended by 1867, 22 to 1st January, 1870), and the companies were relieved from the payment of the sinking fund then past due under said laws. Your orator states that all of the railroad companies made defendants to this bill, as well as the other companies who had received State aid under the act of 1852, and its amendments, acquiesced in the provisions of the said act of 1865, and received and accepted its benefits.

Your orator would further show, that by act of the 18th of January, 1866, ch. 14, entitled "An act to amend an act to establish a system of internal improvements, passed the 11th of February, 1852," the Legislature, reciting the fact that the railroads therein named were out of repair, and the companies unable to put them in running order, provided for the extension of additional State aid to said roads by the issuance of coupon State bonds, similar in character, in every respect, to the bonds issued under the act of 1852, said bonds to bear date January 1st, 1866, and be payable the 1st January, 1892. The roads thus provided for include the companies made defendants to this bill as follows:

Edgefield and Kentucky	$115,000
Nashville and Northwestern	300,000
Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville	400,000
McMinnville and Manchester	346,000
Winchester and Alabama	372,000
Knoxville and Kentucky	250,000
Rogersville and Jefferson	100,000

By act of May 22, 1866, same session, the Legislature amended the foregoing act of the 18th January, 1866, by extending additional aid to

Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston.	$100,000
Nashville and North-western.	200,000

By the act of May 24, 1866, ch. 88, secs. 58 and 59, of same session, additional aid was extended to the following companies:

Edgefield and Kentucky.	$110,000
Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville.	100,000
Knoxville and Kentucky.	250,000

"Said bonds to be issued with all the restrictions, liens and provisions of the act passed January 18, 1866." And by act of 20th May, 1866, ch. 49, of same session, further additional aid to the amount of $54,000 was granted to the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad Company, on the same terms as provided by the act of the 18th of January, 1866. By the terms of this latter act, sec. 4, each of the companies to whom relief was granted was required to pay the interest on the bonds thus issued, and a sinking fund of four per cent. on the amount of indebtedness created under the act, to be enforced as provided under the internal improvement law. Sec. 8 is as follows:

> "That the lien retained or declared in the fourth section of this act is hereby declared cumulative of, and in addition to the lien declared in the act of 1852, which this is intended to amend, which lien is hereby declared to extend to and cover the money or bonds to be advanced to said roads under this act."

Your orator believes, and so charges, that the Legislature has, in every instance in which State aid has been extended to railroad companies, including the defendants to this bill, been careful to provide that the paramount statutory lien reserved by the act of 1852 should inure to your orator's benefit for the new or additional aid; that the additional aid was received by the companies upon these terms and conditions, with the full knowledge and assent of the stockholders of said several companies, and of the holders of the bonds previously issued by the State to these companies, and of the holders of the bonds of those companies, if any such bonds were issued by them, and of the creditors of said companies, and all other persons interested in said several roads and companies, and who are made defendants to this bill. And if there were not actual knowledge and positive assent, there was such constructive knowledge and tacit assent as will, in law, amount to the same thing. Your orator claims to have acquired, by virtue of the said several acts of the Legislature amendatory of the act of 1852, and granting additional aid to the several railroad companies, a statutory lien or mortgage upon the entire road of said several companies, including the stock, right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, and the whole superstructure and equipments, and all the property owned by the company, and necessary for its business, and all depots and depot stations, its "franchises and property," (1865, 9, 4,) prior and superior to all other liens whatsoever and whensoever created, all other liens, incumbrances and mortgages being null and void (1852, 151, 4,) as against said lien and mortgage of your orator.

Your orator would now show your honor that the 34th section of the charter of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company (passed on the 11th of December, 1845, chapter 1,) is in these words:

"This charter shall be amendable from time to time by the Legislature whenever the president and directors shall unanimously petition for amendments, specifying in the petition the nature of such amendments; and when such amendments shall be adopted by the Legislature, and submitted to the directors, and be accepted and adopted unanimously by the president and directors, they shall be obligatory on the stockholders, and not otherwise."

The 50th section of the charter of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company, passed 9th February, 1850, chapter 76, is the same in substance, and nearly identical in language. The same provision is contained in the 28th section of the charter of the East Tennessee and Virginia Railroad Company, passed 27th February, 1848, ch. 120. The charters of all the companies made defendants to this bill contain the same provisions, except that of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad company, by being chartered with the privileges and under the acts of incorporation of one of the companies above named. Thus the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina is chartered under the incorporation of the East Tennessee and Virginia, the Knoxville and Kentucky and Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston, under the charter of the Louisville and Nashville, and all the others under the charter of the Nashville and Chattanooga Company.

Your orator would further show, that on the 7th of December, 1867, the Legislature passed an act (ch. 17 of the principal acts of that session), entitled "An act to amend the Internal Improvement Laws of the State, passed February 11th, 1852," whereby it is provided that additional State aid shall issue to the railroads therein named, and, among others, to the companies made defendants to this bill, as follows:

Edgefield and Kentucky . . .	$300,000
Nashville and Northwestern . .	350,000
Nashville and Northwestern extension to Huntingdon	200,000
Winchester and Alabama . . .	300,000
Southwestern	300,000
Knoxville and Kentucky . .	800,000
Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston	200,000
Knoxville and Charleston . . .	150,000
East Tennessee and Western North Carolina	200,000

The act provides (sec. 16), that these loans shall be made in like manner, and under the same conditions imposed by the internal improvement laws of the State. It further provides, sec. 15, "That if the several railroad companies, or either of them, to whom the bonds of the State have been loaned by this act or former acts, shall fail for two consecutive years to pay the interest that may accrue upon the bonds loaned to them severally, then, and in that case, the Governor, Secretary of State, and Comptroller may, at their discretion, sell said railroad track, railing, rolling stock, etc., upon such terms and conditions as they may deem best to secure the interest of the State ; and shall retain of the proceeds of said sale the amounts loaned to said companies, and the interest due on the same, with expenses of said sale."

The act further provides, sec. 14, that when any railroad company shall accept the benefits of this loan, they shall accept the State directors also, who shall be entitled to all the rights and privileges of other directors in said roads.

Your orator avers that each of the said railroad companies to whom State aid was extended by this act, accepted the aid and the terms and provisions thereof ; that the act itself was procured to be passed by the said companies, and was ratified by the board of directors of said several companies, and by the stockholders, at meetings called for that purpose, or by both. Your orator charges, also, that the additional aid or loan given to said several roads by the said act was received by them, severally, under the provisions of the act, and the terms and conditions of the loan assented to and acquiesced in. Your orator further shows, that the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, to whom the loan was, by the express terms of the act, made, among other purposes, "for the construction of the extension of said road to the coal mines, under the charter of the Evansville, Henderson and Nashville Railroad," through its officers, called a meeting of its board of directors for the purpose of acting upon this matter, which meeting was held at Nashville on the 27th December, 1867, when and where the following proceedings were had :

(Copy.)

Nashville, Tenn., Dec. 27, 1867.

Board met—Present, E. S. Cheatham, President; Hobson, Fort, Stark and Connell, Directors.

On motion of Mr. Fort, the following preamble and resolutions were adopted:

Whereas, The act of the Legislature of the State of Tennessee, passed December 7th, 1867, entitled "An act to amend the Internal Improvement Laws of the State, passed February 11th, 1852," was submitted for consideration and action of this board, as provided in said act. Be it

Resolved, That the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company consents to and agrees to receive the aid of the State as provided in said act, and consents to the bonds being issued to the Receiver and to J. T. Boyle, President of the Evansville, Henderson and Nashville Railroad Company, to be used in building depots, purchasing machinery, rolling stock and repairs for the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad.

Resolved, That one hundred thousand dollars of the bonds should be appropriated to the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad, and two hundred thousand to the Evansville, Henderson and Nashville Railroad.

Resolved, That a certified copy of these resolutions be furnished by the Secretary of the company to R. B. Cheatham, Receiver, to be filed with the Secretary of the State of Tennessee.

The meeting adjourned to January 10, 1868, at 10 A. M.

(Signed) Edward S. Cheatham,
President Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Co.

Your orator further shows that the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, through its President and Directors, called a meeting of its stockholders for the purposs of taking into consideration the acceptance or rejection of the provisions of this act, which was held and the aid granted accepted, as well the aid given to the extension to Huntington as the aid given to the main trunk.

Your orator is not able to specify the facts with the same particularity with regard to the other roads made defendants to this bill, but charges that the aid was accepted and used and the terms of the act agreed to, and that the State Directors were also accepted.

Your orator would further show in this connection, that although the Rogersville and Jefferson Railroad Company is not included in the act of December 7, 1867, yet, at the same session of the Legislature, on the 7th of March, 1868, a special act was passed for the benefit of this company authorizing the Governor to issue to it, or the Receiver then in control of it, thirty thousand dollars in State bonds: provided, the said "railroad company, by its President and Directors, shall accept the provisions of this act;" and provided, also, they shall accept the conditions and provisions of Sec. 15, of an act passed December 7, 1867, entitled "An act to amend the Internal Improvement Laws of the State, passed February 11, 1852." And your orator charges that the said President and Directors did accept the provisions of said acts, and the bonds were issued and received accordingly.

Your orator would further show that only two of the railroad companies made defendants to this bill, so far as your orator is at present advised, have issued their own bonds and secured the same by a mortgage, pledge, or lien on their roads or incomes, namely, the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company. The first of these companies was authorized by its charter, act of 22d of January, 1852, Ch. 74, Sec. 16, to borrow money on the mortgage of its charter and works, and did, on the — day of ——, in the exercise of their powers, authorize the issue of bonds to the amount of one million dollars, secured by mortgage, of which about seven hundred and fifty or eight hundred thousand dollars, in nominal amount, were issued. But the mortgage deed itself contains the following clause in reference to the lien of the State bonds: "But this grant, conveyance and mortgage is made subject expressly to the statutory lien of the State of Tennessee for the State aid which has heretofore, or may hereafter, be granted to this company, under the Internal Improvement Laws of this State, or under any legislation made for the benefit of this company to carry out the purpose of its incorporation."

By act of February 1, 1860, Ch. 45, the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company is authorized to issue, from time to time, income bonds in amount not to exceed $350,000 in the aggregate, pledging the receipts of said railroad, and to secure the payment of the principal and interest of these bonds, the company may mortgage to trustees and pass the property recited therein, and privileges and franchises, whatever these words (and they are the words of the act) may mean, "provided, however, that said bonds or any mortgage made to secure them shall in nowise affect the lien of the State of Tennessee, created by the General Internal Improvement Laws of February 11, 1852, and the laws amendatory thereof, either upon (the) part of said road on which State aid has been drawn or upon any part of the same on which it may be subsequently drawn, but shall in all cases be and regarded as secondary in right to the same, the State of Tennessee hereby expressly reserving priority of lien as is provided by (the) General Internal Improvement Act." By sec. 2, it is provided "That the said bonds are hereby authorized to contain on their face a pledge of the income of said company from their road after paying liabilities due the State of Tennessee, charges for running and the necessary repairs of said road." And by sec. 3, to make assurance doubly sure, it is further provided: "This act shall not be so construed to effect, nor shall any mortgage executed by its provisions impair or in any way effect, change or weaken the lien of the State of Tennessee, created by the State of Tennessee in conferring or accepting State aid by said company.

Your orator does not know what amount of bonds were issued and used under this act, but insists that such bonds, and any mortgage or pledge made to secure them can, in no wise, affect the lien and rights of the State for any aid conferred or accepted under the Internal Improvement law of 1852, or any subsequent act amendatory, or in extension thereof, or in furtherance of their objects.

Your orator would further show that by the act of the 24th of May, 1866, ch. 88, sec. 57, which was procured by and passed at the instance of the companies named therein, the Governor was authorized to execute a bond for the "purchase of railroad machinery, cars, and all other material purchased for the use and benefit of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad, and the Edgefield and Kentucky railroad from the United States military railroad department at Nashville, from the United States." That the object of this provision was to procure from the United States rolling stock and machinery for the running of these roads, the companies being themselves unable to make these purchases. Accordingly, his Excellency Wm. G. Brownlow, the then Governor of the State, did on the ——— day of ————————, 186–, assume the payment to the United States of $130,804.58 for the benefit of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, and on the ——— day of ————————, 186–, the payment, in like manner, of $380,756.24 for the benefit of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company. The stock and material thus obtained have been in the possession and use of, and for the benefit of said roads respectively ever since, and are now used upon these roads.

Your orator would further show that not one of the railroad companies, made defendants to this bill, has complied with the provisions of the internal improvement laws by promptly paying the interest upon the bonds issued to it as the same fell due from time to time, or the sinking fund to meet the principal of the bonds at maturity; but they are all in default in these respects, and have been for many years, and the arrears are accumulating to such an extent as to exhaust the State treasury and render it absolutely necessary to resort to some plan for relief. Your orator resorted, in each instance, to the mode provided by the act of 1852, and appointed receivers of said roads to run the same as therein contemplated, but in nearly every case, instead of having a surplus to apply to the reduction of the arrears of interest, after paying the expenses of running the roads, the expenses have exceeded the income, and there has been actual loss. And even where payments have been made they have been so small, in proportion to the increase of the debt in the same time, as to demonstrate the inutility of expecting relief in that mode. Your orator will state presently the items of indebtedness of each of said roads to your orator, but, at present, the following is a list of the gross indebtedness, including interest, to the 1st of January, 1871:

Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Co.	$2,081,179 71
Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Co.	4,541,129 41
Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Co.	2,953,795 92
McMinnville and Manchester Railroad Co.	1,099,578 00
Winchester and Alabama Railroad Co.	1,790,536 70
Southwestern Railroad Co. . .	503,000 00
Knoxville and Kentucky Railroad Co	2,816,176 00
Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap & Charleston R. R. Co. . . .	1,657,108 52
Knoxville and Charleston Railroad Co.	816,500 00
Rogersville and Jefferson Railroad Co.	513,013 20
East Tenn. and Western North Carolina R. R. Co.	448,000 00

Your orator finds, and so charges, that these sums are so large in every instance, when taken in connection with the length of road, the resources, and probable income for the future, that it is impossible to expect any of these companies to meet its engagements, under the provisions of the internal improvement laws, by the payment of interest and sinking fund as stipulated for. Several of them, such as the Southwestern, Cincinnati, Cumberland Gap and Charleston, Knoxville and Charleston, Rogersville and Jefferson, and East Tennessee and Western North Carolina, are utterly insolvent, without the least prospect of ever paying the accruing interest, or even running expenses. The same is true of the Winchester and Alabama and the McMinnville and Manchester, so far as their ever paying the accruing interest is concerned. The remaining three roads form connecting links with other lines of railroads, and, if prudently managed by persons having the means to run them, might pay expenses, and, in time, a portion of the accruing interest. But your orator charges that neither one of these, even under the best management, and making all proper allowance for increased business, can ever hope to pay the arrears of interest and sinking fund, or even, perhaps, the whole of the annual accruing interest.

The companies are themselves insolvent, without any rolling stock, except that purchased from the United States Government, and not paid for, and without any resources for the future—two of them, as we have seen, being heavily mortgaged, and are being run by other companies under lease, and the other being so heavily in debt, in proportion to its length and connections, as to render another mortgage out of the question. And even if there were any reasonable prospect to any of these roads in future, neither your orator nor they can afford to wait for the chances.

Under these circumstances the Legislature, by act of July 5th, 1870, ch. 79, appointed the Governor, Secretary of State and Comptroller, and the Hon. F. B. Fogg, A. Wright and R. J. McKinney, commissioners, to sell and transfer the interest of the State in delinquent railroads; and these commissioners, after due notice, undertook, on the 3d of November, 1870, to sell the interest of the State in the several railroad companies made defendants to this bill, but failed to receive a bid for either road. This result, it appears sfrom the report of the commissioners, grew out of the fact that the minimum price which the commissioners were authorized to accept for the interest sold in any road was the amount of the debt due the State, which amount was rendered uncertain, in the case of several of the roads, by circumstances detailed in the report, and was, in the case of other roads, much larger, nominally, than the value of the debts, or even of the roads. Under these circumstances the Legislature, on the 21st December, 1870, passed an act to amend the act of 1870-79, and directed a bill to be filed in the Chancery Court at Nashville, in the name of the State, against the delinquent companies, the respective stockholders, holders of bonds, creditors, and all persons interested in the said several roads, to settle all matters of controversy touching the rights and interests of the State, ascertain such interests, and define the purchaser's rights, and for other purposes, and this bill is filed accordingly.

Your orator would now show your Honor that the State aid has been advanced to the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company as follows:

To E. S. Cheatham, Pres't,	April 4, 1857,	under Dec.	15, 1855	..$20,000
" "	June 24, 1857,	"	"	. 20,000
" "	August 13, 1857,	"	"	.. 20,000
" "	October 17, 1857,	"	"	.. 40,000
" "	March 10, 1858,	"	"	.. 40,000
" "	September 27, 1858	"	"	.. 20,000
" "	December 28, 1858,	"	"	.. 20,000
" "	October 6. 1859,	"	"	.. 20,000
To John L. Helm, Agent,	January 21, 1860,	"	"	.. 11,000
				$211,000

The bonds to this amount seem to have been drawn for the purpose of building the railroad bridge over the Cumberland river at Nashville, which was a joint enterprise of the Edgefield and Kentucky and the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Companies, and it is claimed by the former road that the latter road has paid off to your orator its one-half of the debt thus created, leaving the other half only as a charge on the former road. How this is, your orator does not know, and requires the defendant to show the fact. Admitting the claim for the present, the statement of debt will be:

One-half foregoing advances	$105,500
To E. S. Cheatham, Pres't, under June 11, 1858	300,000
" " under February 12, 1859	26,000
" " under August 30, 1859	10,000
" " under September 30, 1859	17,000
To E.S.Cheatham, Pres't, May 24,1859, under 11th Feb'y, 1852,	$180,000
" " under June 9, 1850	10,000
" " under January 23, 1860	51,000
" " April 16, 1869, under March 22,1860.	45.000
	$750,000

All these bonds were issued previous to the war, and the company failing to meet the interest upon the bonds as they fell due, the Governor, under the provisions of the Act of February 11, 1852, as early as the close of the year 1860, or the beginning of the year 1861, appointed Adna Anderson receiver, and the road has been in the hands of receivers ever since—the receivers since the war being R. B. Cheatham, John B. Brownlow, E. A. Fort, and now Wm. Connell, the president of the company. After the war State aid was again extended to this road under the acts hereinbefore recited, and others, as follows:

Former aid brought forward	$750,000
To R.B.Cheatham, Receiver, April 23, 1866, under Jan. 18, 1866.	115,000
" " June 20, 1866, under May 24, 1866.	110,000
" " Jan. 14, 1868, under Dec. 7, 1867.	25,000
" " Jan, 26, 1868, under Dec. 7, 1867.	75,000
To J. T. Boyle, President, Jan. 8, 1868, under Dec. 7, 1867..	50,000
" " Jan. 17, 1868, under Dec. 7, 1867.	68,000
" " Jan. 18, 1868, under Dec. 7, 1867.	32,000
" " Jan. 24, 1868, under Dec. 7, 1867.	50,000
	$1,275,000

To this add—

Funded interest under November 23, 1865	$231,812 00
Unfunded interest in arrears 1st January, 1871..........	402,492 26
Debt to United States and interest to 1st January, 1871...	171,375 45
	$2,081,179 71

This road is only forty-seven or forty-eight miles in length, and its entire stock subscription was only $380,000, all of which, so far as it could be realized, has long since been spent. During the whole period of its existence the road has never paid the expense of running it, and has only made one payment of surplus earnings over expenses, and that in the month of August, 1870, of $2,000, which was applied for the benefit of private parties, provided for by Act of February 18, 1870, ch. 61, which act was passed by the procurement and at the instance of the said company, the parties provided for being directors or officers of said roads. This act provides for the payment to the parties named of $57,055 out of the earnings of the road, and in the hands of the receiver. The whole road is worth little, if any, over one-half of its indebtedness to your orator. It is not within the bounds of reason to suppose that it will ever pay accruing interest, much less the arrears of interest and the body of the bonds.

Your orator would further show that there were issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company bonds as follows:

This road runs from Nashville to the Mississippi river at Hickman, a distance of 163 miles, and is an important road in length and connections. But besides its enormous debt to your orator, it is in debt to the United States for rolling stock to the amount, with interest, of over a half a million dollars, to mortgage bondholders over a million of dollars, and a floating debt of several hundred thousand dollars. It is now being run, under a lease, by the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and thus far the expenditures have exceeded the income. It has paid neither interest nor sinking fund, nor is likely to do so for years, if ever, and there is no reasonable probability that it will ever, at any time, be able to pay the large arrears of interest due as above.

Your orator would further show that there were issued to the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company bonds as follows :

This road runs from the State line, through Clarksville, to ————, a distance of ——— miles, and is important in forming a link in the line of roads from Louisville to Memphis. The stock amounts to about $700,000, all of which has been collected and used which could be realized. The whole road is not worth more than two-thirds of its indebtedness to the State, if so much. It has paid no part of the interest or sinking fund, and has been run for several years by the Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company. It is hopelessly insolvent, and has itself instituted proceedings in the United States District Court at Nashville to be declared a bankrupt. There is no reasonable prospect of its ever paying accruing interest, much less the large arrears of debt to your orator.

Your orator states that the bonds issued to the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad Company are as follows:

To P. H. Marbury, Pres't.,	July 21, 1855,	under Feb. 11, 1852..	$300,000
" "	July 21, 1866,	" " ..	20,000

" "	Jan. 26, 1866,	under May 25, 1868..	54,000
			$772,000
Funded interest			87,360
Unfunded			240,218
			$1,099,578

This road runs from Tullahoma to McMinnville, a distance of ——— miles, and is a mere local branch to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company. It is hopelessly insolvent, has never paid any interest, and is not likely to pay any.

Your orator shows that the bonds issued to the Winchester and Alabama Railroad Company were as follows:

This road runs from Dechard's station on the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad, through Winchester to Fayetteville, in Lincoln county, a distance of ——— miles. It is a mere local road, without any outlet or connections, and hopelessly insolvent. It has never paid, and will not, in all probability, be able to pay any interest upon the debt to your orator.

Your orator would further state, that the Southwestern Railroad Company was incorporated 1851-2, (see page 462), with powers, etc., Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company. Lay dormant until 1865-6, when its charter was revived. See page 295. By act of December 7, 1867, page 14, sec. 4, it was given $30,000.

East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad Company was incorporated May 24, 1866; see page 260, 1, 2 and 3, acts of 1865–6. This road runs from————to————, is —miles long, and is insolvent and worthless.

Your orator would now show your Honor that most, perhaps all, of these roads are totally insolvent, unable to pay accruing interest or sinking fund, and in no condition to pay the arrears of interest which have already become past due, and, of course, with no reasonable hope of ever paying the principal of the bonds issued to them. Your orator insists that the failure of these companies to comply with any one of the conditions upon which State aid was extended to them, makes a forfeiture of all their rights under the internal improvement laws, and authorizes your orator to demand a sale of all the property and effects, rights, privileges and franchises of said several companies, the proceeds of sale to be applied—first, to the extinguishment of the debt due to your orator, with interests and costs, and the surplus, if any, to the satisfaction of other debts in the order of their liens. If the sale should produce more than is required to pay the debts, the stockholders would be entitled to the same pro rata. Your orator claims, in any event, priority of satisfaction out of the incomes or sales of said roads for the whole of the indebtedness of said companies as hereinbefore recited, or as the same may be found to be (and your orator reserves the right to correct errors therein, if any), over all other creditors or claimants of said roads of every nature and kind whatsoever. Among the claims which have been set up against said roads, or some of them, are claims for work and labor done upon or for said roads while under the control and management of receivers appointed under the act of 1852, and the acts amendatory thereof; and, in some instances, liens upon parts of the superstructure of said roads, such as trestles and bridges, have been claimed. Your orator insists that these claims, however valid they may be, as between the claimants and the companies, can have no force and effect as against your orator, or its prior rights and lien under the Internal Improvement laws.

The premises considered, your orator prays your Honor that the railroad companies, corporations, and persons mentioned in the caption of this bill as defendants, be made such by proper process, according to the course of the Court. Your orator also prays, that all the respective stockholders of the said railroad companies, the holders of State bonds issued to such companies, the holders of the bonds of the said companies issued by them, and secured by liens, pledges or mortgages of said roads, or any part thereof, or of their property or franchises, and all creditors of said railroad companies, and all persons interested in said roads, be made defendants to this bill by service of process on those named, and by publication as to those whose names and residences are unknown, according to the course of the Court; and that all of the said defendants, or so many of them of the different classes as the Court may deem sufficient to represent all of each class, be required to answer the allegations of this bill on oath. Your orator prays that the process of subpœna or by publication issue, and be made under the Act of December 21, 1870, and require the said defendants to appear at the Special Term of this Court, to be held on the first Monday in March next, and put in such defense to said bill as they may respectively deem proper, under the provisions of the said act; that all proper accounts be ordered and taken as required by said act; that in case any of such railroad companies should decline a contest with your orator in regard to a sale of the State's interest in these roads, a decree may be made accordingly, and the commissioners appointed by the Legislature authorized to proceed at once to sell the said interest, a specific value being put upon the State's interest in each of such roads by the decree in pursuance of the 8th section of said Act of December 21, 1870. Your orator further prays your Honor to make all such rules, orders and decrees, interlocutory and final, as may be deemed necessary in order to a final and proper adjustment of the rights of all the parties, preliminary to a sale of the interest of your orator in said roads. And also to declare the exact amount of indebtedness of each of said companies to your orator, and to define, as may be thought proper, what shall be the rights, duties and liabilities of a purchaser of the State's interest in said roads, or either of them, and what shall be the reserved rights of said companies, stockholders, bondholders, and others respectively, as against said purchasers after such sale, under the existing laws. Your orator also prays that your Honor would make a decision of any agreed case, or question, or matter informally submitted under the provisions of the second section of said act. Your orator also prays your Honor to decree a sale of said road, with all their property, franchises and rights, if necessary or proper upon final hearing, or manifestly for the interest of all parties, and expressly or tacitly assented to by such parties, such sale to be made by the commissioners appointed by the Legislature, the proceeds of sale to be paid to the parties entitled under the orders and decrees of your Honor, or upon the principles settled by such orders and decrees. Your orator prays for all such other, further and different relief as it may be entitled to.

The separate demurrer of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company to the bill of complaint of the State of Tennessee filed against said company and other railroad companies, their stockholders, bondholders and creditors, in Chancery Court at Nashville, Tennessee.

This defendant, by protestation, not confessing any of the matters in said bill to be true, demurs thereto, and for cause of demurrer assigns the following:

1st. Because complainant's bill contains no matter of equity whereon this Court can give complainant any relief.

2d. The act of December 21, 1870, authorizing complainant's bill to be filed at this time is unconstitutional and void.

3d. The bill is multifarious.

IN CHANCERY COURT.

State of Tennessee v. Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Co. et als.

Subpoena to answer Davidson County.
Issued January 28th, 1879.
NATHANIEL BAXTER, Jr., C. & M.

Returned execution upon all the within named parties except Gustavus A. Henry, who is not to be found in my county.

B. LANIER, Deputy Sheriff.

The separate demurrer of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company to the bill of complaint of the State of Tennessee filed against said company and other railroad companies, their stockholders, bondholders and creditors, in Chancery Court at Nashville, Tennessee.

This defendant, by protestation, not confessing any of the matters in said bill to be true, demurs thereto, and for cause of demurrer assigns the following:

1st. Because complainant's bill contains no matter of equity whereon this Court can give complainant any relief.

2d. The act of December 21, 1870, authorizing complainant's bill to be filed at this time is unconstitutional and void.

3d. The bill is multifarious.

4th. This court has no jurisdiction of the subject matter of the bill, and none of the persons of many of the parties interested therein who are residents of this State and well known to the solicitors of complainant.

Wherefore, and for divers other errors in said bill contained and appearing on the face thereof, this defendant demurs thereto, and it prays the judgment of the court whether it shall be compelled to make any other or further answer to said bill, and it prays to be hence dismissed, with its reasonable costs in this behalf sustained.

JNO. A. GARDNER,
Solicitor.

THE STATE OF TENNESSEE,
vs.
NASHVILLE AND NORTHWESTERN RAILROAD COMPANY.

The answer of Jno. A. Gardner to the bill of complaint of the State of Tennessee, filed in the Chancery Court at Nashville, against the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company and other railway companies, their bondholders, stockholders and creditors.

This defendant, saving and reserving all legal and proper exceptions to said bill, for answer thereto, says: That as to the amount of State bonds issued by the complainant to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and the dates at which said bonds were issued, he supposes the facts to be truly stated in the bill.

Respondent admits that so far as the complaint undertakes to set out the law applicable to the case it may be done truly, but he insists that much of the law governing the case is not set out in the bill, nor does respondent concur in the deduction drawn from the law as stated. Respondent insists that a specific lien was created by the act of the 11th of February, 1852, in favor of the State on each road receiving aid in State bonds under that law, for the payment of the identical bonds loaned to the company, and no others, and by a sale of the road the particular bonds it received must be first paid before any part of the proceeds can be lawfully applied to any other purpose. Said lien was not created alone for the benefit of the State, whose bonds were to be issued, but also for the benefit of all those who might become bona fide holders of the bonds for a valuable consideration. A sale and delivery of the bonds, by the company to which they were loaned, operated as an equitable transfer of the mortgage to the purchaser of the bonds, and the equitable transfer has followed the bonds into the hands of the present holders, and now belongs to them. The lien was for the indemnification of the State against the payment of the principal of the bonds at maturity. By sec. 5 of said internal improvement act, a special remedy is provided for the State in case any of said companies should fail to pay the bonds. This remedy is not by sale, but by sequestration of the earnings and profits of the road by means of a receiver to be appointed by the Governor. By the sixth section of the act, another and a different remedy is given in the event the bonds are not paid at maturity. The remedy is by sale of the road, with power conferred upon the court to appoint a receiver to take charge of the road pending the proceeding to sell.

These provisions are fundamental, and are impliedly incorporated into the charter of each company receiving State aid under this act; and constitute essential parts of the contract between the State and the stockholders in these companies, vesting in them a right to the use of their respective roads as a means of paying the bonds at maturity, subject only to the right of the State, under the fifth section, to sequester the profits on default to pay interest.

The power reserved in the twelfth section of the act is expressly to be exercised by the Legislature "in such manner as not to impair the vested rights of the stockholders of the companies."

Your respondent is a stockholder in the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and is the owner and holder in his own name and right of thirty-five shares, or $3,500, of the stock of said company. Respondent therefore insists that the act of the Legislature under which complainant's bill has been filed, was passed in violation of the latter clause of the twelfth section of the act of the 11th of February, 1852, and of the Constitution of the United States and of the State of Tennessee, and is therefore null and void.

If, however, respondent is in error in the foregoing conclusions, he insists that the road can only be sold for the payment of such bonds, and the unpaid interest thereon, as were legally issued to the company, and inured to its benefit. He insists that the company is not liable to pay the $100,000 of bonds issued by Wm. G. Brownlow, Governor, to Wm. P. Innis, receiver, mentioned in the bill, nor the $200,000 of bonds expended by D. B. Cliffe, receiver, on the Huntingdon Branch.

Respondent denies, as matter of belief, on information and from his personal knowledge, so far as he has that knowledge, that any one of the loans or bonds extended to the Northwestern Company since the war, has been unanimously petitioned for by the president and directors of said company, or unanimously adopted by said directors; nor was the assent of the stockholders so given to said loans, as in law to bind them to the payment of said bonds, in the judgment of respondent. This respondent, and a number of other stockholders in the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, perhaps a majority in interest—how this is respondent does not profess to know with certainty—never consented to or accepted the $350,000 of bonds to the main trunk, and $200,000 to the Huntingdon Branch, provided by the act of the 7th of December, 1867, ch. 17, nor the other terms of said act.

Whilst your respondent admits that the aggregate indebtedness of the Nashville and Northwestern Company is large, as shown by the statement of the bill, yet he denies that "even under the last management, and making all proper allowance for increased business, (said company) can ever hope to pay the arrears of interest and sinking fund, nor even, perhaps, the whole of the annual accruing interest."

The earnings of said road within twelve months from January, 1870, to January, 1871, increased near one hundred per cent., reaching in the latter month $50,781.90. The condition of the road is much better for business than at any former period. Its business is rapidly increasing, and respondent confidently believes, with prudent management by the lessees, a receiver, or the company, that in a few years it would be able to pay its interest, provide a sinking fund, and pay its bonds at maturity.

Your respondent therefore insists that said company "can afford to wait for the chances," and that under the fifth section of the act of February, 1852, it has a right, "to wait for the chances" to save the property of the stockholders from sale and ruinous sacrifice.

To encourage a system of internal improvements in this State by the construction of railways then being inaugurated by the Legislature, on the 22d day of January, 1852, said body passed a law entitlee "an act to authorize and regulate county subscriptions for railroad stock," ch. 117, Pamph. Acts, page 161, under and by virtue of the provisions of which the qualified voters of Weakly County, of which county respondent then was, and still is, a resident and tax-payer, and through which county the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad was then located and has since been built, voted a county subscription of $100,000 to said railroad company.

Said subscription was voted about the year 1857; was paid by a tax upon the taxables of the county in three annual installments. The money was collected and applied to the building of said road. This respondent voted for the said subscription and paid near one thousand dollars of the same on his taxable property in the county. He is now the owner and holder of $1,688.35¾ of certificates or scrip given to him and other tax-payers of said county for their payment on said subscription.

In sec. 8 of said act it is provided, among other things, that "as the said railroad collector shall receive the tax he shall give the person paying a certificate showing the amount, which certificate may be traded, assigned or transferred, and shall be receivable in payment of either freight or passage on any road upon which such subscription shall have been expended."

Your respondent insists that under the foregoing provision he has, and all persons similarly situated have, a vested right to pay either freight or passage on said road in said scrip, at its par value, whether said road is being operated by the company, a lessee, receiver, the State, or a purchaser from the State, or under her mortgage. It is an equity created by the payment of the money in favor of the tax-payer, a legal right conferred upon him by the express terms of the law enacted by the authority and with the sanction and approval of the State—the mortgagee of the road, the complainant in the bill—who in asking equity must do equity.

It is insisted that the equity here set up attaches to the property—the road—regardless of who may own or operate it; that it is a vested right which cannot be disturbed or impaired by subsequent legislation, especially by a party who would thus be allowed to take advantage of its own wrong. The foregoing questions raised in this answer are differently presented for your honor's consideration, and the court's judgment upon them respectfully invoked.

And now, having fully and freely answered, respondent prays to be discharged with his cost, etc.

JNO. A. GARDNER.

Personally appeared before me, Sam'l Peebles, a Justice of the Peace of Weakley county, Tennessee, Jno. A. Gardner, and made oath that the facts stated in the foregoing answer as of his own knowledge are true, and those stated on information he believes to be true.

JNO. A. GARDNER.

DEMURRER OF THE COUNTY OF DAVIDSON.

State of Tennessee
vs.
Delinquent Railroads.

The County of Davidson, by way of protestation, not confessing the matters and facts charged in complainant's bill to be true, as herein alleged, demurs thereto, and for cause of demurrer, assigns the following special grounds of demurrer:

1st. The act of Assembly under which the bill is filed is in conflict with the 6th section of the 4th Article of the Constitution of the State of Tennessee, which requires Chancellors to be elected by the qualified voters of the district to which they are to be assigned.

2d. The said act of Assembly is in conflict with the 8th section of the 11th Article of the Constitution of the State of Tennessee, which inhibit partial laws—and such act of Assembly is not the law of the land.

3d. By the act of Assembly under which the bill is filed, the Court is given the exclusive right to settle and determine the facts between the parties, when in all other causes in the Chancery Court either party may call for a jury.

4th. The said act limits the taking of the account and making report to twenty days, when in all other causes in the Chancery Court the Court is left to its own discretion as to such limit.

5th. The said act limits the time of taking a writ of error in this cause to the Supreme Court to thirty days, when in all other causes in the Chancery Court it is two years from the final decree.

6th. The said act of Assembly under which the bill is filed, impairs the obligation of the contract upon which the subscription of the County of Davidson was made to the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company and the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and the obligation of the contract between the State of Tennessee and the said two railroad companies, and is in violation of section 20 of our Bill of Rights.

7th. Upon complainant's own showing, the bonds issued to the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company and the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company as State aid, under the acts of Assembly in the bill mentioned, are not yet due.

8th. By the contract between the State of Tennessee and the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad and the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Companies, a remedy is provided for the failure of such companies to pay the interest on the bonds issued as State aid to such roads, different from the remedy provided in the act of Assembly under which complainant's bill is filed.

9th. Complainant's debt is not a mortgage, and complainant has no right to sell or dipose of its claim, or to put any other person in its shoes, without defendant's consent.

10th. Complainant has no right to enforce its lien before the debt is due on the bonds issued as State aid to the Edgefield and Kentucky and Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Companies mature. And the Court will not take jurisdiction of the matter at this time, simply to enable complainant to ascertain its debt. The bill is prematurely filed.

11th. Upon complainant's own showing, it funded the arrears of interest unpaid that accrued during the pendency of the late civil war, and the interest that had accrued or might, up to the 1st of January, 1868, upon any of the bonds issued under the Internal Improvement act, previous to the 6th May, 1861, by issuing Coupon State Bonds similar to those issued under the act of 1852, and its amendments, and that as early as the latter part of 1860, or the beginning of 1861, the Edgefield and Kentucky Road was put in the hands of a Receiver, under the act of 1852, by the Governor, and has since been in the hands of a Receiver, and that the Nashville and Northwestern had been for several years in the hands of a receiver appointed by the Governor under the act of 1852, and suspended the payment of the sinking fund, and the roads should have been returned to the company.

12th. The bill fails to charge that either the acts of January, 1866, ch. 14, and May 22, 1866, May 24, 1866, was ever accepted by this defendant.

13th. That the bill upon its face shows that when W. G. Brownlow assumed the payment of $130,804.54 for the benefit of the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad to the United States, for the purchase of Railroad material, machinery, cars, etc., for the use of said road, that such road was then in the hands of a Receiver appointed by the Governor under the act of 1852.

14th. The bill upon its face shows that under the act of December 7, 1867, that the power is given to the Governor, Secretary of State and Comptroller, to sell the railroad tracks, railing, rolling stock, etc., of such roads as bonds were issued to under that and former acts as should fail for two consecutive years to pay the interest that might accrue upon the bonds loaned to them by the State severally.

15th. The bill fails to show that the act of December 7, 1867, was ever accepted by this defendant.

16th. The bill shows that the complainant's debt is a prior lien.

17th. The act under which the bill is filed delegates to the Court and commissioners a power that belongs only to the Legislature

18th. The bill shows that the indebtedness of the Edgefield and Kentucky and Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company is for a sum certain.

19th. The bill is multifarious in this, it has joined this defendant with various other parties between it and where there is no community of interest.

20th. The bill shows that complainant has authorized the funds of the Edgefield and Kentucky

Railroad Company to be diverted from their true purpose.

21st. The court cannot grant full relief until it can be decided whether the lien belongs to the State or to the bondholders, and this cannot be authoritatively settled in this case, because the foreign bondholders will not be bound by the decree passed on publication.

22d. The bill fails to show who the bondholders are, or that proper steps have been taken to ascertain.

23d. There is no allegation that either the bonds or interest has been paid by complainant.

24th. There is no such allegation as will authorize a discovery. It does not appear that the facts sought to be discovered can be shown by no other person than from the parties of whom the discovery is sought.

25th. The 12th section of the act under which complainant proceeds, is in violation of the 17th section of Article 2 of the Constitution of Tennessee.

26th. And for other causes to be shown upon argument.

DECREE, SPECIAL TERM 1871, MARCH 17, 1871.

The State of Tennessee
vs.
The E. & Ky. R. R. Co. et al.

In this case the solicitors for the county of Davidson suggested that a large number of the original bonds issued by the State of Tennessee to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and to the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, amounting to several hundred thousand dollars issued to each of said roads under the Internal Improvement Laws, are non-residents of the State of Tennessee, and whose names and residences are unknown, and cannot be ascertained upon diligent inquiry. That such bondholders have been named as parties in the bill, and a publication has been made in the newspaper by the Clerk and Master, but they are informed, believe and so state, that the bill in this case has not been sworn to, and no separate affidavit as to the non-residence of said bondholders or as to the fact that their names and residences are unknown and cannot be ascertained upon diligent inquiry has been made, nor have such facts been made, to appear by the return of any process, and none of said bondholders have appeared in this case or otherwise submitted to the jurisdiction of this Court.

That the fact of the want of such affidavits and returns, and of the non-appearance of said bondholders, can be made manifest by the certificate or report of the Clerk and Master of this Court, and the county of Davidson move the the Court to order that the Clerk and Master certify and report instanter whether the facts as suggested are true or not, and that the demurrer filed by said county be not disposed of until the coming in of said certificate and report. both of which motions were disallowed and refused by the Court, and the Court ordered that the argument upon said demurrer proceed. The Court being of opinion that a defendant who has not submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court, and has filed a demurrer to the jurisdiction of the Court, cannot make a motion on the cause, to all of which action of the Court the said county of Davidson excepted, and it is ordered that said exceptions be spread on the minutes as part of the record in the nature of a bill of exceptions.

DECREE, SPECIAL TERM 1871, MARCH 17, 1871.

vs.
THE E. & KY. R. R. Co. et al.

The county of Davidson, by solicitors, presented the report and certificate of the Clerk and Master, which is as follows:

To the Chancellor:

Upon application of the solicitors of the county of Davidson, defendant, I certify that I have examined the records of my office and find that the bill in the above cause has never been sworn to. That no separate affidavit has been filed in my office, that the names and residences of the holders of the bonds issued by the State to the railroad companies, defendants, are unknown, or that they are non-residents of the State of Tennessee. The fact of their non-residence does not appear by the return of any process in the above cause, and I have no knowledge that any of said bondholders have entered their appearance in this cause.

NATHANIEL BAXTER, Jr.,
Clerk and Master.
By JAS. WALKER,
Deputy Clerk and Master.

March 17, 1871.

And moved the Court for a dismissal of the suit for non-prosecution of the bill against said non-appearing bondholders, defendants, which motion is, by the Court, overruled and disallowed. The said county of Davidson then moved the Court for an order that complainants be allowed a reasonable time for to bring said defendants, bondholders, before the Court, after which the bill will be dismissed if said defendants, bondholders, are not brought before the court or enter their appearance within that time, which last motion was also disallowed and refused by the Court, to which action of the Court the defendants, the county of Davidson, except, and it is ordered that its exception be entered of record.

The State of Tennessee

EDWARD H. EAST.

AFFIDAVIT OF W. B. REESE.

W. B. Reese, one of the attorneys and counsel for the State, employed and authorized by the commissioners of the State under the act of the 21st December, 1870, to file the bill in the Chancery Court at Nashville against the delinquent railroad companies in the name of the State of Tennessee, as directed in said act of December 21, 1870, makes oath that he made diligent inquiry and search to ascertain the names of the bondholders of the State bonds, holders of the bonds issued by any of the companies to be proceeded against, and particularly of the bonds of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville, and Northwestern railroad companies, and the names of stockholders of any and all of said companies; and that after making all the inquiry he had the time or means to make, he was unable to find the names of any of such bondholders and stockholders other than as stated in the bill as filed in this cause. He made this inquiry and made these investigations before said bill was filed, and informed his associate counsel of this failure before said bill was filed, as he now most distinctly remembers, and it was upon these investigations that the allegations as to unknown parties were made in the bill, and the publication asked and made in this case. The affidavit is now made this 17th of March, 1871, and filed nunc pro tunc.

vs.
THE E. & KY. R.R. Co. et al., and N. & C. R.R. Co. as lessees of the N. & N. W. R.R. Co.

By agreement of counsel the judgment pro confesso heretofore taken in this cause against the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company as lessees of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company be set aside, and the defendants presented their answer and are allowed to file the same.

ANSWER OF THE NASHVILLE AND CHATTANOOGA RAILROAD COMPANY.

The separate answer of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company to the bill of complaint filed against it and others by the State of Tennessee in the Chancery Court of Davidson county, Tennessee.

Respondent, reserving all benefits of exceptions, etc., refer the honorable court to a lease filed herewith and marked "Exhibit A," and which was executed pursuant to the provisions of a law passed by the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee.

There is an outstanding indebtedness in favor of said Nashville and Chatannooga Railroad Company for repairs, etc., done to a very large amount under the provisions of the lease aforesaid, all of which has been done since the execution of the said lease and for which it has vouchers to show.

In addition to this there has been paid for the benefit of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad certain amounts which appear from Exhibit B, filed as a part hereof and made a part of this answer.

Respondent is disinclined to resist any application of the State, so far as it may not be good faith on its part, but is disposed to go outside of the above referred to lease and ask the honorable court to look into the interests of the State and defendant and do what is right and just between them, regarding the advances that have been made under the said lease and also previous indebtedness from the said N. & N. W. R. R. Co. to your respondent. For all of which, in the event there should be a decree in favor of complainant, and he insists there should be an account, and that they should be entitled to full compensation over any pre-existing claims or liens of the State.

Respondent having fully answered, prays that it may be fully dismissed with his costs, etc., etc.

EXHIBIT A TO ANSWER OF N. & C. R.R. CO.

A Bill to be entitled an act to accept, confirm, ratify and make obligatory a lease of the Nashville and Northwestern R. R. to the Nashville and Chattanooga R. R. Co.

WHEREAS, At a meeting of the Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, held in the city of Nashville on the 27th day of October, 1869, E. W. Cole, President of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, submitted a written proposition on the part of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company for a lease to said company of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad for a term of six years, which proposition was in the words and figures following:

The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company propose to lease the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad for the period of six years upon the following terms and conditions:

It will expend upon the road-bed, superstructures, bridges and trestles, and in the repair and purchase of rolling stock within the next six months the sum of $100,000, and as speedily as possible put the road in as good condition as other connecting roads, and supply it with rolling stock sufficient to meet the requirements of the business of the road in freights and passengers, and of the same quality and character as similar rolling stock of the Nashville and Chattanooga Road, and continue to keep the road in good condition, and the rolling stock in like good order and condition for and during the full term of the lease and until the same is fully ended, and to return the road and rolling stock in like good order and condition at the expiration of the lease, all repairs, improvements and additions to be made at the usual reasonable and customary prices for the time being. The present rolling stock, materials, and personalty of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company on hand, and to be valued by three persons, one to be selected by each of the parties, and they to select a third, and taken by the Nashville and Chattanooga Road at the valuation and returned in kind at the end of the lease upon like valuation.

The road shall continue during the lease to be operated on its present line and upon every part of it without discrimination against any part unless with the consent of the Board of Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and the lessee shall so operate as to foster and encourge the local as well as through business. And such and so many trains for the accommodation of freight and passengers shall be run as are usual and customary on roads of similar length and importance, and necessary to perform the business offered.

The tariff rates of through freights and passengers are to be ratably divided between the roads in proportion to the lengths of the two roads to each other or the distances carried on each, and the local earnings are to be credited to the lessor.

The lessor agrees to make no charge for use of tools, rent of shops or yard-room, or pay of yardmen at Nashville during the continuance of this lease. One-third of the salaries of the President, Superintendent, Secretary and Treasurer, Freight and Passenger Agent and Engineer of the Nashville and Chattanaoga Railroad Company shall be paid out of the earnings of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and the share of the lessor of these salaries shall not exceed the following sums: President, $3,000 per annum; Superintendent, $2,000; Secretary and Treasurer, $2,000: General Freight Agent, $500; General Passenger Agent, $500; Engineer, $1,000.

There shall also be paid out of the earnings of the road the salary of an agent to be appointed by the Board of Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company as hereinafter provided to superintend the interest of said company under this lease, which salary is fixed at $——.

No agent or officers shall be employed except such as are necessary to operating the roads, and devote their whole time and attention to the business of the road, and as are usual in such cases, who shall be paid out of the earnings of the road the same compensation which is allowed similar agents and officers of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company for similar services.

The Board of Directors of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company may elect an agent to hold his office during the pleasure of the board to represent the said company and protect its interest during the lease, whose duty it shall be to give a general supervision to all the business of the road and all transactions under this lease, with the right to have free access at all times to the rolling stock, property and effects used in running the road with a view to ascertaining its condition, and whether any or what repairs are required, and to the books of the business of the two roads so far as they relate to or have any connection with the business or operations under this lease. He shall be consulted as to all expenses ordinary or extraordinary, but without having the right to prevent them if deemed necessary by the lessee. If, however, the agent should dissent from any extraordinary expenses and report the same to the board of the lessor, and that board shall concur in the dissent, the matter shall be suspended until contracting parties have come to some agreement, or the matter arbitrated as hereinafter provided.

The agent shall make a report to the board of the lessor at least once in every three months, or oftener, if necessary or required.

All matters of difference arising under this lease, either as to the operation of the road, the expense incurred, or otherwise, which cannot be amicably adjusted by committees of the two boards, shall be submitted at once to the arbitrament and award of three railroad officers or engineers, one to be selected by each of the parties, and one by these two, whose decision shall be final and binding on the contracting parties.

All depot houses, sidings, buildings and appurtenances of the road shall be returned with the road-bed and rolling stock in good order and condition at the expiration of the lease.

Regular and equal accounts shall be kept by the lessee of all the earnings and expenditures in operating the road, to which the agent above provided for shall have free access, and monthly reports and settlements shall be made between the parties.

The lessee is to have control of the road and of its operations under the lease, and to receive all the earnings of its business, and shall be entitled out of these earnings to pay the salaries as hereinbefore provided, and all the expenses of running said road, and to reimburse itself the money advanced to put the road in good condition, and to furnish rolling stock as herein stipulated, with interest.

Any surplus of earnings after these disbursements shall be paid to the State of Tennessee monthly, at the expiration of each and every month during the term of the lease, to be credited to the interest due or to become due to the State upon the bonds issued to the lessor, and which are a lien by statute upon said road.

If the surplus earnings should, during the term of lease, pay off the arrears of interest due the State, and exceed the interest which may hereafter fall due semi-annually, such excess shall be paid to the lessor or its order.

It is further agreed that no agent or officer of either road shall be allowed to engage in any speculative or business connected, or have anything to do with the transportation or other business of the road.

Signed, E. W. COLE,
Pres. N. & C. R. R. Co.

Whereas, The Board of Directors of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, at their meeting aforesaid, having duly considered said proposition, recommended its acceptance to the stockholders of said company; and,

Whereas, At a meeting of said stockholders, duly and legally called and held at the city of Nashville on the 28th day of October, 1869, a majority ef them voted in favor of accepting the proposition for said lease as above set forth; and,

Whereas, Said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad is at present in the hands of the State authorities, whereby the assent of the State of Tennessee is made necessary to the consummation of said contracts and to the validity of said lease; and,

Whereas, In the opinion of this General Assembly, it is manifestly to the interest of the State, as well as said railroad companies and the public, that said proposition should be accepted, and said lease approved, ratified and made obligatory on all the parties thereto; therefore,

Section 1. Be it enacted by the General Assembly of State of Tennessee, That the above proposition be, and the same is hereby, accepted, and said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company is hereby authorized to take possession of and control of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and the property thereof, according to the terms and conditions of the proposition hereinafter set forth, provided that the said present president and directors of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and their successors in office, before entering upon the discharge of their duties under the foregoing leases, and before taking possession of said Northwestern Railroad, shall first enter into bond with two or more sufficient sureties in the penal sum of one hundred thousand dollars, payable to the State of Tennessee, for the faithful performance of the terms and stipulations of said lease, in each and every particular, and for a prompt and faithful compliance with the terms, provisions and restrictions hereinafter provided by law, which shall be approved by the Governor, Comptroller and Treasurer of the State, and filed in the office of the Comptroller.

SEC. 2. Be it further enacted, That the agent provided for in said lease shall be chosen by the Board of Directors of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, with concurrence of the Governor of the State, whose duty it shall be to report to the Governor as often as he is required by said lease to report to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and he shall be regarded as joint agent for said company and the State, and his salary, which shall be one hundred and fifty dollars per month, shall by paid out of the earnings of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad.

SEC. 3. Be it further enacted, That nothing herein contained shall be so construed as to take the Nashville and and Northwestern Railroad out of the provisions of any law or laws that may be passed by the General Assembly of the State, but the said Northwestern Railroad shall be subject to the provisions of such law or laws which may be passed as aforesaid as though this act had never been passed.

SEC. 4. Be it further enacted, That the foregoing lease is ratified, subject to the provisions of this act, with the express reservations to the State of the right to terminate the same at any time without notice, by the act of the General Assembly of the State, provided that should the State, or a purchaser from the State, of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, demand possession of said road before the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad has been reimbursed of all necessary and proper expenditures in operating said Northwestern Railroad from the earnings of said road, such excess of expenditures over earnings shall be paid by the State or said purchaser to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company.

Sec. 5. Be it further enacted, That this act shall take effect from and after its passage.

DECREE APRIL TERM, APRIL 15, 1871.

The State of Tennessee
vs.
The Edgerield and Kentucky
Railroad Company et als.

The complainant in this case, upon application and good cause shown to the court, is permitted to file its amended and supplemental bill which is done, whereupon the court is pleased to order that the defendants to the original bill, and especially the Memphis. Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company; the Southwestern Railroad Company; the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad Company; the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company; and Bristol, Skidmore & Co. and G. G. Dibrell, appear and make defense to said amended and supplemental bill on or before the seventh Monday of this term, being the 15th of May, next. It is further ordered that the said seventh Monday of the term be, and the same is hereby, by way of general rule of this court, and by special rule in this particular case, made a rule day of this court for the return of original process or of publication in lieu thereof; and that the process issued on the amended and supplemental bill in this case for new defendants be made returnable to that day; and that the publication which may be made for other defendants in lieu of personal service of process be ordered to be made, and be requiring the said defendants to appear and make defense on the seventh Monday of this term, being Monday, 15th of May next, otherwise the original and amended and supplemental bills will be taken for confessed against them, and set for hearing ex parte.

It is further ordered that process of attachment and injunction issue as prayed for in the amended and supplemental bill, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court from the schedule filed with the petition in bankruptcy of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and from the bill filed by certain persons claiming to be creditors of that road by debts contracted while the road was being run by receivers against the State commissioners, as mentioned in the amended and supplemental bill, that there are a large number of such claimants, too numerous to all be made defendants to this bill by name, it is ordered that those of such claimants who are specially named in the amended and supplemental bill be made defendants to represent that class of claimants with leave to any other of the said claimants to come in within the given time and make themselves defendants specially if they see proper so to do, and the complainant is not required to make any more of such claimant's parties defendant by name.

The court is also of opinion, and so orders, that this course may be pursued in regard to all the other classes of defendants, made such by the original bill; where they are numerous a few of each class, if their names and residences can be ascertained, being alone required to be made defendants by name as representatives of the whole class. It is further ordered that the court be considered as open at all times for the consideration of the matters and proceedings in this case in conformity with the act of the General Assembly convening it until the said case is fully and finally disposed of.

To the Hon. E. H. East, Chancellor, etc., holding the Chancery Court at Nashville:

THE AMENDED BILL OF THE STATE OF TENNESSEE,

vs.

THE E. & K. R. R. CO., THE MEMPHIS, C. & L. R. R. CO., et als.

Your orator would respectfully show your Honor that on the ——— day of ————, 1871, it filed its bill in this honorable court, under the provisions of the act of the 21st December, 1870, against the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and other delinquent railroads, their stockholders, creditors, etc., which is still pending in this court; that the said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company has appeared and filed a plea of bankruptcy, which it was afterwards permitted to withdraw, and file a plea of the non rejoinder of proper parties; that this latter plea has been set for hearing and argued on its sufficiency, and a decision has been rendered thereon by the court.

Your orator would further show that in the said original bill it was alleged that the said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company was hopelessly insolvent, and had instituted proceedings in the United District Court at Nashville to be declared a bankrupt. Your orator would further show that at the time of filing said bill, the papers in said bankrupt proceedings were not on file, having been taken out of the Clerk's office by some person, and could not be referred to with greater particularity. These papers have since been returned to the court, and your orator finds, and so avers, that the application is in due form by written petition, signed and sworn to by the Hon. G. A. Henry, President of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, on the 30th May, 1868. That this petition avers that a meeting of the stockholders of said company was duly and regularly called by the Board of Directors to consider the expediency of filing the said petition to obtain the benefit of the act of Congress establishing a uniform system of bankruptcy throughout the United States; that such meeting was accordingly held, when the said stockholders, by a unanimous vote of all present, instructed their said president to file said petition, and that said petition is therefore filed. The petition further states that the schedules annexed thereto, marked A, and verified by the oath of its president, contains a full and true statement of all its debts; that the schedules annexed, marked B, and verified by the oath of its president, contains an accurate inventory of all its estate, both real and personal, its franchises, and rights, etc. This petition is accompanied by the schedules referred to, and also by certified copies of the meeting of the directory and stockholders of the said company; and the proceedings had at these meetings in relation to the said application in bankruptcy, schedule A commencing with the statement of the indebtedness of the said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company to the United States, as follows: The petitioner owes debts to the United States Government of about $336,620, as mentioned in Schedule A, No. 2, but it is not prior to the debt due to the State of Tennessee, and is secured as set forth therein. Schedule A, No. 2, begins with a statement of the bonds of the State of Tennessee, issued to the said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, which corresponds exactly in amount with the statement of such bonds in the original bill. Then follows the following clause: "This debt is a lien on the property of the said company, including the stock, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, the whole superstructure and equipments, all depots and depot stations, and for the payment of said bonds and the interest accruing thereon, created by statutes passed by the General Assembly authorizing the issuance. This debt is therefore secured in toto, to wit: $1,582,000 and interest." Then follows a statement of the debt to the United States, thus: "United States Government bonds given for the purchase of machinery, cars, etc., $336,620.13. This is a debt contracted by Geo. T. Lewis, Receiver for the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, for the purchase of railroad machinery, cars and other material purchased for the use of said road from the United States military railroad department at Nashville, of the United States. This debt has been assumed by the State of Tennessee, and a bond executed for the stock, machinery, etc., purchased as aforesaid by the Governor, as directed by an act passed by the General Assembly of the State, entitled an act to incorporate the Tennessee and Pacific Railroad Company, and for other purposes, passed May 24, 1866. This debt the State of Tennessee claims to be a lien on the railroad company as described above, and is secured to amount of debt." This schedule then mentions the second mortgage bond debt of the company, giving the whole amount thus provided for at $350,000, but stating the specific holders thus:

Jno. P. Ilsby, Wilkesbarre, Penn.	$251,000
Rice, Davis & Co., Memphis, Tenn.	30,000
James Guthrie, Louisville, Ky.	34,000
Persons unknown.	35,000

and adds: "These bonds are secured by a mortgage of the road bed, depots, stations, fixtures, and all other property of said company, subject, however, to the lien of the State of Tennesse for bonds issued to said company, and as the State of Tennessee assents to the lien of the debt of $336,620 due to the United States Government, this question has never been settled, and petitioners are unable to state who has the priority of payment. Said schedule further states that the right of Jno. P. Ilsby, of $110,000 of the bonds claimed by him is contested. And your orator avers that a large part of these bonds were wrongfully and illegally issued, and are not binding on the company, and that all of them were issued and taken with full knowledge of and subject to your orator's statutory and prior lien.

Said schedule closes with the following statement of claim, "Bristol, Skidmore & Co., Albany, New York, $20,000. This is a lien on the Tennessee river bridge, as they assert, but, in fact, it is unsecured."

And your orator avers that this claim is no lien on said bridge, nor any other part of the road or property of the company. Schedule A 3 to the petition contains a list of unsecured claims, amounting in the aggregate to about $350,000. Schedule B 1, to said petition, gives a detailed statement of the real estate and fixtures belonging to said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and schedule B 2, a similar statement of personalty. By these schedules the roadbed of eighty-three miles is valued at $2,540,000;

the other realty, depots, sidetracks, &c., at $44,000; the other personalty, rolling stock, etc., at $274,160.

Your orator would further show that such proceedings were had upon said petition that the said Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company was, by the register in bankruptcy, declared a bankrupt, but no assignee of its property and effects has yet been selected or appointed, nor any assignment of such property and effects actually made.

Your orator herewith files a copy of said proceedings as far as they seem material to the questions involved in this case, marked Exhibit 1, but which need not be copied.

Your orator, in order to meet the views of the court on the plea in abatement for want of proper parties heretofore referred to, but without waiving any of its rights under the original bill, and the publication already made, would further state that it did, before the filing of its said original bill, make, by its solicitor, diligent inquiry to ascertain the names and residences of the individuals constituting the different classes of parties authorized to be made defendants by the act of the Legislature, and undertakes to be made defendants to said original bill by general designation, and was at that time only able to ascertain the names and residences of these of the several classes whose names are specifically given in said bill.

Your orator has since learned, from the schedules to the petition in bankruptcy, now filed as exhibits, that the so-called second mortgage bonds of the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Company were then held, or supposed to be held, as hereinbefore recited; but whether these parties are still the holders of said bonds your orator has not, upon diligent inquiry, been able to ascertain with certainty. It learns that some of these bonds have recently, and it believes are now held by G. A. Washington, of Robertson county, and Thomas F. Pettus, of Montgomery county. The mortgage which was made to secure these bonds was made to D. N. Kennedy, of Montgomery county. Your orator finds, also, from the same schedules, that Bristol, Skidmore & Co., who have already come in and made themselves defendants to this suit, are general creditors of said company, and claim a lien for the security of their debt in the Tennessee river bridge; that there were a large number of other general creditors, whose names and residences are mentioned in schedule A, No. 3, then having claims against said company, of the character and description specified in the schedule, but whether they are now creditors or holders of claims your orator has not been able to learn with certainty. One of these claims is said, in the schedule, to be held by the Planters' Bank of Nashville, but upon inquiry your orator is informed by the officers of this bank that the said debt has been paid. Your orator also finds that a bill is on file in this court against the commissioners of the State appointed to sell delinquent roads, and others by a number of persons claiming to be creditors of said road, seeking payment of their claims out of the proceeds of the sale of said road. Your orator asks that your Honor would designate a certain number of these numerous creditors or claimants to be made defendants as representatives of the class of creditors upon whom process may be served, and for whom publication may be made, the creditors themselves being too numerous to be all made defendants by name. Your orator is informed that A. L. Maxwell is one of these creditors, now of Macon, Georgia, who will appear and answer without the necessity of process or publication, the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and G. T. Lewis, of Davidson county, are also such creditors. Your orator will mention others of these creditors, and also such creditors in that part of his bill in which process is prayed. Your orator, after diligent inquiry, has not found any of the holders of the State bonds issued to any of the delinquent railroads, except Dempsey Weaver, of Davidson county, Tennessee, who is the holder of one of the bonds issued to the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, one of the bonds issued to the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and one issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company.

Your orator has learned, since filing his original bill, that the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad Company, about the 1st January, 1856, issued its own coupon bonds for about $34,000, ten of which, for $1,000 each, are now held by the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, which company has already made itself a party defendant to this suit. Your orator has not, upon diligent inquiry, been able to ascertain who are the holders of the residue of these bonds.

Your orator has also learned that the President of the Southwestern Railroad Company still holds some of the State bonds issued to that company, some of which are now in the custody of the Fourth National Bank of Nashville, and that one Asa Faulkner, of Warren county, Tennessee, holds several more of these bonds as collateral security for a debt due to him from said company. The number of the bonds at the Fourth National Bank is stated in a report of the president of the railroad company, made last year, to be seventy-three, and the number held by Asa Faulkner to be twenty, to secure a debt of $2,567.31. Your orator is advised that it is entitled, under the circumstances, to these bonds for its indemnity.

Your orator charges that other of the delinquent railroads may also, in like manner, hold some of the State bonds issued to them respectively, and it calls for a discovery.

Your orator, after diligent inquiry, has not been able to ascertain the names and residences of any of the several classes of parties made defendants as aforesaid, except those mentioned in the original and in this bill.

The premises considered, your orator prays your Honor that it be allowed to file this as an amended and supplemental bill to its original bill; that the defendants named and made parties to the original bill be made parties to this, and required to answer its allegation within a fixed period, and especially that the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville railroad Company, the Southwestern Railroad Company, the McMinnville and Manchester Railroad Company, the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and Bristol, Skidmore & Co., all of whom are now defendants to this suit, be required thus to answer the allegations herein made within a time to be prescribed by the court. Your orator further prays that the Fourth National Bank and Dempsey Weaver, of Davidson county, Asa Faulkner, of Warren county, G. A. Washington, of Robertson county, D. N. Kennedy and Thos. F. Pettus, of Montgomery county, G. G. Dibrill, of White county, and G. T. Lewis, of Davidson county, be made defendants by process of subpœna and copy bill, and A. L. Maxwell, non-resident of this State, and all the individuals embraced in the several classes, who are made defendants to the original bill by general designation, and whose names and residences are unknown and cannot be ascertained after diligent inquiry, as aforesaid, be made defendants by publication for the time and in the mode prescribed by law, and be required to appear and defend by a given day, to be designated by order of this court, Your orator also prays for the State's gracious writ. of attachment and injunction, one or both to issues attaching the State bonds issued to any of the delinquent railroads, and still owned by such road, or in which such road may have an interest, and enjoining the said defendants, and especially the Southwestern Railroad Company, the Fourth National Bank, Nashville, and Asa Faulkner, from disposing of any of said bonds without the permission of the court.

Your orator also prays that the defendant railroads, and their presidents, under oath, and especially the Southwestern Railroad Company, and G. G. Dibrell, President of said company, answer and say whether either of said companies owns any interest in said State bonds, or any of said bonds, and what interest, and to what amount, and where and in whose possession such bonds are. And upon final hearing your orator prays for all the relief sought in the original bill, and such other relief as it might be entitled to.

ANSWER OF D. WEAVER.

The separate answer of Dempsey Weaver to the bill and amended bill of the State of Tennessee, filed in the Chancery Court at Nashville against the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company, himself and others.

This respondent, for answer to so much of said bill and amended bill of the State as he is advised it is material for him to answer, says: It is true, as alleged, that he is the holder and owner of one of the bonds of the State originally issued to the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and also one of the bonds of the State originally issued by the State to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, as the numbers and letters show upon comparison with the published statements of the Comptroller of the State of the bonds issued to these companies, and this respondent submits to the Honorable Court the whole question of his rights and lien, if any, in said roads. And now having fully answered, he prays to be hence dismissed.

DEMURRER OF LEWIS B. PARSONS.

vs.

THE E. & KY. R. R. CO.

In Chancery at Nashville.

The defendant, Lewis B. Parsons, a bondholder of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, by protestation, not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters and things in said bill alleged as to the mortgage therein mentioned, and the bonds therein alluded to as issued by said company to be true in the manner and form therein stated, alleged, and set forth, doth, as a bondholder, demur unto so much and such parts of said bill as relate to the said mortgage executed by said company, and the said bonds issued by said company, and for cause of demurrer showeth the following:

1st. Because the act of 21st December, 1870, is not the general law of the land, but a partial law in this, that the same confers special jurisdiction upon a designated tribunal of a particular cause of one party, to-wit, the State of Tennessee for particular causes of action against other designated parties, and prescribes the mode of procedure in the prosecution of such suit unknown to the previous and then existing general mode of procedure in courts of chancery in the State of Tennessee, and is as such partial law unconstitutional and void.

2d. Because the said act of the General Assembly is unconstitutional and void in this, that the same impairs and destroys the obligation of the contract between the State of Tennessee, the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and this defendant as a bondholder of said company created by the act of the General Assembly, mentioned in said bill, authorizing such company to issue bonds and give a mortgage to secure the same by the giving of such mortgage and by the issuance of such bonds to this defendant.

3d. Because said act is unconstitutional and void in this, that it attempts to deprive the defendant, as a bondholder of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, of his property and rights without due process of law in this, that the same substantially institutes a special tribunal for the trial of a particular case, and directs when and how such a special case in that special tribunal shall be brought and prosecuted and prescribed within what time the same shall be decided.

4th. Because the said act is unconstitutional and void in this, that the same creates new rights and remedies as well against this defendant as a bondholder of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and as such entitled to the benefit of the mortgage given by said company, as against the said company as mortgagor, and thus violates the Constitution of both the United States and the State of Tennessee by violating the contract between the State of Tennessee, the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and this defendant as a bondholder.

5th. Because the allegations of the bill disclose the fact that the bonds issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company are not yet due, and no right can exist in the State of Tennessee to ask for a sale of the road, etc., for the enforcement of the lien retained for the indemnity of the State until the maturity of the bonds.

6th. Because the State of Tennessee as mortgagor under the special statutory mortgage created under the denomination of a lien has, if any right, the right only to sell such lien or special mortgage, and no right to sell franchises, property rights, etc., of the company which are subject to the rights of the holders of the bonds issued by the State.

7th. Because the right to the benefit of the special mortgage or lien is the right of the holders of the bonds issued to the company, and not of the State of Tennessee, which has no right to enforce such lien of the bondholders against this defendant as a bondholder under the deed of mortgage given by the company.

Wherefore, and for divers other good causes of demurrer appearing in so much and such parts of said bill as aforesaid, this defendant as a bondholder doth demur thereunto, and humbly prays the judgment of this honorable court as to whether he shall be compelled to make any other or further answer to the same.

DEMURRER OF A. H. HICKS.

vs.
EDGEFIELD AND KENTUCKY
RAILROAD COMPANY, et als.

In Chancery at Nashville.

This defendant, A. H. Hicks, as a bondholder of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, by protestation, not confessing or acknowledging all or any of the matters and things in said bill alleged as to the mortgage therein mentioned and the bonds therein alluded to as issued by said company, to be true in the manner and form therein stated, alleged and set forth, doth, as a bondholder, demur unto so much and such parts of said bill as relate to the said mortgage executed by said company and the said bonds issued by the said company, and for causes of demurrer showeth the following:

1st. Because said bill is multifarious in this, that it improperly joins distinct and independent causes of action against various defendants having no connections whatever with this defendant nor with each other.

2d. Because the allegations of said bill show that the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company was authorized and empowered by an act of the General Assembly to make and deliver the mortgage deed mentioned in the bill, and to issue the bonds therein mentioned, and thereby secure them, and that said company did, pursuant to such act, execute and deliver the mortgage deed and issue the bonds, and the act of December 21st, 1870, is a violation of the contract created by such act of the General Assembly mortgage bonds so enacted by a previous act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, and of the contract evidenced by the bonds issued and held by this defendant, and of his rights under the previous acts of the General Assembly and the said mortgage.

3d. Because that the act of the 21st of December, 1870, is a violation of the Constitution in this, that the same is a partial and not a general law assuming to deprive this defendant, as a bondholder, of his property and of his right under said mortgage, to have the same enforced through the ordinary tribunals of justice in the State through and by the action of a tribunal which had no previous jurisdiction of this particular subject matter, nor of the person of this defendant, as a resident of the State of Tennessee, in the modes and under the forms prescribed by said act.

4th. Because that the said act is unconstitutional in this, that it authorizes and directs the instituting and bringing a particular suit in a designated tribunal by a particular individual, to wit: the State of Tennessee, for particular objects against many and divers persons, legal and actual, in which tribunal, and against which persons, and for which objects the prescribed suit could not be brought in such tribunal independent of such special act of the General Assembly, and authorizes and directs this particular suit to be prosecuted in modes and under rules unknown to the general course of the Courts of Chancery in this State.

5th. Because the act of December 21st, 1870, is an attempt to deprive this defendant, as a bondholder of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, of his property and rights without due process of law in this, that the same institutes a special tribunal and directs when and how a special case in that special tribunal shall be brought and prosecuted, and prescribes in what time the same shall be decided, and is an infraction of the Constitution of the United States, as well as of the State of Tennessee.

6th. Because said act is unconstitutional in this, that the same creates new rights and remedies as well against this defendant as a bondholder of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and as such entitled to the benefit of the mortgage given by said company as against the said company, as mortgagor, and that violates the Constitution as well of the United States as the State of Tennessee by violating the contract between the State of Tennessee and the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and this defendant, as a bondholder, evidenced by the act of the Legislature authorizing the making of such mortgage and the issuance of such bonds, and by the bonds issued to this defendant.

7th. Because this defendant acquired, by the issuance of the bonds to him, a vested right under the mortgage given by the company to secure the same, and this act of December 21st, 1870, undertakes to divest him of this vested right in a mode previously unknown to the general laws of the State of Tennessee, for which reason the same is a violation of the Constitution.

8th. Because that this act of the 21st of December, 1870, is unconstitutional and void in this, that the same directs the court what kind of a decree to render in the cause, the time in which it shall render such decree, and the form of such decree, and thus assumes and exercises judicial functions in these and in other respects.

9th. Because the allegations of the bill disclose the fact that the bonds issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company are not yet due, and no right exists in the State to ask for a sale of the road for the enforcement of the lien retained for the indemnity of the State until the maturity of the bonds.

10th. Because the State of Tennessee, as mortgagee, under the special statutory mortgage created under the denomination of a lien, has, if any, the right only to sell such lien or special mortgage, and no right to sell the franchises, property, rights, etc., of the company which are subject to the rights of the holders of the bonds issued by the State.

11th. Because the right to the benefit of the special mortgage or lien is the right of the holder of the bonds issued to the company and not of the State of Tennessee, which has no right to enforce such lien of the bondholders against this defendant, as a bondholder, under the deed of mortgage given by the company.

Wherefore, and for divers other good causes of demurrer, appearing in so much and such parts of said bill, as aforesaid, this defendant, as a bondholder, doth demur thereunto, and humbly prays the judgment of this honorable court as to whether he shall be compelled to make any other or further answer to the same.

EDGEFIELD AND KENTUCKY
RAILROAD COMPANY et als.

This cause was further heard this 5th day of July, 1871, before the Hon. E. H. State of Tennessee
vs.
The Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad Company et als.

This cause was further heard on the 6th day of July, 1871, before the Hon. E. H. East, Chancellor, upon the pleading, previous proceedings and proof, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court that decrees have heretofore been entered in the cases of all the railroad companies made defendants, except the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company and the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, ascertaining and declaring the amount of the State debt against each of the said several companies for State bonds issued to said roads under the Internal Improvement act of 1851-2, and subsequent acts amendatory thereof, and that said companies are each and all wholly unable to pay the said several debts to the State, or to keep down the interest semi-annually accruing thereon, or to pay any sinking fund to meet the principal of said debt at the maturity of State bonds issued to them as aforesaid; that said several companies are in fact insolvent and unable to comply with the provisions of the said Internal Improvement Laws, designed to secure the payment of said debt, principal and interest, and have no prospect of ever being able to comply with said provisions; and it further appearing that the roads whose debts have thus been ascertained, the East Tennessee and Western North Carolina Railroad Company has declined contest with the State in regard to the sale of the State's interest in its road, and a decree has been rendered accordingly for a sale of such interest by the commissioners at once, that all the residue of said companies except the Southwestern Railroad Company had consented to a sale of their said several roads, with all their rights, privileges and franchises, and decrees have been entered accordingly, preference for a limited time being by such decrees conceded to the said companies respectively, and then to their stockholders, or such of them as chose to join in the purchase to become the purchasers of their several roads at the minimum price fixed by the court in accordance with the act of the 21st December, 1870, ch. 23; and that a decree has been made for a sale of the Southwestern Railroad, it further appearing that it is made the duty of this court by the said act to adjudicate and determine all questions of law and matters of controversy of whatever nature, whether of law or fact, that have arisen or may arise, touching the rights and interests of the State, and also of the stockholders, bondholders, creditors and others in said road, likewise to define, as may be thought proper, what shall be the rights, duties, liabilities of a purchaser of the State's interest in said roads or either of them, and what shall be the reserved rights of said companies, stockholders and others respectively, as against said purchasers after such sale under the existing laws of the State; and it further appearing to the satisfaction of the court that the holders of the State bonds issued by the State to the said several companies are properly made defendants to this suit, and are sufficiently represented by the holders of such bonds as are made defendants by name or have come in and answered. It further appearing that the holders of bonds issued by said several companies and secured by mortgage of the road or its income, or without any security by mortgage, lien or otherwise, are also properly made defendants and represented, that the general creditors of said companies, the stockholders and all other persons interested in said several roads or companies, are also made defendants and represented, including the creditors whose claims were created by or while the roads were being held and managed under receivers appointed under the act of 1851–2, and acts amendatory thereof, and the court being of opinion that the statutory lien or mortgage secured by the said Internal Improvement Law under which State bonds were issued to the said several companies was intended to inure and does inure only to the benefit of the State, and that the holders of said bonds have no right now, and will have none at the maturity of said bonds by way of subrogation or otherwise, under and by virtue of the said several acts, and a lien or mortgage reserved and secured by them to go upon the said several companies, or their roads or property, for the payment of either the principal or interest of their said several estate bonds, but must look exclusively to the State for payment. The court is further of the opinion that neither the State of Tennessee nor any one claiming by, through or under it will have any right to enforce the collection of the principal or interest of the State bonds so issued as aforesaid against any purchasers who may purchase any of said roads, its franchises, etc., under the decree in this cause, either directly or through the commissioners, if such purchaser fully complies with the terms of sale as fixed by the decrees and acts of Assembly or agreed upon with the commissioners.

The court is further of opinion that the lien of the State to the full extent of the debt of the said several companies for the State bonds issued to them severally as aforesaid, and the unpaid interest thereon as ascertained by the decrees in this cause, is prior imperio to the claims of all other creditors of said several companies, of every nature and kind whatever, and whether secured by mortgage, pledge, judgment or otherwise, or without any security. The court is further of opinion that the State debt, as ascertained as aforesaid, largely exceeds in every instance the full value of the several roads upon which it is a lien, its rolling stock and other property, rights, privileges and franchises, and that the State may therefor by agreement with the said several companies sell said roads, property and franchises, in satisfaction of their said debts at any price which may be agreed upon, less the amount of said debt, and vest the purchaser other than the companies themselves with a full, perfect and complete title, free from the claims of stockholders, holders of State bonds, creditors of every kind, and of all and every person or persons claiming interest in said company or not. The court is further of opinion that the said several companies and their stockholders who have consented to the decrees of sale as aforesaid, were competent to consent to said decree. That upon a sale being made under said decrees, either to the parties having the refusal for a given time as aforesaid other than the companies themselves or to other parties, the said companies and their stockholders will cease to have any further right, legal or equitable, in and to the property, rights and franchises so sold, and the said purchaser other than the company will take the road, property and franchises, free from all claims whatever, except those of the State reserved by contract of sale and the act under the provisions of which the sale is made.

The court is further of opinion that upon a sale of any of the franchises of either of said railroad companies by the commissioners under the decrees in this cause and of the provisions of said act of the 21st of December, 1870, all the rights, privileges and immunities appertaining to the franchises so sold under its act of incorporation and the amendment thereto, and the general improvement laws of the State and the acts amendatory thereof, shall be transferred and vest in such purchaser, and the purchaser shall hold said franchise subject to all liens and liabilities in favor of the State as now provided by law against the railroad as far as may be necessary to secure the purchase money as aforesaid, and the other rights of the State under the decree in this cause and the said acts of the Legislature.

It is therefore ordered, adjudged and decreed accordingly, and that the rights of the parties and purchasers be adjudged and settled in accordance with the opinion as hereinbefore expressed. Other matters are reserved. It is further ordered that the costs of this cause be paid out of the proceeds of the sale of the said several roads.

The foregoing is a true copy of the decree entered on page 369 of minute book T of my office.

DECREE MARCH TERM, 1871, JULY 7.

E. & Ky. R. R. Co. et als.

Be it remembered that this cause coming on to be further heard this 7th day of July, 1871, before Hon. E. H. East, Chancellor, when upon motion of solicitors for the State, and it appearing to the satisfaction of the court that publication had been made in the Nashville Union and American and the Republican Banner, two newspapers published in the city of Nashville, and continued for thirty consecutive days before the 15th day of May, 1871, being the seventh Monday of the term, which day was made a rule day of court for the return of all process by order of the Court of Record, and by publication of said order in both of said newspapers for thirty days successively before said 15th day of May, 1871, for the unknown stockholders and holders of the bonds of the State issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company and the Memphis, Clarksville and Louisville Railroad Company, and also for the unknown holders of bonds issued by said companies, and the creditors of said companies, and all other persons interested in said railroads, requiring them, the said unknown parties, to enter their appearance or make defense to the bill and amended bill in this cause on or before the 15th day of May, 1871. And it appearing to the court that all of said unknown defendants before referred to have failed to enter their appearance or make defense to said bill and amended bill, it is therefore ordered and decreed that said bill and amended bill be taken for confessed as to them and set for hearing as to them ex parte.

vs.
E. & KY. R. R. CO. et als.

Be it remembered that this cause coming on to be further heard this 7th day of July, 1871, before his Honor Edward H. East, Chancellor, etc., in regard to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and it appearing to the court that said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company have failed within the time given in the decree overruling the demurrer of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company to file an answer to the bill and amended bill of the complainant, but have herein made default, it is therefore ordered by the court that the bill and amended bill of the complainant be taken as confessed as to the said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and set for hearing ex parte as to said company.

ANSWER OF LEWIS B. PARSONS AND A. H. HICKS.

The Answer of Lewis B. Parsons and A. H. Hicks unto the Bill of Complaint of the State of Tennessee
vs.
The E. & Ky. R. R. Co. et als.

Exhibited in the Chancery Court at Nashville.

These defendants, saving and reserving to themselves all the advantages of exceptions to said bill, and particularly the advantage of all grounds of demurrer thereto, for answer unto said bill, unto so much and such parts thereof as he is advised is in any wise necessary or material for them to make answer unto, answer and say that they know, of their own knowledge, nothing of the alleged State aid furnished from time to time by the State of Tennessee to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and the circumstances under which the same is alleged to have been furnished, and no information specifically in regard to these things beyond the allegation in complainant's bill, and if the allegations of said bill, or any of them in respect to these things, or any of them, can in any wise effect the rights or interests of these respondents, they require of the complainant strict legal proof of all such allegations as to so much and such part of the allegations of said bill as relate to a mortgage given by the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and the issuance of bonds secured by such mortgage, these respondents say they are the holders and owners of some ——— thousand dollars of bonds issued by said company and secured by the mortgage mentioned in the bill, and became such in good faith under the conviction that the State of Tennessee had authorized their issuance and their being secured by the mortgage.

The act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, incorporating the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, authorized and empowered the company to issue a million of bonds, and to give a mortgage to secure the same, when these respondents were asked to become the purchasers and owners of the bonds now held by them, they were made acquainted with this provision of the company's charter, and with the fact that the bonds had been issued under and in accordance therewith, and were amply secured by such mortgage so given by the authority of the State.

Respondents insist upon their rights, as bondholders, against the State of Tennessee, which so enabled the company to obtain the money of the respondents and to invest such money in the construction of its road.

These respondents are not precisely informed of the exact amount of bonds issued by the State of Tennessee to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company previous to the execution and delivery of this mortgage, and the issuance of bonds held by defendants; but they are informed and believe that the amount so previously issued did not exceed some fourteen hundred thousand dollars—if, indeed, it amounted to so much—and they deny any right of the State of Tennessee to defeat their lien under said mortgage by the subsequent issuance of bonds. The said mortgage operated as they are advised, and insist to secure their rights, as bondholders, from the time of the execution and delivery of the same and the issuance of said bonds, and from that time the State could, as against them, create no further lien by issuing other bonds to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company.

Respondent Parsons is a non-resident of the State of Tennessee; knew nothing of the alleged issuance of other bonds to said railroad company from time to time; had no reliable information thereof, and never, in any way, sanctioned, approved or acquiesced in the issuance of such other bonds.

Each and every allegation of the bill, that the bondholders did so, is, as far as this respondent is concerned, certainly untrue, and he has no knowledge, information or belief of the truth of such allegations as to any of the then mortgage bondholders.

When respondents' attention was, long after they became bondholders, called to the fact of the alleged amount of additional State aid claimed to have been furnished to this company, they must confess that they were greatly surprised to hear it was suggested that the State of Tennessee had issued bonds with almost the same profusion as the autumn winds scatter leaves, and the more especially in view of the fact that there existed already, as the State must been known, a mortgage upon the road, given by the company with the sanction of the State.

Surely the State cannot be permitted to set up and claim, as against the bondholders under this mortgage, these alleged subsequent advances of State aid to the road, and the more particularly in face of the fact that these large alleged subsequent advances do not appear to have much more effect, if any, upon the value of the roads as a property than if they had never been made.

Respondents repeat their denial of any rights, under all the circumstances, of the State of Tennessee to set up and enforce a lien as against them, as a mortgage bondholder, for these alleged subsequent advances.

And if there is in said bill any other statement, allegation or charge which touches, concerns or affects the mortgage mentioned in the bill, and which is not hereinbefore, either specifically admitted or directly denied, such other statements, allegations or charge is untrue, and strict legal proof requires of every allegation of the bill, except such allegations as have been hereinbefore directly admitted, and this defendant having fully answered, pray, etc.

ANSWER OF THE COUNTY OF DAVIDSON.

The Separate Answer of the County of Davidson to the Bill Filed in the Chancery Court at Nashville by the State of Tennessee
vs.
E. & Ky. R. R. Co. et als.

Respondent, not waiving the benefit of the demurrer heretofore filed by it in this case, and overruled by the court, answering, says:

It admits the passage of the act of the General Assembly of the 11th of February, 1852, ch. 151, and subsequent acts amendatory thereof, and without denying the purpose of them, as given in the bill, prefer that they be allowed to speak for themselves, and that the proper construction should be determined by the court.

It admits, by the 10th section of the original act, the benefit of its provisions was extended to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, in which respondent is a stockholder, to the amount of $300,000.

It admits that by subsequent acts the extent of State aid was increased, and the time of paying the sinking fund and the per cent. of such fund were charged for the benefit, as was supposed, of the stockholders, but respondent denies that it, as a stockholder, assented to any increase of the State aid or State lien or mortgage after the —— day of ———, 185–, when it became such stockholder in the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company. It admits that there was probably some interest in arrears on the bonds properly issued to said company, and that by act 23d November, 1865, ch. 9, all such interest as had accrued or might accrue up to January 1, 1868, was funded, and by subsequent act all the interest that might accrue up to January 1, 1870, was also funded, and respondent is unable to see how the company can be said to be delinquent when its interest was funded up to a point long subsequent to the time when the State took possession of the road and placed the road and all its property in the hands of a receiver appointed by the State.

But, as before stated, respondent denies that it ever accepted any of said acts extending State aid, passed subsequent to its subscription, and it denies that the railroad company accepted them.

The road was in possession of the State, the company had no means of paying the interest or sinking fund, and respondent denies that under a proper construction of the law the company or its stockholders were liable for interest or sinking fund while the road was in the hands of the State.

Respondent denies that said company acquiesced in said act of 1865, or that it received or accepted its benefits; it denies the State aid proposed by the act of January 18, 1866, ch. 14, was secured by said company upon the terms and conditions stated in the bill, or on any other terms or conditions, and therefore it denies that it was received by said company with the full knowledge or assent of respondent, or of any of the other stockholders of said company, or that there was any such construction, knowledge or tacit assent as would in law amount to the same thing.

Respondent admits the 34th section of the charter of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company is correctly quoted in the bill, but no such claim is found in the charter of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and it denies that said company, at a stockholders' meeting or otherwise, ever made any valid acceptance of the act of December 7, 1867, ch. 17, or of the State aid granted by said act.

Respondent denies that said company is in default, beyond the interest due on the bonds when the road was placed in the hands of the receiver, and it is not responsible for any interest that has accrued since that time.

It denies that said company owes the State $4,541,129.41, or anything like that sum. It denies that said company is unable to pay its legitimate debt to the State if it were allowed by the State to get and hold control of its property, but the State has been wearing out the road and its property in the hands of its receivers, and all the while trying to increase the indebtedness by allowing its receiver to squander the earnings of the road and misappropriate the bonds which the State pretended to issue to the road.

The company is not insolvent, as its property would pay all its present debts if it could once get and retain the control of it.

Respondent admits the passage of the act of July 5, 1870, the attempt to sell under it, the ridiculous failure of the attempt to sell the railroads under that act. The passage of the act of December 21, 1870, to amend the former act directing a bill to be filed in this court in the name of the State against delinquent companies.

Respondent does not know how many bonds were issued to said company before the war, and, properly, under the act of February 11, 1852, the bill states them at $1,455,000, but respondent, without denying, cannot admit the fact, as it does not know it to be so. The bonds charged to have been issued since the war, and the interest and sinking fund accruing on such bonds are invalid as against the stockholders of said company, and respondent insists that said road cannot be sold to pay any such bonds. It is true, this is an important road in length and connections, and with anything like fair play on the part of the State, could pay out all its indebtedness.

Respondent denies that the company has forfeited any of its rights under the internal improvement law, or that the State has any right to apply for a sale of its property or effects until the bonds mature, or even to sell the interest of the State under the lien of the mortage.

And, having fully answered, respondent insists that if an account is ordered, the State shall be charged with $1,000,000, it being about a reasonable amount for the use and occupation of the road and its property as a credit on the interest and sinking fund against the company that no interest shall be charged against this company during the war, while the entire governmental department of the State, and its officers were in the Confederate army or its lines, and there was no officer of the State to whom the interest could have been lawfully paid. That the company be allowed a credit of $1,000,000 for all such injury as can be shown to have proximately resulted to the company and its property by the seizure and destruction of its property by the United States on account of the State of Tennessee adhering to the organization known as the Confederate States during the late rebellion, and also for $500,000 for the use of its property by the State during the early part of the war, and, if necessary, it asks that it be allowed to make all proper defenses to protect the rights and interests of the stockholders without being bound in any way by the defense, which the officers of said company may see proper to make or not to make, and particularly does.

Respondent claims the right to rely on the defense that the act 21st of December, 1870, under which the bill in this case was filed, so far as it attempts to authorize this court either to sell the property and effects of the company or of the interest of the State under its lien or mortgage, impairs the obligation of the contract created by the act of 11th of February, 1852, between the State and said railroad company, and between the State and the respondent and the other stockholders of said company, and, therefore, is in violation of art 1, sec. 10, of the Constitution of the United States, providing that no State shall pass any law impairing the obligation of contracts.

And respondents pray to be hence dismissed with its reasonable costs.

DEPOSITION OF WILBUR FOSTER, ENGINEER, etc., IN REGARD TO NASHVILLE AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILROAD.

Question. Will you please examine the statements contained in the depositions and exhibits to the special report made to the Legislature in regard to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and from the condition and assets of the road as therein set forth, and also from your own knowledge of the road and its connections, now and prospective, what in your opinion would be a fair and reasonable price for their road and its property in bonds of Tennessee ?

Answer. I have no means of knowing the value of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad except from the report of its officer. Exhibit A attached to the deposition of A. L. Landis, before the Legislative Committee, dated March 30, 1870, places the value of said roadway, superstructure, engines and rolling stock at $3,785,650. Major Landis was general agent of the road and was intimately acquainted with its affairs, and I presume his estimate to be correct. Estimating Tennessee State bonds at 70 cents, their present quotation, the value of the road and its property in bonds would be $5,408,071.-43. It is probable, however, that a large amount should be deducted for the cost of putting the road, rolling stock, etc., in proper condition. This amount could only be determined by a careful examination and estimate.

W. F. FOSTER.

DEPOSITION OF JAMES WHITWORTH BY SOLICITOR FOR STATE.

Question. Will you please examine the report of the special committee to Legislature in regard to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and from your own knowledge of its connections and country through which it runs and prospective connections with St. Louis, etc., and say what in your opinion is the value of this railroad and its property and franchises in the bonds of the State of Tennessee ?

Answer. I have examined with some care the report of the special committee and have a pretty fair conception, I think, of the country through which the road passes, and some idea of its prospective connections, and upon these facts I believe the road a valuable one ; that it will always be a road of great trade and travel, and will soon become a paying road to the stockholders, whoever they may be, at a fair price. I am of opinion that no road like this can be built for less than $20,000 to $25,000 per mile, taking into consideration all that it takes to constitute a complete railroad, and that few can be built so cheap as that. I am of opinion this road is worth, and ought to bring in the hands of the State of Tennessee upon the terms proposed, at least three millions of dollars.

This cause was further heard on this 18th day of July, 1871, before the Honorable E. H. East, Chancellor, upon the bill and amended bill and the demurrer of the county of Davidson as a stockholder of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company thereto, and argument of counsel on both sides, upon consideration whereof the Court is of opinion that the demurrer is not well taken, and doth overrule the same and order the said defendant to answer instanter, to which rulings the said defendant, by its counsel, excepts. And the said county then filed its answer, the State by its counsel agreeing to waive the authentication thereof, by the county seal or oath of the County Judge, and to allow it to have the same force and effect as if formerly authenticated. The State by its counsel then moved to strike out from the said answer as irrelevant and not pertinent to the answer of said defendant as a stockholder of said company so much of the said answer as undertakes to make defense for the company itself; that is to say, so much of the last paragraph on page two as seeks to answer for the company, the first paragraph of page 3, and so much of the second paragraph as undertakes to answer for the company, all of page 4 except the last paragraph, all of page 5 and pages 6 and 7, except so much of the last page as relies upon the violation of the obligation of the contract between the State and the defendant and others as stockholders of said company, which motion, upon argument, was sustained, to which action of the Court the said defendant excepted. And the complainant thereupon set the cause for hearing as to the said defendant upon the bill and answer as thus altered, to which the said defendant also excepted.

Said cause was further heard on the same day by the Chancellor upon the bills and demurrers of A. H. Hicks and Lewis B. Parsons, holders of the second mortgage bonds of the said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, upon consideration whereof the Court is of opinion that the demurrer is not well taken, and doth overrule the same, and require the said defendants to answer instanter, which is done, the complainant by its counsel waiving the affidavits of the defendants thereto upon the said defendants agreeing that the mortgage under which they claim be made an exhibit to the answers and filed as evidence, and that the cause be set for hearing as to them upon the evidence already on file and their answers considered as their depositions, all of which was agreed to.

And thereupon the said cause coming on to be heard on the same day before the said Chancellor upon the previous proceedings, the bill and amended bill, the answer of the county of Davidson, A. H. Hicks, Lewis B. Parsons, John A. Gardner, the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, Dempsey Weaver, as the holder of a State bond issued to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, petition of John Shea and others, taken as an answer, other answers filed, if any, of parties claiming an interest in said road, on the order taking the bills for confessed against the said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and against the respective stockholders of said company who had failed to answer the holders of the bonds issued by the State to said company, the holders of the mortgage bonds issued by said company, the creditors of said company, and against all other persons interested in said company and upon the exhibits and proof and the agreement of parties as above.

And it appearing to the satisfaction of the court that the State of Tennessee did issue to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company the said several bonds in manner and form and for the amounts specified and set forth in detail in the original and amended bills, and that said company is justly indebted to the State of Tennessee as of the first day of January, 1871, in the sum of four million five hundred and forty-one thousand one hundred and twenty-nine dollars and forty-one cents ($4,541,129.41), with the interest which has accrued thereon since that date. It further appearing that the State has a statutory lien or mortgage for the security of this debt prior and superior to all other liens whatsoever and whensoever and howsoever created, and especially to the lien of the second mortgage bondholders by whose mortgage the prior lien of the State for all bonds which might at any time be issued is recognized, and prior and superior to claims of creditors of every class and all claimants of every kind upon the entire road of said company, including the stock, right of way, grading, bridges, masonry, iron rails, spikes, chairs, and the whole superstructure and equipments and all the property owned by said company and necessary for its business, and all depots and depot stations, its franchises and property. It further appearing that said company has never complied with the provisions of the Internal Improvement Laws under which State aid was granted to it by paying the interest upon the bonds issued from time to time as the same fell due, or the sinking fund to meet the principal of the bonds at maturity, but is, and has been for many years, in default, and the arrears of debt are accumulating continually. It further appearing that the plan of appointing a receiver for said road under the provisions of the Internal Improvement acts has been tried, but the expenses have always exceeded the income, and the said road is now being run by the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company as lessee under the company at a heavy loss, the expenses largely exceeding the income. It further appearing that said company accepted the State aid under the act of the 7th December, 1867, and has failed for two consecutive years to pay the interest that has accrued upon the bonds loaned to it. It further appearing that said company is wholly insolvent, without any rolling stock except that purchased from the United States and not paid for, and without any resources for the future or any prospect of meeting past due arrears or even paying accruing interest. And the court being of opinion that the failure of said company to comply with any one of the conditions upon which the State aid was granted to it, and its utter inability to comply with these conditions in the future, have worked a forfeiture of its rights under the Internal Improvement Laws, and authorizes the State to demand a foreclosure of its lien or mortgage by sale of the road with all its property and franchises.

The court is further of opinion that the State is also entitled in the events which have happened to such sale under the act of the 7th of December, 1867. And the court is further of opinion that the State is also entitled at its election to have its debt ascertained and to sell its interest in said road. It is, therefore, ordered, adjudged, and decreed accordingly, and unless the said company shall pay its said debt as aforesaid with interest, within thirty days from this date, the commissioners appointed under the act of the Legislature of the 5th July, 1870, and who for the purpose of executing the decrees of this court by a sale of the delinquent roads in this case, or the State's interest therein, are also made commissioners of this court, any four of whom may act, may proceed to sell the said road, its property, and franchises as aforesaid in the State's interest therein as aforesaid upon such terms as to time and mode of payment as by the said acts of the Legislature of July 5, 1870, and December 21, 1870, they are empowered to do ; and for the purposes of such sale the court, from the proof on file, fixed $3,000,000 as the minimum value of said road, its property, and franchises in the bonds of the State of Tennessee and the coupons of such bonds. They will make report of their proceedings to this court for such further action as may be necessary to complete the same.

It is further ordered, adjudged, and decreed that the rights of the State, the purchasers, the stockholders, and all other parties, are hereby settled and declared in respect to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, as they have been heretofore adjudged and declared by the decree of this court in relation to the other delinquent companies, defendant, by decree of the 6th July, 1870, entered in minute book T, page 370.

It is further ordered that John Shea and others, who have made themselves parties defendant, and have claims against said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company created by the receivers, file their claims on or before the 12th inst., and the Clerk and Master will report the nature and amount thereof on that day. It is further ordered in the case of a sale that the commissioners retain, subject to the orders of the court, or pay into court, a sufficient amount of the bonds and coupons received to cover the demands of said claimants, should it be found by this court that they have a right to be paid out of the proceeds of sale, or to be subrogated to the rights of the State as against said road to the extent of their claims, and all questions of law and fact in reference to their claims are hereby expressly reserved for further hearing.

It is further ordered that the Clerk and Master take and state an account with the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company as lessee of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, in which he will charge said company with all such sums as come, or might by reasonable diligence have come, to their hands as lessees, and allow the company all proper credits under the lease, and make report to the next term, until the coming in of which report all questions between said company and the State are reserved.

And upon further hearing of this whole cause on the same day before the Chancellor upon the previous proceedings, pleadings, and proof. It is further ordered that the commissioners appointed by the Legislature be, and they are hereby appointed commissioners of this court, any four of whom may act to make sale of the several roads or the State's interest therein, is decreed with all the powers conferred upon them by the acts of July 5 and December 21, 1870. It is further ordered that the lien of the State continue on said roads until the price is fully paid. It is further ordered that the purchasers of the said roads or of the State's interest therein, be put in possession of the roads and the property bought upon the completion of the sale by the commissioner and the payment of one-fourth of the price, for which purpose writs of possession may issue if necessary. It is further ordered that all the costs of this cause be paid out of the proceeds of sales unless otherwise ordered.

From which decree the defendant, the county of Davidson, prayed and obtained an appeal to the next term of the Supreme Court, at Nashville, which is granted upon giving bond and security for costs which is done.

In making up the transcript, the clerk will copy only such papers and proceedings as relate to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and parties interested in the same.

To the Hon. A. O. P. Nicholson, one of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Tennessee:

Your petitioner, the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, a corporation chartered by the Legislature of Tennessee, would respectfully show that on the 20th January, 1871, the State of Tennessee filed her bill in the Chancery Court at Nashville, against the Edgefield and Kentucky Railroad, against your petitioners and several other railroad companies, and others who were stockholders, bondholders and creditors of said several companies, alleging that said companies were indebted to this State on account of unpaid interest and sinking fund due on the bonds issued by the State under the Internal Improvement Laws in aid of said several companies. The bill claimed that the State had a prior lien on said railroads, with all their property and franchises, and upon the stock of the stockholder, and claimed that the State has the right to sell the property, subject to said lien, to enforce the amount due the State as aforesaid.

Your petitioners appeared by counsel and filed a demurrer setting forth the various points of law relied on to resist the relief prayed for.

And on the 5th July, 1871, the Chancellor overruled said demurrer and ordered petitioner to file an answer by the 7th July, 1871, thus giving petitioner but two days in which to prepare an answer.

Petitioner's president resided at Huntington, in West Tennessee, and of course no answer was filed, and on the 7th July, 1871, and at the same term of the court said bill was taken for confessed as to petitioner, and set for hearing ex parte. The county of Davidson, whose counsel happened to be present in court, filed an answer as one of the largest stockholders in petitioner's company, and in said answer substantially denied the equity of the bill, demanded proof as to the amount of bonds issued by the State to petitioner, and claimed certain credits and offsets for the company as against the State, but all such portions of the answer of said company were stricken out by the court as not legitimate defense for a stockholder to make, and as a pro confesso had been taken against petitioner, both the company and the stockholders were thus deprived of the benefit of an answer in the cause, and disregarding all such defenses on the mere ground that they had been raised by a stockholder, the Chancellor at the same term and on the next day after the pro confesso was taken, proceeded to adjudge that petitioner was indebted to the State, as of the 1st January, 1871, in the sum of $4,541,129.41 with interest from that date, though there was not one word of proof that any bond had ever been issued by the State to petitioner, and though none of the bonds that had in fact been issued were then due, or would be for many years to come; said decree of July 8, also declares that the State has a prior statutory lien upon the entire road, and all its property, rights and franchises, including the stock of the stockholders, to secure the payment of said sum, and unless petitioner paid said sum in thirty days!! from the date of said decree, the commissioners appointed under the act of the Legislature of July 5, 1870, were made special commissioners of said court, and were ordered to sell "said road, its property and franchises," or the "State's interest therein," upon such terms as to time and mode of payment as by the act of July 5 and December 21, 1870, they are empowered to do, and upon said sale being made, the purchaser is to be put in possession of the road and its property, for which purpose writs of possession may issue, from which decree the said county of Davidson prayed and obtained an appeal to the next term of the Supreme Court at Nashville, but petitioner was forced to resort to a writ of error, and accordingly on August 6, 1871, filed a transcript of the record in the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court at Nashville for a writ of error.

Petitioner finds from an advertisement in the Nashville newspapers, a copy of which is filed as Exhibit A to this petition, that said commissioners the Hons. R. J. McKinney, A. Wright, F. B. Fogg, D. W. C. Senter, T. H. Butler and Ed. R. Pennebaker have offered to sell petitioner's road with all its franchises and equipments on the 30th September, 1871, at the Capitol in Nashville, at public auction, under said decree, and they will make said sale unless restrained by your Honor.

Petitioner accompanies the petition with a brief of counsel showing the principal grounds upon which they insist that the act of December 22, 1870, under which the decree was made is unconstitutional, both as against petitioner and petitioner's stockholders, and a transcript of so much of said cause as relates to petitioner is filed herewith. Petitioner insists that by virtue of this appeal taken by Davidson county, the whole case, at least so far as the sale of the road was concerned, was transferred to this court, and that said commissioners as officers of the Chancery Court have no right to proceed to execute said decree until it may be heard at the next term of the Supreme Court, and until the grave questions involved are settled by the Supreme Court no one will buy at a forced sale unless it be soms railroad ring who are willing to take the chances, and consequently the road will not bring anything like its full value.

The premises considered, petitioner prays that your Honor may grant writs of supercedeas staying the further execution of the decree ordering the sale of said road and its property and franchises, with special direction that it be served upon said commissioners and upon Hon. E. H. Ewing, W. F. Cooper and W. B. Reese, Esq., who are the counsel of record for the State of Tennessee in said cause.

As in duty bound your petitioner will ever pray, etc.

vs.
E. & K. R. R. Co. et als.

This cause came on further to be heard on the 21st of November 1872, before the Hon. E. H. East, Chancellor, etc., upon the previous proceedings and the report of the commissioner.

To the Hon. E. H. East, Chancellor, holding the Chancery Court of Nashville:

The undersigned commissioners, under act of the General Assembly of the State of Tennessee, and under the orders and decrees of your honorable court to dispose and make sale of delinquent railroads, would respectfully report that on or about the 10th of November, 1871, they made the sale of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, its property and franchises, or the State's interest in said road, at the option of the purchasers, to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, John M. Bass and his associates, upon the terms and conditions set out in the proposition and acceptance, and the minutes of the Board of Commissioners hereto appended, marked Ex. A, and made part of this report.

They would further report that on the 10th of November, 1871, at a meeting of the Board of Commissioners, at Nashville, the terms of said sale were further modified, as will be seen by a minute of the proceedings also embodied in Ex. A, and made part of this report.

They would further report that on the 3d of January, 1872. at another meeting of the board, it was agreed by the board that in the decree to be entered in this court of the sale of said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, the rights, privileges and franchises of the said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company to build a branch road from Huntingdon to Jackson be specifically transferred to said purchasers and embraced in its purchase, if, in the opinion of the counsel for the State, said privilege fairly and properly belongs and passes under said sale of said railroad without any responsibility on the part of the State, as will appear from a copy of the minutes of the board, also embodied in Ex. A. and made a part of this report.

They would further report that the continual sale, as hereinbefore mentioned, was reported by them to the General Assembly at the first session of the 37th General Assembly, began and held on the first Monday in October, 1871, and, with the report before them, the said General Assembly passed the act of the 16-24 November, 1871, chap. 37, of the printed act of the session authorizing and fully empowering the commissioners, naming them, or a legal quorum of their number, to carry into full effect, on the part of the State, any settlement or adjustment with parties litigant adversely to the State that to them may seem equitable between the parties and advantageous to the interest of the State.

They would further report, by an instrument in writing addressed to these commissioners and signed by John M. Bass for himself and his associates, the commissioners have been notified that said Bass and his associates have transferred their interest in the purchase as aforesaid to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and requested the commissioners to consummate the sale with the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and report it accordingly, which instrument is hereunto appended as Ex. C, and made a part of this report.

They further report that the litigation pending at the date of said sale with the stockholders and mortgage bondholders of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, by writ of error in the Supreme Court of the State, and by bill in the United States Court at Nashville, have been compromised and settled, the writ of error in the Supreme Court of the State dismissed, and the litigation in the United States Court terminated, so that the purchasers and the commissioners are able to consummate the sale.

They further report that the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company have made and settled with the commissioners the first payment and part of the second payment, and have made and executed a bond to the satisfaction of the commissioners for the performance of the conditions of sale and of the deferred payments, which bond is hereto appended, marked Ex. B, and made a part of this report.

They further report that the board, by resolution, also embodied in Ex. A, ordered that a report be made out of said sale of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad and submitted to the Chancery Court for confirmation.

Now, therefore, in pursuance of the foregoing resolution, the undersigned beg leave to report the sale of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, its property and franchises, in accordance with the proposition and resolutions as aforesaid, to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, and ask that the sale be confirmed.

EXHIBIT A.

OFFICE OF THE COMPTROLLER,
NASHVILLE, October 7, 1871.

The commissioners met at the Comptroller's office at 3 o'clock, P. M., pursuant to adjournment. Present—Hon. R. J. McKinney, F. B. Fogg, D. W. C. Senter, E. R. Pennebaker and T. H. Butler.

A written bid was received from the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad ——— for the purchase of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, its property and franchises, on the State's interest in said road, at the option of the purchasers. The amount bid was $2,400,000 in bonds of the State and coupons of January, 1871, and subsequent coupons attached, subject to the condition that the claim of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company against the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company for expenditures made under the lease of said road, which claim amounts, as of this day, to the sum of $537,000, according to the statement of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, should be paid out of the purchase money in bonds of the State, the said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company agreeing to take $700,000 of the bonds to be paid as aforesaid, with the coupons attached, in satisfaction of said debt. This bid was made subject to the affimance of the decree of the Chancery Court by the Supreme Court, and was accepted by the commissioners upon that condition; the purchaser made the first payment in bonds, as agreed upon, and gave bond with satisfactory security for the deferred installments. The commissioners repaid to the Nashville and Chattaooga Railroad Company the bonds received as the first payment as aforesaid in satisfaction of $600,000 of the amount of the claim of said road under the lease. The purchasers also paid $100,000 in bonds, with the proper coupons attached, in part satisfaction of the first deferred installment of the purchase money, and these bonds were paid over to the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company in satisfaction of their balance of their claim under the lease. The payment thus made, and for which proper receipts were given by the parties, are, of course subject to the sale being made final and complete by the affirmance of the Supreme Court of the Chancellor's decree in relation to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad. If the decrees are reversed, the contract of the sale, and all that has been done under it, will be null and void. The commissioners caused to be prepared a report of their proceedings, to be submitted to the Legislature, and the same was read and approved.

To the Hon. D. W. C. Senter, Governor of the State of Tennessee, Ed. R. Pennebaker, Comptroller of the State of Tennessee, T. H. Butler, Secretary of State, Francis B. Fogg, Robert J. McKinney, Arch. Wright, Commissioners of Tennessee for the sale of delinquent railroads :

Being informed there is a decree of the Chancery Court at Nashville, authorizing you, as commissioners of that Court, in addition to the authority already conferred upon you by the Legislature, to make sale of the interest of the State by way of mortgage or otherwise, in the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, and also to make sale of the corpus of said road, its rolling stock, franchises, etc. The Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company and John M. Bass, and his associates, hereby, under the decree of said Court, subject to all its provisions, and under your general power derived from the Legislature, make you the following proposition in regard to the purchase of the State's interest in said road and the corpus of said road, with its rolling stock, franchises, etc., viz.:

The said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company and John M. Bass, and associates, will pay the said companies, for the interest of said State and for the corpus of said road, its rolling stock, franchises, etc., the sum of $600,000 in bonds of the State, with coupons of January and July, 1871, attached, to be paid immediately, as provided by the decree and acts of the General Assembly upon this subject, with the understanding, however, hereinafter mentioned. The sum of $600,000, payable in one year from this date, in bonds as aforesaid, and subsequent coupons attached. The sum of $600,000, payable in two years, bonds as aforesaid, with subsequent coupons. The deferred payments to be secured by a bond to the satisfaction of the commissioners, with personal security, and a lien upon said property for further security, as provided in said decree.

It is, however, to be understood that, whereas, as lessee on the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, the said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company has a debt against said first company, which is preferred to all other debts, to the amount, of this day, of $537,000 in currency, which the said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company is willing to merge in its first and second payments in bonds of the State, with coupons as aforesaid, at $700,000 in bonds as aforesaid, for the purpose of this offer, but not otherwise; that this offer is made in view of such mode of payment, and that this debt in bonds as aforesaid, is, as of this date, $700,000, which would produce in currency, at the market price of this date, only $420,000, which sum, to wit, the $700,000, is to be credited accordingly, the purchase to be made subject to the confirmation of the decree of the Chancellor by the Supreme Court, and of this sale also by said Court. The offer is made subject to any claim of the United States upon the rolling stock of said company, for which the State is in no manner to be held responsible. But the State does contract to defend any claims that may be set up against said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, its corpus, franchises and privileges, by the United States Government, and in case the Supreme Court shall not affirm the decree of the Chancellor, this offer is in no manner to affect the right of the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company present and future as lessees of said road. It is further understood and agreed that should the Supreme Court not confirm the decree of the Chancellor to its full extent, but should allow the sale of State's interest alone in said Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, the purchasers aforesaid reserve the right to take the said interest of the State at the same price, of $2,400,000, at their option.

NASHVILLE AND CHATTENOOGA RAILROAD COMPANY.
By E. W. COLE,

JOHN M. BASS,

NASHVILLE, Nov. 10. 1871.

Commissioners met at the appointed time. Present—Judge J. R. McKinney, Gov. John C. Brown, T. H. Butler, and Ed. R. Pennebaker, when the following resolution was read and adopted:

WHEREAS, A meeting of the stockholders of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company was held at Nashville, October 26, 1871, at which it was resolved that the writ of error and supersedeas from the Supreme Court of Tennessee in behalf of said company and stockholders should be dismissed upon condition that there should be allowed to the said stockholders five per cent. upon their stock paid in said company in currency of the United States; and

Whereas, It is believed to be expedient and to get rid of difficulties, that so much should be allowed them to effect this object out of the price of said road, to be paid to the State by the Nashville and Chattanooga Railrcad Company; and

Whereas, The commissioners have no present means in their hands to carry out such a compromise, which, however, the commissioners deem advisable; and

Whereas, The said Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company is willing to advance the necessary sum for this purpose, say forty-five thousand dollars or thereabouts, upon getting a credit for the amount in bonds of the State at their present market price on its next purchase payment to the State; therefore,

Be it resolved, That the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, be allowed a credit accordingly upon its making payment to said stockholders as aforesaid, and the dismission of the writs of error and supersedeas obtained by said company and any of said stockholders up to this time.

JOHN M. BASS,
for himself and associates.

Nashville, Nov. 18, 1872.

EXHIBIT B.

These presents witness, that the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, Jno. M. Bass and his associates, and E. W. Cole, G. M. Fogg, Jno. Porterfield, W. A. Gleaves, N. E. Alloway, Thos. Chadwell, A. L. Landis, J. W. Thomas, Thos. C. Whitsides, Thos. Bass for himself and associates, have this day purchased from said commissioners, the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, its property and franchises, at the option of the purchaser, the interest of the State in said road as set out in the decree in said cause relating thereto, and upon the terms and conditions in said decrees and the contract prescribed, at the price of two million, four hundred thousand dollars, payable in the lawful coupon bonds of the State of Tennessee, with the coupons falling due on the 1st January, 1871, and all the subsequently accruing coupons attached, one-fourth of said bonds, with the agreed coupons, to be paid at the time of purchase—which has been done—and the other three-fourths, with the coupons as aforesaid, to be paid in three equal instalments within one, two and three years respectively from the date of said sale. Now, therefore, should the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company, Jno. M. And it further appearing from their admissions in open court that the counsel for the State are of opinion that the right of the Nashville and

Northwestern Railroad Company to build a branch road from Huntingdon to Jackson, fairly and properly passes under the general sale as made and reported without any responsibility on the part of the State in relation thereto. It is ordered, adjudged, and decreed that all the right, title, claim and interest of all the parties to this suit in, and to the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad, its property and franchises, including the right to build said branch road from Huntingdon to Jackson without any responsibility on the part of the State be, and the same are hereby divested out of them and vested in the Nashville and Chattanooga Railroad Company in absolute right, with all the rights and privileges as heretofore determined by the decrees of this court, in this cause, to belong to the purchasers of the road sold thereunder subject to the lien of the State for the purchase money remaining unpaid under the contract of sale, and to such conditions and obligations as are provided for in said contract, if any, and such as may have been stipulated for and undertaken in the proceedings and decrees in this court.

This cause will be retained in court until the purchase money is fully paid, and it the meantime the commissioners will pay the cost out of the funds received or otherwise.

vs.
The E. & Ky. R.R. Co. et al.

In this cause A. H. Hicks and others, who, as holders of the mortgage bonds and coupons of the Nashville and Northwestern Railroad Company, and as stockholders of said company, carried this case to the Supreme Court by a writ of error, appear in open court by their counsel, Jos. R. Hubbard, Esq., and say that they have, by order in writing, addressed and delivered to F. C. Dunington, Clerk of the Supreme Court, dismissed their said writ of error, and all process and proceedings sued out therewith or incident thereto, and the costs have been paid, and they agree that the cause be reinstated in this court as if no such writ of error or other process had been sued out. Wherefore it is considered by the court that the cause be reinstated on the docket, and stand in the same plight and condition as at the date of the suing out of said writ of error.
